The address of the Debtors’ principal offices is Avenida Calle 26 # 59 – 15 Bogotá, Colombia.

and (ii) the Receivables Maintenance Agreement dated December 12, 2017 (the “Undertaking Agreement”), between Aerovías, as seller and servicer, and USAV, as purchaser, that were both found by the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York (the “Court”) to be executory contracts and subject to rejection under Section 365(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, by and through its undersigned counsel, hereby submits its designation of items to be included in the record on appeal and statement of the issues to be presented on appeal in connection with its appeal from each and every portion of the Memorandum Opinion Granting in Part and Denying in Part Debtors’ Motion to Reject the USAV Agreements entered by the Court in these chapter 11 proceedings on September 4, 2020 [ECF 850] (the “Order”), insofar as the Order granted in part the Debtors’ Motion for Entry of an Order Authorizing Rejection of Certain Executory Contracts [ECF 306], before the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York at Case No. 1:20-cv-08008-LTS.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES ON APPEAL

In the proceedings below, Avianca requested authorization to “reject” under section 365 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code certain distinct contracts, including the RSPA and Undertaking Agreement, relating to the 2017 sale to USAV of certain contract rights to payment associated with the sale of airline tickets processed with credit cards (the “Contract Rights and Future Proceeds”) for $150 million plus the potential for additional amounts subject to the occurrence or non-occurrence of certain conditions. The Court subsequently recognized both the RSPA and Undertaking Agreement as executory contracts that Avianca could reject under Section 365(a).

The USAV hereby states the following as included issues on appeal pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8009(a)(1)(A):

- (1) Whether the bankruptcy court erred in allowing Avianca to unwind through rejection its prepetition sale of Contract Rights and Future Proceeds, where the United States Supreme Court’s decision in Mission Product Holdings v.

Tempnology, LLC, 139 S. Ct. 1652 (2019) recently held that sales could not be unwound through rejection?

- (2) Whether the bankruptcy court erred in finding that a back-up protection in the RSPA requiring Avianca to assign the Contract Rights and Future Proceeds to USAV if the card processors had to be replaced, allowed Avianca to instead take back the Contract Rights and Future Proceeds by terminating the card processing agreements in breach of the Undertaking Agreement (as defined below) and then breaching the RSPA by not assigning the diverted Contract Rights and Future Proceeds back to USAV?
- (3) Whether the bankruptcy court erred in allowing Avianca to unwind only one side of the sale transaction with USAV by allowing Avianca to take back the assets it sold but to keep the $150 million plus other consideration USAV paid for those assets?
- (4) Whether the bankruptcy court erred in finding the Undertaking Agreement was an executory contract subject to rejection under Section 365(a), where USAV has no material unperformed obligation, as required for a contract to be executory? And specifically, whether the bankruptcy court erred in finding that:
 - a) USAV had an obligation under the Undertaking Agreement to furnish “account records” to Avianca, where the Undertaking Agreement is unambiguous that all accounts records with respect to the relevant Contract Rights and Future Proceeds are held and maintained by Avianca, not USAV; and
 - b) USAV’s obligation to provide other documentation requested by Avianca in connection with its servicing and related duties is sufficiently material to render the Undertaking Agreement executory, where Avianca did not even argue that such obligation was material, but rather admitted that it was not material, and where Avianca is only a servicer at this point because USAV and the USAV Secured Lender Group² were prevented from replacing Avianca because of the automatic stay?
- (5) Whether the bankruptcy court erred in finding the RSPA was an executory contract subject to rejection under Section 365(a)? And specifically, whether the bankruptcy court erred in finding that:

² The USAV Secured Lender Group is composed of the following members: Deutsche Bank AG, London Branch; Bank United N.A.; Banco de Credito del Peru; First Citizens Bank Limited; Metrobank S.A.; Prival Bank S.A.; Moneda Latinoamerica Deuda Local Fondo de Inversion; and Moneda Deuda Latinoamericana Fondo de Inversion.

- a) USAV had an unperformed obligation to pay “Additional Purchase Price” (as defined in the RSPA) as of the chapter 11 petition date on May 10, 2020, where that obligation was extinguished prepetition;
 - b) “Trigger Events” (as defined in the RSPA) are obligations, even though they are conditions and conditions cannot render a contract executory; and
 - c) certain terms requiring Avianca to “sell” the diverted rights to payment under replacement card processing agreements to USAV rendered the RSPA executory, so as to allow Avianca to use its own breach to take back the assets it sold, while keeping the purchase price for those assets?
- (6) Whether the bankruptcy court erred in finding that Avianca exercised sound business judgment in “rejecting” the RSPA and Undertaking Agreement, where the Contract Rights and Future Proceeds are actually not “vital” to Avianca’s reorganization and rejection cannot “restore” the Contract Rights and Future Proceeds to Avianca under Mission Product?
