25 postpetition claims that arise. You file a proof of claim, a

1 simple form, for a prepetition claim. It's deemed allowed if
2 no one objects. You don't even have to get an order. But,
3 again, as I explained in Taco Bueno, a 503 administrative
4 expense claim is a very different animal. Okay? You have to
5 put the world on notice.

6 As Mr. Demo said, it's not a two-party dispute. It's a
7 type of claim that potentially every unsecured creditor in the
8 case would care about and want to weigh in on. You're held to 9 strict proof.

10 And, again, as I noted from the Supreme Court Reading
11 case, the Supreme Court has said technically there doesn't
12 have to be a benefit to the estate. There are some things
13 that are just a cost of doing business. A fire to a
14 neighbor's building didn't benefit the estate, but still the 15 victim of that fire was entitled to an administrative expense
16 claim. But this is not even the stretch that a fire would be.
17 So there's just zero room for argument, I think, here that the 18 claims asserted in this action are of the nature of 19 administrative expense claims, postpetition claims, and a
20 request had to be filed by September 25th.

21 And to the extent a sentence or two in this response filed
22 July 5th, 2022 is a request to file a late-filed
23 administrative expense claim, I mean, it's procedurally
24 improper in every way. And so I'm not going to grant any 25 relief based on that.

1 Last, the standing issue. While I have the view that CLO
2 Holdco would have been the party aggrieved here if these
3 claims are valid, and there does appear to be a problem with
4 the standing of the Charitable DAF, I think this is a moot
5 point or an irrelevant point. While under 17 I could, in
6 different circumstances, allow the proper party to substitute
7 in, it would be an exercise in futility here because, again,
8 we're ten months past the deadline for a timely filing of an
9 administrative expense claim.

10 So, I will draft up an opinion and order in this regard.

11 Let me just throw this out here so no one is surprised or 12 on a different page. I don't think I have to do a report and 13 recommendation on this. And anyone who wants to weigh in can 14 weigh in, but as you know, --

15 MR. DEMO: Your Honor?

16 THE COURT: Oh.

17 MR. DEMO: I'm sorry. I was just agreeing with Your
18 Honor. This is the claims allowance process. This is a pure
19 core proceeding at this point.

20 THE COURT: Okay. And so certainly I'll also hear
21 from Mr. Bridges if he has a comment.

22 But the way I look at this is, okay, we start with the 23 point of Judge Godbey, I think it was, had this one. He sua
24 sponte referred this to the Bankruptcy Court. There wasn't a
25 report and recommendation where I said, I think you should

1 either not withdraw or withdraw but let the Bankruptcy Court
2 do pretrial matters. He just sua sponte did that. Okay?

3 But then a couple of additional points. Rule 7012(b)
4 says that a responsive pleading to a 12(b)(6) or a 12(b)(1),
5 any -- shall include a statement that the party does or does
6 not consent to the entry of final orders of judgment by the
7 Court. So I guess we could argue, does that apply to the
8 Movant or does it apply to the Respondent? But I think it
9 probably applies to the Respondent here, and so there was
10 just nothing in the response as to whether Respondent did or 11 did not consent to entry of a final order, so I would view
12 that as a waiver.

13 But most importantly of all, I guess, my third point on 14 this is I think this is an arising-in core matter, not merely 15 related to, where consent is necessary. Because certainly 16 the idea of do you need an administrative expense claim or
17 not and were the proper procedures followed, I think that's 18 core arising in.

19 So, for all of these reasons, I'm letting you know I'm 20 not doing this in a report and recommendation. I'm just 21 doing this in an opinion and order.

22 Mr. Bridges, anything you want to say about that?

23 MR. BRIDGES: Yes, Your Honor. If I could back up
24 and correct myself first. I think I was mistaken about CLO
25 Holdco. They are indeed, I am told, the hundred-percent

1 subsidiary of the Plaintiff, the Charitable DAF.

2 Secondly, yes, Your Honor, this is a Rule 12 motion in an
3 adversary proceeding. We would object to a final order and
4 ask you to issue a report and recommendation.

5 THE COURT: Well, you didn't put that in your
6 response. What is your comment about that?

7 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, my comment on that is I
8 feel -- I feel like my hands are tied by the injunction. We 9 haven't been able to file any motion for leave on fear of --
10 on pain of getting a ruling from this Court against us as to 11 the injunction, but we don't have clarity as to what we're 12 enjoined from and what we are not. And I guess that would be 13 my basis.

14 THE COURT: Okay. Well, I don't know what that has
15 to do it with putting a sentence in a response that's required
16 by 7012(b) saying whether you consent or don't consent. I
17 don't know what an injunction has to do with that.

18 But anyway, I do view this as an arising-in matter where 19 consent is probably irrelevant, but I'm just dotting all our 20 I's here.

21 All right. I will -- I've got one law clerk working on
22 one under-advisement of Highland that I think is pretty close.
23 I've got another law clerk working on another under-advisement
24 in Highland that is getting there. So I think I'll probably 25 just jot out a pretty fast opinion and order on this one,

1 because the facts on it are pretty simple, and I think
2 probably in a few days you'll have it.

3 All right. We're adjourned.

4 THE CLERK: All rise.

5 MR. DEMO: Thank you.

In its response brief, Defendant Highland Capital Management, L.P. does not dispute that Plaintiffs first moved to withdraw the reference under 28 U.S.C. § 157(d) on June 29, 2021 (Dkt. 36), in the district court, or that the district court referred the entire action to this Court without addressing the merits of that motion. It merely argues that Plaintiffs should have re-urged their motion sooner. This Court's statutory jurisdiction is not so easily established.

Neither does the response brief dispute that Plaintiffs' pending claims "require[] consideration of both title 11 and other laws of the United States regulating organizations or activities affecting interstate commerce," as § 157(d) requires. It only questions the complexity of the laws at issue and contends that this Court has sufficient experience to consider them. These arguments do not undo § 157(d)'s jurisdictional bar. Plaintiffs' motion should be granted.

A. Plaintiffs Have Not Waived Jurisdiction

At the outset of this action, Plaintiffs asserted that this Court lacked jurisdiction under § 157(d). Motion for Leave to File First Amended Complaint, 6-7 (Dkt. 6). Plaintiffs moved to withdraw the reference shortly thereafter in their Response and Cross Motion on June 29, 2021 (Dkt. 36). Plaintiffs have maintained this position consistently in repeated filings. Plaintiffs' Amended Motion to Stay All Proceedings, Exhibit A, Proposed Motion to Withdraw Reference (Dkt. 60-1); Renewed Motion to Withdraw Reference (Dkt. 128). The timing of the re-urging of Plaintiffs' motion cannot create jurisdiction where there is none.

The plain language of § 157(d) mandates withdrawal of the reference following a timely motion. There is no additional requirement that a party must repeat its objection to the authority of the Bankruptcy Court through a re-urged or renewed motion to withdraw reference according to a particular timeframe. And Highland points to no authority indicating otherwise.

Highland attempts to bolster its waiver argument with reference to Rule 7012(b) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. But that rule, by its own terms, applies only to responsive pleadings. “Pleading” is a term of art in the Federal Rules, and what can constitute a pleading is enumerated exhaustively in Rule 7(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, made applicable by Rule 7007, FRBP. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(a) (“Pleadings. Only these pleadings are allowed: (1) a complaint; (2) an answer to a complaint; (3) an answer to a counterclaim designated as a counterclaim; (4) an answer to a crossclaim; (5) a third-party complaint; (6) an answer to a third-party complaint; and (7) if the court orders one, a reply to an answer.”) Plaintiffs have filed none of the above except for their Original Complaint, which is certainly not a “responsive” pleading. Rule 7012(b) therefore does not apply.¹

Because Plaintiffs’ June 29, 2021 motion was timely, and because subject matter jurisdiction cannot be established by waiver, Highland’s principal argument against withdrawal of the reference fails.

B. Plaintiffs Have Established That Consideration of the Advisers Act Is Necessary

Plaintiffs have established—and Highland does not dispute—that withdrawal of the reference is mandatory under § 157(d) when a federal law, such as the Advisers Act, must be considered. Renewed Motion to Withdraw the Reference [Dkt. 128] at 2-3. Highland likewise does not dispute that resolving its pending Renewed Motion to Dismiss will require analysis of the Advisers Act. Instead, Highland argues only that such analysis will be simple and immaterial. This is incorrect.

As Plaintiffs demonstrated in their opening brief, the likelihood of anything more than simple application of federal securities laws is sufficient to trigger mandatory withdrawal under § 157(d). See In re Harrah's Entm't, No. 95-3925, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18097, at *7-8 (E.D. La. 1996) (rejecting argument that the case would “only involve the simple application of established federal securities laws” where plaintiff alleged violation of such laws and was attempting “to hold defendants directly liable and secondarily liable based on a ‘controlling person’ theory for certain acts and omissions”); id. at *7-8, 11 (concluding, “This federal securities litigation involves more than simple application of federal securities laws and will be complicated enough to warrant mandatory withdrawal under § 157(d),” and citing In re Rann'd Res., 175 B.R. 393, 396 (D. Nev. 1994), for the proposition that withdrawal of the reference is mandatory where resolution requires more than simple application of federal securities laws); In re Cont'l Airlines Corp., 50 B.R. 342, 360 (S.D. Tex. 1985), aff'd, 790 F.2d 35 (5th Cir. 1986) (“While that second clause [of § 157(d)] might not apply when some ‘other law’ only tangentially affects the proceeding, it surely does apply when federal labor legislation will likely be material to the proceeding’s resolution.”).

That more than simple application of the Advisers Act is required is amply demonstrated by the parties’ briefing of the pending Renewed Motion to Dismiss Complaint, which Plaintiffs incorporate by reference here. See e.g., Plaintiffs’ Response to Renewed Motion to Dismiss Complaint [Dkt. 129] at 12-13 & n.3 (explaining the viability of an action for breach of fiduciary duties imposed by the Adviser Act and explaining Highland’s inability to circumvent those duties via the internal-affairs doctrine); id. at 14-15 & n.4 (invoking Rule 206(4)-8, promulgated under 17 C.F.R. § 275.206(4)-8, as governing the duties owed by advisors to “pooled investment vehicles” and explaining how Highland qualifies as such).

Neither does Highland’s specious core-jurisdiction argument save the day, as the mandatory withdrawal provisions of § 157(d) apply even to matters within a bankruptcy court’s core jurisdiction. See, e.g., In re Bos. Generating, LLC, No. 10-cv-6528, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 116073, at *14–15 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 1, 2010) (quoting New York v. Exxon Corp., 932 F.2d 1020, 1026 (2d Cir. 1991) for the proposition, “[M]atters within [the bankruptcy court’s ‘core’ jurisdiction, upon timely motion, must be withdrawn under § 157(d) if they require the bankruptcy court to substantially interpret federal statutes which affect interstate commerce.”) (alterations in original); cf. Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 499 (2011) (holding that Congress cannot bypass Article III and create jurisdiction in bankruptcy court “simply because a proceeding may have some bearing on a bankruptcy case”); In re Prescription Home Health Care, 316 F.3d 542, 548 (5th Cir. 2002) (rejecting “the theory that a bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to enjoin any activity that threatens the debtor’s reorganization prospects”).

Because the resolution of this case—indeed, the resolution of the pending Renewed Motion to Dismiss—will require consideration of federal securities law, withdrawal of the reference is mandatory.

CONCLUSION

For all these reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully submit that the motion should be granted.

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

In re:

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HV International VIII Secondary L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest Partners L.P. on behalf of funds and accounts under management (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant manages investment funds that are limited partners in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor’s employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

² All capitalized terms used but not defined herein shall have the meanings given to them in the Settlement Agreement.

RELEVANT BACKGROUND

A. Procedural Background

3. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

4. On October 29, 2019, the official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

5. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s case to this Court [Docket No. 186].³

6. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the “Settlement Motion”). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the “Settlement Order”).

7. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was constituted at the Debtor’s general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc., and certain operating protocols were instituted.

8. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order appointing James P. Seery, Jr., as the Debtor’s chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer [Docket No. 854].

9. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

³ All docket numbers refer to the docket maintained by this Court.

B. Overview of HarbourVest's Claims

10. HarbourVest's claims against the Debtor's estate arise from its $80 million investment in Highland CLO Funding, f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"), pursuant to which HarbourVest obtained a 49 percent interest in HCLOF (the "Investment").

11. In brief, HarbourVest contends that it was fraudulently induced into entering into the Investment based on the Debtor's misrepresentations and omissions concerning certain material facts, including that the Debtor: (1) failed to disclose that it never intended to pay an arbitration award obtained by a former portfolio manager, (2) failed to disclose that it engaged in a series of fraudulent transfers for the purpose of preventing the former portfolio manager from collecting on his arbitration award and misrepresented the reasons changing the portfolio manager for HCLOF immediately prior to the Investment, (3) indicated that the dispute with the former portfolio manager would not impact investment activities, and (4) expressed confidence in the ability of HCLOF to reset or redeem the collateralized loan obligations ("CLOs") under its control.

12. HarbourVest seeks to rescind its Investment and claims damages in excess of $300 million based on theories of fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty (under Guernsey law), and on alleged violations of state securities laws and the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization Act ("RICO").

13. HarbourVest's allegations are summarized below.⁴

⁴ Solely for purposes of this Motion, and not for any other reason, the facts set forth herein are adopted largely from the HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "Response").

C. Summary of HarbourVest's Factual Allegations

14. At the time HarbourVest made its Investment, the Debtor was embroiled in an arbitration against Joshua Terry ("Mr. Terry"), a former employee of the Debtor and limited partner of Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP"). Through Acis LP, Mr. Terry managed Highland's CLO business, including CLO-related investments held by Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("Acis Funding").

15. The litigation between Mr. Terry and the Debtor began in 2016, after the Debtor terminated Mr. Terry and commenced an action against him in Texas state court. Mr. Terry asserted counterclaims for wrongful termination and for the wrongful taking of his ownership interest in Acis LP and subsequently had certain claims referred to arbitration where he obtained an award of approximately $8 million (the "Arbitration Award") on October 20, 2017.

16. HarbourVest alleges that the Debtor responded to the Arbitration Award by engaging in a series of fraudulent transfers and corporate restructurings, the true purposes of which were fraudulently concealed from HarbourVest.

17. For example, according to HarbourVest, the Debtor changed the name of the target fund from Acis Funding to "Highland CLO Funding, Ltd." ("HCLOF") and "swapped out" Acis LP for Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. as portfolio manager (the "Structural Changes"). The Debtor allegedly told HarbourVest that it made these changes because of the "reputational harm" to Acis LP resulting from the Arbitration Award. The Debtor further told HarbourVest that in lieu of redemptions, resetting the CLOs was necessary, and that it would be easier to reset them under the "Highland" CLO brand instead of the Acis CLO brand.

18. In addition, HarbourVest also alleges that the Debtor had no intention of allowing Mr. Terry to collect on his Arbitration Award, and orchestrated a scheme to "denude"

Acis of assets by fraudulently transferring virtually all of its assets and attempting to transfer its profitable portfolio management contracts to non-Acis, Debtor-related entities.

19. Unaware of the fraudulent transfers or the true purposes of the Structural Changes, and in reliance on representations made by the Debtor, HarbourVest closed on its Investment in HCLOF on November 15, 2017.

20. After discovering the transfers that occurred between Highland and Acis between October and December 2017 following the Arbitration Award (the “Transfers”), on January 24, 2018, Terry moved for a temporary restraining order (the “TRO”) from the Texas state court on the grounds that the Transfers were pursued for the purpose of rendering Acis LP judgment-proof. The state court granted the TRO, enjoining the Debtor from transferring any CLO management contracts or other assets away from Acis LP.

21. On January 30, 2018, Mr. Terry filed involuntary bankruptcy petitions against Acis LP and its general partner, Acis Capital Management GP, LLC. See In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 18-30264-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) and In re Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, Case No. 18-30265-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) (collectively, the “Acis Bankruptcy Case”). The Bankruptcy Court overruled the Debtor’s objection, granted the involuntary petitions, and appointed a chapter 11 trustee (the “Acis Trustee”). A long sequence of events subsequently transpired, all of which relate to HarbourVest’s claims, including:

- On May 31, 2018, the Court issued a sua sponte TRO preventing any actions in furtherance of the optional redemptions or other liquidation of the Acis CLOs.
- On June 14, 2018, HCLOF withdrew optional redemption notices.
- The TRO expired on June 15, 2018, and HCLOF noticed the Acis Trustee that it was requesting an optional redemption.

- HCLOF's request was withdrawn on July 6, 2018, and on June 21, 2018, the Acis Trustee sought an injunction preventing Highland/HCLOF from seeking further redemptions (the "Preliminary Injunction").
- The Court granted the Preliminary Injunction on July 10, 2018, pending the Acis Trustee's attempts to confirm a plan or resolve the Acis Bankruptcy.
- On August 30, 2018, the Court denied confirmation of the First Amended Joint Plan for Acis, and held that the Preliminary Injunction must stay in place on the ground that the "evidence thus far has been compelling that numerous transfers after the Josh Terry judgment denuded Acis of value."
- After the Debtor made various statements implicating HarbourVest in the Transfers, the Acis Trustee investigated HarbourVest's involvement in such Transfers, including extensive discovery and taking a 30(b)(6) deposition of HarbourVest's managing director, Michael Pugatch, on November 17, 2018.
- On March 20, 2019, HCLOF sent a letter to Acis LP stating that it was not interested in pursuing, or able to pursue, a CLO reset transaction.

D. The Parties' Pleadings and Positions Concerning HarbourVest's Proofs of Claim

22. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed proofs of claim against Highland that were subsequently denoted by the Debtor's claims agents as claim numbers 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154, respectively (collectively, the "Proofs of Claim"). Morris Dec. Exhibits 2-7.

23. The Proofs of Claim assert, among other things, that HarbourVest suffered significant harm due to conduct undertaken by the Debtor and the Debtor's employees, including "financial harm resulting from (i) court orders in the Acis Bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise relegated the activity of HCLOF [i.e., the Preliminary Injunction]; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis Bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF." See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶3.

24. HarbourVest also asserted "any and all of its right to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the forgoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with relating to” the Operative Documents “and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the forgoing harm.” See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶4.

25. Highland subsequently objected to HarbourVest’s Proofs of Claim on the grounds that they were no-liability claims. [Docket No. 906] (the “Claim Objection”).

26. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Response. The Response articulated specified claims under U.S. federal and state and Guernsey law, including claims for fraud, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation (collectively, the “Fraud Claims”), U.S. State and Federal Securities Law Claims (the “Securities Claims”), violations of the Federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (“RICO”), breach of fiduciary duty and misuse of fund assets, and an unfair prejudice claim under Guernsey law (collectively, with the Proofs of Claim, the “HarbourVest Claims”).

27. On October 18, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Motion of HarbourVest Pursuant to Rule 3018 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure for Temporary Allowance of Claims for Purposes of Voting to Accept or Reject the Plan [Docket No. 1207] (the “3018 Motion”). In its 3018 Motion, HarbourVest sought for its Claims to be temporarily allowed for voting purposes in the amount of more than $300 million (based largely on a theory of treble damages).

E. Settlement Discussions

28. In October, the parties discussed the possibility of resolving the Rule 3018 Motion.

29. In November, the parties broadened the discussions in an attempt to reach a global resolution of the HarbourVest Claims. In the pursuit thereof, the parties and their counsel participated in several conference calls where they engaged in a spirited exchange of perspectives concerning the facts and the law.

30. During follow up meetings, the parties' interests became more defined. Specifically, HarbourVest sought to maximize its recovery while fully extracting itself from the Investment, while the Debtor sought to minimize the HarbourVest Claims consistent with its perceptions of the facts and law.

31. After the parties' interests became more defined, the principals engaged in a series of direct, arm's-length, telephonic negotiations that ultimately lead to the settlement, whose terms are summarized below.

F. Summary of Settlement Terms

32. The Settlement Agreement contains the following material terms, among others:

- HarbourVest shall transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor;⁵
- HarbourVest shall receive an allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $45 million and shall vote its Class 8 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest shall receive a subordinated, allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $35 million and shall vote its Class 9 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest will support confirmation of the Debtor's Plan, including, but not limited to, voting its claims in support of the Plan;
- The HarbourVest Claims shall be allowed in the aggregate amount of $45 million for voting purposes;
- HarbourVest will support the Debtor's pursuit of its pending Plan of Reorganization; and
- The parties shall exchange mutual releases.

⁵ The NAV for HarbourVest's 49.98% interest in HCLOF was estimated to be approximately $22 million as of December 1, 2020.

See generally Morris Dec. Exhibit 1.

BASIS FOR RELIEF REQUESTED

33. Bankruptcy Rule 9019 governs the procedural prerequisites to approval of a settlement, providing that:

On motion by the trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may approve a compromise or settlement. Notice shall be given to creditors, the United States trustee, the debtor, and indenture trustees as provided in Rule 2002 and to any other entity as the court may direct.

FED. R. BANKR. P. 9019(a).

34. Settlements in bankruptcy are favored as a means of minimizing litigation, expediting the administration of the bankruptcy estate, and providing for the efficient resolution of bankruptcy cases. See Myers v. Martin (In re Martin), 91 F.3d 389, 393 (3d Cir. 1996); Rivercity v. Herpel (In re Jackson Brewing Co.), 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980). Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019(a), a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). Ultimately, “approval of a compromise is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court.” See United States v. AWECO, Inc. (In re AWECO, Inc.), 725 F.2d 293, 297 (5th Cir. 1984); Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602–03.

35. In making this determination, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit applies a three-part test, “with a focus on comparing ‘the terms of the compromise with the rewards of litigation.’” Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citing Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602). The Fifth Circuit has instructed courts to consider the following factors: “(1) The probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact, (2) The complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay, and (3) All other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise.” Id. Under the rubric of the third factor referenced above, the Fifth Circuit has specified two additional factors that bear on the decision to approve a proposed settlement. First, the court should consider “the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views.” Id.; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995). Second, the court should consider the “extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion.” Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Foster Mortgage Corp., 68 F.3d at 918 (citations omitted).

36. There is ample basis to approve the proposed Settlement Agreement based on the Rule 9019 factors set forth by the Fifth Circuit.

37. First, although the Debtor believes that it has valid defenses to the HarbourVest Claims, there is no guarantee that the Debtor would succeed in its litigation with HarbourVest. Indeed, to establish its defenses, the Debtor would be required to rely, at least in part, on the credibility of witnesses whose veracity has already been called into question by this Court. Moreover, it will be difficult to dispute that the Transfers precipitated the Acis Bankruptcy, and, ultimately, the imposition of the Bankruptcy Court’s TRO that restricted HCLOF’s ability to reset or redeem the CLOs and that is at the core of the HarbourVest Claims.

38. The second factor—the complexity, duration, and costs of litigation—also weighs heavily in favor of approving the Settlement Agreement. As this Court is aware, the events forming the basis of the HarbourVest Claims—including the Terry Litigation and Acis Bankruptcy—proceeded for years in this Court and in multiple other forums, and has already cost the Debtor’s estate millions of dollars in legal fees. If the Settlement Agreement is not approved, then the parties will expend significant resources litigating a host of fact-intensive issues including, among other things, the substance and materiality of the Debtor's alleged fraudulent statements and omissions and whether HarbourVest reasonably relied on those statements and omissions.

39. Third, approval of the Settlement Agreement is justified by the paramount interest of creditors. Specifically, the settlement will enable the Debtor to: (a) avoid incurring substantial litigation costs; (b) avoid the litigation risk associated with HarbourVest's $300 million claim; and (c) through the plan support provisions, increase the likelihood that the Debtor's pending plan of reorganization will be confirmed.

40. Finally, the Settlement Agreement was unquestionably negotiated at arm's-length. The terms of the settlement are the result of numerous, ongoing discussions and negotiations between the parties and their counsel and represent neither party's "best case scenario." Indeed, the Settlement Agreement should be approved as a rational exercise of the Debtor's business judgment made after due deliberation of the facts and circumstances concerning HarbourVest's Claims.

NO PRIOR REQUEST

41. No previous request for the relief sought herein has been made to this, or any other, Court.

NOTICE

42. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a) counsel for HarbourVest; (b) the Office of the United States Trustee; (c) the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (d) the Debtor's principal secured parties; (e) counsel to the Committee; and (f) parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

ATTORNEYS FOR JAMES DONDERO

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS

HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT,	§	Case No. 19-34054
L.P.,	§
Debtor.	§	Chapter 11

JAMES DONDERO’S OBJECTION TO DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY
OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST
[Relates to Docket No. 1625]

James Dondero (“Respondent”), a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest in the above-captioned bankruptcy case, hereby files this Objection to Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) [Docket No. 1625] (the “Motion”) filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”). Through the Motion, the Debtor seeks approval of its compromise with HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, “HarbourVest”) pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”). In support of this objection, Respondent respectfully represents as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Under Bankruptcy Rule 9019, the Bankruptcy Court is tasked with making an independent judgment on the merits of a proposed settlement to ensure that the proposed settlement is “fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate.”¹ While Respondent recognizes the Debtor’s efforts in arranging a settlement, there are at least three significant issues with the terms of the settlement that merit denial of the Motion: (i) the proposed settlement is not reasonable or in the best interest of the estate given the weakness of the HarbourVest Claim (as hereinafter defined); (ii) the proposed settlement is a blatant attempt to purchase votes in support of Debtor’s plan by giving HarbourVest a significant claim to which it would not otherwise be entitled; and (iii) the proposed settlement seeks to improperly classify the HarbourVest Claim² in two separate classes in order to gerrymander an affirmative vote on its reorganization plan. Moreover, the proposed settlement does not satisfy the factors for approval fixed by case law. On information and belief, Debtor’s CEO/CRO, Mr. Seery, has previously asserted on multiple occasions that the HarbourVest Claim had no value and that the Debtor could resolve such claim for no more than $5 million. While Respondent and Mr. Seery have had a number of disagreements in this case, Respondent agrees with Mr. Seery’s initial conclusion that the HarbourVest Claim is substantially without merit. Respondent understands that any settlement will not necessarily provide the best possible outcome for the Debtor, but in this instance the proposed settlement far exceeds the bounds of reasonableness and, on its face, is an attempt by the Debtor to purchase votes in favor of confirmation of its Plan. Given the Debtor's prior positions as to the merits of HarbourVest Claim it is necessary for the Court to closely scrutinize the settlement to determine why the Debtor now believes granting HarbourVest a net claim of nearly $60 million³ resulting from HarbourVest's investment in a non-debtor entity (which was and is managed by a non-debtor) to be in the best interest of the estate. Upon close scrutiny, Respondent believes the Court will find that the proposed settlement is not reasonable or in the best interest of the estate and the Motion therefore should be denied.

II. BACKGROUND

2. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in Delaware.

4. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].

5. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the "Settlement Motion"). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order").

³ The proposed settlement provides that HarbourVest shall receive an allowed general unsecured (Class 8) claim in the amount of $45 million and an allowed subordinated general unsecured (Class 9) claim in the amount of $35 million. As part of the settlement, HarbourVest will then transfer its entire interest in Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF") to an entity to be designated by the Debtor. The Debtor states that the value of this interest is approximately $22 million as of December 1, 2020.

6. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was appointed on January 9, 2020, for the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Board"). The members of the Board are James P. Seery, Jr., John S. Dubel, and Russell F. Nelms.

7. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order authorizing the Debtor to employ James P. Seery, Jr. as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer of the Debtor. See Docket No. 854.

8. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed Proofs of Claim Numbers 143, 149, 149, 150, 153, and 154 (collectively, the "HarbourVest Claim")⁴.

9. On July 30, 2020, the Debtor filed Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 906] (the "Debtor Objection"), which contained an objection to the HarbourVest Claim.

10. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "HarbourVest Response").

11. On December 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Motion seeking approval of a proposed settlement of the HarbourVest Claim under Rule 9019. Docket No. 1625.

III. LEGAL STANDARD

12. The merits of a proposed compromise should be judged under the criteria set forth in Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry, Inc. v. Anderson, 390 U.S. 414 (1968). TMT Trailer requires that a compromise must be "fair and equitable." TMT Trailer, 390

⁴ While HarbourVest has filed a number of claims, each filed claim is exactly the same except in the name of the claimant. See Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154.

U.S. at 424; In re AWECO, Inc., 725 F.2d 293, 298 (5th Cir. 1984). The terms “fair and equitable,” commonly referred to as the “absolute priority rule,” mean that (i) senior interests are entitled to full priority over junior interests; and (ii) the compromise is reasonable in relation to the likely rewards of litigation. In re Cajun Electric Power Coop., 119 F.3d 349, 355 (5th Cir. 1997); In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980).

13. In determining whether a proposed compromise is fair and equitable, a Court should consider the following factors:

- (i) the probabilities of ultimate success should the claim be litigated;
- (ii) the complexity, expense, and likely duration of litigating the claim;
- (iii) the difficulties of collecting a judgment rendered from such litigation; and,
- (iv) all other factors relevant to a full and fair assessment of the wisdom of the compromise.

TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424.

14. In considering whether to approve a proposed compromise, the bankruptcy judge “may not simply accept the trustee’s word that the settlement is reasonable, nor may he merely ‘rubber stamp’ the trustee’s proposal.” In re Am. Res. Corp., 841 F.2d 159, 162 (7th Cir. 1987). “[T]he bankruptcy judge must apprise himself of all facts necessary to evaluate the settlement and make an informed and independent judgment about the settlement.” See TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424, 434.

15. While the trustee’s business judgment is entitled to a certain deference, “business judgment is not alone determinative of the issue of court approval.” See In re Endoscopy Ctr. of S. Nev., LLC, 451 B.R. 527, 536 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2011). Further, the business judgment rule does not provide a debtor with “unfettered freedom” to do as it wishes. See In re Pilgrim’s Pride Corp., 403 B.R. 413, 426 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (“[A]s a fiduciary holding its estate in trust and responsible to the court, a debtor in possession must administer its case and conduct its business in a fashion amenable to the scrutiny to be expected from creditor and court oversight.”). The Court must conduct an “intelligent, objective and educated evaluation”⁵ of the proposed settlement “to ensure that the settlement is fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate and creditors.” See In re Mirant Corp., 348 B.R. 725, 739 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006) (quoting Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. Foster Mortgage Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995)).

IV. ARGUMENT AND AUTHORITIES

16. As discussed in detail below, there are three significant issues with the terms of the settlement that merit denial of the Motion: (i) the proposed settlement is not reasonable or in the best interest of the estate given the weakness of the HarbourVest Claim; (ii) the proposed settlement is a blatant attempt to purchase votes in support of Debtor’s plan by giving HarbourVest a substantial claim to which it is not entitled; and (iii) the proposed settlement seeks to improperly classify HarbourVest’s one claim in two separate classes in order to gerrymander an affirmative vote on its reorganization plan. For these and certain additional reasons as discussed below, the Motion should be denied.

A. Through its Claim, HarbourVest Seeks to Revisit this Court’s Orders in the Acis Case

17. As an initial matter, through its proofs of claim, HarbourVest appears to be second guessing the Court’s judgment in the Chapter 11 case of Acis Capital Management, LP and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively, “Acis”) and seeking to revisit the Court’s orders entered in that case years ago. HarbourVest appears to be arguing that the TRO and injunction entered in the Acis case that prevented redemptions or resets in the CLOs are now the root cause of the decrease in value of its investment in HCLOF.

18. Specifically, the claim states that HarbourVest incurred “financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF.”⁶

19. Essentially, HarbourVest is saying that the orders entered in the Acis case did not actually protect the investors and their investments, but instead were a triggering cause for the alleged diminution in value of its investment in HCLOF. Nevertheless, even though the value of HCLOF dropped dramatically only after the Effective Date of Acis’s Plan, years later and despite the lack of Debtor involvement in managing HarbourVest’s investment, HarbourVest now seeks to impute liability to the Debtor through a flimsy narrative designed to recoup investment losses unrelated to the Debtor and for which the Debtor owed HarbourVest no duty.

20. That HarbourVest now, years later, seeks to revisit this Court’s Acis orders raises a number of issues, including those as to HarbourVest’s involvement (or lack thereof) in the Acis case, whether the orders, Plan, or Confirmation Order in the Acis case may bar some of the relief requested by HarbourVest here, and questions related to the merits of the HarbourVest Claim and the legal grounds allegedly supporting it.

⁶ See Proof of Claim 143, para. 3 (“Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor’s employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF.”).

B. The HarbourVest Claim Lacks Merit and the Proposed Settlement is Not Reasonable

21. Based on the HarbourVest Claim and its filed response to the Debtor's objection, Respondent believes that the HarbourVest claim is meritless and the proposed settlement is not reasonable, fair and equitable, or in the best interest of the estate.

22. First, the proposed settlement is concerning particularly because HarbourVest's bare bones proof of claim contains very little in terms of allegations of specific conduct against the Debtor that would give rise to a $60 million claim against this estate. While HarbourVest's response to the Debtor's claim objection is lengthy, it contains very little in real substance supporting its right to such a claim against the estate. The response also omits a number of key facts that are relevant and potentially fatal to its claim for damages against the Debtor's estate. Among them is the fact that Acis (and thereafter Reorganized Acis), along with Mr. Joshua Terry, managed HarbourVest's investment for years after it was made.⁷ Despite this fact, HarbourVest's alleged damages appear to be based largely on the difference between the value of its initial investment at confirmation of Acis's Plan and the current value of the investment—which amount was directly determined by the performance of the CLOs that Acis managed during this time.⁸ Neither the claim nor the response directly address the implications of Acis's management of the CLOs during the period following HarbourVest's investment. Nor does HarbourVest address or discuss performance of the CLOs, the market forces that may have caused HarbourVest's investment to lose value, or other factors influencing the current value of its investment. The speculative nature of the damages and the lack of specificity of the HarbourVest Claim and the role of Acis in the loss of value to HarbourVest all call into question the reliability of the allegations and the legal basis for the claim amount awarded in the settlement.

⁷ See, e.g., HarbourVest Proof of Claim 143, p. 5 ("The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor's managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, "Acis"), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Court") on January 30, 2018.").

⁸ See HarbourVest Response, Docket No. 1057, para. 40 ("HarbourVest has been injured from the Investment: not only has the Investment failed to accrue value, its value plummeted. The Investment's current value is far less than HarbourVest's initial contribution.").

23. Also absent from Harbourvest's papers is any discussion of any contract or agreement between (i) HarbourVest and the Debtor; and (ii) any agreement that was executed in conjunction with HarbourVest's initial investment. While the proof of claim references a number of agreements, there is no explanation in the claim or in HarbourVest's response to the Debtor's claim objection of how these agreements give rise to liability against the Debtor. For example, neither the claim nor the HarbourVest Response (which includes more than 600 pages of attachments) attach any written agreement between HarbourVest and any other party. While HarbourVest has alleged a number of claims sounding in tort, many of those claims cannot exist absent a contract or other express relationship between the parties. Moreover, the terms of the relevant contracts themselves likely contain a number of provisions that may call into question Debtor's liability or would be otherwise relevant to merits of the HarbourVest Claim. For example, HarbourVest in its papers appears to assert or imply that the Debtor made a number of false or fraudulent representations to solicit HarbourVest's investment, but then fails to discuss or even identify the applicable agreements it alleges it was induced into signing in connection with its investment (this despite the substantial value of the investment when the Acis plan was confirmed).

24. Given these issues, among many others, the HarbourVest Claim is unsustainable both from a liability and damages standpoint and there are many very high hurdles HarbourVest would have to clear in seeking to prove liability against the Debtor and in proving its damages. For a long period of time, its investment was managed by Acis and the investment's performance was directly tied to Acis's inadequate performance as portfolio manager. Further, the value of

C. The Proposed Settlement is an Improper Attempt by the Debtor to Purchase Votes in Support of its Plan and the Separate Classification of the HarbourVest Claim Constitutes Gerrymandering in Violation of 11 U.S.C. § 1122

27. Section 1122 of the Bankruptcy Code provides as follows:

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, a plan may place a claim or an interest in a particular class only if such claim or interest is substantially similar to the other claims or interests of such class.

(b) A plan may designate a separate class of claims consisting only of every unsecured claim that is less than or reduced to an amount that the court approves as reasonable and necessary for administrative convenience.

11 U.S.C. § 1122.

28. “Chapter 11 requires classification of claims against a debtor for two reasons. Each class of creditors will be treated in the debtor's plan of reorganization based upon the similarity of its members' priority status and other legal rights against the debtor's assets. Proper classification is essential to ensure that creditors with claims of similar priority against the debtor's assets are treated similarly.” In re Greystone III Joint Venture, 995 F.2d 1274, 1277 (5th Cir. 1991).

29. “Section 1122 consequently must contemplate some limits on classification of claims of similar priority. A fair reading of both subsections suggests that ordinarily substantially similar claims, those which share common priority and rights against the debtor’s estate, should be placed in the same class.” Id. at 1278.

30. The Fifth Circuit has stated that there is “one clear rule that emerges from otherwise muddled caselaw on § 1122 claims classification: thou shalt not classify similar claims differently in order to gerrymander an affirmative vote on a reorganization plan.” Id. at 1279. The Court observed:

There must be some limit on a debtor’s power to classify creditors in such a manner. . . . Unless there is some requirement of keeping similar claims together, nothing would stand in the way of a debtor seeking out a few impaired creditors (or even one such creditor) who will vote for the plan and placing them in their own class.

In re Greystone III Joint Venture, 995 F.2d 1274, 1279 (5th Cir. 1991) (quoting In re U.S. Truck Co., 800 F.2d 581, 586 (6th Cir. 1986)).

31. Here, the HarbourVest settlement and the classification of the HarbourVest Claim under the Plan blatantly violate the Fifth Circuit’s “one rule” concerning the classification of claims under section 1122. To the extent that HarbourVest even has a legitimate claim, not only should its claim be classified together with other unsecured creditors, its claim should be classified solely in one class. To allow the Debtor to do otherwise as proposed is improper gerrymandering in order to obtain a consenting class in express violation of section 1122.

D. There Are Other Reasons for the Court to Closely Scrutinize the Proposed Settlement that May Warrant Denial of the Motion

32. There are a number of other reasons for the Court to closely scrutinize the proposed settlement that may warrant denial of the Motion.

33. First, the granting to HarbourVest of a claim in the total amount of $80 million potentially allows HarbourVest to achieve a significant windfall at the expense of other creditors and equity holders. The Debtor has asserted numerous times that the estate is solvent and, for this reason, the purported subordinated claim of $35 million (if allowed and approved) may be worth just as much as its general unsecured claim. This is a huge figure in this case, outshined only by the Redeemer Committee, which has an actual arbitration award obtained after lengthy litigation. By contrast, the HarbourVest Claim contains only a few paragraphs of generalized allegations that essentially argue that the Debtor’s alleged actions related to the Acis bankruptcy, and this Court’s orders in the Acis case, are a “but for” cause of the loss of its investment. While the HarbourVest Response is lengthy, it lacks necessary details for the Court to determine whether HarbourVest may be entitled to the relief requested by the Motion. The other significant creditors in this case—inter alia, Redeemer, UBS and Acis—all had pending claims that were litigated. Nor is HarbourVest a trade creditor, vendor, or other contract counter-party of the Debtor. The HarbourVest Claim is thus uniquely situated in this case and, given the size and the nature of its claims, should invite close scrutiny. Under these facts, the potential allowance of an $80 million claim (less the value of its share in HCLOF, which may suffer by continued management by Acis) against the estate for an investment which was not held or managed by the Debtor would be a huge undue windfall.

34. Second, the Motion states that HarbourVest will vote its proposed allowed Class 8 (proposed at $45 million) and Class 9 (proposed at $35 million) claims in support of confirmation. There are at least two potential issues with this proposal. First, the deadline for parties to submit ballots was January 5, 2021, and as of the close of business on January 5, the HarbourVest Claim has not been allowed for voting purposes.⁹ Second, the Motion and proposed settlement agreement state that the HarbourVest Claim will be allowed for voting purposes only as a general unsecured claim in the amount of $45 million. It is unclear how HarbourVest can, or would be authorized to, vote its purported Class 8 and 9 Claims in support of the Plan after the voting deadline and when the settlement provides only for a voting claim in Class 8.

35. Third, while the Motion addresses the factor of probability of success in the litigation, it does not discuss in detail the cost of doing so in relation to the amount to be paid to HarbourVest under the settlement or the likelihood that the Debtor will succeed in the litigation. In addition, unlike the claims filed by Acis and UBS, the HarbourVest Claim does not arise from pending litigation. At this point, relatively little litigation has occurred and the parties have not addressed threshold issues that might dramatically narrow the scope of the HarbourVest Claim. Rule 9019 requires an analysis as to whether the probability of success in litigation is outweighed by the consideration achieved under the settlement. See In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980) (The Court must “compare the terms of the compromise with the likely rewards of litigation.”). Given the excessive amount to be paid under the settlement and the weakness of the HarbourVest Claim, this factor weighs in favor of denial of the Motion.

36. Fourth, it is unclear from the settlement papers whether the transfer by HarbourVest of its interest in HCLOF to the Debtor or an entity the Debtor designates will cause the value of the investment to be received by the Debtor’s estate. Further, the interest of HCLOF being conveyed under the proposed settlement may be subject to the Acis plan injunction, which could potentially prevent the Debtor’s estate from realizing the value of this interest. In the event the Court is inclined to approve the settlement, the order should make clear that the available value of the investment should be realized by the Debtor’s estate.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Respondent respectfully requests that the Court enter an order denying the Motion and providing Respondent such other and further relief to which he may be justly entitled.

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT FOR THE
 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS

IN RE:	*	Chapter 11
	*	Case No. 19-34054sgj11
Debtor	*

OBJECTION TO DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST (CLAIM NOS. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154)
 AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

The Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get Good Trust (jointly, “Objectors”), submit this Objection for the purpose of objecting to the Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Dkt. #1625] (the “Motion”) filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”). Through the Motion, the Debtor seeks approval of its compromise with HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, “HarbourVest”) pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”). In support of this objection, Objectors respectfully represent as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Objectors recognize that Courts favorably view settlements and, as a matter of course, generally approve settlements as being in the best interest of the bankruptcy estate. The settlement proposed herein, however, is different than other settlements inasmuch as it represents a 180 degree departure from the Debtor’s own analysis of the Claim of HarbourVest and the fact that the settlement is tied to HarbourVest approving the Debtor’s plan. Little or no information is provided by the Debtor as to why its initial analysis was flawed and what information or legal principal it discovered to change a zero claim into a massive claim that will have a significant impact on the recovery to creditors.

II. BACKGROUND

2. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”) in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in Delaware.

4. On December 4, 2019, the venue of this case was transferred. [Dkt. #186].

5. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order authorizing the Debtor to employ James P. Seery, Jr. as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer of the Debtor. [See Dkt. #854].

6. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed Proofs of Claim Numbers 143, 149, 149, 150, 153, and 154 (collectively, the “HarbourVest Claim”)¹.

7. On July 30, 2020, the Debtor filed Debtor’s First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Dkt. #906] (the “Debtor Objection”), which contained an objection to the HarbourVest Claim.

8. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed HarbourVest Response to Debtor’s First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Dkt. #1057] (the “HarbourVest Response”).

9. The Debtor, in its Disclosure Statement for the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. #1473 pgs. 40-41], described its position relative to the HarbourVest Claim as follows:

The Debtor intends to vigorously defend the HarbourVest Claims on various grounds The HarbourVest Entities invested approximately $80,000,000.00 in HCLOF but seek an allowed claim in excess of 300 million dollars (after giving effect to treble damages for the alleged RICO violations)

10. On December 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Motion seeking approval of a proposed settlement of the HarbourVest Claim under Rule 9019. [Dkt. # 1625].

11. The proposed settlement provides HarbourVest with the following:

- a. An allowed, general unsecured claim in the amount of $45,000,000.00 [Dkt. #1625 pg. 9 pp.f]; and

¹ While HarbourVest has filed a number of claims, each filed claim is exactly the same except in the name of the claimant. See Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154.

- b. A $35,000,000 claim in Class 9 [Dkt. #1625 pg. 9 pp.f].
12. An integral element of the settlement requires that HarbourVest will “support confirmation of the Debtor’s Plan including, but not limited to, voting its claims in support of the Plan.”
13. The settlement also contains a provision that HarbourVest will transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor. It is unclear whether HarbourVest has a right to transfer the interest and secondly, what the Debtor will do with the interest [Dkt. #1625 pp.f].
14. The sole support for the Motion is the Declaration of John Morris [Dkt. #1631] which fails to account for the enormous change in the Debtor’s position between November 24, 2020 when the Disclosure Statement was approved and December 23, 2020 when the Motion was filed, a period of less than thirty (30) days.
15. The Declaration of John Morris [Dkt. #1631] also contains no information as to the potential cost of the litigation, whether HarbourVest can transfer the interest or reasons, other than conclusory reasons, as to why the settlement is beneficial to the estate. The Debtor makes the assertion that the interest it is acquiring was worth $22,000,000.00 as of December 1, 2020 without advising as to the basis for the valuation. Is it a book value and, if not, what was the methodology employed to arrive at the valuation? The Court has no basis to evaluate the settlement without essential information as to 1) how the asset being acquired is valued; 2) can the Debtor acquire the interest; and 3) how will the Debtor bring value to the estate in connection with the interest inasmuch as the Debtor has discretion as to where to place the asset to be acquired.

A. LEGAL STANDARDS

- Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry, Inc. v. Anderson*, 390 U.S. 414 (1968).

B. ISSUES WITH THE SETTLEMENT

a) The settlement represents a radical change in the Debtor's position that was set forth in its Disclosure Statement. While the Debtor asserts that its position is based on its fear of parties' oral testimony, the size of the transactions at issue make the case a document case, as opposed to who said what, when and how. A review of the applicable documents to determine whether they support the Debtor's initial position is warranted, as opposed to stating that the case is based upon the credibility of a witness. This settlement is not the settlement of an automobile accident where the parties are disputing who ran a red light;

- b) The settlement requires HarbourVest to support and vote in favor of the Debtor's Plan. On its face this appears to be vote buying. The settlement should not be conditioned upon HarbourVest's support or non-support of the Plan and its vote in favor or against the Plan; and
- c) No information is provided as to whether the Debtor can acquire the interest in HCLOF, liquidate the interest, who will receive the interest, or how will the estate benefit from the interest to be acquired.

CONCLUSION

The settlement with HarbourVest has too many questions to be approved on the record before this Court and the parties, due to the Notice of the Motion, the holidays and the press of other litigation in this case, do not have the time to adequately investigate the propriety of the settlement.

ATTORNEYS FOR CLO HOLDCO, LTD.

FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS

HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,	§	Case No. 19-34054-SGJ

CLO HOLDCO, LTD.'S OBJECTION TO HARBOURVEST SETTLEMENT

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. JERNIGAN, U.S. BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

CLO Holdco, Ltd. ("CLO Holdco") respectfully files this Objection to Harbourvest Settlement (the "Harbourvest Settlement Objection") which seeks entry of an order from this Court denying the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with Harbourvest (Claims Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith (the "Harbourvest Settlement Motion") for the reasons stated below. In support of the Harbourvest Settlement Objection, CLO Holdco respectfully states as follows:

I.
BACKGROUND

A. TRANSFERRING SHARES IN HCLOF

1. CLO Holdco owns 75,061,630.55 shares, or about 49.02% of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"). Other shareholders include Harbourvest 2017 Global AIF L.P., Harbourvest Global Fund L.P., Harbourvest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., and Harbourvest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HV International VIII Secondary L.P. (collectively, "Harbourvest"). Harbourvest owns approximately 49.98% of HCLOF. The remaining 1% is owned by the Debtor and a five other investors.

2. HCLOF is governed by a Members Agreement Relating to the Company dated November 15, 2017 by and between each of the members of HCLOF, including Harbourvest, the Debtor, and CLO Holdco (the "Member Agreement"). A copy of that agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

3. Section 6 of the Member Agreement addresses the "Transfer or Disposals of Shares." MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6. The Member Agreement places strict restrictions on the sale or transfer of shares to entities other than the initial Member's own affiliates. See id. at §§ 6.1, 6.2. Before a Member can transfer its interests to a party other than its own affiliates it must: (i) obtain the prior written consent of the Portfolio Manager; and (ii) "offer to the other Members a right to purchase the Shares, on a pro rata basis with respect to their current Shares, at the same price (which must be cash) as such Shares are proposed to be purchased by the prospective third party purchaser pursuant to an irrevocable offer letter" (the "Right of First Refusal"). Id. As further stated in section 6.2 of the Member Agreement, "The other Members will have 30 days following receipt of the letter to determine whether to purchase their entire pro rata portion of the Shares proposed to be Transferred." Id. at § 6.2.

B. THE HARBOURVEST SETTLEMENT

4. On December 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Harbourvest Settlement Motion. On the following day, the Debtor filed a copy of the Settlement Agreement referenced in the Harbourvest Settlement Motion (the "Settlement Agreement") [Dkt. No. 3]. In the Settlement Agreement, Harbourvest represents and warrants that it is authorized to transfer its interest in HCLOF to the Transferee, HCMLP Investments, LLC (the "Transferee"). SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, Ex. A. § 3. Further, the Transferee and Debtor agree to be bound by the terms and conditions of the Member Agreement. Id. at § 1.c.

5. In exchange for conveniently classified allowed claims under the Debtor's Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Plan") [Dkt. No. 1472], Harbourvest agrees to vote in favor of the Plan and to transfer all of its interests in HCLOF to the Transferee. SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, § 1.

6. As detailed below, CLO Holdco objects to the Harbourvest Settlement Motion because Harbourvest has no authority to transfer its interests in HCLOF without first complying with the Right of First Refusal. The only way to effectuate such a transfer without first providing other members the Right of First Refusal is an intentionally inaccurate interpretation of the Member Agreement's contractual provisions that would render specific passages redundant and meaningless. More simply put, the only way Harbourvest and the Debtor could effectuate the Settlement Agreement is by violating fundamental tenets of contract interpretation.

II. ARGUMENTS AND AUTHORITIES

A. CONTRACT INTERPRETATION – AVOIDING REDUNDANCIES AND SURPLUS LANGUAGE

7. The Fifth Circuit recognizes fundamental tenets of contract interpretation, and notes that "contracts should be read as a whole, viewing particular language in the context in which it appears. Woolley v. Clifford Chance Rogers & Wells, L.L.P., 51 F. App'x 930 (5th Cir. 2002) (citing Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 202 (1981)). The Fifth Circuit has applied substantially the same tenets of contract interpretation across the laws of various jurisdictions, and consistently reasons that "[a]ll parts of the agreement are to be reconciled, if possible, in order to avoid an inconsistency. A specific provision will not be set aside in favor of a catch-all clause." Broad v. Rockwell Int'l Corp., 642 F.2d 929, 947 (5th Cir. 1981) (internal citations omitted); and see Hawthorne Land Co. v. Equilon Pipeline Co., LLC, 309 F.3d 888, 892–93 (5th Cir. 2002); Luv N' Care, Ltd. v. Grupo Rimar, 844 F.3d 442, 447 (5th Cir. 2016); Wooley, 51 F.Appx. at 930.

8. Reconciliation of terms that would otherwise render other parts of a contract redundant is fundamental to proper contract interpretation. Hawthorne Land, 309 F.3d at 892-93. As the Fifth Circuit explained in Hawthorne Land, "each provision of a contract must be read in light of the other provisions so that each is given the meaning suggested by the contract as a whole. A contract should be interpreted so as to avoid neutralizing or ignoring a provision or treating it as surplusage." Id. (internal citations and quotations omitted). In other words, provisions of a contract should be read to create harmony, not internal inconsistencies, redundancies, and unnecessary surplus language. See, e.g., Luv N' Care, 844 F.3d at 447 (overturning district court on appeal by interpreting contract in manner that eliminated perceived redundancy).

B. ANALYZING THE MEMBER AGREEMENT

9. Section 6.1 of the Member Agreement will almost certainly be cited by the Debtor and Harbourvest as authority for their entry into the Settlement Agreement, regardless of whether other Members or the Portfolio Manager consent. It states, in pertinent part, that:

No Member shall sell, pledge, charge, mortgage, assign, assign by way of security, transfer, convey, exchange or otherwise dispose of its Shares or its commitment to settle purchases of Shares under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement (each a "Transfer"), other than to an Affiliate of an initial Member party hereto, without the prior written consent of the Portfolio Manager...

MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6.1. Harbourvest will likely stress that under the terms of the Member Agreement, it can transfer its interests so long as the transfer is to "an Affiliate of an initial Member." Indeed, the Debtor will no doubt point out to this Court that Harbourvest is conveniently transferring its interests in HCLOF to an Affiliate of the Debtor, and that the Debtor is an initial Member listed in the Member Agreement.

10. Section 6.1, however, must be read in the context of the Member Agreement, and in conjunction with the transfer restrictions found in section 6.2. Read together it is clear that the consent exception allowing a transfer in 6.1 was intended to allow a Member to transfer its shares to its own Affiliate, without required consents and effectuating a Right of First Refusal. Doing so would allow inter-company transfers within a corporate structure without the need for complicated procedures. Applying Fifth Circuit precedent, this interpretation fits squarely within the agreement and gives weight to the terms of section 6.2 of the Member Agreement, as explained below.

(i) Surplusage – Specific Allowance of Transfers by CLO Holdco to Debtor Affiliates

11. Recall that both CLO Holdco and the Debtor are initial Members to the Member Agreement. MEMBER AGREEMENT, p. 3. Section 6.2 of the Member Agreement states, in pertinent part, that "Prior to making any Transfer of Shares (other than Transfers to Affiliates of an initial Member or, in the case of CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal, to Highland, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal) a Member must first..." comply with the Right of First Refusal. Id. at § 6.2 (emphasis added). The italicized language above is important for two reasons: (i) it specifically enumerates that CLO Holdco can transfer its interests to Debtor Affiliates without having to pursue the Right of First Refusal; and (ii) it allows only limited transfers between Members, as opposed to between a Member and an Affiliate of an initial Member.

12. If, as the Debtor and Harbourvest will likely argue, Members are allowed to transfer their interests to any Affiliates of any other initial Members, there is absolutely no need for the Member Agreement to specifically authorize CLO Holdco to transfer its interests to the Debtor's Affiliates. Per Fifth Circuit fundamentals of contract interpretation, that purported redundancy should not be discarded as mere surplusage, and the Member Agreement should be interpreted in a manner that gives weight to that provision. Hawthorne Land, 309 F.3d at 892-93.

13. If the Member Agreement is read to literally allow all "Transfers to Affiliates of an initial Member" there would be no reason to expressly set forth allowed transfers between specific Members and other Member's Affiliates. If the Member Agreement sought to list all allowed transfers between Members and their Affiliates, it should have similarly noted that any Member could transfer its interest to any Harbourvest Member entity, as each Harbourvest Member entity is an Affiliate of the other Harbourvest Member entities. Alternatively, if the specific enumeration of CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals' transfer rights was surplusage, it would presumably have listed other parties' rights, or had inclusive language such as "including but not limited to" or "for example." The Member Agreement lacks such language and, as a result, should be interpreted in a manner that both gives weight to the specific provision while reconciling other provisions of the contract.

(ii) Absurd Results – Disparate Transfer Rights Between Members

14. Note that the Member Agreement does not generally allow a transfer of interests from Member to Member unless specifically enumerated. Section 6.2 specifically allows only CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals to make transfers to other Members, but those other Members include only the Debtor or another Highland Principal. MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6.2. It does not allow the Debtor to transfer interests to any Member, and does not expressly allow any Member, other than limited transfers by CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals, to transfer interests to any other Member. Id. For instance, if the Debtor wished to transfer its interests to CLO Holdco, it would first have to offer all of the other Members their Right of First Refusal. Id.

15. Similarly, if Harbourvest wished to transfer its interest to CLO Holdco, it could not do so without first providing the Right of First Refusal to all other Members. Id. As noted above, however, allowing a Member to transfer its interest to an Affiliate of any initial Member would allow all of the Members to transfer their interests to any Harbourvest Member entity, as the Harbourvest Members are Affiliates of each other. Given the specific enumeration of CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals' rights to inter-Member transfers, it would be inconsistent to expand that specific provision to allow all transfers by all Members to any Harbourvest entity without first providing a Right of First Refusal.

16. Such a reading would lead to absurd results. It would grant similarly situated Members profoundly disparate rights under the agreement, and could easily lead to manipulation. For instance, because the Harbourvest Members are technically Affiliates of an initial Member (each other), they could obtain control of all of the interests in HCLOF without any Member receiving a Right of First Refusal for any transfer. No other Member could do that. For instance, if CLO Holdco wished to acquire other Members' interests, the transferring member (including Harbourvest) would have to offer a Right of First Refusal in every instance. To resolve that potential disparate treatment—though CLO Holdco and Harbourvest own nearly identical ownership interests in HCLOF—CLO Holdco would have to form an Affiliate and acquire interests through the Affiliate. That simply cannot be the intended result of the Member Agreement.

17. Instead, the Member Agreement must be read to require Harbourvest to provide a Right of First Refusal to the other Members of HCLOF before transferring its interests to either the Debtor or the Transferee.

C. THE RIGHT OF FIRST REFUSAL IN BANKRUPTCY

18. Most cases addressing third party rights of first refusal in bankruptcy involve the assignment of leases and landlords' rights of first refusal. In those cases, courts analyze whether such a provision in the debtor's contract is a defacto restriction on assignment that may be excised from the agreement. This case is very different. Here, it is a creditor that owes a right of first refusal to another non-debtor entity.

19. Even so, at least one court has issued telling commentary on a bankruptcy court's ability to excise provisions of a bargained-for contract, stating "A bankruptcy court's authority to excise a bargained for element of a contract is questionable and modification of a nondebtor contracting party's rights is not to be taken lightly." In re E-Z Serve Convenience Stores, Inc., 289 B.R. 45, 51-52 (Bankr. M.D.N.C. 2003) (citing In re Joshua Slocum Ltd., 922 F.2d 1081, 1091 (3d Cir. 1991)). CLO Holdco was unable to find any case that would allow a bankruptcy court to invalidate or otherwise excise a third party's right of first refusal in what largely amounts to a non-debtor contract.

20. As the Member Agreement requires Harbourvest to provide a Right of First Refusal to the non-Debtor Members under section 6.2 of the Agreement, and such Members have 30 days to review and determine whether to purchase their pro-rata shares offered by Harbourvest, Harbourvest lacks contractual authority to enter into the Settlement Agreement.

D. HARBOURVEST'S LACK OF AUTHORITY PRECLUDES ENFORCEMENT OF SETTLEMENT

21. Harbourvest has not completed its conditions precedent to the transfer of its interest to Transferee under the Member Agreement. As detailed above, and in section 6.2 of the Agreement, Harbourvest must effectuate the Right of First Refusal before it can transfer its interests in HCLOF. MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6.2. Harbourvest is, in essence, bound by the condition precedent of effectuating the Right of First Refusal before it is authorized under the Member Agreement to enter into the Settlement Agreement.

22. Courts should not enforce a settlement agreement where a party has a condition precedent to entry into the agreement and fails to satisfy that condition. In re De La Fuente, 409 B.R. 842, 846 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2009). As noted in part in De La Fuente, the court would not recognize or enforce a settlement where the parties were subject to conditions precedent before the settlement could be effective, and the conditions precedent were not satisfied. This Court should similarly deny Harbourvest's proposed settlement, as it would deny the Members' Right of First Refusal, which is the benefit of their bargain under the Member Agreement.

Page 12 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 going to be giving answers. If at any 3 time I ask a question that you don't 4 understand, or we've had some problems 5 with sometimes connectivity issues with 6 Zoom. But yeah, any time that you don't 7 understand my question or you didn't catch 8 it, I'll be happy to repeat it. 9 Also, one thing I found with 10 Zoom is that it's easier to talk over 11 people. I'll try not to talk over you. I 12 would ask that you try to ensure that I've 13 finished asking my question before you 14 start your answer. And I will likewise 15 try to ensure that you've finished your 16 answer before start my next question. 17 And at any time during this 18 deposition if you feel the need to take a 19 break, that's totally okay with me. The 20 one thing that I would ask is if I've just 21 asked a question, that you answer the 22 question before requesting the break. 23 And if we have that agreement 24 and the ground rules, then I think I'm 25 ready to start asking you my questions.	Page 13 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 A. Sounds good. 3 Q. What's your current address? 4 A. 47 Wayne Road in Needham, 5 Massachusetts. 6 Q. Okay. And where are you located 7 today? 8 A. At that address. 9 Q. Okay. That's your home address? 10 A. Correct. 11 Q. And is anyone in the room with 12 you there? 13 A. No. 14 Q. And did you talk with anyone 15 about your deposition today? 16 A. Only counsel. 17 Q. Okay. And did you go over the 18 facts of the underlying investment and the 19 settlement negotiations with your counsel? 20 MS. WEISGERBER: I'm going to 21 object on privilege grounds. He 22 can – he prepared for the deposition 23 with counsel. I don't think you can 24 inquire into specifics of the 25 preparation.

Page 26 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 changed or evolved over time. 3 Q. And that committee included you? 4 A. I was involved in the 5 decisionmaking of that, yes, correct. 6 Q. So you were part of the four-man 7 committee that made this decision? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. All right. I'm going to go back 10 to what we've marked as Exhibit 3, which 11 is your declaration. And it says in 12 Paragraph 2, that HarbourVest is a passive 13 minority investor in Highland CLO funds, 14 HCLOF, and by the way, I haven't stated 15 this before, but in this deposition if I 16 say HCLOF, I'm going to be referring to 17 Highland CLO funds. 18 But it says that the vehicle is 19 managed by Highland Capital Management, 20 L.P. 21 And why do you say that that 22 vehicle was managed by Highland Capital 23 Management, L.P.? 24 A. I believe that is the named 25 investment manager of HCLOF, per the	Page 27 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 organization documents of that vehicle. 3 Q. You believe that that was the 4 investment manager on the organization 5 documents, which -- 6 A. Of the various transaction 7 documents that we entered into, in 8 connection with our investment. 9 Q. Would those have been the 10 documents that you had entered on November 11 the 15 of 2017? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. Okay. It says that HarbourVest 14 initially invested $73,522,928 for roughly 15 49 percent interest in HCLOF; and more 16 specifically, that would be a 49.98 17 percent interest in HCLOF, correct? 18 A. Sounds right, yes. 19 Q. Okay. And then HarbourVest 20 contributed an additional $4,998,501 21 following a capital call, and it's 22 received three dividends, each totally 23 $1,570,429. 24 Is all of that correct? 25 A. Yes.
Page 28 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 Q. And has HarbourVest received any 3 additional dividends, since the making of 4 this declaration? 5 A. No, we have not. 6 Q. Now, I want to skip down to 7 Paragraph 3, where it says that 8 HarbourVest expected proceeds from the 9 original HCLOF investment were projected 10 to exceed 135 million. 11 Do you agree with that? 12 A. That was the original projected 13 value of the investment, yes. 14 Q. Well, whose expectation was 15 that? 16 A. Those were figures, as I recall, 17 that were originally provided to us by 18 Highland to form the basis of our due 19 diligence that we went through, and 20 penultimately were included as part of our 21 investment thesis in making the 22 investment. 23 Q. So your testimony is that 24 Highland told you that your investment 25 would be worth over $135 million?	Page 29 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 A. Yes. 3 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 4 the form. Misstates testimony. 5 Go ahead, Mike. 6 A. That was, that was part of our 7 original due diligence, on the investment 8 opportunity. 9 Q. When you say part of your due 10 diligence, are you saying that the number 11 originated from Highland or that the 12 number originated from your due diligence 13 operations? 14 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 15 form. 16 A. The number originally came from 17 Highland and formed the basis upon which 18 we conducted due diligence on the 19 investment opportunity. 20 Q. And after performing due 21 diligence, you were satisfied that that 22 was a reasonable projection? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. And what was the, what was the 25 estimated date, in which the value of your

Page 48 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 John? I think the beginning of it was 3 a little muddled. 4 BY MR. WILSON: 5 Q. Well, this objection says that 6 Highland had -- or response to objection, 7 says that Highland had no intention of 8 paying the arbitration award, but that 9 seems to conflict with the next bullet 10 point that says that it undertook 11 transfers to siphon assets away from Acis, 12 L.P., to prevent Mr. Terry from collecting 13 on the arbitration award. 14 So where were those assets being 15 siphoned to? 16 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 17 form and foundation. 18 If you're capable of answering 19 that question, Mike, you can. 20 A. I don't know the specific 21 details of where those assets were 22 siphoned off to, other than it was to 23 another Highland affiliate. 24 Q. The next sentence says that, 25 "Highland simply did not inform	Page 49 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 HarbourVest and represented to HarbourVest 3 that the reason for changing the portfolio 4 manager for HCLOF was because Acis was 5 toxic in the industry." 6 Do you see that? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. And it seems when I read these 9 documents that have been filed in the 10 Highland bankruptcy, and also the Acis 11 bankruptcy, that there's a difference in 12 position as to which entity, being either 13 Highland or HarbourVest, had the belief 14 that the Acis name was toxic. Can you 15 shed any light on that? 16 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 17 form. 18 A. I can unequivocally say that the 19 idea to change the portfolio manager or 20 the idea that the Acis brand was toxic did 21 not come from HarbourVest. 22 Q. That was not at HarbourVest's 23 suggestion or insistence? 24 A. Absolutely not. 25 Q. Well, whose suggestion was it

Page 94 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 form and foundation. 3 MR. MALONEY: Mark Maloney. 4 Object to form and foundation. 5 A. I don't know. You'd have to ask 6 William Scott. 7 Q. Well, were you aware, I mean, 8 there's a citation to a, well, I don't 9 know if there's a citation on this one. 10 But it says that he recently testified. 11 Were you aware that he testified that he 12 wanted to reset the Acis CLOs? 13 MS. WEISGERBER: Same objection. 14 We're really getting far afield. 15 MR. WILSON: I'm just asking if 16 he was aware that this statement 17 occurred. 18 A. At some point in time, yes, I 19 became aware of that. 20 Q. Okay. Do you agree that the 21 inability to do a reset was causing 22 damages in the amount of $295,000 per 23 week? 24 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 25 form and foundation. This is not a	Page 95 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 HarbourVest-prepared document. 3 MR. WILSON: Well, I understand 4 that. I'm just asking if he agrees 5 with it. 6 A. I don't have enough information 7 to assess that, specifically the $295,000 8 per week number. 9 Q. I want to go down to Paragraph 7 10 of this document, and this is going to be 11 at the top of Page 5. It says 12 "Mr. Ellington also testified that because 13 it would be putting in additional capital 14 in connection with any reset CLOs, the 15 Investor," and we discussed that that's 16 HarbourVest, "had the ability to start 17 'calling the shots' and dictate the terms 18 of any reset transactions." 19 Do you agree with that? 20 A. No. 21 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 22 form. 23 Q. I want to go down to Paragraph 24 9. 25 It says, "The Trustee also needs

Page 102 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 manager of HCLOF. We were not in control 3 of those decisions or making 4 recommendations on those decisions. That 5 was the delegated authority of Highland, 6 as the investment manager. 7 Q. I'm not asking for that. I'm 8 asking for your personal feelings toward a 9 reset. 10 MS. WEISGERBER: Same objection. 11 He's only answering on behalf of 12 himself, and it's been asked and 13 answered three times since. 14 MR. WILSON: Well, he hasn't 15 answered the question. He's just told 16 me they don't have the authority to do 17 the reset. 18 MS. WEISGERBER: And he told you 19 the other information he'd be required 20 to even have an opinion on it. So 21 same objection stands. It's not a 22 specific enough question for him. 23 Mike, you're welcome, if you 24 have, if you have an answer, you're 25 welcome to give it.	Page 103 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 A. Yeah, the investment guidelines 3 of HCLOF, from the documents that we 4 signed at the time we entered into the 5 transaction, laid out the specific, again, 6 investment guidelines that HCLOF would be 7 guided under, including the opportunity to 8 refinance or reset various CLOs over time, 9 in accordance with Highland's, you know, 10 expectations and ultimate decision to do 11 so. 12 Q. But did you believe, at this 13 time, that a reset was appropriate? 14 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 15 form. This is asked and answered 16 several times now, I think we should 17 move on. He's given you an answer. 18 MR. WILSON: Well, I want to 19 know what his personal opinion was 20 about whether the reset was 21 appropriate. 22 A. What reset are you referring to? 23 Q. A reset as of October 10, 2018. 24 At that time, did you believe that a reset 25 was appropriate?

Page 128 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 interest and the release of the claims 3 that we had outstanding as the Debtor. 4 MR. KANE: Now, I want to turn 5 your attention to what I've included 6 in the chat. You can pull it down 7 pretty easily if you want. But it 8 would be Holdco Depo Exhibit 2. If 9 that would be easier than a screen 10 share, if you'd like, I'm happy to do 11 that as well. 12 MS. WEISGERBER: Which document 13 is it, John? Because I just can't 14 pull stuff off the Zoom right now. 15 MR. KANE: Oh, I'm sorry. It's 16 the Settlement Agreement with the 17 attached exhibits. I can share my 18 screen so we're all on the same page. 19 Just to confirm we're looking at 20 the same thing, here's the Settlement 21 Agreement. There's a docket entry at 22 the top so you can see it, 1631 filed 23 by the Debtor 12/24/20. 24 This is Exhibit 1 to the 25 Declaration of John Morris in Support	Page 129 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 of Debtor's Motion for an Entry 3 Approving Settlement with HarbourVest. 4 BY MR. KANE: 5 Q. Now, this Settlement Agreement 6 is a document that you assisted in 7 negotiations; is that correct? 8 A. Correct. 9 Q. Okay. And here in Section 1B, 10 this addresses the transfer of the shares 11 of the HarbourVest entities to a Debtor 12 affiliate; is that correct? 13 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 14 form. 15 A. Correct. 16 Q. Is that your understanding, 17 Mr. Pugatch? 18 A. Yes, correct. 19 Q. Okay. Thank you. Section 4A, 20 and is this your understanding that 21 HarbourVest is representing that it has 22 the authority to enter into this agreement 23 and to transfer the shares to the Debtor's 24 affiliate if this is approved? 25 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to

Page 132 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 that correct? 3 MS. WEISGERBER: Same objection. 4 I think you can give your 5 general understanding, but then not 6 get into specific conversations. 7 A. My understanding of that is 8 based on conversations with counsel, but 9 yes, that is my understanding, John. 10 Q. Okay. I'm going to highlight a 11 passage here. Can you see this 12 highlighted area? "Whereas, the Portfolio 13 Manager desires to consent to such 14 transfers and to the admission of 15 Transferee as a shareholder..." 16 Were you aware of that 17 provision? 18 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 19 form. 20 A. Yes. It's in the document. 21 Q. Do you have any understanding of 22 why that provision was included in this 23 agreement? 24 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to 25 form. Objection to the extent it	Page 133 1 Confidential - Pugatch 2 calls for a privileged conversation. 3 A. As I answered before, based on 4 conversations with counsel, my 5 understanding is that consent is requiring 6 in connection to transfer. 7 Q. I'd like to turn your attention 8 now – this is a document you've seen 9 before during your deposition. This is 10 the member's agreement related to the 11 Company for HCLOF. This is previously 12 produced by the Debtor, that's why it's 13 got the Bates stamp on it. This is dated 14 November 15, 2017. 15 Are you familiar with this 16 document? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. Do you see on Line 14, in the 19 between, on Page 1 shows Highland HCF 20 Advisor, Ltd. as the portfolio manager? 21 A. Yes, I see that. 22 Q. I know there was quite a bit 23 of – quite a few questions about this 24 earlier, but you understand that Highland 25 HCF Advisor, Ltd. is still the HCLOF

ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST
(CLAIM NOS. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154), AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS
CONSISTENT THEREWITH

¹ The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

The above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (the “Debtor”) hereby submits this reply (the “Reply”) in support of its Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim No.143,147, 149, 150, 153, 154), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1625] (the “Motion”).² In further support of the Motion, the Debtor respectfully states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. If granted, the Motion will resolve a $300 million general unsecured claim against the Debtor’s estate for less than $16.8 million in actual value.³ The settlement is another solid achievement for the Debtor and – not surprisingly – is opposed by no one except Mr. Dondero and entities affiliated with him.

2. As discussed in the Motion, in November 2017, HarbourVest invested $80 million in exchange for a 49.98% membership interest in HCLOF – an entity managed by a subsidiary of the Debtor. The balance of HCLOF’s interests are held by CLO Holdco, Ltd. (an entity affiliated with Mr. Dondero), the Debtor, and certain of the Debtor’s employees. Subsequent to its investment in HCLOF, HarbourVest incurred substantial losses on its investment in HCLOF and filed claims against the Debtor’s estate.

3. HarbourVest asserts claims for fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty

² All capitalized terms used but not defined herein have the meanings given to them in the Motion.

and unfair prejudice (under Guernsey law), violations of state securities laws, and RICO. In furtherance of these claims, HarbourVest alleges it was misled by the Debtor and its employees, including Mr. Scott Ellington (then the Debtor's general counsel), and that subsequent to investing in HCLOF, Mr. Dondero and the Debtor used HCLOF both as a piggybank to fund the litigation against Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis") and as a scapegoat for the Debtor's litigation strategy, in each case to HarbourVest's substantial detriment.

4. Specifically, HarbourVest alleges that:

- the Debtor and its employees, including Mr. Ellington, misled HarbourVest about its intentions with respect to Mr. Terry's arbitration award against Acis and orchestrated a series of fraudulent transfers and corporate restructurings, the true purpose of which was to denude Acis of assets and make it judgment proof;
- the Debtor and its employees, including Mr. Ellington, misled HarbourVest as to the intent and true purpose of these restructurings and led HarbourVest to believe that Mr. Terry's claims against Acis were meritless and a simple employment dispute that would not affect HarbourVest's investment;
- the Debtor, through Mr. Dondero, improperly exercised control over or misled HCLOF's Guernsey-based board of directors to cause HCLOF to engage in unnecessary, unwarranted, and resource-draining litigation against Acis;
- the Debtor improperly caused HCLOF to pay substantial legal fees of various entities in the Acis bankruptcy that were unwarranted, imprudent, and not properly chargeable to HCLOF; and
- the Debtor used HarbourVest as a scapegoat in its litigation against Acis by asserting that the Debtor's improper conduct and scorched-earth litigation strategy was at HarbourVest's request, which was untrue.

5. The Debtor believed, and continues to believe, that it has viable defenses to HarbourVest's claims. Nevertheless, those defenses would be subject to substantial factual disputes and would require expensive and time-consuming litigation that would likely be resolved only after a lengthy trial all while the Debtor (or its successor) assumes the risk that the defenses might fail. The evidence will show that the proposed settlement is the product of substantial, arm's length – and sometimes quite heated – negotiations between and among the

7. In distinction, the only objecting parties are Mr. Dondero, his family trusts (the Dugaboy Investment Trust (“Dugaboy”) and Get Good Trust (“Get Good,” and together with Dugaboy, the “Trusts”)), and CLO Holdco (a wholly-owned subsidiary of Mr. Dondero’s Charitable Donor Advised Fund, L.P. (the “DAF”)) (collectively, the “Objectors”). Each of the Objectors has only the most tenuous economic interest in and connection to the Debtor’s settlement with HarbourVest. Each of the Objectors is also controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero who has coordinated each of the Objectors litigation strategies against the Debtor.⁴ Mr. Dondero’s efforts to litigate every issue in this case – directly and by proxy – should be rebuffed, and the objections overruled. The following is a brief summary of the objections.

Objection of James Dondero [Docket No. 1697] (the “ Dondero Objection ”)	Because HarbourVest was damaged by the injunction entered in Acis, the settlement seeks to revisit this Court’s rulings in Acis.	Mr. Dondero is misdirecting the Court. HarbourVest’s claim arises from the misrepresentations of Mr. Dondero, Mr. Ellington, and others, not this Court’s rulings in Acis, including the failure to disclose the fraudulent transfer of assets.
	The settlement is not fair and equitable because it does not address (1) Acis’s mismanagement, (2) how the Debtor is liable for HarbourVest’s damages, (3) the success on the merits, (4) the costs of litigation, and (5) the Debtor’s ability to realize the value of the HCLOF interests in light of the Acis injunction.	Mr. Dondero ignores the dangers of the litigation and HarbourVest’s claims against the estate for misrepresentation and overestimates the ability to resolve the litigation. The Debtor has assessed the value of the HCLOF interests in light of all factors, including the Acis injunction.
	The HarbourVest settlement represents a substantial windfall to HarbourVest.	Mr. Dondero ignores the economics of this case, which have value breaking in Class 8 (General Unsecured Claims). The value of the settlement is not $60 million; it is approximately $16.8 million against a claim of $300 million. There is no windfall.
	The HarbourVest settlement is improper gerrymandering because it provides HarbourVest with a general unsecured claim and a subordinated claim in order to secure votes for the plan.	The HarbourVest settlement provides for the resolution of HarbourVest’s claim. It is nonsensical to think that the Debtor would reach a settlement with HarbourVest that would include HarbourVest’s rejection of the Debtor’s plan, and there is nothing wrong with requiring acceptance of a plan as part of a settlement. Further, the Debtor does not need HarbourVest’s Class 9 vote to confirm a plan.
Objection of the Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get Good Trust [Docket No. 1706] (the “ Trusts Objection ”)	The settlement represents a radical change in the Debtor’s earlier position on the HarbourVest settlement.	Mr. Dondero ignores the dangers of the litigation and HarbourVest’s claims against the estate for misrepresentation and overestimates the ability to resolve the litigation.
	The settlement appears to buy HarbourVest’s vote.	The HarbourVest settlement provides for the resolution of HarbourVest’s claim. It is nonsensical to think that the Debtor would reach a settlement with HarbourVest that would include HarbourVest’s rejection of the Debtor’s plan, and there is nothing wrong with requiring acceptance of a plan as part of a settlement. Further, the Debtor does not need HarbourVest’s Class 9 vote to confirm a plan.
	No information is provided as to whether the Debtor can acquire HarbourVest’s interest in HCLOF or the value of that interest to the estate.	As discussed below, the HCLOF interest will be transferred to a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Debtor. Mr. Seery will testify as to the benefit of the HCLOF interests to the estate.
Objection of CLO Holdco [Docket No. 1707] (“ CLOH Objection ”)	HarbourVest cannot transfer its interests in HCLOF unless it complies with the right of first refusal.	CLO Holdco misinterprets the operative agreements and tries to create ambiguity where none exists.

8. These objections are just the latest objections filed by Mr. Dondero and his related entities to any attempt by the Debtor to resolve this case,⁵ including the Debtor's settlement with Acis [Docket No. 1087] and the seven separate objections filed by Mr. Dondero and his related entities to the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Docket No. 1472] (the "Plan").⁶ It will not shock this Court to hear that each of the Objectors is also objecting to the Plan. In contradistinction, the Debtor has heard this Court's admonishments about old Highland's culture of litigation as evidenced by this case, Acis's bankruptcy, and beyond. Although the Debtor has vigorously contested claims when appropriate, the Debtor has also sought to settle claims and limit the senseless fighting. The Debtor has successfully resolved the largest claims against the estate, including the claims of the Redeemer Committee, Acis, and, as recently announced to this Court, UBS. The Debtor would ask this Court to see through the pretense of the Dondero-related entities' objections to the HarbourVest settlement and approve it as a valid exercise of the Debtor's business judgment.

⁵ As an example of Mr. Dondero's litigiousness, on January 12, 2021, Mr. Dondero filed notice that he will be appealing the preliminary injunction entered against him earlier on January 12, 2021.

REPLY

A. Standing

9. James Dondero. In the Dondero Objection, Mr. Dondero asserts he is a “creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest” in the Debtor’s bankruptcy. While that claim is ostensibly true, it is tenuous at best. On April 8, 2020, Mr. Dondero filed three unliquidated, contingent claims that he promised to update “in the next ninety days.”⁷ More than nine months later, Mr. Dondero has yet to “update” those claims to assert an actual claim against the Debtor’s estate.⁸

10. Mr. Dondero’s claim as an “indirect equity security holder” is also a stretch. Mr. Dondero holds no direct equity interest in the Debtor. Mr. Dondero instead owns 100% of Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), the Debtor’s general partner. Strand, however, holds only 0.25% of the total limited partnership interests in the Debtor through its ownership of Class A limited partnership interests. The Class A limited partnership interests are junior in priority of distribution to the Debtor’s Class B and Class C limited partnership interests. The Class A interests are also junior to all other claims filed against the Debtor. Finally, Mr. Dondero’s recovery on his indirect equity interest is junior to any claims against Strand itself. Consequently, before Mr. Dondero can recover on his “indirect” equity interest, the Debtor’s estate must be solvent, priority distributions to Class B and Class C creditors must be satisfied, and all claims against Strand must be satisfied.

11. Dugaboy and Get Good. Dugaboy and Get Good are sham Dondero “trusts” with only the most attenuated standing. Dugaboy has filed three proofs of claim [Claim Nos. 113; 131; 177]. In two of these claims, Dugaboy argues that (1) the Debtor is liable to Dugaboy for its postpetition mismanagement of the Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P., and (2) this Court should pierce the corporate veil and allow Dugaboy to sue the Debtor for a claim it ostensibly has against the Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P. – a Debtor-managed investment vehicle. The Debtor believes that each of the foregoing claims is frivolous and has objected to them. [Docket No. 906].

12. In its third claim, Dugaboy asserts a claim against the Debtor arising from its Class A limited partnership interest in the Debtor (which represents just 0.1866% of the total limited partnership interests in the Debtor). Similarly, Get Good filed three proofs of claim [Claim Nos. 120; 128; 129] arising from its prior ownership of limited partnership interests in the Debtor. Because each these claims arises from an equity interest, the Debtor will seek to subordinate them under 11 U.S.C. § 510 at the appropriate time. As set forth above, these interests are out of the money and are not expected to receive any economic recovery.

13. Consequently, Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Get Good’s standing to object to the HarbourVest settlement is attenuated and their chances of recovery in this case are extremely speculative at best. See In re Kutner, 3 B.R. 422, 425 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1980) (finding that a party had standing only when it had a “pecuniary interest . . . directly affected by the bankruptcy proceeding”); see also In re Flintkote Co., 486 B.R. 99, 114-15 (Bankr. D. Del. 2012), aff’d. 526 B.R. 515 (D. Del. 2014) (a claim that is speculative cannot confer party in interest standing). Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Get Good’s minimal interest in the estate should not allow them to overrule the estate’s business judgment or veto settlements with creditors, especially when no actual creditors and constituents have objected. “[A] bankruptcy judge must not blindly follow the hue and cry of the most vocal special interest groups; rather, [the judge] should consider all salient factors . . . and . . . act to further the diverse interests of the debtor, creditors and equity holders, alike.” In re Lionel, 722 F.2d 1063, 1071 (2d Cir. 1983).

B. Mr. Dondero’s Objection and his “Trusts” Objection Are Without Merit

14. As discussed in the Motion, under applicable Fifth Circuit precedent, a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See, e.g., In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). In making this determination, courts look to the following factors:

- probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact;
- complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay; and
- all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise, including (i) “the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views” and (ii) whether the settlement is the product of arm’s length bargaining and not of fraud or collusion.

Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citations omitted). See also Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 918 (5th Cir. 1995).

15. The Settlement Seeks to Revisit the Acis Orders. In the Dondero Objection, Mr. Dondero argues that HarbourVest’s claim is based on the financial harm caused to HarbourVest from Acis’s bankruptcy and the orders entered in the Acis bankruptcy. Mr. Dondero extrapolates from this that HarbourVest is seeking to challenge this Court’s rulings in Acis. (Dondero Obj., ¶¶ 17-20) Mr. Dondero misinterprets HarbourVest’s claims and the dangers such claims pose to the Debtor’s estate.

16. HarbourVest’s claims are for fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty and unfair prejudice (under Guernsey law), violations of state securities laws, and RICO. HarbourVest is not arguing that Acis or this Court caused its damages; HarbourVest is arguing that the Debtor – led by Mr. Dondero – (a) misled HarbourVest as to the nature of Mr. Terry’s claims against the Debtor and the litigation with Acis, (b) knowingly and intentionally failed to disclose that the Debtor was engaged in the fraudulent transfer of assets to prevent Mr. Terry from collecting his judgment, and (c) that the Debtor – under the control of Mr. Dondero – improperly engaged in a crusade against Mr. Terry and Acis, which substantially damaged HarbourVest and its investment in HCLOF, in each case in order to induce HarbourVest to invest in HCLOF.

17. Again, HarbourVest does not contend that Acis caused its damages. Rather, HarbourVest contends that the fraudulent transfer of assets as part of the Debtor’s crusade against Mr. Terry and Acis and the false statements and omissions about those matters caused HarbourVest to make an investment it would never have made had Mr. Dondero and the Debtor been honest and transparent. The Acis litigation – in HarbourVest’s estimation – never should have happened. Acis did not cause HarbourVest’s damages. Mr. Dondero’s crusade against Mr. Terry and the Debtor’s allegedly fraudulent statements to HarbourVest about the fraudulent transfers, Mr. Terry and Acis caused HarbourVest’s damages.

18. The HarbourVest Claim Lacks Merit. In their objections, Mr. Dondero and the Trusts argue that the HarbourVest settlement is not fair and equitable and not in the best interests of the estate because (a) it does not address the Debtor’s arguments against the HarbourVest claims and (b) there is a lack of pending litigation seeking to narrow the claims against the estate. These arguments only summarily address the first two factors of Cajun Electric, which deal with success in the litigation, and, in doing so, mischaracterize the dangers to the Debtor’s estate posed by HarbourVest's claims. (Dondero Obj., ¶¶ 21-25; Trusts Obj., ¶ 18(a))

19. Both the Dondero Objection and – to a much lesser extent - the “Trusts” Objection allege that (a) HarbourVest's losses were caused by Acis and its (mis)management of HCLOF's investments (Dondero Obj., ¶¶ 22, 24), (b) there is no contract that supports HarbourVest's claims (Dondero Obj. ¶ 23; Trusts Obj., ¶ 18(a)), (c) there is no causal connection between HarbourVest's losses and the Debtor's conduct (Dondero Obj., ¶ 24), and (d) the Debtor should litigate all or a portion of HarbourVest's claim before settling (Dondero Obj., ¶ 25). Again, though, as set forth above, both Mr. Dondero and the “Trusts” seek to shift the cause of HarbourVest's damages away from the Debtor's misrepresentations and to Mr. Terry's management of HCLOF's investments. This is simple misdirection.

20. HarbourVest's claims are that it invested in HCLOF based on the Debtor's fraudulent misrepresentations. Fraudulent misrepresentation sounds in tort, not contract. See, e.g., Clark v. Constellation Brands, Inc., 348 Fed. Appx. 19, 21 (5th Cir. 2009) (referring to party's claim based on fraudulent misrepresentation as a tort); Eastman Chem. Co. v. Niro, Inc., 80 F. Supp. 2d 712, 717 (S.D. Tex. 2000) (noting that party had common law duty not to commit intentional tort of fraudulent misrepresentation). There is thus no need for HarbourVest to point to a contractual provision to support its claim.⁹ Moreover, in order to defend against HarbourVest's claims, the Debtor would need to elicit evidence showing that its employees did not make misrepresentations to HarbourVest. Such a defense would require the Debtor to rely on the veracity of Mr. Ellington's testimony, among others. That is a high hurdle, and no reasonable person would expect the Debtor to stake the resolution of HarbourVest's $300 million claim on the Debtor's ability to convince this Court that Mr. Ellington was telling HarbourVest the truth. This is especially true in light of the evidence supporting Mr. Ellington's recent termination for cause and the evidence recently provided by HarbourVest supporting its claim for fraudulent misrepresentations.

21. Finally, neither Mr. Dondero nor the "Trusts" even address the third factor analyzed by the Fifth Circuit: all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise, including "the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views." This is telling because no creditor or party in interest has objected to the settlement. Mr. Dondero and his proxies' preference for constant litigation should not outweigh the preference of the Debtor and its creditors for a reasonable and expeditious settlement of HarbourVest's claims.

22. The HarbourVest Settlement Is a Windfall to HarbourVest. Both the Dondero Objection and the "Trusts" Objection argue that the HarbourVest settlement represents a substantial windfall to HarbourVest. Both Mr. Dondero and the "Trusts" ignore the facts. Specifically, Mr. Dondero argues that HarbourVest is receiving $60 million dollars in actual value for its claims. Mr. Dondero's contention, however, wrongly assumes that both the $45 million general unsecured claim and the $35 million subordinated claim provided to HarbourVest under the settlement will be paid 100% in full and that HarbourVest will receive $80 million in cash. From that $80 million, Mr. Dondero subtracts $20 million, which represents the value Mr. Dondero ascribes to HarbourVest's interests in HCLOF that are being transferred to the Debtor. Mr. Dondero's math ignores the reality of this case.

23. The Debtor very clearly disclosed in the projections filed with the Disclosure Statement for the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P., [Docket No. 1473] (the "Projections") that general unsecured claims would receive an 87.44% recovery only if the claims of UBS, HarbourVest, Integrated Financial Associates, Inc., Mr.

Daugherty, and the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust were zero. Because of the Debtor's success in settling litigation, that assumption is proving to be inaccurate. Regardless, even if general unsecured claims receive a recovery of 87.44%, because the subordinated claims are junior to the general unsecured claims, the subordinated claims' projected recovery is currently zero. As such, assuming the HCLOF's interests are worth $22.5 million,¹⁰ the actual recovery to HarbourVest will be less than $16.8 million. This is not a windfall. HarbourVest's investment in HCLOF was $80 million and its claim against the estate was over $300 million. The settlement represents a substantial discount.

24. Improper Gerrymandering and/or Vote Buying. Each of Mr. Dondero and the Trusts argue in one form or another that the HarbourVest settlement is improper as it provides HarbourVest a windfall on its claims in exchange for HarbourVest voting to approve the Plan. These unsubstantiated allegations of vote buying should be disregarded. As an initial matter, and as set forth above, HarbourVest is not getting a windfall. HarbourVest is accepting a substantial discount in the settlement. HarbourVest's incentive to support the Plan comes from HarbourVest's determination that the Plan is in its best interests. There is also nothing shocking about a settling creditor supporting a plan. Indeed, it would be nonsensical for a creditor to settle its claims and then object to the plan that would pay those claims.

25. More importantly, HarbourVest's votes in Class 9 (Subordinated Claims) are not needed to confirm the Plan. As will be set forth in the voting declaration, Class 2 (Frontier Secured Claim), Class 7 (Convenience Claims), and Class 8 (General Unsecured Claims) have voted in favor of the Plan.¹¹ In brief, the Plan was approved without HarbourVest's Class 9 vote,

¹⁰ It is currently anticipated that Mr. James P. Seery, Jr., the Debtor's chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer, will testify as to the value of the HCLOF interests to the Debtor's estate.

¹¹ The Debtor anticipates that Mr. Dondero and his related entities will argue that neither Class 7 nor Class 8 voted to accept the Plan because of the votes cast against the Plan in those Classes by current and former Debtor and the Debtor, therefore, has no need to “buy” HarbourVest’s Class 9 claims. Accordingly, any claims of gerrymandering or vote buying are without merit.

C. CLOH Objection

26. CLO Holdco (and to a much lesser extent, the “Trusts”) object to HarbourVest’s transfer of its interests in HCLOF as part of the settlement. Currently, the settlement contemplates that HarbourVest will transfer 100% of its collective interests in HCLOF to HCMLP Investments, LLC (“HCMLPI”), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Debtor. As set forth in the Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (which was appended as Exhibit A to the Settlement Agreement) [Docket No. 1631-1], each of the Debtor, HarbourVest, Highland HCF Advisors, Ltd. (HCLOF’s investment manager) (“HHCFA”), and HCLOF agree that HarbourVest is entitled to transfer its interests to HCMLPI pursuant to that certain Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated November 15, 2017 (the “Members Agreement”),¹² without offering that interest to other investors in HCLOF.

27. The only party to object to the transfer of HarbourVest’s interests in HCLOF to HCMLPI is CLO Holdco. CLO Holdco holds approximately a 49.02% interest in HCLOF and is the wholly-owned subsidiary of the DAF, Mr. Dondero’s donor-advised fund. CLO Holdco argues that the Member Agreement requires HarbourVest to offer its interest first to the other investors in HCLOF before it can transfer its interests to HCMLPI. In so arguing, CLO Holdco attempts to create ambiguity in an unambiguous contract and to use that ambiguity to disrupt the Debtor’s settlement with HarbourVest.

28. As an initial matter, the Debtor and CLO Holdco agree that the transfer of HarbourVest’s interests in HCLOF to HCMLPI is governed by Article 6 (Transfers or Disposals employees, including Mr. Ellington and Mr. Isaac Leventon. The Debtor will demonstrate at confirmation that those objections are without merit and that Class 7 and Class 8 voted to accept the Plan.

¹² A true and accurate copy of the Members Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

allowed under Section 6.1; it is a transfer to an “Affiliate of an initial Member.” CLO Holdco may, tongue in cheek, call this structure “convenient” but that sarcasm is an attempt to avoid the fact that the Members Agreement clearly allows HarbourVest to transfer its interest to HCMLPI without the consent of any party.¹³ The fact that CLO Holdco does not now like the language it previously agreed to when CLO Holdco and the Debtor were both controlled by Mr. Dondero is not a reason to re-write Section 6.1 of the Members Agreement.

31. Second, Section 6.2 of the Members Agreement is also unambiguous and, by its plain language, allows HarbourVest to “Transfer” its interests in HCLOF to “Affiliates of an initial Member” (i.e., HCMLPI) without having to first offer those interests to the other Members (such obligation, the “ROFO”). CLO Holdco attempts to create ambiguity in Section 6.2 by arguing that it must be read in conjunction with Section 6.1 and that interpreting the plain language of Section 6.2 to allow HarbourVest to transfer its interests to HCMLPI without restriction makes certain other language surplus and meaningless. (CLOH Obj., ¶ 11-13) Again, CLO Holdco is attempting to create controversy and ambiguity where none exists.

32. Section 6.2 of the Members Agreement provides, in pertinent part:

(Members Agmt., § 6.2 (emphasis added)) Like Section 6.1, Section 6.2 is clear on its face. It exempts from the requirement to comply with the ROFO two categories of “Transfers”: (1) Transfers to “affiliates of an initial Member” from Members other than CLO Holdco and the “Highland Principals” (i.e., the Debtor and certain of its employees)¹⁴ and (2) Transfers from CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal to the Debtor, the Debtor’s “Affiliates,” or another Highland Principal. The fact that a narrower exemption is provided to CLO Holdco and the Debtor than to HarbourVest (or any other Member) under Section 6.2 is of no moment; the language says what it says and was agreed to by all Members, including CLO Holdco, when they executed the Members Agreement.

¹³ Although HHCFA's consent is not necessary for HarbourVest to transfer its interests to HCMLPI, HHCFA will consent to the transfer.

33. In addition, and although not relevant, the language of Section 6.2 makes sense in the context of the deal. Although CLO Holdco and the Debtor may have disclaimed an “Affiliate” relationship, they are related through Mr. Dondero and invest side by side with the Debtor in multiple deals.¹⁵ The different standards in Section 6.2 serve to ensure that HarbourVest’s (or any successor to HarbourVest) right to Transfer its shares without satisfying the ROFO is limited to three parties: (i) HarbourVest’s Affiliates, (ii) the Debtor’s Affiliates, and (iii) CLO Holdco’s Affiliates. This restriction keeps the relative voting power of each Member static and ensures that CLO Holdco and the Debtor, together, will always have more than fifty percent of HCLOF’s total interests and that HarbourVest will always have less than fifty percent. This counterintuitively also explains the greater restrictions placed on CLO Holdco and the “Highland Principals.” The Highland Principals include certain Debtor employees. Those employees – as well as CLO Holdco and the Debtor – are prohibited from transferring their HCLOF interests outside of the Dondero family. This restriction makes sense. If, for example, a Debtor employee wanted to transfer its interests to an Affiliate of HarbourVest, HarbourVest could have more than fifty percent of the HCLOF interests because of the thinness of the Dondero-family's majority (approximately 0.2%). At the time the Members Agreement was executed, CLO Holdco and the Debtor were under common control. Section 6.2 preserves those related entities' control over HCLOF by restricting transactions that would transfer that control unless the ROFO is complied with.

¹⁴ “Highland Principals” means:

¹⁵ There can be no real dispute that Mr. Dondero effectively controls CLO Holdco.

34. As such, and notwithstanding CLO Holdco's protestations, Section 6.1 and Section 6.2 are consistent as written and clear on their face. This consistency is further evidenced by HCLOF's Articles of Incorporation¹⁶ and HCLOF's offering memorandum, which each include language identical to Section 6.1 and 6.2 of the Members Agreement.¹⁷ It seems highly unlikely, if not implausible, that sophisticated parties such as CLO Holdco would include the exact same language in six separate places over three documents without a reason for that language and without the intent that such language be interpreted as it is clearly written – not as CLO Holdco now wants it to be interpreted. Accordingly, since HarbourVest is transferring its interests to HCMLPI, an Affiliate of an initial Member, the plain language of Section 6.2

exempts HarbourVest from having to comply with the ROFO.

35. Third, and finally, CLO Holdco makes the nonsensical argument that because Section 6.2 provides different treatment to similarly situated Members that this Court should re-write Section 6.2. (CLOH Obj., ¶¶ 15-17) Contracts provide different treatment to ostensibly similarly situated parties all the time and no one objects that that creates an absurd result. It just means that different parties bargained for and received different rights.

36. CLO Holdco's attempt to justify why this Court should re-write the Members Agreement to correct the "disparate treatment" is also unavailing. As an example of the absurd result caused by the "disparate treatment," CLO Holdco states: "[B]ecause the HarbourVest Members are technically Affiliates of an initial member (each other), they could obtain control of all of the interests in HCLOF without any Member receiving a Right of First Refusal for any transfer." (Id., ¶ 16) The scenario posited by CLO Holdco, however, is exactly the scenario prevented by the clear language of Section 6.2. For HarbourVest to obtain control of HCLOF, it would – as a matter of mathematical necessity – need the interests held by CLO Holdco (49.02%) and/or the Highland Principals (1% in the aggregate). Section 6.2, however, expressly prohibits CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals from transferring their interests to HarbourVest or its Affiliates without satisfying the ROFO. As set forth above, it is Section 6.2 that prevents control from being transferred away from the Dondero family without compliance with the ROFO. In fact, Section 6.2 would only break down if the limiting language in Section 6.2 were read out of it in the manner advocated by CLO Holdco.

37. Ultimately, Article 6 of the Members Agreement is clear as written and expressly allows HarbourVest to transfer its interests to HCMLPI. If CLO Holdco had an objection to the rights provided to HarbourVest under the Members Agreement, CLO Holdco should have raised that objection three and a half years ago before agreeing to the Members Agreement. CLO Holdco should not be allowed to create ambiguity in an unambiguous contract or to re-write that agreement to impose additional restrictions on HarbourVest. See Clardy Mfg. Co. v. Marine Midland Bus. Loans Inc., 88 F.3d 347, 352 (5th Cir. 1996) (enforcing the “unambiguous language in a contract as written,” noting that where a contract is unambiguous, a party may not create ambiguity or “give the contract a meaning different from that which its language imports”) (internal quotations omitted); Texas v. Am. Tobacco Co., 463 F.3d 399, 407 (5th Cir. 2006) (“Courts interpreting unambiguous contracts are confined to the four corners of the document, and cannot look to extrinsic evidence to create an ambiguity.”).

38. It should go without saying, but CLO Holdco (and the other parties to the Members Agreement) should also be required to satisfy their obligations under the Members Agreement and execute the “Adherence Agreement” as required by Section 6.6 of the Members Agreement in connection with the Transfer of HarbourVest’s interests to HCMLPI or any other permitted Transfer.

39. Finally, and notably, although CLO Holdco spends considerable time arguing that HarbourVest should be required to comply with the ROFO, nowhere in the CLOH Objection does CLO Holdco state that it wishes to purchase HarbourVest’s interests in HCLOF. This omission is telling. CLO Holdco and the other Objectors have no interest in actually exercising their alleged right of first refusal contained in the Members Agreement. Rather, their only interest is in causing the Debtor to spend time and money responding to a legion of related (and coordinated) objections.¹⁸

1 DALLAS, TEXAS - JANUARY 14, 2021 - 9:41 A.M.

2 THE CLERK: All rise. The United States Bankruptcy
3 Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division, is 4 now in session, the Honorable Stacey Jernigan presiding.

5 THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated. All
6 right. We're a little late getting started because we had 7 lots of reading material for the Court today. All right.
8 This is Judge Jernigan, and we have a couple of Highland 9 settings. The HarbourVest matters are the primary thing we 10 have set today, and then we also have a Debtor's motion
11 pursuant to protocols for authority for Highland Multi-Strat
12 to prepay a loan.

13 All right. Well, let's get a few appearances. First, for 14 the Debtor team, who do we have appearing this morning?

15 MR. POMERANTZ: Good morning, Your Honor. It's Jeff
17 Debtor.

18 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

19 All right. We have objections on HarbourVest. Who do we 20 have appearing for Mr. Dondero this morning?

21 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, it's John Wilson, and I'm 22 also joined by Michael Lynn, John Bonds, and Bryan Assink.

23 THE COURT: Okay. I'm sorry. Could -- the court
24 reporter does yeoman's work in this case. Let me just make 25 sure we got all three of those names. Say again, Mr. Wilson.

1 MR. WILSON: John Bonds and Michael Lynn and Bryan
2 Assink.

3 THE COURT: Oh, okay. So, see, I thought I heard
4 somebody Wilson in all of that, which was why I was pressing
5 the issue.

6 All right. Is Mr. Dondero present on the video for 7 today's hearing?

8 MR. WILSON: I believe he is, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: Mr. Dondero, could you confirm that you
10 are out there? (No response.) Okay. My court reporter says
11 he sees the name out there. Is he in your office?

12 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, he is appearing remotely
13 from my office. I'm not sure exactly where he's appearing 14 from.

15 THE COURT: Okay. Well, Mr. Dondero, if you're out
16 there and you're speaking up to confirm you're present, we're 17 not hearing you. Maybe your device is on mute. So please
18 unmute yourself.

19 (No response.)

20 THE COURT: All right. I'm going to take some other 21 appearances and you -- you need to try to communicate with 22 your client and let him know I need to confirm he's present.
23 Okay?

24 All right. Meanwhile, let's go to our other Objectors.
25 CLO Holdco. Who do we have appearing today?

1 MR. KANE: John Kane; Kane Russell Coleman & Logan;
2 on behalf of CLO Holdco.

3 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Kane.

4 We had an objection from Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get 5 Good Trust. Who do we have appearing?

6 MR. DRAPER: Douglas Draper, Your Honor, for -- for 7 Draper.

8 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Draper.

9 All right. I think those were the only written objections
10 we had. Mr. Pomerantz, do you confirm, we don't have any 11 other objectors for the motions set, correct?

12 MR. POMERANTZ: Your Honor, there was those three.

13 THE COURT: I'm sorry. I didn't catch your full 14 sentence.

15 MR. POMERANTZ: That is correct, Your Honor. There
16 were three objections to the motion.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Clemente, you're there for the 18 Creditors' Committee?

19 MR. CLEMENTE: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor. Matt
20 Clemente on behalf of the Official Committee of Unsecured
21 Creditors.

22 THE COURT: All right. Good morning. Thank you.
23 All right. We have a lot of other folks on the video. I'm 24 not going to go ahead and take a roll call of other lawyers.

25 MS. WEISGERBER: Your Honor?

1 THE COURT: Yes?

2 MS. WEISGERBER: Excuse me, Your Honor. It's Erica
3 Weisgerber from Debevoise on behalf of HarbourVest.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MS. WEISGERBER: And I'm joined by Natasha Labovitz
6 and Dan Stroik --

7 THE COURT: Okay.

8 MS. WEISGERBER: -- from Debevoise as well.

9 THE COURT: Thank you. I was neglectful in not 10 getting your appearance, because, of course, you're at the 11 front and center of this motion to compromise, and I did see
12 that you filed a reply brief yesterday afternoon. Okay.
13 Thank you.

14 All right. Do we have -- do we have Mr. Dondero on the 15 line? I'm going to check again.

16 (No response.)

17 THE COURT: Mr. Dondero's counsel, I cannot hear you, 18 so please unmute your device.

19 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, it appears to me that Mr.
20 Dondero's device was unmuted as soon as you asked if he was 21 available. I sent him a communication a second ago asking if 22 he's having technical difficulties. I have not received a
23 response, so I --

24 MR. DONDERO: Hello. Can anybody hear me?

25 THE COURT: Oh.

1 MR. WILSON: Okay. I hear him.

2 THE COURT: Mr. Dondero?

3 MR. DONDERO: Hello?

4 THE COURT: Is that you?

5 MR. DONDERO: Yeah, it is. I've been on. I've heard
6 everything since the beginning. It's just we've had technical 7 difficulties. I couldn't use the Highland offices. We've 8 been trying to set up something else.

9 THE COURT: All right.

10 MR. DONDERO: But I'm on now, if -- yes.

11 THE COURT: All right. Very good. Well, I'm glad 12 we've got you.

13 All right. Well, Mr. Pomerantz, how did you want to 14 proceed this morning?

15 MR. POMERANTZ: Your Honor, we could take up the 16 HarbourVest motion first, and I will turn it over to John 17 Morris. He and Greg Demo will be handling that. And then
18 after that we can handle the other motion, which is unopposed.

19 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Morris?

20 MR. KANE: Your Honor, this is -- sorry. This is 21 John Kane for CLO Holdco. Just very briefly, if I may. And 22 this will affect, I think, the Debtor's case in chief, so I'll 23 expedite things a little bit, I believe.

24 CLO Holdco has had an opportunity to review the reply
25 briefing, and after doing so has gone back and scrubbed the

1 HCLOF corporate documents. Based on our analysis of Guernsey
2 law and some of the arguments of counsel in those pleadings
3 and our review of the appropriate documents, I obtained
4 authority from my client, Grant Scott, as Trustee for CLO
5 Holdco, to withdraw the CLO Holdco objection based on the 6 interpretation of the member agreement.

7 THE COURT: All right. Well, thank you for that, Mr.
8 Kane. I think that -- that eliminates one of the major
9 arguments that we had anticipated this morning. So, thank you
10 for that.

11 Any other housekeeping matters that maybe someone had that 12 I didn't ask about?

13 MS. MATSUMURA: Yes, Your Honor. This is Rebecca
14 Matsumura from King & Spalding representing Highland CLO
15 Funding, Ltd. I just wanted to put on the record, we -- our 16 client had requested that some of its organizational documents
17 be filed under seal. But we have given permission for the 18 parties to present the relevant excerpts, to the extent it's 19 still relevant after Mr. Kane's announcement, in court. And 20 we'd just ask that the underlying documents remain sealed, but 21 we're not going to object if they show them on a PowerPoint or 22 anything like that.

23 So, to the extent that you had that on your radar, I just 24 wanted to clear that up for the proceedings.

25 THE COURT: All right. Well, I did sign an order

1 late last night. I don't know if it's popped up on the 2 docket.

3 MS. MATSUMURA: Yes, Your Honor. That's what this
4 referred to. That was what -- these are the documents that
5 were being sealed. And so I just wanted to note, if you --
6 you know, if the Debtor puts up an excerpt of those documents
7 and you're like, wait a minute, didn't I seal those, that we 8 were the party that requested them be under seal and we're 9 fine with them being shown in court, as long as the underlying 10 documents aren't publicly accessible.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Got you. Thank you.

12 All right. Any other housekeeping matters?

13 MR. MORRIS: Yes, Your Honor. This is John Morris
14 from Pachulski Stang for the Debtor. Good morning.

15 THE COURT: Good morning.

16 MR. MORRIS: The only other matter that I wanted to 17 raise, and I can do it now or I can do it later, or Your Honor
18 may tell me that it's not appropriate to do at this time, is 19 to schedule the Debtor's motion to hold Mr. Dondero in 20 contempt for violation of the TRO.

21 THE COURT: All right. Well, let's do that at the 22 conclusion today. And please make sure I do it. I think I
23 was going to address this last Friday, and we went very late 24 and it slipped off my radar screen. But I did see from my 25 courtroom deputy that you all were reaching out to her

1 yesterday to get this set, and then Mr. Dondero's counsel
2 reached out to her and said, We're going to file an objection
3 to a setting next Wednesday, or I think you had asked for a
4 setting next Tuesday or Wednesday.

5 MR. MORRIS: I did.

6 THE COURT: And I don't -- I don't know if that
7 response/objection was ever filed last night. I haven't seen
8 it if it was. So, we'll -- please, make sure I don't forget.
9 We'll take that up at the end of today's matters. All right.
10 Well, --

11 MR. MORRIS: All right. So, --

12 MS. WEISGERBER: Your Honor, one last housekeeping
13 item from -- I'm joined this morning by Michael Pugatch of 14 HarbourVest, who will present some testimony this morning. I
15 just want to confirm he's on the line and confirm no
16 objections to him sitting in for the rest of the hearing.

17 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Pugatch, this is Judge
18 Jernigan. Could you respond? Are you there with us?

19 MR. PUGATCH: Yes. Good morning, Your Honor. Mike
20 Pugatch from HarbourVest here.

21 THE COURT: All right. Very good. I think we had 22 you testify once before in the Acis matter, if I'm not 23 mistaken. Maybe. Maybe not. Maybe I saw a video deposition.
24 I can't remember.

25 All right. So, we're going to let Mr. Pugatch sit in on

1 this. Anyone want to say anything about that? I consider him
2 a party representative, so I don't -- I don't think anyone
3 could invoke the Rule.

4 All right. Very good. Well, let's go forward if there
5 are no more housekeeping matters.

6 MR. MORRIS: Okay.

7 THE COURT: Mr. Morris?

8 MR. MORRIS: Thank you. Thank you very much, Your 9 Honor. John Morris; Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones; for the 10 Debtor.

11 It's a rather straightforward motion today. It's a motion
12 under Rule 9019, pursuant to which the Debtor requests the 13 Court's authority and approval to enter into a settlement
14 agreement with HarbourVest that will resolve a number of 15 claims that HarbourVest has filed against the Debtor.

16 What I -- the way I propose to proceed this morning, Your 17 Honor, is to give what I hope is an informative but relatively 18 brief opening statement. I'll defer to HarbourVest and its 19 counsel as to whether they want to make a presentation in 20 advance of the offer of evidence. Any objecting party, I 21 suppose, should then be given the opportunity to present their 22 case to the Court. Then the Debtor will call Jim Seery, the 23 Debtor's CEO and CRO. We will offer documents into evidence.
24 I would propose then that the objecting parties take the 25 opportunity to ask Mr. Seery any questions they'd like on the 1 matter.

2 After the Debtor rests, I think HarbourVest would like to 3 put Mr. Pugatch on the stand to offer some testimony on their 4 behalf. And I think that that will conclude the case. We can 5 finish up with some closing arguments as to what we believe 6 the evidence showed, but that's the way that I'd like to 7 proceed, if that's okay with the Court.

8 THE COURT: All right. That sounds fine.

9 OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF THE DEBTOR

10 MR. MORRIS: Okay. So, as I said, Your Honor, this 11 is a -- this should be a very straightforward motion under 12 Rule 9019. The standard is well-known to the Court. There 13 are four elements to a 9019 motion. The Debtor clearly has 14 the burden of proof on each one. And we easily meet that 15 burden, Your Honor.

16 The standard, just to be clear, the first part is that we 17 have to establish a probability of success, with due
18 consideration for uncertainty of law and fact. The second one
19 is the complexity, likely duration, expense and inconvenience
20 of the litigation. The third part of the test is the 21 paramount interest of creditors. And the fourth part of the 22 test is whether or not the proposed settlement was reached
23 after arm's-length negotiations.

24 The Debtor believes that it easily meets this standard,
25 and frankly, is a little bit frustrated that it's being forced

1 to incur the expense by Mr. Dondero in going through this
2 process.

3 A plain reading, a fair reading of the economics here
4 relative to the claim shows that this is a very reasonable
5 settlement. I don't need to go beyond that, Your Honor. I
6 don't even need to use the word reasonable. It surely meets
7 the lowest standard.

8 We've prepared a couple of demonstrative exhibits, Your 9 Honor. I'm going to use them with Mr. Seery. But I'd like to 10 just put one up on the screen now, if I may.

11 Ms. Canty, can you please put up Demonstrative Exhibit #3?

12 Demonstrative Exhibit #3 is an outline of the economics of 13 the settlement. It includes the various pieces, the 14 components that the parties have agreed to. And it shows, at 15 least from the Debtor's perspective, just what HarbourVest is 16 being given here.

17 Up on the screen is a demonstrative exhibit. It has 18 citations to the evidence that will be admitted by the Court.
19 The first line shows that HarbourVest will receive a $45
20 million allowed general unsecured nonpriority claim. And that

23 That claim is discounted by the expected recovery that 24 general unsecured creditors are supposed to get. As of 25 November, in the liquidation analysis that was part of the

1 disclosure statement -- that's the citation in the footnote --
2 the Debtor believed that unsecured creditors were estimated to 3 recover approximately eighty-seven and a half cents on the 4 dollar. And so we just did the arithmetic there to get to the 5 net economic value of the proposed general unsecured claim.

6 And from that, we reduced $22-1/2 million because that is 7 the net asset value of HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF, which,
8 pursuant to the settlement agreement, it will transfer back to 9 the Debtor, so that the net economic value is approximately 10 $16.8 million.

11 You will hear testimony from Mr. Seery that this number 12 is, in fact, overstated, and it's overstated because, since 13 the time the disclosure statement was filed in November, a 14 number of events have occurred that will -- that have caused 15 the estimated recovery percentage to be reduced from 16 approximately 87-1/2 percent to something lower than that. We 17 don't have the exact number, Your Honor, but Mr. Seery will --
18 and the evidence will show that there's been more expenses,
19 that there's been some resolution of certain claims. There's 20 been some positive issues, too. But that number is probably 21 in the 70s somewhere.

22 And in any event, I think the point here is, Your Honor, 23 HarbourVest invested $80 million in HCLOF, which was going to 24 participate in the investment in CLOs. They filed a claim for 25 $300 million, through treble damages and other claims. But

1 the net economic impact of this is going to be somewhere
2 probably in between $12 and $14 million. I'll let Mr. Seery
3 give more precision to that. And it represents less than -- a
4 less than five percent recovery on the total claim.

5 And we think it's important for the Court to keep that in 6 mind. What are the economics here? Are we overpaying? Is 7 this an unreasonable settlement? And I think the evidence
8 will show that the Debtor is not, but that this settlement
9 that you see before you was the product of arm's length, and 10 I'm going to go in reverse order of the four-part test under 11 9019.

12 So, the last part is whether or not the settlement, the 13 proposed settlement was the product of arm's-length
14 negotiation. You'll hear lots of evidence that this 15 settlement that's up on the screen right now very much was the 16 product of arm's-length negotiation.

17 The third part of the test, Your Honor, is whether it
18 meets the paramount interest of creditors. You know,
19 regrettably, Mr. Dondero is the only purported creditor who is 20 objecting here. He may have done so through different
21 vehicles, but every objecting party here is a debtor [sic]
22 owned and controlled by Mr. Dondero. No other creditor -- not 23 the Creditors' Committee, UBS, Acis, Mr. Terry, Mr. Daugherty
24 -- nobody is objecting to this settlement except for Mr.
25 Dondero. And we believe that that highlights the Debtor's

1 ability to meet the third prong of the test, and that is these 2 are -- this settlement is in the paramount interest of
3 creditors.

4 Again, going in reverse, the second part of the test is
5 the complexity, duration, and expense of litigation. There
6 will be no disputed evidence that we meet -- the Debtor easily
7 meets this prong of the test. The evidence is going to show
8 that HarbourVest's claim is based on fraud, fraud in the 9 inducement, fraudulent statements and omissions, the kind of 10 case, Your Honor, that I'm sure you're familiar with that is 11 incredibly fact-intensive, that will be incredibly difficult
12 to navigate through. It will be prolonged, it will be 13 expensive, because you're necessarily relying on he said/she 14 said, basically. And so we're going to have to get testimony
15 from every person that spoke in connection with the events
16 leading up to the transaction. So we think the second prong
17 will be easily met, Your Honor.

18 And then the last prong -- the first prong, if you will --
19 is the likelihood of success on the merits. We think that the 20 settlement, the economic recovery that's up on the screen
21 here, which ultimately will be less than five percent of the 22 claimed amount, in and of itself shows that the settlement is 23 consistent with the Debtor's perception of its likely success
24 on the merits. I'm certain that HarbourVest disagrees, but 25 that's okay, we're here today and that's the Debtor's view,

1 and the Court is here to assess the Debtor's business judgment
2 and whether the Debtor has properly analyzed the issues and
3 gone through the process. And the evidence will show
4 conclusively that it will. That it has.

5 Mr. Seery will testify at some length as to the risks that
6 he saw. I think that you'll hear counsel for Mr. Dondero ask
7 both Mr. Seery and Mr. Pugatch a number of questions designed 8 to elicit testimony about this defense or that defense. And 9 it's a little -- it's a little ironic, Your Honor, because,
10 really, every defense that they're going to try to suggest to 11 the Court was a valid defense is a defense that the Debtor
12 considered. In fact, it's, you know, it's a little spooky, 13 how they've -- how they've been able to identify kind of the 14 arguments that the Debtor had already considered in the 15 prosecution of their objections here.

16 But be that as it may, the evidence will conclusively show
17 that the Debtor acted consistent with its fiduciary duties,
18 acted in the best interests of the Debtor's estate, acted 19 completely appropriately here in getting yet another very 20 solid achievement for the Debtor, leaving very few claims that 21 are disputed at this point, all but one of which I believe are 22 in the hands of Mr. Dondero.

23 So, that's what we think that the evidence will show.

24 I do want to express my appreciation to Mr. Kane for 25 reflecting on the arguments that we made with respect to the

1 ability of the Debtor to engage in the transfer or the 2 acquisition of the asset from HarbourVest. I would -- I would
3 respectfully request that we just enter into a short
4 stipulation on the record reflecting that the Debtor's
5 acquisition of HarbourVest's interests in HCLOF is compliant
6 with all of the applicable agreements between the parties.

7 And with that, Your Honor, I look forward to putting Mr.
8 Seery on the stand and presenting the Debtor's case.

9 THE COURT: All right. Other opening statements?

10 OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF CLO HOLDCO, LTD.

11 MR. KANE: Yes, Your Honor. Sorry. John Kane on 12 behalf of CLO Holdco.

13 In response to Mr. Morris, I'm not going to enter into a 14 stipulation on behalf of my client, but the Debtor is 15 compliant with all aspects of the contract. We withdrew our 16 objection, and we believe that's sufficient.

17 THE COURT: All right. Well, I'm content with that.
18 Other opening statements?

19 OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF HARBOURVEST

20 MS. WEISGERBER: Your Honor, Erica Weisgerber on 21 behalf of HarbourVest.

22 HarbourVest joins in Mr. Morris's comments in support of 23 the settlement, and we believe that the question of whether 24 the settlement between HarbourVest and the Debtor satisfies
25 the Rule 9019 standard is not even a close one.

1 Some Objectors have made arguments about the merits of 2 HarbourVest's claims, which is why we're here. As Your Honor
3 will hear this morning, HarbourVest has meaningful and 4 meritorious claims against Highland, but made the business
5 decision to avoid the time, expense, and inherent risk of 6 litigation in the interest of preserving value, both for 7 itself and for the estate.

8 Today, Michael Pugatch, a managing director of 9 HarbourVest, will testify before the Court. He'll explain
10 that HarbourVest claims against Highland arise out of certain 11 misrepresentations and omissions by Highland to HarbourVest in 12 connection with HarbourVest's purchase of an interest in 13 HCLOF, one of Highland's managed funds. Those 14 misrepresentations and omissions, as Your Honor will hear,
15 relate to Highland's litigation with its former employee,
16 Joshua Terry, and transfers that were conducted in 2017 to 17 strip Acis of value and prevent Mr. Terry from collecting on 18 an $8 million judgment.

19 Mr. Pugatch will further explain that HarbourVest would 20 not have invested in HCLOF had it known the underlying facts
21 about those Acis transfers.

22 Mr. Pugatch will also testify that not only did
23 HarbourVest not know about those transfers, it learned about 24 those transfers when it was accused of orchestrating the 25 transfers itself in the Acis bankruptcy. Your Honor will hear

1 that the Acis trustee sought extensive discovery from 2 HarbourVest after numerous accusations that HarbourVest was 3 behind the transfers.

4 Mr. Pugatch will also testify that Highland charged legal 5 fees for itself and its affiliates to HCLOF, essentially
6 forcing HCLOF to fund the litigation involving the Acis
7 bankruptcy and Mr. Terry.

8 In total, HarbourVest's claims for damages are over a
9 hundred million dollars in investment-related losses, lost
10 profits, legal fees inappropriately charged to HCLOF, its own
11 legal fees. And that's before interest or trebling damages.

12 But HarbourVest stands ready to litigate its claims, but 13 following hard-fought and extensive negotiations with the 14 Debtors, the parties reached the settlement that's now before
15 the Court. Mr. Pugatch's testimony regarding the strong 16 factual bases for HarbourVest's claims against Highland and 17 its recoverable damages will further underscore the risks that 18 the Debtors faced if they chose to litigate these claims, and 19 why this settlement is fair, equitable, and in the best
20 interest of the estate.

21 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Counsel.

22 Other opening statements?

23 OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF GET GOOD AND DUGABOY TRUSTS

24 MR. DRAPER: Your Honor, this is Douglas Draper on 25 behalf of one of the Objectors. I'd like to just make a few

1 comments with respect to what I've heard and what the Court is 2 going to hear.

3 The first issue I'd like to address is the comment by 4 counsel for the Debtor that no other party has objected. The 5 9019 motion is one of the issues that this Court has to rule
6 on, whether or not there was an objection or not. So the fact
7 that this may be -- bankruptcy is not a popularity contest and 8 not an issue of who votes for what and doesn't vote. This,
9 along with the 1129(a) tests, are clearly within your 10 province, and you need to listen carefully because you'll have 11 to make your own independent analysis whether my objection is 12 correct or incorrect.

13 Two other points I'd like to make that I think are very 14 salient. Number one is, if you look at the Debtor's 15 disclosure statement, it basically took the position that the 16 HarbourVest claim is of little or no value. And lo and 17 behold, thirty days later, there's a settlement that brings 18 about a significant recovery to HarbourVest. The timing is 19 interesting, and I think the Court needs to pay careful
20 attention to what transpired between the two dates.

21 And then the last point I'd like to make is, as you listen
22 to the evidence, and what I learned abundantly clear from 23 hearing the depositions, is that the claim of HarbourVest, if 24 there is a claim at all, is probably one hundred percent --
25 should be subordinated in that it appears to arise out of the

1 purchase or sale of a security. And, again, I would ask the
2 Court to listen carefully to this because that's what it
3 appears to be and that's what the evidence is going to show to 4 the Court.

5 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Draper, let me clarify
6 something I'm not sure if I heard you say or not. Were you
7 saying that the Court still needs to drill down on the issue
8 of whether the Debtor can acquire HarbourVest's interest in 9 HCLOF?

10 MR. DRAPER: No.

11 THE COURT: Okay. I was confused whether you were 12 saying I needed to take an independent look at that, now that 13 the objection has been withdrawn of Holdco. You are not 14 pressing that issue?

15 MR. DRAPER: No, I am not. Basically, I think it's 16 the fairness of the settlement. I think the transferability
17 of the interest is separate and apart from the fairness of the 18 settlement itself. I think the fairness -- the 19 transferability was a contractual issue between two parties
20 that the Court does not have to drill down on.

21 THE COURT: All right. I have another question for 22 you. I want to clarify your client's standing. Tell me --
23 I'm looking through a chart I printed out a while back. I
24 guess Dugaboy Investment Trust filed a couple of proofs of 25 claim; is that right?

1 MR. DRAPER: Yes.

2 THE COURT: Okay. What --

3 MR. DRAPER: And objections are pending.

4 THE COURT: Pardon?

5 MR. DRAPER: Objections to those claims are pending
6 before the Court, Your Honor, --

7 THE COURT: Okay.

8 MR. DRAPER: -- and have not been litigated.

9 THE COURT: And what about Get Good Trust?

10 MR. DRAPER: Get Good Trust has a proof of claim also 11 that objections are pending to. Pending.

12 THE COURT: Okay. I don't want to get too
13 sidetracked here, but I know standing was -- was mentioned as 14 a legal argument today. What is the basis for those proofs of 15 claim?

16 MR. DRAPER: The first one is, with respect to the 17 proof of claim for Dugaboy, there is an investment that 18 Dugaboy made that was then funneled, we believe, up to the 19 Debtor. And the -- the loan that exists, we believe is a 20 Debtor loan, as opposed to a loan to the entity that we made 21 the loans to.

22 And, again, it's a matter that the Court is going to hear.
23 The claim may or may not be allowed. It has not been 24 disallowed yet.

25 The second part to the Dugaboy ownership is we own an

1 interest in the Debtor. And so we are, in fact, a party in 2 interest.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. DRAPER: It may be a small interest, but it is an
5 interest.

6 THE COURT: It has a limited partnership interest in 7 the Debtor?

8 MR. DRAPER: Yes.

9 THE COURT: Is that correct?

10 MR. DRAPER: Yes.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Well, I'll move forward. Thank 12 you.

13 Does that cover -- any other opening statements? I think 14 that covered everyone who was -- who filed some sort of 15 pleading today. No.

16 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, John Wilson on behalf of --

17 THE COURT: I'm sorry. I'm sorry.

18 MR. WILSON: -- Mr. Dondero.

19 THE COURT: I missed Mr. Dondero's counsel. I knew 20 we had visited at some point this morning. I just got 21 confused there. Go ahead, Mr. Wilson.

22 MR. WILSON: No problem, Your Honor. I was just 23 going to say that we will reserve our comments until after the 24 conclusion of the testimony.

25 THE COURT: All right. Very well.

1 Mr. Morris, you may call your first witness.

2 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor. Before I do,
3 just two very, very quick points.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. MORRIS: To be clear, Dugaboy's interest in the 6 Debtor is 0.1866 percent. Less than two-tenths of one
7 percent.

8 Secondly, the argument that Mr. Draper just made with 9 respect to subordination is one that appears in nobody's
10 papers. And, in fact, not only doesn't it appear in anybody's
11 papers, but Mr. Dondero, I believe, specifically took issue
12 with the fact that a portion of the consideration that 13 HarbourVest would receive would be on a subordinated basis,
14 and he would -- and I think he took the position there is no
15 basis to give them a subordinated claim.

16 So, I just wanted to point those items out to the Court,
17 not that I think either one makes a large difference today,
18 but I do want to deal with the facts.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 MR. MORRIS: The Debtor would call -- you're welcome,
21 Your Honor. The Debtor calls Mr. James Seery.

22 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Seery, welcome back to 23 virtual court. If you could say, "Testing, one, two" so I can 24 see you and swear you in.

25 MR. SEERY: Testing, one, two.

1 THE COURT: All right. I heard you but I'm not yet
2 seeing your video. Is your video turned on?

3 MR. SEERY: Video is on. Yes, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Okay. I see you now. Please raise your 5 right hand.

6 JAMES SEERY, DEBTOR'S WITNESS, SWORN

7 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Morris?

8 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor.

9 DIRECT EXAMINATION

10 BY MR. MORRIS:

11 Q Good morning, Mr. Seery. Can you hear me?

12 A I can. Thank you, Mr. Morris.

13 Q Okay. Let's just cut to the chase here. Are you familiar
14 with HarbourVest's claims filed against the Debtor?

15 A I am, yes.

16 Q And did you personally review them?

17 A I did, yes.

18 Q Do you recall that over the summer the Debtor objected to 19 HarbourVest's claim?

20 A Yes, we did.

21 Q Why -- can you explain to the judge why Harbour -- why the 22 Debtor objected to HarbourVest's claim last summer?

23 A Sure. The HarbourVest claims, I believe there are about 24 six of them, initially were filed, and they were -- they were 25 relatively vague in terms of what the specifics of the claims

1 were.

2 So, we saw the claims but didn't, frankly, pay a lot of 3 attention to the underlying transaction that was referred to 4 in the proofs of claim and the losses that HarbourVest had
5 claimed to suffer -- to suffer with respect to their purchase
6 of securities related to HCLOF and the damages caused by the 7 Acis case. So we filed a pretty pro forma objection. I
8 believe it was a simply stated objection that we didn't have 9 any record that there was anything in the Debtor's books and 10 records that they had a valid claim for any amount against the 11 Debtor.

12 Q Are you aware that HarbourVest subsequently filed a 13 response to the Debtor's objection to their claims?

14 A Yes. Yes, I am aware.

15 Q And did you familiarize yourself with that particular
16 response?

17 A I did indeed. It was a pretty extensive response, really
18 developing the full panoply of their claims, which included
19 claims for expenses relating to the Acis case, which 20 HarbourVest viewed as being improperly charged to HCLOF by its 21 manager, which is effectively Highland. Those expenses,
22 HarbourVest took the view, were excessive, had nothing to do
23 with the investment, and were simply a pursuit of a personal
24 vendetta against Mr. Terry and his interests by Mr. Dondero, 25 and using HCLOF's money to actually pursue those interests.

Seery - Direct

28

1 In addition, and this was the first time we saw that,
2 HarbourVest brought forth its claims that it was entitled to 3 effectively rescind the transaction. And I say rescind the 4 transaction: In security parlance, they claim that they were 5 induced by fraud, I think as most are -- to enter into the 6 transaction.

7 As most are aware, the liability limitations in the OMs
8 and the exculpation in the documents are pretty broad, and 9 HarbourVest's position was that they weren't going to be 10 subject to those limitations because the actual transaction
11 that they entered into was a fraud on them, designed by Mr.
12 Dondero, Mr. Ellington, and the Highland team.

13 Q All right. Let's talk about your understanding, the 14 Debtor's understanding of the factual background to 15 HarbourVest's claim. What is your understanding of the 16 investment that HarbourVest made?

17 A Well, HarbourVest made an investment in the Highland CLO
18 business. The Highland CLO business was -- was Acis. And 19 effectively, the business had been separated, but in name
20 only. Acis was just a shell, with a few partners --
21 obviously, Mr. Terry as well -- but it was all Highland 22 personnel doing all the work.

23 And what they were trying to do with Acis was, in essence,
24 resuscitate a business that had been in a bit of a decline
25 from its pre-crisis heyday.

005299

Seery - Direct

29

1 They were looking to take additional outside capital.

2 They would -- they would pay down or take money out of the 3 transaction, Highland would, or ultimately Mr. Dondero, and 4 they would -- they would seek to invest in Acis CLOs,
5 Highland's 1.0 CLOs. And then with respect to the Acis CLOs,
6 and potentially new CLOs, but with the Acis CLOs, they'd seek 7 to reset those and capture what they thought would be an 8 opportunity in the market to -- to really use the assets that 9 were there, not have to gather assets in the warehouse but be 10 able to use those assets to reset them to market prices for 11 the liabilities and then make money on the equity.

12 Q Do you have an understanding --

13 A Then --

14 Q I'm sorry. Go ahead.

15 A Why don't I continue? So, the transaction, they found 16 HarbourVest as a potential investor, and the basis of the 17 transaction was that they would make an investment into Acis.

18 Shortly before the transaction, and while they were doing
19 diligence, Mr. Terry received his arbitration award. I 20 believe that was in October of 2017. The transaction with 21 HarbourVest closed in mid- to late November of 2017. But Mr.
22 Terry was not an integral part. Indeed, he wasn't going to be 23 a key man. He had been long gone from Highland by that time.

24 What the -- I think you asked me originally what the basis
25 of their claim was. The transaction went forward, and the 005300

Seery - Direct

30

1 basis of their claim is that they really were never -- nothing
2 was disclosed to them about the nature of the dispute with Mr.
3 Terry other than in the highest-level terms; the animosity
4 with respect to which that dispute was held by Highland and 5 potentially Mr. Terry; and really, how those costs would be 6 borne and risks be borne by the investment that they were 7 making.

8 That was, in essence, the transaction and the high-level
9 view of their claim.

10 Q Okay. Just a few very specific facts. Do you have an 11 understanding as to how much HarbourVest invested and what 12 they got in exchange for that investment?

13 A Yeah. HarbourVest invested in a couple tranches, and I
14 forget the exact dates, but approximately $75 million
15 originally, and then they added another five. Some 16 distributions were made in the first half of 2018, putting 17 their net investment in the mid-seventies on the investment,
18 which now is worth about 22-1/2 million bucks.

19 Q And what percentage interest in HCLOF did HarbourVest
20 acquire, to the best of your knowledge?

21 A They have 49.98 percent of HCLOF. HCLOF, just to refresh
22 -- the Court is, I think, well aware of this, but to refresh,
23 is a Guernsey entity. Not -- not atypical for structures of 24 this type to use offshore jurisdictions and sell the 25 securities under -- at least to U.S. -- can't sell them to 005301

Seery - Direct

31

1 U.S. investors unless they qualify, and these are sold under
2 Reg S to -- to investors that otherwise qualify. And 3 HarbourVest was investing in that transaction through the 4 Guernsey structure.

5 Q And do you have an understanding as to who owned the 50-
6 plus percent of HCLOF that HarbourVest was not going to 7 acquire?

8 A Yeah. There's -- you can tell by the name. HCLOF is 9 Highland CLO Funding. This is a Highland vehicle. So 10 Highland owned and controlled the vehicle. The DAF, which is 11 -- which is Dondero-controlled trusts, have the -- 49 percent.
12 Highland has, I believe, around .63-65 percent directly. And 13 then Highland employees at the time who were involved in the 14 business owned another small percentage.

15 So the majority was going to be controlled by Highland
16 through its control of DAF and its control of the employees
17 that worked for it. HarbourVest would be a minority investor.

18 Q Okay. And I believe you testified that the investment was 19 made in mid-November; is that right?

20 A That's correct. I think it was the 15th, may have been 21 the 17th of November.

22 Q And do you recall when in October the Terry arbitration
23 award was rendered?

24 A It was about a month before. I think it was right around 25 the 20th, the 17th to the 20th. I may be slightly wrong on 005302

1 each of those dates.

2 Q Okay. What is your understanding as to what happened
3 after the issuance of the award that is the basis or at least 4 one of the bases for HarbourVest's claim?

5 A I don't think there's -- I don't think there's any
6 dispute. And there certainly are judicial findings. Dondero
7 and Highland went about stripping Acis of all of its assets.
8 So, remember that Acis is not a separate standalone company,
9 in any event. It's controlled and dominated completely by 10 Highland at the time. But it did have contracts. And those 11 contracts had value.

12 So the first idea was to strip out the management contract
13 and put it into a separate vehicle, which we called HCF
14 Advisor, which Highland still owns. The second piece was to 15 strip out some valuable assets, the risk retention piece, 16 which was a loan that in essence was equity that Highland had 17 put into Acis but structured as a loan, as many of the 18 transactions we'll see down the road are, in order to deal
19 with some -- avoid taxes in any way possible. And that 20 structure, that value moved value out of Acis for the express
21 purpose of trying to run, in essence, the Highland business
22 back in Highland.

23 Remember, as I said, Acis is just a Highland business
24 moved to a separate shell. When Mr. Terry got his arbitration
25 award against Acis and was seeking to enforce it, it was

Seery - Direct

33

1 pretty straightforward, let's take all the assets -- Dondero
2 scheme -- let's take all the assets and move them back into
3 Highland so Terry can't get anything.

4 Q And how does that scheme relate to the HarbourVest claim,
5 to the best of your knowledge?

6 A Well, HarbourVest -- HarbourVest's position is that they
7 invested in Acis and -- and whether Acis was called Acis or 8 called Highland, it doesn't really matter; there were valuable
9 assets in the -- in the entity that they were going to be 10 investing in through the equity in these CLOs and some of the 11 debt securities in those CLOs.

12 And then the stripping out and the fraudulent conveyances
13 out of Acis caused them damages because that's what left the 14 damage to Mr. Terry.

15 The quick math on Acis, by the way, is Acis has probably 16 lost, total damages, 175 million bucks. And that's pretty 17 easy. DAF lost 50. HarbourVest lost 50. Fifteen million of 18 fees charged to HCLOF. Another five million of fees, at 19 least, incurred by Mr. Terry. Ten million that went to Mr.
20 Terry, 15 to Highland fees, another five, plus Mr. Terry's
21 settlement in this case, over eight million bucks.

22 So HarbourVest's position, which, on a factual basis, you
23 know, is problematic for the estate, is, wait a second, we 24 invested in this vehicle with Highland. That was supposed to 25 invest in Highland CLOs. They were called Acis, but they were 005304

34

1 Highland CLOs. And then you went about causing tremendous 2 damage to that vehicle that we ultimately were investing in,
3 and then charge us for the pleasure.

4 Q You used the phrase earlier "OM," I believe.

5 A Offering memorandum.

6 Q Offering memorandum? Can you just explain to the Court
7 your understanding of what an offering memorandum is?

8 A Typically, under U.S. law, and foreign jurisdictions have 9 similar laws, you have to have a document that explains the 10 securities that you're selling. And it goes into extreme 11 detail about the securities and the risks related to those 12 securities.

13 And the idea is not to have a document that tells you
14 whether it's a good investment or a bad investment, but it's a 15 document that discloses to the potential investor all of the 16 risks with respect to that security or related to the 17 investment over the duration of the security. It doesn't 18 predict the future, but it's supposed to make sure that it
19 gives you a very clean view of the past and a very clean view
20 of what the facts from the past are and how they would 21 implicate the future of the investment.

22 Q And in the course of its diligence, did the Debtor have an 23 opportunity to review the offering memorandum in the context
24 of the claims that were being asserted by HarbourVest?

25 A Oh, absolutely. It was originally effectively -- it's an 005305

Seery - Direct

35

1 HCLOF offering memorandum. But as I said, HCLOF was managed
2 and controlled by Highland, and Highland originally prepared
3 it. And then, of course, in connection with -- with this 4 dispute and these claims, we reviewed it, both myself and my 5 legal team.

6 Q All right.

7 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, the offering memorandum is 8 on the Debtor's exhibit list, and I think this is an 9 appropriate time to move into evidence Debtor's Exhibits A 10 through EE, all of which appear at Docket No. 1732.

11 THE COURT: 1732?

12 MR. MORRIS: It's the Debtor's Second Amended Witness
13 and Exhibit List.

14 THE COURT: All right. Any objection to admission of 15 A through EE?

16 MR. DRAPER: Douglas Draper. No objection, Your
17 Honor.

18 THE COURT: All right. Mr. --

19 MR. MORRIS: May I proceed?

20 THE COURT: Yeah. Mr. Wilson, did you want to 21 confirm no objection?

22 (Echoing.)

23 THE COURT: All right. Hearing no objection,
24 Debtor's A through EE are admitted.

25 (Debtor's Exhibits A through EE are received into

1 evidence.)

2 THE COURT: Go ahead, Mr. Morris.

3 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor. The offering
4 memorandum itself is one of the documents that we filed under 5 seal, and we did so at the request of counsel to HCLOF. But 6 HCLOF has consented to our sharing up on the screen certain 7 very limited provisions of the document, without waiving the 8 request that the agreement otherwise be maintained under seal.

9 THE COURT: All right.

10 MR. MORRIS: So may I proceed on that basis, Your
11 Honor?

12 THE COURT: You may. Uh-huh.

13 MR. MORRIS: Okay. Ms. Canty, can you please put up
14 on the screen Demonstrative Exhibit #1? Okay. Can we just -- 15 is there a way to just expand that just a bit, Ms. Canty?
16 Thank you very much. And if we could just scroll it up?
17 Thank you very much. Perfect.

18 Okay. So, Your Honor, this, as the footnote says, is an 19 excerpt from the offering memorandum that can be found at 20 Debtor's Exhibit AA. Double A. And this particular portion 21 of the offering memorandum is at Page 35.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 BY MR. MORRIS:

24 Q Mr. Seery, have you seen this portion of the offering 25 memorandum before?

005307

Seery - Direct

37

1 A Yes, I have. But before I continue, I just -- I should
2 have checked. Are you able to hear me clearly? Am I speaking
3 too quickly or am I cutting out? I just want to make sure.
4 I'm using a different set of audio today.

5 THE COURT: All right.

6 MR. MORRIS: That's fine.

7 THE COURT: I hear you very well.

8 MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

9 THE COURT: So I think we're good right now. Thank 10 you.

11 THE WITNESS: Yeah. Thank you, Your Honor. I was 12 just checking.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 THE WITNESS: In response to your question, Mr.
15 Morris, yes, I have seen this before.

16 BY MR. MORRIS:

17 Q Okay. And can you -- did you form a view in doing the due
18 diligence as to the adequacy of this disclosure?

19 A Yes, I did.

20 Q Can you share your -- or share with Judge Jernigan the 21 Debtor's view as to the adequacy of this disclosure concerning
22 the litigation between Highland and Acis?

23 A With respect to the litigation between Highland and Acis,
24 or, really, between Acis, Highland, and Highland's principals
25 and Acis's principal, totally inadequate. The disclosure here

005308

Seery - Direct

38

1 is very high-level. And if there were no other litigation
2 going on, it might serve to suffice. It basically says, In 3 our business, because we invest in distressed loans, there's a
4 lot of litigation around distressed investments, and that's 5 what we have. And then it says, We've talked with the 6 investor about other things and we're -- we think that's 7 enough.

8 Q Is there anything in this portion or anywhere in the 9 offering memorandum that you're aware of that disclosed to 10 HarbourVest that in the weeks leading up to the investment
11 Highland was engaged in the fraudulent transfer of assets away
12 from Acis?

13 A No. And I apologize, because I think it's -- I've 14 conflated two provisions. This one only deals with the very 15 high-level nature of the business. It doesn't give any 16 indication that there's any material litigation going on 17 elsewhere with respect to Acis.

18 I believe there's another provision that says, We -- we 19 have talked to -- oh, here -- I'm sorry. It is here.
20 Shareholders have had an opportunity to discuss with Highland 21 to their satisfaction all litigation matters against Highland 22 and its affiliates unrelated to its distressed business.

23 That, in my opinion, is wholly inadequate.

24 Q Okay.

25 MR. MORRIS: And let's put up -- actually, let's just 1 move on.

2 BY MR. MORRIS:

3 Q Let's go to the settlement itself.

4 MR. MORRIS: Can we put back up Demonstrative Exhibit
5 #3?

6 BY MR. MORRIS:

7 Q Mr. Seery, can you see that?

8 A Yes, I can.

9 Q Does this generally describe the net economic recovery of 10 the HarbourVest settlement based on estimated recoveries for 11 general unsecured creditors as of November 2020?

12 A As of November 2020, it does. And you alluded to this in 13 your opening, but to be clear, the numbers have shifted.
14 Costs have increased. The -- so the -- effectively, the 15 numerator, in terms of distributable value that we estimate,
16 is lower. And settlements, the denominator, have also 17 increased. So the claims against the estate that have been 18 recognized have increased. And that, that probably takes it
19 down closer, in our view, to about seventy cents distribution,
20 a number closer to nine to ten million, maybe a little bit
21 less.

22 However, there's also some additional value that we -- we 23 believe we will recover directly. There are north of $150
24 million of intercompany notes owed by Dondero entities to 25 Highland. A number of those notes are demand notes, and we've 005310

Seery - Direct

40

1 already made demand. We'll be initiating actions next week.
2 So those are -- those value, we believe, we'll recover
3 directly from Mr. Dondero and from related entities.

4 To the extent those related entities don't have value, we 5 feel very strongly about our ability to pierce the veil and 6 reach in to Mr. Dondero. And then his assets, either his 7 personal assets or the assets that he claims are in trusts.

8 In addition, there are a significant amount of notes that 9 were extended in two -- I believe around 2017, for no
10 consideration. Those notes were demand notes, I believe, and 11 then extended it 30 years. So they have 2047 maturities.
12 Those were probably going to have to be subject to fraudulent 13 conveyance type actions or -- or some sort of sale at a very 14 discounted value because third parties wouldn't want long-
15 dated notes with Mr. Dondero as the counterparty for very much 16 money.

17 Those -- they defaulted on some of those parties, so we 18 effectively turned them into demand notes. We've accelerated,
19 and we'll be bringing actions against those entities next week
20 as well.

21 So I think (garbled) have come up, so I apologize. One
22 way of saying I think the sixteen and a half is a bit high 23 right now, based upon what we know, but the value is going to 24 be higher than our estimate a couple of weeks ago because we 25 do believe we'll be able to recover on the notes.

005311

41

1 One additional caveat, just to be fully transparent here.
2 This summary with the 16.8 doesn't include the subordinated
3 piece of this -- of this claim and our resolution. That -- 4 recovery of that piece will be dependent upon the success of 5 litigations.

6 In order for the subordinated piece to get paid, all
7 general unsecured claims in Class -- Classes 7 and 8 will have
8 to be paid in full. And then -- and then the subordinated
9 class in Class 9, which we believe UBS will have a piece of,
10 and HarbourVest will have a piece of by this settlement, those 11 will be able to recover, and those will be based upon other 12 claims of action against -- primarily against related parties.

13 Q And then that last point, is that what's reflected in 14 Footnote 3 on this page?

15 A That's correct, yes.

16 Q Okay. And just for the record, there's a reduction in 17 value of $22-1/2 million. Do you see that?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And can you just explain to the Court what that is and how 20 that value was arrived at?

21 A Yes. I may be getting slightly ahead of you, Mr. Morris.
22 But to give the Court a reflection of the transaction -- and 23 we can go into the details in a moment -- ultimately, the 24 transaction we structured we think is very fair both 25 economically to the Debtor, but there -- there is some

005312

Seery - Direct

42

1 complexity to it to satisfy some of HarbourVest's concerns
2 that they be able to effectively rescind the transaction, at 3 least from an optical perspective. Value was important, but 4 optics were as well. The twenty-two and a half is the current
5 -- actually, the November value of HCL -- the HarbourVest
6 interests in HCLOF. And that's based upon Highland's
7 evaluation of those interests.

8 So we do believe that that is a fair value as of that
9 date. It has not gone down. It hasn't gone up explosively,
10 either, but it hasn't gone down. We think that's good, real 11 value. That value is in the Acis CLOs, the equity in those 12 CLOs, which is 2 through 6, that we -- we will be working with 13 the HCLOF folks to get Mr. Terry to monetize those assets and 14 those longer-dated CLOs.

15 In addition, I think it's 85 percent of the equity in Acis
16 7 -- Acis 7 is managed by Highland -- that is also beyond its 17 reinvestment period. And in talking to the directors -- and 18 they're new directors, and I'll get to that in a minute, for 19 HCLOF -- they'll seek to push Highland, which is the 20 reorganized Highland, to monetize that asset, with due regard
21 to fair value.

22 In addition, Harbour -- HCLOF owned a significant amount 23 of the preferred or equity pieces, if you will, in the 24 Highland CLO, 1.0 CLOs. As we've talked about, those are not 25 really CLOs. Those are effectively closed-end funds with 005313

43

1 illiquid assets, primarily illiquid assets in them. We've had
2 some dispute in front of the Court about selling the liquid
3 assets in them, which we can go into it another time. Those 4 are being liquidated in the market at fair value.

5 But HCLOF also is a significant holder of those preferred
6 shares, and those directors would -- have indicated to me that 7 they would like to see those interests also monetized.

8 Q All right. Let's shift gears for a moment to talk about 9 the diligence that the Debtor did before entering into this 10 agreement. Can you just describe for the Court generally the 11 diligence that was undertaken at your direction?

12 A Well, when we first received the reply to our objection, 13 we dug into that reply and the specifics in it very 14 aggressively. So we reviewed all of the underlying documents
15 related to the original transaction. We discussed with 16 counsel the legal basis for the HarbourVest claims. We 17 interviewed our own HCMLP employees who were involved in the 18 transaction and tested their recollection, specifically around
19 who dealt with HarbourVest, who had the discussions with 20 HarbourVest, what was disclosed to HarbourVest with respect to 21 the Terry dispute and the Acis litigation.

22 We also had done, as I think the Court is well aware from 23 prior 9019 testimony, extensive work around the transfers and 24 the issues related to Acis. So we were familiar with their 25 impact on HCLOF.

005314

44

1 We also did extensive work valuing the remaining HCLOF
2 interests to get a good feel of not only how much HarbourVest
3 originally invested, but how much they actually lost in this 4 transaction. And as I said, their original investment was 5 around, in total, in two tranches, about $80 million, of which 6 they got about $5 million back, and they've lost $22 million.
7 So it -- I mean, remaining with $22 million. So they've lost,
8 you know, in excess of $50 million.

9 Q Do you recall whether the Debtor reviewed and analyzed all 10 of the documents that were cited in HarbourVest's response to 11 the Debtor's objection to the HarbourVest proofs of claim?

12 A Yeah. I think -- I forget, to be honest, which -- exactly 13 what documents were in there. But we went through their 14 objection with a fine-toothed comb, not only with respect to 15 the issues related to the Acis case, but also their references
16 to Guernsey law, other U.S. law, any of the documents between 17 the parties. And obviously, as I mentioned before, the 18 offering memorandum.

19 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I would just note for the 20 record that Debtor's Exhibits I through X are all of the 21 documents that are cited in HarbourVest's response to the 22 Debtor's objection to the HarbourVest proofs of claim, and 23 those are the documents that Mr. Seery just referred to.

24 THE COURT: All right.

25 MR. MORRIS: Just, they're in evidence now, and I

005315

Seery - Direct

45

1 just wanted the Court to understand why they're in evidence.

2 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

3 MR. MORRIS: You're welcome.

4 BY MR. MORRIS:

5 Q Let's talk about the Debtor and whether or not it had or 6 has any viable defenses. Did the Debtor form any views as to 7 whether or not it had any defenses to the HarbourVest claims?

8 A Yes, we did.

9 Q Can you describe for the Court the defenses that were 10 reviewed and analyzed by the Debtor?

11 A Yeah. I think we -- we had very significant defenses.
12 So, first and foremost, with respect to the original proof of 13 claim, as I mentioned earlier, it alluded to the expenses and 14 the overcharge. And I think with respect to the 15 million of 15 fees that were charged to HCLOF by Highland, we didn't have a 16 lot of defenses to that claim.

17 It's pretty clear, by any fair view of the Acis case, that 18 HCLOF, as the investor in the Acis CLOs and the Highland CLOs,
19 had no real responsibility for fighting with Acis and Josh
20 Terry and shouldn't have been charged those fees. I don't -- 21 I don't think there's a legitimate investor that would 22 actually think that that was an appropriate amount to be 23 charged to a fund.

24 However, the claim was not as broad -- the proof of claim
25 was not as fulsome in terms of discussing and only vaguely

005316

1 referred to other damages. So we did -- we did, as a
2 threshold matter, think about whether we could argue that it
3 was time-barred because they had not met their obligations to 4 fully disclose under the proof of claim.

5 Secondly, we considered the defenses to the overall claim
6 of fraudulent inducement. Our perspective was that if we 7 could stop the claim of fraudulent inducement, the damages
8 would likely be limited to the 15 and maybe some -- some other 9 damages. With respect to the 15, again, the problem that we 10 had when we got past -- past motions for summary judgment is 11 the factual predicate for our defense was going to be that we 12 divulged these things to HarbourVest and that they did not 13 reasonably -- it was -- reasonably rely on some failure to 14 divulge because they're a sophisticated investor.

15 The problem with that defense is that our witnesses, which 16 really would have primarily been Mr. Dondero and Mr.
17 Ellington, and one other employee who runs the CLO business,
18 Mr. Covitz, would not be pretty good. They've been -- two of 19 them have been in front of this Court and they're not viewed 20 favorably and their testimony would be challenged and 21 potentially suspect.

22 So that gave us a real focus on trying to make sure that 23 we could, if we had to litigate, that we would litigate around
24 the fraudulent inducement.

25 As I said, reasonable reliance, what was disclosed, lack

1 of digging into the public record, because you don't have to 2 go far on Google to find "fraud" within two words of 3 "Highland," and the tremendous, you know, litigious nature of 4 Highland. You know, even at that point, when this investment
5 was made, aside from Mr. Terry's arbitration, which by that 6 point, at least by the time (inaudible) was public, there was,
7 you know, significant public disclosure around the Credit
8 Strat and the litigation, the Crusader litigation, the UBS
9 litigation, the, gosh knows, the Daugherty litigation.

10 So our defense was going to be that you should have 11 figured this out, you're a sophisticated investor, and you
12 should have been able to figure out that there was significant 13 risk that, with respect to Mr. Terry, that Mr. Dondero would 14 not stop litigating and that those costs would put significant 15 risk on the investment.

16 The problem with that, as I mentioned earlier, is that the 17 OM is wholly deficient. If you have a typical risk factor in 18 the offering memorandum, you would have disclosed that there
19 was a litigation with Mr. Terry, a former partner in the 20 business, and that the Debtor had no intention of settling it.
21 There was no intention of settling. That litigation would go
22 on. It could go on for years and it could result in 23 bankruptcy or attachments and other risks to the business, and 24 that the investor should be fully aware that the Offeror does 25 not intend to be involved in any -- or the manager, in any

Seery - Direct

48

1 settlement with Mr. Terry, and the fact it undermined the 2 investment. That wasn't there.

3 But that was our preliminary focus, to try to stop fraud
4 in the inducement. And then we -- we had specific facts
5 related to that. You know, once they knew about the 6 bankruptcy in HarbourVest of -- I'm sorry, of Acis,
7 HarbourVest made a second funding, which was there was a -- it
8 was an initial $75 million draw, and then a second, I believe,
9 about a $5 million draw, which was in -- I believe in 10 February. And they made it without -- without objection, and 11 that was after the commencement of the bankruptcy.

12 In addition, they were -- they were active in the 13 bankruptcy, so the -- some of the things that happened in the 14 bankruptcy, there were many opportunities to settle that case,
15 from our examination, all of which were turned down to -- by 16 Mr. Dondero. But you don't see HarbourVest pounding the table
17 to settle, either, either with respect to the Oaktree
18 transaction or any other transaction.

19 Now, HarbourVest's defense to that is, well, we were 20 taking advice and all of our information from Highland, and we 21 were getting that information directly from senior folks at 22 Highland why -- what the value was and why we shouldn't do
23 those things. We thought that that would mitigate some of the 24 arguments that -- some of the damages that we might have, I'm 25 sorry, if we -- if we lost.

005319

1 But the focus at that point, you know, our legal strategy,
2 was can we stop HarbourVest at the very forefront to say,
3 You've got to come into the factual realm and get out of the 4 fraud in the inducement realm. And then the defenses and the 5 exculpations and the liability limitations in the documents
6 would also come into play.

7 So that -- those are some of the defenses that we focused
8 on and our analytical thinking around them.

9 Q So, if the Debtor had viable defenses, why is it settling?

10 A Well, this is a significant claim. And we -- we looked at 11 it with respect to both the impact on the case, but, really,
12 the merits of the claim.

13 As I said, there's really little dispute that the legal 14 fees should not have been charged to HarbourVest. We think 15 based upon the testimony in Acis, the suspect credibility of 16 those who would have been our witnesses, and the experience in 17 Acis that the Court has had in terms of the completely hell-
18 bent on litigation, it would be hard for anyone to justifiably
19 defend those fees being charged. So, as an initial matter, we 20 had exposure there.

21 In addition, if HarbourVest got by our defense of -- was 22 able, for example, to claim fraud in the inducement, then we 23 were open to significant damages.

24 We really didn't put much value, frankly, on the RICO part
25 of it. We think that that's waved around often to show treble

1 damages. Although in this case certainly somebody could lay
2 out the predicate acts and put forth a RICO-type argument, we
3 just didn't think that that had real merit in this commercial
4 dispute, even with a fraud claim.

5 But even without the trebling of the damages, there's no
6 dispute that HarbourVest lost more than $50 million in this 7 investment. You know, we -- we thought about that risk as 8 well.

9 In addition, because the case would really be fact-based,
10 even if we had a high degree of confidence based upon our 11 discussions with our employees and the factual testimony, it
12 was going to be expensive to litigate this case, and time-
13 consuming.

14 And so we looked at the economic value, the potential
15 risks, and the actual value that we were giving up, and found
16 this to be an extremely, extremely reasonable settlement.

17 Importantly, and I think what drove it, you -- one of --
18 one of the things that drove it is another one of our defenses
19 on why, notwithstanding their -- what they held out as 20 meritorious claims, I don't think HarbourVest really wanted to 21 publicly litigate this claim. And we were aggressive in our 22 discussions with HarbourVest of how we would litigate it,
23 which would be quite publicly.

24 Now, that may or may not be fair, but that does put risk 25 on the counterparty. And so I think that helped drive the

Seery - Direct

51

1 settlement.

2 In addition, the structure of the settlement we think is 3 extremely favorable to the Debtor and to the estate because,
4 rather than taking the full claim and putting it into a senior
5 unsecured position, we have bifurcated it. We did think about 6 whether this was a claim that could be subordinated under 510.
7 There won't be any arguments, I would be surprised if there's 8 arguments today that we didn't actually give to the Highland 9 employees who have given them to Mr. Dondero's respective 10 counsel.

11 We did structure it in a way that we thought gave 12 HarbourVest the opportunity to effectively claim a rescission, 13 even though that's not really what it is, and then be able to 14 claim that their recovery is based on the bankruptcy, which it
15 is, but not really dilute all the other stakeholders in the 16 case.

17 (Pause.)

18 THE COURT: Mr. Morris? Anything else?

19 MR. MORRIS: I can hear you, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. MORRIS: I can hear you.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Now can you --

23 MR. MORRIS: I got cut off from Mr. Seery for a 24 moment.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

005322

Seery - Direct

52

1 BY MR. MORRIS:

2 Q Okay. I appreciate that. Are you done giving the
3 Debtor's basis for entering into this settlement, Mr. Seery,
4 if you can hear me?

5 A I think so, but I think as the Court has probably seen, I 6 can go on.

7 Q Yes.

8 A So I will try to be -- I'll try to be more concise. But 9 this was a -- this was a difficult settlement. We felt good
10 about our defenses. Felt that we could -- we could try them.
11 But it would be extremely expensive, time-consuming, and there
12 would be a lot of risk. And settling at a level which we 13 believe is actually below the damages that were clearly caused 14 only by the fees was a -- was a -- is a -- is a very 15 reasonable settlement.

16 Q Okay. Let's just talk about the process by which we got 17 to the settlement. Do you recall generally when the 18 settlement negotiations have -- were commenced?

19 A I believe it was -- was late summer, early -- early fall.

20 Q Okay. Before I move on, I just want to go back to the 21 Acis matter that you were talking about, one last issue. Do
22 you know how, if at all, the injunction that was entered in 23 the Acis bankruptcy impacted or related to the HarbourVest
24 claims?

25 A Yeah. I -- yes, I do. And I believe it -- it did. I 005323

53

1 think there's an argument, and we analyzed it thoroughly, that
2 the injunction effectively caused a lot of the damages.
3 Because if you look at the values of the equity that 4 HarbourVest had, the -- and HCLOF had in the CLOs, it went
5 down dramatically after the Trustee in the Acis case took over
6 and then subsequently, when the case was reorganized and Mr.
7 Terry took over, you know, with Brigade as the sub-advisor.

8 Now, that would -- you know, we would -- we could 9 certainly attempt to throw, in our defense, the causation at 10 Mr. Terry's feet or at Mr. Phelan's feet. HarbourVest's
11 retort is that none of this would have occurred but for the 12 burn-it-down litigation that Mr. Dondero engaged in with 13 Highland.

14 In addition, in Mr. Terry's defense, you know, he did try 15 multiple times with HCLOF, tried to petition, if you will, the 16 HCLOF entity to -- and directors, former directors, to reset
17 the CLOs to make them more economically viable, based upon the 18 current level of asset returns versus the debt costs in the 19 CLOs. And that was rejected by the HCLOF and the Debtor as 20 the controlling party of HCLOF. So, we thought about those 21 risks.

22 You know, similarly, the economic values in Acis 7 went 23 down pretty significantly from that date as well. So I think
24 there's -- there are some defenses, but that's really Mr.
25 Terry's issue, not our issue. So we thought about those 005324

1 issues, we analyzed them, and we certainly did all the work
2 around month-to-month reductions in NAVs and how different
3 events in the Acis case might have -- might have caused those 4 and was that some sort of break from the original
5 transgression that HarbourVest claims, which was the 6 fraudulent inducement.

7 Q Do you recall that in November HarbourVest's motion under 8 3018 was scheduled to be heard?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And can you just tell the Court your understanding of what 11 the 3018 motion was about?

12 A Well, the 3018 motion was going to be on voting. And we 13 took the view that it really was not -- it shouldn't have been 14 that big an issue and HarbourVest should have been content
15 with just taking their actual losses of roughly a $50-$60
16 million claim for voting purposes and then we would move on.

17 HarbourVest was very insistent that they have a $300
18 million claim, because they took the position -- and with 19 extensive documentation; not only the pleadings they filed,
20 but also detailed decks that were prepared by their counsel,
21 which they had presented to us on the merits of their claim --
22 that they were going to litigate for -- the 3018 and for the 23 full $300 million value.

24 And that became the genesis, if you will, of the 25 negotiations to settle.

1 So, we started talking about the 3018. It was very
2 contentious. My apologies to Ms. Weisgerber and her counsel,
3 her partners, because it was a significant and contentious
4 negotiating call. But the reasons for that I think were that 5 -- their insistence on litigating the 3018 and our view that 6 this was just, you know, another -- another of a series of 7 delays and costs in this case that we really were hoping to 8 avoid.

9 That led to Mr. Pugatch and I stepping away from counsel,
10 no offense to counsel, you know, ours and his, to begin
11 negotiations around the potential for a settlement. First, it 12 started with a 3018, and then, you know, argued that we would,
13 if we got past the 3018, we were going to litigate this,
14 because we effectively had -- thought we could get everyone
15 else done at -- in and around that time. And I think we were 16 also probably a little bit optimistic about UBS at that time
17 and the mediation, which subsequently we have settled. But 18 that was the genesis of those settlements.

19 Q And how did the structure, how did the Debtor and 20 HarbourVest derive at the structure whereby there is a general
21 unsecured claim, there is a subordinated piece, and there's 22 the takeback of the HCLOF interest?

23 A Well, as I outlined, we -- we aggressively set forth our 24 various defenses. Their position was that they -- they should 25 never have been in this transaction before. And they --

1 HarbourVest is, in essence, a fund of funds, and they have
2 investors, and it certainly wouldn't be their, I'm sure, the 3 best-performing asset in their portfolio, to have made this
4 investment and lost $50 million over this period of time. So
5 they felt strongly that they should never have been in this 6 investment, and but for the failure to disclose and the 7 improper disclosures, they would not have been in this
8 investment.

9 So, optically, getting out of it was important to them,
10 and that led to our idea and construction of a subordinated
11 claim and the transfer of the HCLOF interests to the estate.

12 Importantly, the HCLOF interests, as I mentioned, are -- 13 the investments are in the Acis CLOs controlled by Acis and 14 Mr. Terry. The reorganized Acis. As well as the 1.0 CLOs and 15 the Acis 7.

16 So we were keenly focused on, if we were going to get that 17 interest, would we then have the majority control in HCLOF,
18 which we will, and would we be able to drive the recoveries,
19 as opposed to what Highland typically does in these 20 investments is use other people's money, drive down the value,
21 and then try to buy back the interest on the cheap.

22 Q Just in terms of timing, because I think there was a
23 suggestion in one of the openings that there was something
24 untoward about the timing here: At the time the liquidation
25 analysis was prepared on November 24th, had the Debtor reached

Seery - Direct

57

1 any agreement in principle with HarbourVest?

2 A If we had, it would have been reflected, so I don't -- I
3 don't think we were agreed by then. I don't recall the 4 specific dates, but if we had, it would have -- it would have 5 been reflected.

6 Q If I can refresh your recollection that the motion was 7 filed on December 24th, does that help form your understanding
8 or refresh your recollection that there was no agreement in 9 principle on November 24th?

10 A Yeah. Well, I'm quite sure there was no agreement in 11 principle or we would have reflected it minimally by a
12 footnote. There's -- there's no chance. It's a material
13 reduction in the claims pool that we were previously telling
14 people that, at least for purposes of distribution, like UBS
15 and a couple others we said we thought we would get to zero
16 on. So we didn't calculate in that amount. So I'm quite sure 17 we didn't have a deal when we filed the disclosure statement.

18 In terms of the timing, anyone who's done this business
19 for any degree of time knows that the crucible of bankruptcy
20 brings people to the settlement when they see something
21 happening in the case, and not before. I think HarbourVest
22 looked at our -- this is my supposition -- HarbourVest looked 23 at our plan, our ability to get this done, our settlement with 24 Redeemer, our settlement with Mr. Terry and Acis, and saw that 25 this plan was coming together, and if they didn't think about

005328

1 the settlement, they were going to think about not only the
2 risks that we laid forth for them with respect our defenses,
3 but also the opportunity to litigate with the Claimant Trustee
4 over a long period of time, which couldn't have been 5 particularly appetizing.

6 Q Can you describe for the Court the role played by the 7 independent board of Strand, the general partner of the 8 Debtor, in analyzing and participating in the approval
9 process?

10 A Yes. I think, as the Court is aware and I've testified
11 before, Mr. Russell Nelms and Mr. John Dubel are fellow
12 independent directors with me, appointed pursuant to the Court
13 order. They are kept abreast of every detail, and -- along 14 the way, not just in a summary form at the end. We have 15 reviewed and analyzed collectively each of the issues. Mr.
16 Dubel has extensive experience in these types of litigation
17 matters. Obviously, Mr. Nelms, from his -- both his practice
18 and his time on the bench, has a keen insight into how to 19 resolve and what the risks and benefits are from settling
20 litigation. So I consult them every step of the way.

21 Q And as part of this process, did the Debtor reach out to 22 the directors of HCLOF?

23 A Yes, we did. So, we reached out and we've had several 24 conversations on video chats with the directors. The 25 directors of HCLOF are two new gentlemen, Mr. Richard Boleat

Seery - Direct

59

1 and Mr. Dicky Burwood. They are extremely professional. They
2 are exceptionally well-informed. They are truly careful, and 3 I would say very experienced professional not only directors,
4 but experienced in -- in these matters, both in respect of 5 structured finance as well as these types of vehicles and 6 litigation.

7 They were appointed by the old directors, Scott and 8 Bestwick, and they have been in control. They have outside
9 counsel, which is King & Spalding in the U.S. They have 10 Guernsey counsel. They have accountants and professional 11 advisors, and are being, in my opinion, exceptionally careful.
12 I've got -- very quickly developed a lot of respect for them,
13 and we consulted with them on this settlement and how it would 14 work.

15 They've been very clear that they represent HCLOF and they 16 work for the benefit of the equity, whomever owns it, and 17 taking a view that they would like to see these assets
18 monetized swiftly, with due regard to value, for the benefit
19 of the equity.

20 Q And is it your understanding that the directors of HCLOF
21 approved of this transaction?

22 A They -- I don't know that their approval was required.
23 It's really -- there are a number of hoops to jump through 24 under the documentation, including opinion of outside counsel
25 that we received from WilmerHale in terms of the effectiveness

005330

60

1 of the transfer under the documents. We had a negotiation
2 with -- with those directors, and making sure that we did
3 everything correct -- correctly, excuse me -- with respect to 4 the requirements for the transfer under the documents. And 5 they've indicated their support and acknowledgement that we're 6 doing it correctly.

7 I don't know if it's fair to say they approved it. I'd 8 just have to go check the documents. But they certainly 9 support it. And I think they generally support our position
10 with respect to how to move forward with the assets.

11 Q I appreciate that. I guess I meant approval with a small 12 a and not a capital A.

13 You mentioned WilmerHale. Who do they represent in all of 14 this?

15 A WilmerHale is the Debtor's outside corporate counsel, in 16 particular with respect to the fund issues that we don't 17 handle in-house. We have significant support for fund issues
18 from the expertise of Mr. Surgent, who's been the CCO, and he 19 is also a lawyer, with respect to, you know, some of the 20 difficult fund issues that Highland has. But when we use
21 outside counsel, we use WilmerHale for that, and they've been 22 -- they've been exceptional.

23 Q Okay. Just the last two points that were made in Mr.
24 Dondero's objection, I believe. Did the Debtor overpay in 25 this settlement in order to gain the support of HarbourVest in 005331

61

1 connection with its -- with the Debtor's attempt to get its
2 plan confirmed?

3 A Not in any way. My -- I believe the settlement is 4 extremely reasonable. As I testified, it's -- it's less than 5 the -- the actual value going out, depending on unless there's 6 successful litigation, and there well could be, is less than 7 on a pro forma basis the fees that were taken and charged to 8 HCLOF. We didn't do this for votes. We will have Class 2,
9 Class 7, Class 8, and Class 9. So I don't think that's a -- 10 there's no vote purchasing, I think you called it. No, not at 11 all.

12 Q Yeah. Well, on that topic, I think the phrase that was 13 used was gerrymandering. Are you aware of the argument that's 14 been made that the subordinated claim was dropped in there in 15 order to gerrymander a positive vote for the impaired class of 16 Class 9, I believe?

17 A In a word, I would say that's preposterous. The -- as I
18 said, we have a number of classes that will vote for the plan.
19 The plan is -- the plan is a monetization plan. And if -- if 20 the creditors determine that they don't want to pursue this 21 plan, we'll go forward with another -- we'll try to get 22 another plan. We tried to have a grand bargain plan. We 23 tried to have a pot plan, as I've testified previously. I'm 24 quite certain that I've done more work on that than anyone
25 else, including Mr. Dondero and anybody who works for him.

005332

62

1 And he hasn't been willing to do that.

2 This is a -- this is a plan that's come together. We
3 think it's going to be in the best interests of the estate.
4 That'll be confirmation next week. Or two weeks, I guess.
5 But I don't see how this is any way related -- this settlement
6 is not any way related to the voting on that -- on that -- on 7 that plan.

8 Q Just to put the finest point on it, is the Debtor relying
9 on Class 9 to be the impaired consenting class?

10 A No. I think -- I think what I've -- as I said, I believe
11 we already have the votes in Class -- I think it's 2 or 3, 7, 12 8, and -- and 9 will vote in favor as well. So that won't be 13 an issue.

14 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I have no further questions
15 of Mr. Seery.

16 THE COURT: All right. Pass the witness. I'll ask
17 HarbourVest counsel first: Do you have any questions of Mr.
18 Seery?

19 MS. WEISGERBER: No, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

21 What about cross-examination? Mr. Dondero's counsel?

22 CROSS-EXAMINATION

23 BY MR. WILSON:

24 Q Mr. Seery, how are you doing today?

25 A I'm well, thank you.

005333

1 Q I'm John Wilson, and I represent Jim Dondero. I have a
2 few questions for you today.

3 Now, the HarbourVest proof of claims were filed on April
4 8th, 2020; is that your recollection?

5 A I believe that's correct. I don't recall the specific 6 date.

7 Q Okay. And do you know when you first became aware of the 8 HarbourVest claims?

9 A I believe it was early in the summer when we filed the 10 omnibus objection. It may have been in late spring, shortly
11 after that. I don't recall the specific date of the filing.

12 Q And before the time of the filing of the omnibus
13 objection, did Highland educate itself regarding the 14 HarbourVest proof of claims?

15 A I'm sorry, could you say that again? I didn't quite 16 understand it.

17 Q Before the omnibus objection was filed, did HarbourVest --
18 I'm sorry, did Highland educate itself on the HarbourVest
19 proof of claims?

20 A Not especially, no.

21 Q Okay. And -- but at some point, Highland did investigate
22 those proofs of claim, correct?

23 A That's correct.

24 Q And when would you -- when do you recall that that 25 investigation began?

1 A I don't recall the date, but the triggering event was
2 HarbourVest's response to our omnibus objection.

3 Q Okay. And that would have been filed September 11th of 4 2020?

5 A I'll take your representation. I don't -- I don't recall
6 the specific date.

7 Q Okay. And so when you began to investigate the 8 HarbourVest claims, what was your initial reaction?

9 A My initial reaction was that the -- the larger claims that 10 they were asserting -- the fraud in the inducement, the RICO
11 -- that those claims were, in my view, attorney-made and that 12 when we dug in and did the work, we saw that HarbourVest
13 clearly lost north of $50 million on the investment. We had 14 just started to uncover the fee issue and saw the risk we had 15 there.

16 But I thought the bulk of those claims were attorney-made.
17 Clever, but attorney-made, as opposed to what I would think 18 are more legitimate. And so we started to develop our 19 defenses around that.

20 Q And was your initial reaction that the HarbourVest claims
21 were largely worthless?

22 A I think with respect to the claim around the fees, I
23 believed there was significant risk. With respect to the 24 other claims, I thought our defenses would make them
25 worthless, yes.

1 Q And did you ever represent to any party that the
2 HarbourVest claim was worth, at most, $5 million?

3 A I think I represented often, including to HarbourVest,
4 that it was worth nothing. I don't recall if I specifically
5 said $5 million. $5 million would have been a nominal amount
6 to -- which is litigation costs. So it may -- it may have 7 been in my models that I put in that as a settlement amount,
8 but I -- I thought that there were valid and good defenses to 9 those larger claims.

10 Q And you recognize that HarbourVest was a large,
11 sophisticated investor, correct?

12 A Yes. I think they manage north of -- right around a 13 hundred billion dollars.

14 Q And you recognize that HarbourVest routinely structured 15 complex customized investments, correct?

16 A I believe that -- I don't know the intricate part of their 17 businesses, but as a fund of funds who does creative 18 investments, I think that they do do quite a bit of that.
19 This, I believe, was their first investment in the CLO space.

20 Q And it was not -- or I should say, you did not believe 21 that HarbourVest was simply a passive investor in HCLOF,
22 correct?

23 A I don't think that that's true, no.

24 Q You don't -- you don't believe that you denied their claim
25 to be a passive investor?

1 A Oh, I think -- I'm sure that in defense of their claims I
2 would argue that they were -- they were more than a passive
3 investor. But it was pretty clear when you look at the 4 structure of what they invested that there was an intent that
5 they be passive on their part. They didn't take a majority
6 interest.

7 In fact, Highland made it clear in the structure of the 8 deal that they couldn't -- it would be hard for them to get a 9 majority interest because Highland entities would control that 10 and Dondero-controlled entities or individuals would control
11 the majority.

12 I think that they -- they had hoped to be a passive
13 investor.

14 Q But was it not your position that HarbourVest was actually 15 an active, involved investor?

16 A I think our defense was going to be that they knew exactly
17 what was going on, that they participated, that they were 18 active, and that, indeed, that they were in and around some of 19 the subsequent issues in the Acis case.

20 Q And you understood that HarbourVest played a material role
21 in the various outcomes in the Acis bankruptcy case, correct?

22 A I don't believe that to be correct, no.

23 Q Have you ever made that representation to anyone before?

24 A Not -- not that I recall.

25 Q Well, do you recall giving statements to a reporter named

1 Syed Khaderi?

2 A I've never spoken to a reporter named Syed Khaderi in my 3 life.

4 Q Well, did you participate in the preparation of statements
5 to be given to Syed Khaderi?

6 A I've never heard of Syed Khaderi, nor have I participated
7 in any preparation of statements. I don't know who that is.

8 MR. WILSON: All right. I'm going to have Bryan
9 Assink put on the screen a document.

10 And Bryan, can you go to Page 7? Bottom of -- the top of 11 Page 7. Well, actually, before you do that, go to the very 12 top of the document.

13 BY MR. WILSON:

14 Q Now, Mr. Seery, are you familiar with Lucy Bannon?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And who is Lucy Bannon?

17 A She is the Highland public relations person.

18 MR. WILSON: Okay. Now go back to Page 7.

19 BY MR. WILSON:

20 Q Now, do you -- do you see on your screen an email of 21 September 14th from Syed Khaderi that says, Hi, Lucy, how are 22 you?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Have you seen this email before?

25 A Not that I recall, no.

1 Q All right. It continues on that, I saw the filing on
2 Friday about HarbourVest claims against Highland for a CLO
3 investment, and I'm looking to put out a report tomorrow
4 morning London time. Ahead of that, I wanted to check if 5 Highland would like to comment on the matter.

6 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, this is -- the Debtor
7 respectfully objects. A, this document is not in evidence.
8 B, it's rank hearsay.

9 THE COURT: Response, Mr. Wilson?

10 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, I am attempting to 11 authenticate this document, but I'm using it in rebuttal to 12 the testimony that Mr. Seery just offered.

13 THE COURT: All right. I'll allow it. Overrule the 14 objection.

15 MR. WILSON: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

16 BY MR. WILSON:

17 Q All right. Now, if we -- and oh, that September 14th
18 date, that was three days after the September 11th date that 19 we discussed was the date that HarbourVest filed its response
20 to the omnibus objection, correct?

21 A Yes. If that's the date that they filed it, then I -- if 22 you're representing that, I concede that the 14th is three 23 days after the 11th.

24 Q All right. And if you go back to the first page of this,
25 it looks like, on the following day, Lucy Bannon sends an

1 email to you, and is that your email address,
2 jpseeryjr@gmail.com?

3 A That's correct, yes.

4 Q And do you recall receiving this email from Lucy Bannon?

5 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I renew my objection that
6 this is hearsay. He's not rebutting anything that Mr. Seery
7 testified to. He testified that he'd never heard of the 8 gentleman at the bottom of the document. There's nothing in 9 this document that rebuts Mr. Seery's testimony at all.

10 THE COURT: Response, Mr. Wilson?

11 MR. WILSON: Well, I'm not -- I'm not trying to rebut
12 his statement that he hadn't -- that he hadn't heard of Syed
13 Khaderi. My rebuttal is attempted to -- attempting to show
14 that he has made various statements that he denied.

15 THE COURT: I'll overrule the objection.

16 BY MR. WILSON:

17 Q All right. So, back to this exhibit, Mr. Seery. You
18 recall receiving this email from Lucy Bannon on Tuesday,
19 September 15, 2020?

20 A Not specifically. But to be clear, I recall talking to 21 Lucy Bannon about the HCMLP dispute with HarbourVest.

22 Q Okay. And --

23 MR. WILSON: Bryan, can you go down to the next page?
24 Scroll down to where -- the James Seery email.

25 BY MR. WILSON:

Seery - Cross

70

1 Q Do you see this email on your screen that's dated
2 September 15, 2020 at 10:33 p.m.?

3 A Yes, I do.

4 Q And do you recall sending this email to Lucy?

5 A Not specifically, no.

6 Q Well, do you deny that you sent this email to Lucy?

7 A It appears to be my email.

8 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, we would move to admit this 9 document into evidence as Dondero Exhibit Letter N.

10 THE COURT: Any objections?

11 MR. MORRIS: I would consent to the admission of Mr.
12 Seery's email, but the balance of it ought to be excluded as 13 hearsay.

14 THE COURT: What about that?

15 MR. WILSON: Well, Your Honor, I think that this 16 document -- and I'll get into this in a little more detail in 17 a second -- but I think this document is a combination of the 18 work product of Lucy Bannon and Mr. Seery in preparing a 19 response for the reporter who requested comment from Highland.

20 THE COURT: Okay. I --

21 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, um, --

22 THE COURT: Go ahead.

23 MR. MORRIS: I just -- I do question how they got 24 this document, but that's for another day. That's number one.
25 Number two, in addition to the hearsay argument, I just --

005341

1 relevance grounds.

2 THE COURT: Okay. I'll allow the portion that is the 3 communication of Seery, that portion of Exhibit N. All right?

4 MR. WILSON: Okay. With due -- thank you, Your 5 Honor. With due respect, I -- to use that portion, I need to 6 refer to the portion below it, because he says, Good to submit
7 with your final edit/revisions. And so we need to know what 8 those final edit/revisions are, which are contained in the 9 email directly below that on the document that was four 10 minutes earlier in time.

11 THE COURT: All right. Fair enough. That'll be 12 allowed.

13 MR. WILSON: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

14 (James Dondero's Exhibit N is received into evidence as 15 specified.)

16 MR. WILSON: So, Bryan, now can you scroll to the 17 next page? Oh, actually, let's just -- let's just stop at the 18 top -- at the bottom of the page. What's this statement?

19 BY MR. WILSON:

20 Q So, to be clear, Mr. Seery, when -- in response to Mr.
21 Khaderi's request for information and comment, you prepared
22 actually two responses, and one of those was a statement on 23 the record attributed to a spokesperson for HCMLP or something
24 along those lines. And then --

25 MR. WILSON: Can you scroll down to that next page?

1 BY MR. WILSON:

2 Q And this says -- I think part of this got cut off for some 3 reason, but it looks like the official statement is in 4 quotation marks. It says, "We dispute the allegations made in 5 the filing and believe the underlying claims are invalid and 6 will be found to be without merit. Our focus continues to be 7 treating all valid claims in a transparent, orderly, and 8 equitable manner, and vigorously disputing meritless in the 9 court. That focus will assure that HCMLP's reorganization
10 process -- progress is towards an efficient and equitable 11 resolution."

12 And then below that there's another section of this email
13 that says, Background/Clarification, Not for Attribution. And 14 do you know the purpose of this second section of the 15 response?

16 A Do I know the purpose of that? Yes.

17 Q And what would that purpose be?

18 A Ms. Bannon was speaking on background to reporters. As I
19 said earlier, I've -- I never heard of the gentleman from 20 London. If he's at the bottom of the email, I didn't pay any 21 mind, never heard of him. Nor have I heard it since. Ms.
22 Bannon didn't ever reference the specific person.

23 But she is the public relations person. So, as I
24 testified earlier, she does communicate with the press. And 25 as I previously testified when Mr. Morris questioned me, one

1 of our tactics and our defenses for HarbourVest was going to
2 be that we were going to be very public and aggressive about
3 the investment and it would have a negative impact or negative
4 perspective for viewers, in our opinion, about HarbourVest's
5 investment.

6 Q All right. Well, look with me in the middle of that
7 paragraph right after the closed parenthetical, where it says,
8 "But it's important to note the background of HarbourVest's
9 active and deep involvement in the investment of which it now
10 complains."

11 And so it was your position that HarbourVest had an active
12 and deep involvement in the investment, correct?

13 A No. I don't think that's correct. Ms. Bannon prepared 14 the statement, it was a litigation defense on background, and 15 that's our -- that was our position for this purpose. It was 16 not my view that they were active and deeply involved. They 17 were certainly involved. There's no doubt about it. But they 18 got all their information, in our estimation and our research,
19 from Highland.

20 Q But in any event, you would agree with me that four 21 minutes after receiving this email, you approved this 22 statement to go out to the reporter, correct?

23 A No, that's not correct. That's -- this portion is on 24 background. That statement doesn't go out. The previous 25 statement was the official statement. This is the background

1 discussion that she would have. So, no, she was not
2 authorized in any way whatsoever to send that out. She was 3 authorized to have conversations with those general facts.

4 MR. WILSON: Okay. Bryan, go to the top, or the 5 bottom of the page immediately preceding that. That's it.
6 Yes, that's it right there.

7 BY MR. WILSON:

8 Q Now, you'll see that this email from Lucy Bannon on 9 September 15, 2020 at 10:29 p.m. starts off, "Jim, let me know
10 what you think of the below. And, again, the first would be 11 on the record and the second will be sent for information
12 purposes to ensure accuracy, not for attribution."

13 So the intent was that this -- that this entire statement
14 be sent to the reporter, correct?

15 A I don't believe that's correct. I think when she goes on 16 background she doesn't send them a written doc. It's got to 17 be clear to the reporter, at least my understanding is that 18 what on background means -- I've been involved with this 19 before -- is that typically that's done orally. I don't know
20 if she's done it in a written statement before. I have never 21 seen that done in a written statement before. You give the 22 official statement and then you walk the reporter through your 23 other views on background. And you're not quoted. And it's 24 usually attributed to a source with knowledge.

25 Q Okay. We'll come back to that in a minute. The next

1 sentence after the one I just read to you --

2 MR. WILSON: Go back to where we were on the
3 background.

4 BY MR. WILSON:

5 Q Now, we just read you the sentence that starts with, "Then
6 it's important." The following sentence says, "HarbourVest
7 was not simply invested in HCLOF as an ignorant,
8 unsophisticated, passive investor, but was an active and 9 informed participant in the inception of its investment
10 through all of the Acis bankruptcy proceedings, and 11 HarbourVest played a material role in various outcomes related 12 to that case and its impact on HCLOF."

13 And is it -- did you not just tell me before we 14 investigated this document that HarbourVest did not play a 15 material role in the various outcomes of the Acis bankruptcy?

16 A I don't know exactly what I said, but I think that's 17 correct, after we'd done the research on it, yeah.

18 Q But you took the position in this email that you approved 19 to go out to a reporter that says that -- that HarbourVest was 20 an active and informed participant in the inception of -- of 21 its investment through all of the Acis bankruptcy proceedings
22 and played a material role in various outcomes related to that 23 case and its impact on HCLOF. Can we agree with that?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And then the final sentence of this paragraph says that,

1 We believe that neither the facts nor the law support
2 HarbourVest's, quote, We-were-too-lazy-to-know allegations.

3 Whose words were those, "We-were-too-lazy-to-know
4 allegations"?

5 A I don't recall. They may be mine. It's aggressive the 6 way I am, so that -- that may well be the case.

7 MR. WILSON: All right. Go -- go down to the next
8 page.

9 BY MR. WILSON:

10 Q And with respect your comment that that second paragraph 11 would not have gone to the reporter, look at this email in the 12 middle of the page from Lucy Bannon to Syed Khaderi, September 13 16, 2020, at 1:51 a.m. And --

14 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, this I will object to as 15 hearsay. There is no witness here to testify to anything on 16 this document.

17 THE COURT: All right. How about that?

18 MR. WILSON: Well, it's -- well, scroll up just a 19 little bit. This email at the top of the page is three 20 minutes after the one in the middle of the page, where Lucy
21 Bannon is forwarding this to James Seery, saying, See below
22 for responses sent to Creditflux. Will follow up with the 23 story when it runs or with any other updates.

24 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, these --

25 MR. WILSON: So I think this --

1 MR. MORRIS: These documents don't appear on the 2 witness list. They're not being offered to impeach anything.
3 They're just -- he's taking discovery as we sit here.

4 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, in response, I'm simply 5 trying to rebut the statements that Mr. Seery made. In fact,
6 he told me just a minute ago that that second paragraph would 7 not have gone out to the reporter. However, this email from 8 Lucy Bannon to Syed Khaderi directly rebuts that statement.

9 THE COURT: But your whole purpose in this line of 10 questioning, with an undisclosed document, is to rebut the 11 earlier testimony he gave before you even put this exhibit in 12 front of him.

13 MR. WILSON: I'm trying to rebut multiple statements
14 that Mr. Seery has made today, and I think it -- you know, if 15 he's going to testify that this information did not go out to 16 a reporter, I think I'm allowed to rebut that to demonstrate 17 that it did.

18 THE COURT: All right. Why didn't you disclose this 19 in advance? It's feeling less and less like an impeachment
20 document the more we go through it.

21 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, I did not -- I did not
22 actually have this document at the time we filed our witness
23 and exhibit list, but I would also say that I didn't have any 24 purpose to use it if I didn't need it for rebuttal.

25 THE COURT: Okay. First off, you're supposed to

1 disclose all exhibits you anticipate using except those for 2 purposes of impeachment. Okay? Not rebuttal, to be 3 technical.

4 So, if you didn't disclose this exhibit, the only way you
5 can use it, subject to other possible objections, is if you're 6 impeaching a statement. And I'm just saying I think we're 7 going beyond trying to impeach the original statement and now
8 we're trying to impeach statements he's made after seeing 9 portions of the document.

10 What did you mean, you didn't have this document in time
11 to disclose it?

12 MR. WILSON: Well, I actually just received this 13 document this morning, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Where did you receive it from?

15 MR. MORRIS: From who?

16 MR. WILSON: I -- I honestly do not know the source 17 of this document, although it was provided to me by my client.

18 MR. MORRIS: Your client being Mr. Dondero?

19 THE COURT: Could you answer that, Mr. Wilson?

20 MR. WILSON: Yes, that's -- yes, that's correct.

21 THE COURT: All right. I will -- that's --

22 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I'd like to --

23 THE COURT: That's a different can of worms. But for 24 now, I sustain the objection. You're done questioning on this 25 document.

1 MR. WILSON: That's fine, Your Honor. I can move on.

2 BY MR. WILSON:

3 Q Now, Mr. Seery, you would agree with me that whether or 4 not HarbourVest played an active role in the Acis bankruptcy,
5 it was kept apprised of the -- of the ongoings in the 6 bankruptcy? (Pause.) I'm sorry. Could you hear that?

7 A Yes. My understanding is that -- that they were.

8 Q And in fact, did Highland have weekly conference calls 9 with HarbourVest during the Acis bankruptcy to discuss what 10 was going on in the bankruptcy?

11 A I don't know if they were weekly. I've been told that 12 they had regular calls updating HarbourVest, yes.

13 Q Okay. And did Highland produce over 40,000 pages of 14 documents to HarbourVest related to the Acis bankruptcy?

15 A I'm not aware of that, no.

16 Q Have those documents been provided to you?

17 A I hope not.

18 Q So, in your role --

19 A I'm sorry. I don't -- I didn't receive 40,000 documents
20 from anybody.

21 Q Well, did you receive any number of documents that were 22 provided by Highland to HarbourVest during the Acis
23 bankruptcy?

24 A I wasn't involved in this during the Acis bankruptcy. I'm 25 sorry.

1 Q Well, I'm referring to, after you became involved in this
2 Highland bankruptcy, whether you were provided with these
3 documents that were sent from Highland to HarbourVest.

4 A I don't -- I don't know what the documents are. I've 5 reviewed tons of documents with respect to the HarbourVest
6 claims, but I don't know of the documents to which you're 7 referring.

8 Q Okay. And after you performed your investigation into the 9 HarbourVest claim, what was your opinion as to the cause in 10 the reduction in value of HarbourVest's investment in HCLOF?

11 A I think the main cause of the reduction in the investment
12 was the imposition of the Trustee and the failure of Highland 13 HCLOF and then subsequently with the injunction to reset the 14 CLOs.

15 You know, these are -- these are some of the worst-
16 performing CLOs in the market because they weren't reset. And 17 when the liabilities of the CLOs are set at a level to match
18 assets, and then liability -- the assets run off, and the 19 asset financings or the new deals come in at much lower 20 levels, and the obligations of the CLO are not reset, the 21 arbitrage that is the CLO shrinks. And that's what happened
22 to these CLOs.

23 Q And during the course of the Acis bankruptcy, Acis and 24 Brigade were given management responsibilities over the CLOs
25 and HCLOF, correct?

1 A I believe that the Trustee had the overall, and then
2 subsequently, with the confirmation of the plan, they took it
3 over. So I think that ultimately Mr. Terry had the management
4 authority, full management authority, and some advice through 5 Brigade. But I think technically it wasn't actually during 6 the Chapter 7. The Chapter 7 proceeding, I believe that Mr.
7 Phelan had the actual authority.

8 (Echoing.)

9 Q I'm sorry. And so your testimony is that Mr. Phelan had 10 the actual authority but he delegated that authority to Josh
11 Terry and Brigade?

12 A I think that's fair, yes.

13 Q And do you know when that occurred?

14 A I believe that the control of the CLOs was in July of 15 2018, and then the ultimate confirmation of the case was at 16 the very beginning of '19.

17 Q So, after being instituted as portfolio manager, and 18 during the time when Acis and Brigade were working under the 19 direction of the Trustee, who would have receive the fees for 20 managing those portfolios?

21 A I believe -- I don't know. I believe the -- that the Acis
22 estate would have received those fees.

23 Q And who -- and so is that your testimony, that prior to 24 confirmation the Acis estate would have received the 25 management fees?

Seery - Cross

82

1 A I believe that -- I believe they would have if they were
2 the manager, yeah.

3 Q Okay. And who would have received the fees after 4 confirmation?

5 A Acis.

6 Q Okay. And who would have had the discretion to set the 7 amount of those management fees?

8 A They would be agreed to in the -- in the investment
9 management agreement.

10 Q They would be agreed to?

11 A Yes. As far as I've seen, I've -- I haven't seen 12 unilateral ability of a manager to set fees at its -- at its 13 whim.

14 Q So is it your understanding that Acis and Brigade ended up
15 charging substantially more fees than Highland had charged
16 when it was under Highland's management?

17 A I think the fees were -- the fees were -- the fees were 18 set by the agreement.

19 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I just object to the line of 20 questioning on relevance grounds. This is a 9019 hearing,
21 Your Honor. How -- I just don't think this has any relevance
22 at all.

23 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Wilson, what is the 24 relevance?

25 MR. WILSON: The relevance is that Mr. Seery has 005353

1 testified that these Acis CLOs were among the worst-performing
2 in the market, and frankly, we would agree with that, and I'm
3 trying to get his understanding as to why, because I think
4 there's direct relevance in the reason that the value of the 5 HarbourVest investment diminished.

6 MR. MORRIS: I don't think that was his testimony,
7 Your Honor. But at the end of the day, Your Honor has heard
8 the litany of reasons why the Debtor is entering into this 9 agreement. I just, I just think it's irrelevant, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Wilson, I barely think 11 this is relevant. I mean, I'm going to give you some benefit
12 of the doubt on that because of, you know, the testimony that 13 HarbourVest lost $50 million of value and --

14 (Echoing.)

15 THE COURT: -- maybe that shouldn't, you know, lie at 16 the feet of Highland. I think the compromise reflects that 17 they don't -- it doesn't lie entirely at the feet of Highland.
18 But, you know, maybe two or three more questions.

19 MR. WILSON: Yes. Thank you, Your Honor. And I
20 didn't have very much more on this point. But to be a hundred 21 percent honest, I can't remember my question right before the 22 objection.

23 THE WITNESS: I think you were asking me about the 24 fees and somehow alluding or implying that the manager could 25 unilaterally set fees.

1 The fees are set in the investment management contract.

2 The manager doesn't get to wake up on Wednesday and say, you
3 know, I'd like another half a basis point. It doesn't work
4 that way.

5 BY MR. WILSON:

6 Q But you would agree with me that the fees and expenses
7 charged to an investment would impact the performance of that 8 investment in the market?

9 A Absolutely.

10 Q Would you also agree with me that there was one CLO -- and 11 I think you referred to it in your direct testimony -- but CLO
12 7, which continued to be managed by Highland?

13 A That's correct.

14 Q And is it fair to say that CLO 7 exceeded the performance
15 of the CLOs that were managed by Acis and Brigade?

16 A I think that's fair. I don't -- I don't recall the 17 magnitude, but I think it's outperformed those -- those CLOs,
18 yes.

19 Q All right. Well, thank you. I want to turn your 20 attention to the portion of the settlement agreement that 21 deals with voting of the HarbourVest claim. How did 22 HarbourVest's commitment to vote for the plan become a part of 23 the settlement?

24 A Pretty straightforward negotiation. We -- in negotiating 25 the settlement, one of the key factors was the cost and

1 expense of the litigation, in addition to the risk on the --
2 on the fees, and whether we could wrap this up in a global
3 settlement now. So in my experience, it's fairly typical, we
4 would try to do this in every settlement, have the settling
5 party, be that the claimant, agree to support the case and the 6 plan.

7 You know, we did not do that with the Committee members,
8 although we wanted to. (Echoing) I frankly still wish I had.
9 Those little -- little bits that have been difficult
10 (echoing). The Committee members have a different interest in 11 (echoing) than their more global interest for creditors at 12 large, which is more difficult than traditionally in 13 bankruptcy cases, less likely to have a Committee member, a 14 sitting Committee member, actually support the (echoing) of 15 the plan.

16 THE COURT: Mr. Wilson, could you be careful to put 17 your device on mute every time you're not talking? Because 18 we're getting some feedback loop from you when Mr. Seery
19 answers your questions. Okay?

20 (Echoing continues.)

21 THE COURT: Like right now. I'm hearing feedback of 22 my own voice through your speakers.

23 Right, Mike? Isn't that what --

24 A VOICE: I am, too.

25 THE COURT: Yes. Okay. So please be sure you put

1 your device on mute whenever you are not speaking. All right.
2 Go ahead.

3 BY MR. WILSON:

4 Q I mean, I think you just answered this question, but there
5 was -- there was no similar voting provision in the Acis or 6 the Redeemer settlements, correct?

7 A There is not, no. And just as a -- by way of explanation,
8 if it's okay, the reason was my counsel advised against it. I
9 did ask for it.

10 Q Your counsel advised against putting that voting
11 requirement in the Acis and Redeemer settlements?

12 A For the reasons I stated. And in my experience, that's 13 consistent, where sitting members of Committees don't 14 generally sign up to resolve their own claims and support the 15 plan because of their larger fiduciary duties to the creditor
16 body as a whole.

17 Q And during the settlement negotiations of the HarbourVest
18 claim, was this commitment to vote a topic of discussion?

19 A Not -- not particularly, no. It was pretty clear that 20 HarbourVest, if they were going to agree to the settlement and 21 the numbers, could see structure. Obviously, it wanted to 22 understand what the potential distributions would be under the 23 plan, but this was not a hotly-negotiated point.

24 Q And would you consider HarbourVest's commitment to vote
25 for the plan an important part of the settlement?

1 A I think it's an important part of the settlement, that the
2 part of the settlement is the subordinated claim. We could
3 put that into presumably any plan. But our plan does -- does 4 have a Class 9 for that. So I think it's a -- it's a part of 5 the settlement that is important or we wouldn't have included
6 it. It clearly wraps everything up and moves us towards
7 confirmation.

8 Q And would you have made the deal with HarbourVest if they 9 had pushed back on the commitment to vote for the plan?

10 A Yeah, I would have.

11 Q All right. Thank you.

12 MR. WILSON: No further questions.

13 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Draper, anything from 14 you?

15 MR. DRAPER: Yes, Your Honor.

16 CROSS-EXAMINATION

17 BY MR. DRAPER:

18 Q Mr. Seery, I may not understand the settlement, and I
19 apologize, but the way I think the settlement reads, the 20 interest that you're acquiring, you have the right to place in 21 any entity. Is that my -- is that correct?

22 A I don't recall the -- the specifics, but just from a
23 structural standpoint, we wanted to be able to put it into a 24 subsidiary as opposed to putting it directly in HCMLP. If we 25 couldn't do that, we would -- we would put it into HCMLP. So

1 there wasn't a -- I don't recall the actual specifics, but we
2 certainly thought about holding that interest in a -- in a
3 subsidiary, just to have a cleaner hold.

4 Q Why aren't you putting it into the Debtor so the Court and 5 the estate have jurisdiction over that?

6 A I think the Court certainly has jurisdiction over an 7 entity that the estate owns a hundred percent of. I don't
8 think that's -- that's even a close call. So the important --

9 Q Now, --

10 A Can I finish?

11 Q Sure.

12 A You asked me why. To the extent that somebody thinks that 13 problematic, I will consent to the Court having complete
14 jurisdiction over it, since I control it a hundred percent.

15 Q No. The real reason is, if I remember correctly, Mr.
16 Dondero and Judge Lynn filed a motion to have some say or some 17 information as to sales by subsidiaries, and I think you took 18 the position that they weren't entitled to it. And so my 19 concern was that putting this in a subsidiary in a sense gave 20 you unfettered control without any review of the item.

21 A I don't -- I don't think that's the case where we --
22 there's a directly-held subsidiary where we own a hundred
23 percent of it. I don't think that that's the case.

24 Q Okay. But you're willing to (a) put this into the Debtor,
25 number one; and number two, have the estate and have the Court

1 have complete control over the disposition of it and its
2 actions, correct?

3 A That's not correct, no.

4 Q What -- what is incorrect about my statement?

5 A The debtor-in-possession has control of its assets. The 6 Court doesn't have complete control over its assets. There's 7 --

8 Q Well, --

9 A -- issues -- hold on a second. This is not -- this is not 10 a game and a trap. We put it in a subsidiary for specific 11 reasons. You asked why. I'm giving you the why. It's not to 12 hide it from anybody. We're not going to sell the asset
13 unless somebody comes up with a great price for it. We're 14 going to monetize the assets. We're going to control HCLOF by 15 a majority.

16 Q But, again, the issue is, if it's in the estate, the Court
17 has supervision over it. If it's not in the estate, the Court
18 has no supervision of it.

19 A I don't think that's correct, because the Court has 20 supervision over the estate, which owns a hundred percent of 21 the special-purpose entity that will own the shares.

22 Q Okay. All right. Now, let's talk about the $15 million
23 that you discussed and the legal fees that were incurred. Is 24 that the total amount that was spent, or is -- or is that --
25 was the total amount $30 million and HarbourVest was only

1 responsible for one half of it or functionally took the brunt
2 of one half of it?

3 A I think the total amount is between $15 and $20 million.
4 I don't have the exact numbers.

5 Q So, in fact, the HarbourVest loss due to its ownership
6 would have been one half of that, not $15 million?

7 A Well, the vehicle lost the money. HarbourVest owned 49.98
8 percent of it, and Highland controlled the rest. So if you
9 allocate it that way, I suppose that would be a -- that's how 10 you would divide it, in -- roughly in half, yes.

11 Q And so HarbourVest's actual dollar loss due to the legal 12 fees is really the 49-point-whatever percent of $15 million,
13 not $15 million?

14 A I don't know if -- I certainly would argue that. I don't 15 think that HarbourVest has that position.

16 Q Okay. Now, in connection -- you were asked a question
17 about the documentation that was provided by Highland to 18 HarbourVest both during the bankruptcy of Acis and before.
19 You have control over the Harbour -- over the Highland server,
20 correct?

21 A I'm sorry. Can -- can we do two things? One is, Mr.
22 Draper, I can't see you, so it would be better if I could see
23 you during the questioning.

24 Q Okay.

25 A And could you repeat the question?

1 Q All right. I'll be happy to. You were asked a question
2 about the documentation that was provided by Highland to
3 HarbourVest during the Acis bankruptcy and meetings that took 4 place between the parties. Correct?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And you stated you were unaware of the material that was 7 sent over?

8 A I think I testified that I didn't receive the 40,000
9 documents that were mentioned.

10 Q Did you do any search or order a search of the Highland 11 server to see what material was sent over by any party to 12 HarbourVest to analyze what -- what information they had 13 available to them and what was provided to them?

14 A Yes, we did a search.

15 Q And did you review the documentation that was sent over?

16 A The -- the documentation that we looked at was very 17 specific to the investment and to the OM. So we didn't look 18 for the -- the supposed 40,000 documents, no.

19 Q Did you look for the material that was provided to them
20 during the Acis bankruptcy and the periodic meetings that you
21 discussed? Or that you testified to earlier?

22 A The answer is no.

23 Q One last question. I think, and just so I understand your 24 testimony, you've broken out the HarbourVest claim into two 25 pieces. One is the legal fee amount that we've just

1 discussed, and I gather the other piece of that is the fraud
2 in the inducement to enter into the CLO purchase?

3 A It's -- it's more -- it's much more than that.

4 Q Okay. Well, let me say it in a different way. The other
5 part of it is the losses as a result of the fraud in the 6 inducement to purchase the interest?

7 A I don't think that's -- that's fair. If I could explain?

8 Q Sure.

9 A Yeah. The legal fee piece is pretty clear. The other
10 piece starts with fraud in the inducement, but it's extensive
11 fraud claims. Fraud in the inducement, as I testified
12 earlier, would get them around the exculpation and liability
13 limitations in the OM. You don't get around all of those with 14 just the fraud. And so that's -- that's the split of that 15 claim. So the fraud in the inducement contains fraud
16 allegations. Even if you didn't have inducement, you'd have 17 other potential fraud claims.

18 Q But let me state it in a different fashion. But for the 19 investment, the fraud that you allege wouldn't have occurred?

20 A I -- HarbourVest alleges it.

21 Q No, I'm just -- in your analysis of the claim, but for the 22 inducement, the rest of the damages wouldn't have flowed?

23 A That's HarbourVest's position, yes. But for the fraud,
24 they wouldn't have made the investment.

25 Q All right.

Seery - Redirect

93

1 MR. DRAPER: I have nothing further for this witness.

2 THE COURT: All right. Any redirect, Mr. Morris?

3 MR. MORRIS: Just a few very questions, Your Honor.

4 Just a very few questions.

5 REDIRECT EXAMINATION

6 BY MR. MORRIS:

7 Q Mr. Seery, you were asked about that document that Lucy
8 prepared. Do you remember that?

9 A Yes, I do.

10 Q In your experience, don't defendants often deny liability
11 before entering into settlements, or even worse, getting 12 adverse judgments entered against them?

13 A Of course. Yes.

14 Q Okay. And in response to Mr. Draper's questions, isn't 15 the Guernsey claim another claim that the Debtor took into 16 account in assessing the potential risks of this settlement?

17 A There's a number of claims contained in it. As I
18 mentioned earlier, I mentioned the RICO claim. But there is a 19 Guernsey shadow director claim, which is not dissimilar to 20 U.S. claims that somebody effectively controls an enterprise,
21 notwithstanding them not having the official role.

22 Q Okay.

23 MR. MORRIS: I have nothing further, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: All right. Any recross on that redirect?

25 All right.

005364

Seery - Redirect

94

1 MR. WILSON: No, Your Honor.

2 MR. DRAPER: No, Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Seery, that concludes
4 your testimony. Thank you.

5 THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: We need to take a bathroom break. Before
7 we do, I just want to be clear with what we have left. As I
8 understood it, we were having Mr. Pugatch from HarbourVest.
9 Mr. Morris, will that conclude the Debtor's evidence?
10 (Pause.) Okay. You were on mute, but I think you were saying
11 yes.

12 MR. MORRIS: Sorry. But to be clear, Debevoise is 13 going to be putting their witness on the stand.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. MORRIS: But it's part of the evidence in support
16 of the motion.

17 THE COURT: All right. Do the Objectors have any 18 witnesses today?

19 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, Mr. Dondero intends to 20 examine Mr. Pugatch, but if he's going to be called by his 21 counsel, then we will do that as a cross-examination.

22 THE COURT: All right.

23 MR. DRAPER: This is Douglas Draper. I have no
24 witnesses.

25 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Well, I'm asking --

005365

1 well, I do want to ask: Can we get a time estimate
2 potentially for Mr. Pugatch?

3 MS. WEISGERBER: For my examination, Your Honor,
4 twenty minutes, perhaps.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MS. WEISGERBER: Or less.

7 THE COURT: All right. Well, let me tell you what
8 we're going to do. We're going to take a ten-minute bathroom
9 break. But I have a 1:30 hearing and I have a 2:00 o'clock.
10 Well, I have a 1:30 docket, multiple matters, and a 2:00
11 o'clock docket. So, you know, I'm really intending that we 12 get finished in time to give me and my staff a little bit of a
13 lunch break before launching into the 1:30 docket, so I'm 14 hopeful we can get done around 1:00-ish. If we can't, then 15 we're going to have to reconvene, I'm going to say probably 16 3:00-ish Central time. So let's hope we can get through 17 everything. All right? Ten-minute break.

18 THE CLERK: All rise.

19 (A recess ensued from 11:58 a.m. until 12:08 p.m.)

20 THE CLERK: All rise.

21 THE COURT: All right. Please be seated. We're 22 going back on the record in the Highland matters. Do we have 23 everyone? It looks like we do. Ms. Weisgerber is going to 24 call the next witness; is that correct?

25 MS. WEISGERBER: Yes, Your Honor. We call Michael

Pugatch - Direct

96

1 Pugatch of HarbourVest to the stand.

2 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Pugatch, if you could
3 turn on your video and say, "Testing one, two."

4 MR. PUGATCH: Two.

5 THE COURT: All right. There you are. Please raise 6 your right hand.

7 MICHAEL PUGATCH, HARBOURVEST'S WITNESS, SWORN

8 THE COURT: Thank you. You may proceed.

9 MS. WEISGERBER: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 DIRECT EXAMINATION

11 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

12 Q Good morning. Can you please state your name for the 13 record?

14 A Sure. It's Michael Pugatch.

15 Q And where do you work, Mr. Pugatch?

16 A HarbourVest Partners.

17 Q And what is your title?

18 A I'm a managing director in our secondary investment
19 group.

20 Q Did HarbourVest file claims in the Highland bankruptcy,
21 Mr. Pugatch?

22 A We did, yes. Several claims, in fact.

23 Q What was the basis for those claims?

24 A Yeah. Among other things, fraudulent inducement based on 25 misrepresentations and omissions on the part of Highland in 005367

1 connection with our original investment, mismanagement at the 2 HCLOF level, including inappropriate fees that were charged
3 to investors, among a number of other items as well.

4 Q Can you explain what you mean by misrepresentations made
5 to HarbourVest by Highland?

6 A Yeah, sure. So, you know, based on a number of 7 statements that were made to us around the litigation
8 involving Mr. Terry, some of the intentions found, the 9 structural changes that came to light with respect to HCLOF
10 and our investment, as well as the fact that the arbitration
11 award specifically against Mr. Terry would have no impact or 12 implication on Highland's sale or business.

13 Q And can you explain what you mean by omissions made by 14 Highland to HarbourVest?

15 A Sure. So I would say, really, the implications behind
16 the structural changes that were made at the time of our 17 investment into HCLOF. Also, the intention, clear intentions
18 that Highland had to never, in fact, pay the arbitration
19 award that came to light during our due diligence period to 20 Mr. -- to Mr. Terry as part of the investment. And 21 ultimately the -- what Highland went about doing in terms of 22 stripping assets of Acis that led to the material value
23 declines and destruction of value that we've experienced
24 since our investment.

25 Q You mentioned a diligence period. Did HarbourVest

1 conduct diligence on the investment?

2 A We did. We conducted very detailed due diligence, as we
3 do for all of our investments. That diligence period lasted
4 several months ahead of our investment decision.

5 Q And did HarbourVest conduct that diligence by itself?

6 A No. So, in addition to internal investment professionals
7 at HarbourVest, we engage with outside advisors, both
8 consultants as well as legal advisors, in connection with 9 that due diligence.

10 Q And did Highland answer all of HarbourVest's questions
11 during that diligence period?

12 A They did. And they were numerous. But yes, they 13 answered all the questions that we had for them.

14 Q Was the Terry dispute part of HarbourVest's diligence?

15 A It was. That came up as one of the outstanding items of 16 litigation as part of our due diligence.

17 Q I'm going to ask my colleague to pull up on the screen an 18 exhibit that was on our exhibit list as Items -- Exhibits 34
19 and 35. It's an August 15, 2017 email from Brad Eden to 20 Dustin Willard. Mr. Pugatch, do you recognize this document?

21 A I do, yes.

22 Q And what is it?

23 A This was an email sent to us during our due diligence
24 period in response to a request for more information on the 25 outstanding litigation that Highland was involved with.

99

1 MS. WEISGERBER: And if my colleague can just scroll
2 to the attachment to that email.

3 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

4 Q And do you recall the attachment as well, Mr. Pugatch?

5 A Yes, I do.

6 MS. WEISGERBER: And if you can scroll back up to the 7 first email.

8 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

9 Q Who is Dustin Willard?

10 A Yes. Dustin is a colleague of mine at HarbourVest who 11 worked closely with me on this investment.

12 Q And you said that this document was shared with 13 HarbourVest during the diligence period before the HCLOF
14 investment?

15 A It was, correct.

16 Q Is it typical during diligence to receive a description
17 of litigation such as this?

18 A It is. It's a question that we always ask. Certainly a 19 component of our diligence to understand any outstanding 20 litigation on the part of our counterparty or manager that 21 we're investing in.

22 MS. WEISGERBER: Your Honor, I'd move to offer this 23 exhibit into evidence.

24 THE COURT: Any objection?

25 MR. DRAPER: No objection, Your Honor.

005370

100

1 MR. MORRIS: No objection from the Debtor, Your
2 Honor.

3 THE COURT: All right. What is the letter or number
4 for this exhibit?

5 MS. WEISGERBER: It's HarbourVest Exhibit 34.

6 THE COURT: All right. So HarbourVest Exhibit 34 is 7 admitted.

8 (HarbourVest's Exhibit 34 is received into evidence.)

9 THE COURT: And I need to be clear where it appears
10 on the docket. Can someone tell me?

11 MS. WEISGERBER: So, it's identified on our exhibit
12 list, not -- it's not attached to the exhibits. It is on the 13 docket. We were -- when we initially filed the exhibit list, 14 we were working out confidentiality issues. But it was 15 subsequently filed with our reply last night. It's at Docket
16 No. 1735 --

17 THE COURT: All right.

18 MS. WEISGERBER: -- at Pages A -- Pages A345 to A350.

19 THE COURT: All right. Very well. Thank you.

20 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

21 Q Mr. Pugatch, we'll just scroll down to the second page of 22 the attachment. Can you describe generally what the 23 litigation says regarding the Terry dispute?

24 A Yes. Generally speaking, this dispute was described as 25 an employee dispute, employment agreement dispute, with Mr.

005371

101

1 Terry, who was a former employee of Highland involved in
2 their CLO business, and is described by Highland to us really
3 having to do with a series of false claims, in their opinion,
4 but having to do with a disgruntled former employee.

5 Q And did it strike you as an unusual or significant 6 dispute?

7 A No. I would say we often -- we'll see, you know, former 8 employees with, you know, claims against a former employer in 9 connection with wrongful termination. I wouldn't say it's 10 extremely common, but certainly not entirely out of the 11 ordinary. And based on the explanations that we'd received
12 from Highland, seemed to be more of an ordinary-course type
13 former employee litigation suit.

14 Q Based on what you now know about the Terry dispute, do
15 you believe that this was an adequate disclosure regarding 16 the dispute?

17 A I would say very clearly not, you know, based on the 18 facts that came to light subsequently, the various rulings in 19 connection with the Acis bankruptcy case. What was very 20 clearly not stated are the actual facts and implications of 21 the ongoing litigation with Mr. Terry.

22 MS. WEISGERBER: I'd ask my colleague to put up the 23 next exhibit. Okay. So, this is on a HarbourVest exhibit 24 list, which is Document No. 1723. It's Exhibit 36 on that.
25 Same issue with respect to initially not filed, but it is on

3 THE COURT: Page what?

4 MS. WEISGERBER: A351.

5 THE COURT: A351. Thank you.

6 MS. WEISGERBER: You're welcome.

7 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

8 Q Mr. Pugatch, I just put up a November 29, 2017 email from 9 Hunter Covitz to Dustin Willard, Michael Pugatch, and Nick
10 Bellisario. Do you recall this document?

11 A I do, yes.

12 Q And what is this document?

13 A This was an email sent to us by Highland a couple weeks
14 after we closed on our investment on the (inaudible) in 15 response to a Wall Street Journal article that had come out
16 regarding Highland, a number of actions that they had taken,
17 and what Highland was articulating to us, a number of false
18 claims that had been made about Highland's prior actions, and 19 specifically trying to explain some of that and also share
20 with HarbourVest a letter that was being sent to the editor
21 of the Wall Street Journal highlighting, in their view, some 22 of the inaccuracies around the reporting.

23 Q And did you receive this document?

24 A We did, yes.

25 MS. WEISGERBER: I'd move to offer this, so 005373

103

1 HarbourVest Exhibit 36, into evidence.

2 THE COURT: Any objections?

3 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, John Wilson. I would object
4 as to the relevance of this document.

5 THE COURT: All right. What's your response?

6 MS. WEISGERBER: Your Honor, it shows
7 misrepresentations that the witness will testify how it
8 relates back to prior representations prior to HarbourVest's
9 investment, as well as misrepresentations at that time.

10 THE COURT: Okay. I overrule the objection. I'm 11 going to admit it.

12 (HarbourVest's Exhibit 36 is received into evidence.)

13 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

14 Q Mr. Pugatch, can you describe generally -- we spoke about 15 this a little bit -- just what this communication from 16 Highland was conveying to HarbourVest at the time?

17 A Yes. Specifically, again, responding to this Wall Street
18 Journal article that had been published, trying to defend,
19 again, Highland's own views why there were inaccuracies in 20 the reporting. But importantly, from our perspective, trying 21 to reassure us as to the fact that, you know, these 22 accusations would have no bearing and any results from it
23 would have no bearing on their ongoing business or 24 partnership or the investment that we had made in HCLOF.

25 MS. WEISGERBER: And if you can scroll to the second 005374

104

1 page.

2 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

3 Q We'll just look at the last paragraph of another email
4 from Mr. Covitz. Can you just read that first sentence of 5 the last paragraph?

6 A Sure. (reading) While the dispute has no impact on our 7 investment activities, as always, we welcome any questions
8 you may have.

9 Q Mr. Pugatch, was this email and the discussion regarding 10 the Terry dispute consistent with the representations made to 11 you prior to HarbourVest's investment into HCLOF?

12 A It was, yes. Both the message, the lack of any impact
13 that ultimately the dispute with Mr. Terry, the arbitration
14 award would have around Highland's ongoing CLO business, or 15 HCLOF specifically, was all, you know, very clear in this 16 document, but all consistent with the representations that 17 had been made to us leading up to our investment in the 18 middle of November 2017 as well.

19 Q Thank you.

20 MS. WEISGERBER: And you can take down the exhibit,
21 Emily. Thank you.

22 BY MS. WEISGERBER:

23 Q You mentioned, Mr. Pugatch, an arbitration award to Mr.
24 Terry. How did you learn about that arbitration award?

25 A That was initially disclosed to us by Highland as we were 005375

1 in the late stages of our diligence and closing process on
2 the investment into HCLOF.

3 Q And generally, what did Highland tell you about the
4 arbitration award?

5 A We were aware of its existence. We were aware of the 6 quantum of the award, I think it was around an $8 million
7 arbitration award in the favor of Mr. Terry, and that was 8 following the litigation around the wrongful termination and 9 employee dispute that Highland had described to us
10 previously.

11 Q Did you ask to see a copy of the arbitration award?

12 A No, we did not.

13 Q Why not?

14 A Ultimately, we -- you know, the explanations that 15 Highland had provided to us all seemed very reasonable. We 16 relied on their representations that this was, again, nothing
17 more than a dispute with a former disgruntled employee, in 18 their words, that had no bearing or, you know, would not have 19 any bearing on our investment in HCLOF or their ongoing CLO
20 business, which all very clearly was not the case, as 21 we've -- as we've learned over the last several years.

22 Q Following learning about the arbitration award, did
23 HarbourVest do other diligence?

24 A We did. So, in addition to asking questions related to 25 the arbitration award and any impact that it would have, we

1 also spent some time diligencing a couple of structural
2 changes that were proposed by Highland, and, in fact, ended
3 up delaying the closing of our investment by about two weeks
4 as we vetted some of those structural changes that Highland
5 had proposed. Vetted those both, you know, internally with 6 Highland directly and with external counsel in order to make
7 sure that those structural changes were in fact legally sound
8 in ultimately making our investment.

9 Q And were those changes proposed following the arbitration
10 award?

11 A They were, yes.

12 Q Did Highland tell you the reason for the structural 13 changes?

14 A Yeah. So, so some of this -- and specifically, this 15 involved a change of the portfolio manager at the HCLOF level
16 that was really in connection with a rebranding as Highland 17 was going through a rebuild of its CLO business and wanting 18 to align, from a brand perspective, their business on an 19 ongoing basis with the Highland brand as opposed to the Acis
20 brand. But more specifically, in the case of a late change
21 from a structured standpoint, the -- part of the intention
22 and the investment thesis of HCLOF was to pursue a reset, a 23 refinancing of all the underlying CLOs as they approached the 24 end of their investment period or came out of their 25 investment period.

1 And in connection with that, in light of the arbitration
2 award, Highland's view was that there may be difficulties in 3 the market in resetting certain of those Acis CLOs with the 4 Acis brand associated with them, given, again, the existence
5 of the arbitration award and concerns in the market around
6 the Acis brand reputation.

7 Q And what did they tell you was the market view of Acis,
8 or the Acis brand?

9 A Yeah. Their view or their concern was that the, you
10 know, because of the existence of that arbitration award, the 11 brand would be viewed as toxic.

12 Q Didn't this put you on notice that perhaps there was 13 something wrong with the structural changes?

14 A I mean, we -- I mean, short answer, no. We ultimately 15 asked questions, we diligenced the legal structure, but 16 relied on the representations that were made to us by 17 Highland around the rationale for the structural changes,
18 that these are all changes that were within a Highland-
19 managed vehicle or sat below the vehicle that we were 20 investing in, and so ultimately were in Highland's purview,
21 was the representations that we relied on.

22 Q And did HarbourVest alone do that diligence of the 23 structural changes?

24 A So, no. I mean, in connection with the diligence that we 25 did internally and with Highland directly, we engaged with

108

1 outside counsel who was working with us at the time to vet
2 those structural changes as well.

3 Q Did HarbourVest rely on Highland's representations
4 regarding the arbitration award and the structural changes in 5 making its investment in HCLOF?

6 A We did, absolutely.

7 Q If Highland had disclosed the nature of the structural 8 changes, of removing Acis as the portfolio manager and 9 related transfers, would HarbourVest have proceeded with its 10 investment?

11 A Definitively, no, we would not have.

12 Q Why not?

13 A I think the reality is if we had understood the intent,
14 you know, that Highland was ultimately undertaking here, we 15 would not have wanted to be any part of this, and certainly 16 getting dragged into all of this, the hassle, the value
17 destruction that we've seen on behalf of the investors and 18 the funds that we manage. And I would say, lastly, we just 19 full stop would not have done business with a firm who 20 engages with this type of behavior, had we actually known the 21 truth.

22 Q Mr. Pugatch, are you familiar with the bankruptcy that 23 followed of Acis?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And what was your -- or, did HarbourVest participate in 005379

1 that bankruptcy?

2 A So, initially, no. Subsequently, we ended up getting 3 dragged into that on account of a number of misstatements by 4 Highland about the role that HarbourVest had played as part 5 of our investment into HCLOF and some of that structure and 6 the structural changes that I alluded to.

7 Q How did HarbourVest learn about those misstatements in 8 the bankruptcy about HarbourVest's role?

9 A So, ultimately, those came to light on -- you know, on 10 account of the ongoing proceedings within the Acis bankruptcy
11 process, and specifically brought to light to us by the Acis
12 trustee at the time, who decided to pursue, you know, further 13 diligence or discovery around the claims that Highland had 14 made around HarbourVest's involvement in those changes.

15 Q And what is your understanding of what the allegations
16 were that caused the Acis trustee to investigate HarbourVest?

17 A Sure. So, you know, our understanding was that Highland
18 had made statements, again, false statements that HarbourVest
19 had actually instructed some of those structural changes,
20 that we were the ones that had said that we would not do
21 business with Acis and had ordered some of the underlying 22 transfer of assets or, again, structural changes, that, you
23 know, very clearly I would say were not the case. Also, that 24 HarbourVest was -- was calling the shots as it relates to any 25 of the ongoing management or future resets of the CLOs.

Pugatch - Direct

110

1 Q Did HarbourVest instruct any of those structural changes
2 or transfers to occur?

3 A We did not. Absolutely not.

4 Q Why didn't HarbourVest itself appear in the Acis
5 bankruptcy and file a claim?

6 A Yeah. HarbourVest's role, again, in HCLOF, we were a
7 passive investor in a Highland-managed company. We had no
8 direct interaction with or relationship with Acis. There was 9 really no reason for us to be directly involved until we were 10 subsequently dragged into involvement on account of those 11 misstatements. And then at that point our focus really 12 pivoted to, you know, whether we needed to defend ourselves
13 against those accusations that had been made by Highland and 14 after a request for further information in discovery by the 15 Acis trustee.

16 Q Did HCLOF participate in the Acis bankruptcy?

17 A They did, yes.

18 Q Did HCLOF incur fees for participating in the Acis
19 bankruptcy?

20 A Yes. In fact, very meaningful fees, to the tune of well
21 in excess of $15 million of legal fees, as we understand it,
22 that have been incurred, largely in connection with the 23 ongoing Acis bankruptcy and Highland's continued pursuit of 24 and in connection with the litigation with Mr. Terry, which 25 we firmly believe was entirely inappropriate that HCLOF and 005381

Pugatch - Direct

111

1 ultimately investors in HCLOF bear those expenses, which were 2 not just expenses of HCLOF but of Highland and a number of 3 other Highland affiliates.

4 Q Do those expenses form a basis of separate claims filed
5 by HarbourVest against Highland?

6 A They do, yes. One of the multiple claims that we had 7 filed against Highland.

8 Q And a few more questions, just for the record, Mr.
9 Pugatch. How much did HarbourVest initially invest in HCLOF?

10 A Sure. So, our initial investment in November of 2017 was 11 right about $73-1/2 million, I believe.

12 Q Did HarbourVest invest any additional money in HCLOF?

13 A We did. There was a subsequent capital call investment
14 of about $5 million, bringing our total investment to just 15 under $80 million in aggregate.

16 Q When HarbourVest initially made the investment, did it
17 anticipate making a profit on it?

18 A We did, yes.

19 Q How much did HarbourVest anticipate earning from the 20 investment?

21 A Yeah. So, our -- based on the original $73-1/2 million
22 investment, we had expected a total return of about $137
23 million on that -- on that investment.

24 Q What was that projection based on?

25 A So, that projection was based on materials that we had 005382

112

1 received from Highland, their internal projection models on
2 the future performance of the underlying CLOs that we were 3 acquiring exposure to through our investment in HCLOF, and 4 was one of the inputs or formed the basis in connection with 5 our diligence that we ultimately ran different sensitivities
6 -- projections around and helped employ -- helped inform our 7 investment thesis.

8 Q Do you know the current value of HarbourVest's investment
9 in HCLOF?

10 A Yes. The current value is right around $22-1/2 million.

11 Q So roughly how much has the investment itself decreased
12 from HarbourVest's initial investment?

13 A So, net of what was about $4-1/2 million of distributions
14 that we received early on in the investment, we've lost, to 15 date, in excess of $50 million on our original investment.

16 Q And just for -- to close out, Mr. Pugatch, knowing all 17 that you know, if HarbourVest had known that -- about the 18 nature of the transfers by Acis or Highland's intent with 19 respect to the arbitration award, would HarbourVest have made
20 this investment?

21 A No. The reality is, had we known the truth, or even had 22 a sense of the truth, the true intentions behind some of 23 those transfers and ultimately what would have happened, we 24 never would have made this investment, full stop.

25 Q Thank you, Mr. Pugatch.

005383

1 THE COURT: All right. I didn't hear you, Ms.
2 Weisgerber. Do you pass the witness?

3 MS. WEISGERBER: Yes, I pass the witness.

4 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

5 Mr. Morris, any examination from you?

6 MR. MORRIS: No, thank you, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right.

8 (Interruption.)

9 THE COURT: All right. I'm not sure whose voice that 10 was, but please, again, mute your devices when you're not 11 talking.

12 Any cross-examination of Mr. Pugatch? I'll start with 13 you, Mr. Wilson.

14 MR. WILSON: Yes, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 CROSS-EXAMINATION

17 BY MR. WILSON:

18 Q How are you -- I guess we're afternoon now. How are you
19 this afternoon, Mr. Pugatch?

20 A I'm doing well. Yourself?

21 Q I'm doing well as well. Do you recall that on Monday of 22 this week I took your deposition?

23 A Yes, I do.

24 Q And so you understand that my name is John Wilson and I
25 represent Jim Dondero, who has filed an objection to the 9019

1 motion filed by the Debtor?

2 I've got a few questions for you today. Has HarbourVest
3 been around for over 35 years?

4 A We have, yes.

5 Q And does HarbourVest have ten offices around the world?

6 A Correct, yes.

7 Q And does HarbourVest employ over 150 investment
8 professionals?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Does HarbourVest have over $74 billion in assets under 11 management?

12 A Correct, yes.

13 Q And is HarbourVest's client base largely comprised of 14 institutional investors?

15 A Also correct.

16 Q And you would agree with me that HarbourVest is a
17 sophisticated investor, right?

18 A I would, yes.

19 Q How long have you worked for HarbourVest?

20 A I've been employed by HarbourVest for 17 years now.

21 Q And how long have you been a managing director?

22 A I've been a managing director for approximately six 23 years.

24 Q And you were, in fact, the managing director for the 25 investment that HarbourVest made in Highland CLO Funding,

1 Ltd., which has been referred to today as HCLOF, correct?

2 A I was, correct.

3 Q And HarbourVest, I think you just testified, invested
4 approximately $73 million as its initial investment in HCLOF?

5 A Yes, correct.

6 Q And before HarbourVest made that investment, it had made
7 many investments of this type, correct?

8 A Yeah. We've made hundreds of investments into 9 partnerships over our history, correct.

10 Q So HarbourVest was well-experienced in evaluating and 11 deciding whether to invest in large investments, correct?

12 A It was, yes.

13 Q Now, in your -- and by your, I mean HarbourVest -- in the 14 response to the Debtor's omnibus objection, it says that by 15 summer 2017 HarbourVest was engaged in preliminary 16 discussions with Highland regarding the investment. Is that 17 a correct statement?

18 A Correct, yes.

19 Q And, in fact, those talks began in the second quarter of 20 2017, correct?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And so the investment closed ultimately on November 15th, 23 2017?

24 A Yes, that's correct.

25 Q So it's fair to say that HarbourVest considered and

1 evaluated this transaction for over six months before
2 investing its $73 million, right?

3 A From the time of the initial conversations that we had
4 with Highland, yes.

5 Q And one of the reasons that it took over six months to 6 complete the investment is that HarbourVest performs due
7 diligence before it makes an investment, correct?

8 A Correct.

9 Q And when you're performing due diligence -- well, first
10 off, you would agree with me that that's a common practice
11 amongst sophisticated investors such as HarbourVest, correct?

12 A To perform due diligence?

13 Q Yes.

14 A Yes.

15 Q And describe -- describe what HarbourVest does in a
16 general sense when it performs its due diligence.

17 A Sure. So, we spend time with the manager -- in this 18 case, Highland -- certainly around the investment thesis, the 19 opportunity, receive materials around the underlying assets.
20 We take that and perform our own independent due diligence
21 around the value of those assets, perform due diligence on 22 the manager itself, the go-forward opportunity. In many 23 cases, and certainly in this case, engage with outside
24 advisors to assist with that due diligence. It's a very 25 robust and thorough process.

1 Q And by outside advisors, are you referring to the outside
2 counsel that you testified about earlier?

3 A Yes. Both outside counsel and outside consultants.

4 Q Okay. And so did you say that it's typical to engage 5 outside counsel when performing due diligence?

6 A Yes.

7 Q And which outside counsel did you retain with respect to 8 this due diligence?

9 A Debevoise and Plimpton as well as Milbank.

10 Q And during the course of HarbourVest's due diligence, did
11 it identify some items of concern?

12 A As with any investment, there are always items that are 13 identified that require further diligence, risks that are 14 identified that we look to mitigate through our due
15 diligence, et cetera.

16 Q And if Harbour -- I'm sorry, did you say something else?

17 A No.

18 Q You were finished? Okay. Now, if HarbourVest identifies 19 an item of concern, is it typical to request additional 20 information regarding those items of concern?

21 A It is, yes.

22 Q And so that actually happened with respect to the HCLOF
23 investment, correct?

24 A In certain cases, yes.

25 Q HarbourVest identified several litigation matters that it

1 had questions about, correct?

2 A Correct. As we would with any investment.

3 Q And it went back to Highland and asked them to explain
4 their position on those litigation matters?

5 A Correct.

6 Q And one of those litigation matters was the Joshua Terry
7 litigation, correct?

8 A Yes.

9 Q And at the time that HarbourVest was considering this 10 investment, beginning in the second quarter and continuing 11 through the summer, that Josh Terry litigation had not 12 resulted in an award or a final judgment, correct?

13 A Correct.

14 Q And I think we looked earlier at a document that your 15 counsel admitted as HarbourVest Exhibits 34 and 35. There
16 was an email from a HarbourVest -- or, I'm sorry, from a 17 Highland representative to a HarbourVest representative that 18 was discussing Highland's position on the litigation,
19 including the Terry litigation, correct?

20 A Are you referring to the document that we looked at 21 earlier?

22 Q I am. And I can put it on the screen if we need to.

23 A No. Right, I recall that, and yes, that's correct.

24 Q Okay. And just to be clear, that document, which stated
25 Highland's positions on the -- and summaries of the

1 litigation, was issued months before the arbitration award to 2 Josh Terry, correct?

3 A I don't remember the exact timing, but it was certainly 4 during our due diligence period and prior to the arbitration
5 award, yes.

6 Q Well, it seems to me that that email that you -- your
7 counsel admitted as an exhibit was issued in August of 2017.
8 Does that sound right to you?

9 A If that's what the email said, yes.

10 Q And if the Terry arbitration award came out in October,
11 then you would agree with me that that is several months
12 prior to the -- or at least two months prior to the 13 arbitration award?

14 A Yes.

15 Q And so when HarbourVest made requests of Highland to 16 provide information regarding its items of concern, Highland 17 complied with those requests, correct?

18 A It did, correct.

19 Q And was there ever a time when HarbourVest requested
20 Highland to provide information and that information was not 21 provided?

22 A Our requests for information, or at least, you know,
23 responses or color to a question, were always met either
24 with, you know, written or verbal communication back to us,
25 yeah.

1 Q And you would agree with me that, in fact, HarbourVest
2 delayed the closing of the investment by two weeks to 3 continue its due diligence, correct?

4 A Correct, related to the structural changes that were made
5 close to closing. That's right.

6 Q And after conducting that due diligence, HarbourVest
7 satisfied itself that the investment was sound?

8 A That the legal structure that had been put in place in 9 connection with those proposed changes by Highland was -- was 10 legally sound, yes, and on the back of, again, statements and 11 misrepresentations on the part of Highland around the nature
12 and potential impact to their ongoing CLO business and HCLOF.

13 MR. WILSON: Well, I'm going to object to the latter
14 part of your response as nonresponsive.

15 THE COURT: Sustained.

16 BY MR. WILSON:

17 Q Now, after you conducted the due diligence, HarbourVest
18 made the investment of $73 million on November 15th, 2017,
19 correct?

20 A Correct.

21 Q And so I think you testified earlier that prior to that 22 investment HarbourVest had become aware that that Josh Terry
23 litigation had resulted in an arbitration award, correct?

24 A Yes.

25 Q But I think you've also testified that HarbourVest did

1 not request that Highland provide a copy of the arbitration
2 award, correct?

3 A That's correct.

4 Q And you further testified that you were represented by 5 outside counsel at the time, correct?

6 A Correct.

7 Q And as of Monday of this week, you had not reviewed that 8 arbitration award; is that correct?

9 A That's correct.

10 Q Have you reviewed that arbitration award since Monday of 11 this week?

12 A I have not.

13 Q But in any event, you testified that Highland told you
14 about the award?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And they told you the amount of the award?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And then they told you that the award had been converted
19 to a judgment?

20 A When you say the award had been converted to a judgment,
21 can you be more specific?

22 Q Well, I don't know how familiar you are with the 23 litigation process, but in this instance, that award was 24 taken to a court and the court entered a judgment on the 25 arbitration award. Did you -- were you aware of that?

1 A I don't recall the specific legal terms of judgment
2 against it. I was award of the existence of the arbitration
3 award and the -- and the obligation for Highland to comply
4 with that arbitration award.

5 Q And HarbourVest did not make an appearance in the Acis
6 bankruptcy, right?

7 A We did not.

8 Q But you were aware of the Acis bankruptcy, correct?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And you were kept apprised of the Acis bankruptcy by 11 Highland individuals, correct?

12 A We had conversations with a couple of Highland
13 individuals throughout the Acis bankruptcy process, yes.

14 Q Right. And in fact, you testified that you participated 15 in regular conference calls with Highland regarding that 16 bankruptcy?

17 A That's correct, yes.

18 Q And do you recall having been provided with over 40,000
19 documents by Highland related to the Acis bankruptcy?

20 A I do not recall that, no.

21 Q Would those documents have been provided to your outside
22 counsel, had you received them?

23 A I don't know the answer to that.

24 Q Did the outside counsel that represented you in the due
25 diligence continue to represent you throughout the Acis

1 bankruptcy?

2 A They did. One of the counsels did, correct.

3 Q And which counsel was that?

4 A Debevoise.

5 Q So was your counsel actively involved with monitoring the 6 Acis bankruptcy?

7 A They were, yes, particularly after we were ultimately
8 accused of having something to do with the original structure
9 and -- as a result of misstatements by Highland.

10 Q Did your counsel attend hearings in the Acis bankruptcy?

11 A I don't recall.

12 Q Are you familiar with the PACER system?

13 A I am not.

14 Q Now, I think that HarbourVest has been described as a 15 passive investor. You recall that description of HarbourVest
16 in this instance?

17 A Yes.

18 Q But, in fact, HarbourVest invested substantial assets
19 such that it owned a 49.98 percent share of HCLOF. Would you 20 agree with that?

21 A That's correct.

22 Q And in fact, the next largest investor was CLO Holdco,
23 which owned 49.02 percent of the shares, correct?

24 A That sounds right.

25 Q And there was an advisory board that was created pursuant

1 to the formation documents of this investment, correct?

2 A That's correct.

3 Q And in fact, that advisory board only had two members,
4 and one was a representative of HarbourVest and one was a
5 representative of CLO Holdco, correct?

6 A Correct.

7 Q And the advisor -- I'm sorry, the portfolio manager was 8 not allowed to disregard the recommendations of the advisory 9 board, correct?

10 A With respect to the limited set of items that the 11 advisory board could opine on, that is correct.

12 Q All right. I want to go over a couple of the 13 misrepresentations that HarbourVest has identified in its 14 filings related to its claim. The first one is -- and just 15 for the record, I'm reading from Docket No. 1057 filed on 16 September 11, 2020, HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First 17 Omnibus Objection.

18 But the first misrepresentation identified in that 19 document says that Highland never informed HarbourVest that 20 Highland had no intention of paying the arbitration award.
21 And was -- was Highland obligated to pay the Josh Terry
22 arbitration award against Acis?

23 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the question to the extent
24 it calls for a legal conclusion.

25 THE COURT: Sustained.

1 MS. WEISGERBER: Join in that objection.

2 THE COURT: Sustained. I think --

3 BY MR. WILSON:

4 Q Your understanding was --

5 MR. WILSON: I'm sorry, Judge?

6 THE COURT: I sustained the objection as calling for 7 a legal conclusion. So, next question.

8 MR. WILSON: Yes, I -- I heard that. Thank you, Your 9 Honor.

10 BY MR. WILSON:

11 Q In your understanding, was Highland responsible for 12 paying the arbitration award to Josh Terry?

13 A My understanding is on the account of the fact that Acis
14 --

15 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection, Your Honor. Objection,
16 Your Honor, same basis.

17 THE COURT: Sustained. It was essentially the same
18 question.

19 MR. WILSON: Well, Your Honor, I didn't ask --

20 THE COURT: It was essentially the same question, Mr.
21 Wilson. Move on.

22 MR. WILSON: Okay.

23 BY MR. WILSON:

24 Q The next misrepresentation identified by HarbourVest said
25 that Highland did not inform HarbourVest that it undertook

1 the transfers to siphon assets away from Acis, LP and that
2 such transfers would prevent Mr. Terry from collecting on the 3 arbitration award. So the basis for that allegation would be 4 that Highland was siphoning assets from Acis to avoid having 5 Acis pay the arbitration award, correct?

6 A That -- that would be the implication, yes.

7 Q Okay. And then that misrepresentation continues on and 8 says that Highland represented to HarbourVest that it was 9 changing the portfolio manager because Acis was toxic. And 10 do you recall that representation being made to you?

11 A Yes, I do.

12 Q And would you agree with me that whether or not Acis is 13 toxic in the industry would be an opinion?

14 A I suppose it would be an opinion, but by the manager of 15 the vehicle responsible for managing the HCLOF investment and 16 the underlying CLOs. Yeah, we viewed the Acis name and the 17 Highland name as synonymous, if you will. I mean, Acis was a 18 subsidiary of Highland. For all intents and purposes, it was 19 the same from our perspective as we made the investment into 20 HCLOF.

21 Q So did HarbourVest have an independent understanding of 22 whether or not the Acis name was toxic in the industry?

23 A We did not, no. We relied on Highland's views of that as 24 manager of HCLOF.

25 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, just a brief housekeeping

Pugatch - Cross

127

1 item. Did you say that we need to be done at 1:00 o'clock?

2 THE COURT: Well, I said I really wanted you to be
3 done by 1:00 o'clock because I have a 1:30 docket and a 2:00
4 o'clock docket and I'd rather not have to hang up 70-
5 something people and reconnect them again at 3:00 o'clock.
6 How close are you to being finished?

7 MR. WILSON: Well, --

8 THE COURT: This is going at a very slow pace.

9 MR. WILSON: Well, I apologize for that, Your Honor.
10 I think I've got at least ten more minutes, but -- but I know
11 we also have closing remarks. And I was just going to ask if 12 Your Honor had a preference of --

13 THE COURT: Keep going.

14 MR. WILSON: -- of breaking now --

15 THE COURT: Keep -- let's --

16 MR. WILSON: -- or keep going? Okay.

17 THE COURT: Let's talk fast and try to get through.
18 You know, even if I'm sacrificing lunch today, I don't want 19 to inconvenience 75 people this way. So we'll just probably 20 start our 1:30 hearing a little late and inconvenience those 21 people.

22 All right. Go ahead.

23 MR. WILSON: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

24 BY MR. WILSON:

25 Q Did Acis form its -- I can't recall if you answered this 005398

1 question, but did Acis form its own opinion on whether or not
2 -- I'm sorry, strike that. Did HarbourVest form its own
3 opinion on whether or not the Acis name was toxic in the 4 industry?

5 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection, --

6 THE WITNESS: We did not. We didn't have a basis.

7 THE COURT: I'm sorry, did I have an objection?

8 BY MR. WILSON:

9 Q You did not --

10 THE COURT: Did I have an objection?

11 MS. WEISGERBER: Yeah. Objection. Yes. Objection,
12 asked and answered, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Overruled. He can answer.

14 BY MR. WILSON:

15 Q Okay. But --

16 A We did not.

17 Q Did Highland have the ability to investigate the Acis
18 name and make its own determination of whether that name was 19 toxic? I'm sorry, I think I'm misspeaking. HarbourVest.

20 A HarbourVest had the ability to do that, yes.

21 Q I apologize I misspoke. I meant HarbourVest. Did 22 HarbourVest have the ability to investigate that name and 23 determine if it was toxic?

24 A It was irrelevant to our investment thesis. And as I
25 said before, Acis was a subsidiary of Highland. We viewed

1 them as interchangeable in the context of our investment.

2 Q Okay. The next misrepresentation that you refer to says
3 that Highland indicated to HarbourVest that the dispute with 4 Mr. Terry would have no impact on its investment activities.
5 Would you agree with me that that is also an opinion?

6 A It was a statement that --

7 MS. WEISGERBER: Your Honor, I'm going to object to 8 the extent these questions are seeking a legal conclusion
9 regarding, you know, if something's an opinion or not.

10 THE COURT: Okay. Overruled. He can answer.

11 THE WITNESS: It was -- it was a statement that was 12 made to us by Highland and represented in multiple different 13 formats as fact. And a representation that we relied on in 14 connection with our investment.

15 BY MR. WILSON:

16 Q And finally, the misrepresentation, the last
17 misrepresentation identified, is that Highland expressed
18 confidence in the ability of HCLOF to reset or redeem the 19 CLOs. Would you agree with me that that statement is an 20 opinion?

21 A On the basis that it was the core investment thesis of 22 the -- of the investment of HCLOF. Again, whether that's 23 legally viewed as an opinion or a fact, it was -- it was 24 certainly the investment thesis that we made the investment
25 predicated upon.

1 Q And you just testified that you thought that Acis and 2 Highland were interchangeable from the perspective of the 3 investment opportunity, correct?

4 A Correct.

5 Q But you also accepted Highland's recommendation because 6 HarbourVest agreed that the change in the -- to a Highland
7 manager made commercial sense, correct?

8 A We took at face value what Highland recommended because 9 this all had to do with the structuring of an entity that 10 they fully managed with respect to multiple underlying 11 subsidiaries that weren't managed by Highland.

12 Q But would you agree that, at the time, you -- HarbourVest
13 thought that made commercial sense?

14 A It did not seem unreasonable to us based on the 15 explanation we were given.

16 Q Okay.

17 MR. WILSON: I want to refer to HarbourVest Exhibit
18 39.

19 (Pause.)

20 THE COURT: What are we waiting on? What are we 21 waiting on?

22 MR. WILSON: I'm trying to get the document on the 23 screen, Your Honor.

24 (Pause.)

25 THE COURT: We can't hear you. We can't hear you.

1 MR. WILSON: I'm sorry. I'm sorry, Your Honor. I'm 2 speaking with my --

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. WILSON: -- co-counsel here.

5 THE COURT: All right.

6 (Pause.)

7 MS. WEISGERBER: Mr. Wilson, is it 39 or 38 that 8 you're referring to?

9 MR. WILSON: 39. HarbourVest 9019 motion on the 10 main -- on the Dondero file. And then there's the -- it's -- 11 it's John -- and then there's the HarbourVest, and then the 12 exhibits are all in one file.

13 MS. WEISGERBER: Mr. Wilson, I'll just note that 39
14 was subject to confidentiality based on HCLOF's request.
15 HCLOF's counsel is present. I think they know it's an 16 excerpt. But I'd just -- that for HCLOF's counsel.

17 MR. WILSON: Well, is there an objection to showing 18 this document on the screen? Yes. All right. We're not 19 going to put Document 39 on the screen.

20 A VOICE: Yes.

21 MR. WILSON: All right. Scroll down to the next
22 page.

23 BY MR. WILSON:

24 Q This is a -- this is a document that was produced to us
25 this week, the Highland production. It appears to be a 005402

Pugatch - Cross

132

1 Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Statement of Operations for the 2 Year Ended 31 December 2017. Do you see at the top of that --
3 at the top of that document where it says total investment
4 income of $26 million?

5 A I do, yes.

6 Q And total expenses were roughly $1.8 million?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And then net change and unrealized depreciation on 9 investments and net realized loss on investments was $4.26
10 million cumulative, resulting in a net increase in net assets
11 resulting from operations of $20.224 million. Do you agree 12 with that?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Okay.

15 MR. WILSON: Go to the next one.

16 BY MR. WILSON:

17 Q And you understand that, in the course of the Acis
18 bankruptcy, the portfolio managers for certain of the CLOs
19 were changed by the Trustee, correct?

20 A Yes, around the underlying CLOs. That's -- that's my 21 understanding, yes.

22 Q And, in fact, Mr. Seery testified earlier today that that 23 occurred in the summer of 2018, correct?

24 MR. WILSON: Scroll.

25 THE WITNESS: I don't recall the timing, but that's 005403

1 what he testified to.

2 BY MR. WILSON:

3 Q Well, this document is HarbourVest Exhibit 40, and this is 4 the statement of operations for the financial year ended 31
5 December 2018. Here, the total investment income is only 6 $11.1 million. Do you see that?

7 A I do.

8 Q And do you see where the expenses have increased to $13.6
9 million?

10 A I do, yes.

11 MR. WILSON: Okay. Scroll down some more.

12 BY MR. WILSON:

13 Q And do you see where it says net change and unrealized
14 loss on investments of $48.47 million?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And so after Acis and Brigade took over the managements of 17 these CLOs, we had a net decrease in net assets resulting from 18 operations of $52.483 million in the year 2018, correct?

19 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection, Your Honor. Assumes a 20 fact not in evidence.

21 THE COURT: Overruled. He --

22 MR. WILSON: Your Honor, --

23 THE COURT: We're just looking at this statement and 24 testifying about it says, so I overrule the objection.

25 MR. WILSON: Thank you, Your Honor. Thank you, Your

134

1 Honor. I'm now going to turn to HarbourVest Exhibit 41. All
2 right. I'll --

3 BY MR. WILSON:

4 Q Did you answer the question, Mr. Pugatch?

5 A No, I -- I would agree with the second part of your
6 statement that for the year 2018 the -- the loss was $52
7 million. I don't -- I don't believe that jives with the first
8 part of your statement that that was after Acis and Brigade
9 took over. As I understand, that was in the middle of the 10 year.

11 Q But in any event, Acis and Brigade had been managing this 12 for at least six months of 2018 when that loss occurred,
13 correct?

14 A They had been managing a portion of the underlying CLO
15 portfolio held by Highland CLO Funding.

16 Q All right. We're now looking at Exhibit #41, which is the 17 Draft Unaudited Statement of Comprehensive Income, 31 December
18 2019. Total income has now dropped to $4.664 million.

19 MR. WILSON: And scroll down.

20 BY MR. WILSON:

21 Q Expenditures are at $3.645 million. And then it says
22 investment gains and losses net out to $11.493 million, a 23 negative $11.493 million. And --

24 MR. WILSON: Scroll down to the --

25 BY MR. WILSON:

005405

1 Q And so would you agree with me that in the year 2019,
2 HCLOF showed a net loss of $10.476 million?

3 A Yes, that's what the financial statements say.

4 Q And in this year, the Acis CLOs were solely managed by 5 Acis and Brigade, correct?

6 A The Acis CLOs were. Yes, correct.

7 Q All right.

8 MR. WILSON: Now, go to 42.

9 BY MR. WILSON:

10 Q Now, this is HarbourVest #42.

11 MR. WILSON: Go down to the next page.

12 BY MR. WILSON:

13 Q And this is the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Unaudited
14 Condensed Statement of Operations for the Financial Period
15 Ended 30 June 2020. And so this is just half a year of 16 operations. And would you -- and this actually has a 17 comparison between 2019 and 2020. But do you see where it 18 says investment income has dropped from a million dollars in 19 the first half of 2019 to $381,000 in the first half of 2020?

20 A Yes.

21 MR. WILSON: Okay. Scroll down.

22 BY MR. WILSON:

23 Q And do you see where, in the first half of 2019, total
24 expenses were $1.85 million, and then in the first half of 25 2020 total expenses were $2.16 million? Do you see that?

1 A I do.

2 Q And if you go down below that, where it says Net Realized
3 and Unrealized Gain/Loss on Investments, the first half of 4 2019 HCLOF lost $12 million, and in the first half of 2020 it
5 lost $39.472 million?

6 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I'm going to object. It's 7 John Morris for the Debtor. I'm happy to stipulate. In fact,
8 he can offer this document into evidence. There's no
9 foundation that Mr. Pugatch has any particularized knowledge
10 about any of the numbers behind this. All he's asking him to 11 do is to confirm what the document says. It says what it
12 says. But this -- I'll object on that basis, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Wilson, what about it?
14 You're just getting him to read numbers off of these exhibits.

15 MR. WILSON: Well, --

16 THE COURT: Shall we just --

17 MR. WILSON: -- I understood --

18 THE COURT: -- by stipulation get them into evidence?

19 MR. WILSON: Well, --

20 MR. MORRIS: No objection, Your Honor.

21 MS. WEISGERBER: No objection.

22 THE COURT: All right. So these are exhibits what?
23 We've gone through 39, 41, and I don't know what else. 40,
24 maybe?

25 MR. WILSON: It was Exhibits 39, 40, 41, and 42 that

1 were on the HarbourVest exhibit list.

2 THE COURT: All right. Those will be admitted, and
3 we've already discussed what docket entry number they appear 4 at.

5 (HarbourVest's Exhibits 39 through 42 are received into 6 evidence.)

7 THE COURT: All right. Anything else? You told me
8 you had 10 more minutes about 15 minutes ago.

9 MR. WILSON: Well, I'm sorry if I -- I think I had 10 said I had at least ten more minutes, and I was looking at the 11 -- it was 10:50 [sic] and you wanted to quit at 1:00. So I do
12 have longer than that. I'm sorry, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Well, --

14 MR. WILSON: But --

15 THE COURT: -- I feel like I'm being --

16 MR. WILSON: -- I'll try to proffer --

17 THE COURT: Okay, Mr. Wilson, let me just tell you
18 something. I feel like I'm being disrespected now, and the 19 parties are. We really need to pick up the pace. I've told 20 you I've got a 1:30 docket -- with four or five matters on it,
21 by the way. I've got a 2:00 o'clock docket. I'm starting 22 them late. No one advised my courtroom deputy that we were 23 going to need all day today for this, okay? So you've got 24 five more minutes to wrap it up, and then, of course, I have 25 to go to Mr. Draper and see if he has cross. All right? So

1 please don't test my patience any more. Five minutes to
2 finish.

3 MR. DRAPER: Judge, I have no questions.

4 THE COURT: I didn't hear you, Mr. Draper. What did
5 you say?

6 MR. DRAPER: I have no questions.

7 THE COURT: All right. Very good.

8 MR. WILSON: I apologize, Your Honor. I was actually 9 trying to be respectful of your time when I informed you that 10 I had at least ten more minutes left at 12:50, but I will try
11 to be as expedient as I can as I finish up.

12 BY MR. WILSON:

13 Q And I don't see you on my screen.

14 MR. WILSON: You can take that document down.

15 THE WITNESS: Here.

16 BY MR. WILSON:

17 Q Mr. Pugatch, do you have an opinion as to what caused 18 these incredible losses of value at HCLOF?

19 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection to the extent it calls for 20 a legal conclusion.

21 THE COURT: Overruled. He can answer.

22 THE WITNESS: I would say that there's no one cause
23 for the decline in value. I can point to a number of 24 different things, including the exorbitant fees that were 25 charged to HCLOF, including the inability to be able to re --

1 refinance the CLOs on the part of HCLOF, all of which stems
2 from the actions that Highland took prior to our investment in
3 HCLOF.

4 BY MR. WILSON:

5 Q And you've -- I think it's been referenced several times
6 in HarbourVest's arguments that -- that the reset was a
7 fundamental -- the inability to get a reset was a fundamental
8 cause of the loss in value. Is that -- is that HarbourVest's
9 position?

10 A That -- that is a part of the -- the cause in the 11 declining value of the CLOs, yes.

12 Q And you would agree with me that a reset is fundamentally
13 a reset of interest rates, correct?

14 A Of the interest rates of the liabilities of the -- the 15 timing for repayment of those liabilities, yes.

16 Q Now, just say with -- for the sake of a hypothetical
17 example. If you had a home that was valued at $5 million, or 18 let's just say $500,000, let's make it more realistic. If you 19 had a $500,000 home and you had a mortgage on that home at 20 five percent interest, your inability to refinance that home
21 at a lower interest rate would not affect the underlying value
22 of that home, correct?

23 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection, Your Honor. Hypothetical.
24 And objection to relevance as well.

25 THE COURT: Sustained.

Pugatch - Cross

1 MS. WEISGERBER: Calls for speculation.

2 THE COURT: Sustained.

3 BY MR. WILSON:

4 Q Is there any reason to believe that the change in the 5 interest rate would have prevented the massive losses of 6 investment value that occurred in HCLOF?

7 MS. WEISGERBER: Object on the same grounds.

8 THE COURT: Sustained.

9 THE WITNESS: The short -- the short answer is yes,
10 with a -- with the amount of leverage --

11 MS. WEISGERBER: I --

12 THE WITNESS: -- that exists. Oh, sorry.

13 MS. WEISGERBER: The objection was sustained.

14 THE COURT: Yeah, I sustained the objection. That 15 means you don't answer.

16 THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, Your Honor.

17 BY MR. WILSON:

18 Q So, would you agree with me that if the expenses and the 19 fees charged by the portfolio manager increased dramatically,
20 that would -- that would impact the value of the investment,
21 correct?

22 MS. WEISGERBER: Objection on the same grounds, and 23 relevance. This is a 9019 hearing, Your Honor. We are not 24 here to try every minutia. And in fact, we're trying to avoid 25 a trial on the merits. And it feels like we're getting a bit

005411

1 far afield now.

2 THE COURT: I sustain.

3 MR. WILSON: All right. I'll pass the witness.

4 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Draper said he had no
5 cross. So, any redirect, Ms. Weisgerber?

6 MS. WEISGERBER: No, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Morris, did you have any 8 redirect?

9 MR. MORRIS: I do not, Your Honor. I have a very 10 brief closing and then some additional remarks if -- if we 11 finish.

12 THE COURT: All right. So, Mr. Pugatch, that 13 concludes your testimony. Thank you. You're excused if you 14 want to be.

15 All right. So, as I understood it, there would be no more 16 evidence after this.

17 MR. WILSON: Well, Your Honor, along those lines, as 18 a housekeeping measure, I think everything on my exhibit list
19 is included on someone else's exhibit list, but just for belt
20 and suspenders I would move to admit all of the exhibits on 21 the -- on Mr. Dondero's exhibit list.

22 THE COURT: Well, is that agreed or not? Because we 23 didn't have a witness to get them in.

24 MR. MORRIS: No objection, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Any objection? All right. If there's no

1 objection, I'll --

2 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, --

3 THE COURT: I'm sorry. Was there an objection? I
4 will admit Dondero Exhibits A through M, and those appear at 5 Docket Entry 1721, correct, Mr. Wilson?

6 MR. WILSON: That is correct, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right.

8 MR. WILSON: That is correct, Your Honor.

9 (James Dondero's Exhibits A through M are received into 10 evidence.)

11 MR. WILSON: And one final matter is, during the 12 examination of Mr. Seery, you at least partially admitted
13 Dondero's Exhibit N, and I was wondering if we need to -- how 14 we'd need to submit that for the record.

15 THE COURT: Okay. First, I'm confused. I think you
16 said Mr. Terry's testimony. You --

17 MR. WILSON: I said Seery. I'm sorry.

18 THE COURT: Oh, Seery?

19 MR. WILSON: Or I may have said Terry, but I meant to 20 say Seery.

21 THE COURT: Okay. Maybe you said it. Okay. During 22 Mr. Seery's testimony -- oh, the email that I admitted a
23 portion of?

24 MR. WILSON: That is -- that's correct, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: What -- what are you asking? It's not in

1 your notebook. Are you asking do you need to separately
2 submit it or what?

3 MR. WILSON: Yeah, I was just asking what the Court's 4 preference on how we submit that for the -- put it in the 5 record.

6 THE COURT: Okay. That was so garbled I didn't hear
7 you. You need to file that on the docket as a supplemental 8 exhibit that was admitted, okay?

9 MR. WILSON: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: All right. Closing arguments? Mr.
11 Morris?

12 CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF THE DEBTOR

13 MR. MORRIS: Yes, very briefly, Your Honor. The 14 Debtor easily meets the standard here. The settlement
15 consideration relative to the claim establishes and reflects
16 the likelihood of success on the merits.

17 You know, I've never -- I did hear Mr. Pugatch in the 18 deposition the other day, but I otherwise haven't heard from 19 him. I found him to be incredibly credible, Your Honor, and I
20 regret the fact that he and HarbourVest are being blamed twice
21 here. The fact that they got 40,000 documents or didn't read
22 the arbitration award, it's just -- it's a shame that they're 23 being dragged through this yet again.

24 The fact is, Your Honor, there is no evidence that they 25 made the disclosures that HarbourVest claims -- complains

1 about. They just don't. The fraudulent transfers led to the 2 bankruptcy, led to the appointment of a trustee, led to --
3 right? So, so it's -- that's why -- but they're getting 4 something for their claim.

5 It was a hard negotiation, Your Honor. There is no
6 dispute that if we litigated this it would be complex. It
7 would fact-intensive. The Debtor would be forced to rely upon
8 witnesses who are no longer employed by it. That it would be 9 expensive, for sure. There's no dispute about any of that.
10 There's no dispute that the creditor body has spoken loudly
11 here by unanimously refraining from objecting except for Mr.
12 Dondero and the entities controlled by him.

13 And you heard Mr. Seery's testimony. I think he 14 exhaustively informed the Court as to the process by which the 15 transaction was analyzed and negotiated, and there's no
16 evidence to the contrary that this was an arm's-length
17 negotiation.

18 Unless Your Honor has any questions, we would request that 19 the motion be granted.

20 THE COURT: Thank you. Ms. Weisgerber, your closing
21 argument?

22 CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF HARBOURVEST

23 MS. WEISGERBER: Sure. Thank you, Your Honor. I'll 24 also be brief. We again join in Mr. Morris's arguments and 25 comments.

1 The Court has now heard testimony from Mr. Pugatch
2 regarding the factual detail underlying HarbourVest's claims.
3 The Court has also heard about the significant damages that 4 HarbourVest stands to recover for those claims. And 5 HarbourVest came to this Court ready to litigate. It would --
6 it's ready to do so if needed. It believes it would prevail
7 on its claims if it had to do so.

8 But the Court also heard from Mr. Seery about his 9 understanding of HarbourVest's claims, his calculus, and his 10 decision to settle them. And we submit that nothing further
11 is needed by this Court in order to approve the settlement.
12 This is a question of the Debtor's business judgment. We're 13 not here to have a trial on the merits of HarbourVest's
14 claims. The Objectors have made various arguments, including 15 about the cause of HarbourVest's damages. But even the nature
16 of the legal claims that HarbourVest is asserting, some do not 17 require a loss causation. So we submit that's not even 18 relevant to the merits of the claims.

19 The settlement is clearly in the best interest of the 20 estate, and we respectfully request that the Court approve it.

21 THE COURT: Thank you. All right. Mr. Wilson, your 22 closing argument?

23 MR. LYNN: Michael Lynn. I will give the closing
24 argument, if that's satisfactory to the Court.

25 THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.

1 CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF JAMES DONDERO

2 MR. LYNN: Good afternoon, Your Honor. I just want
3 to make a few points, and I'll try to do it as quickly as 4 possible.

5 First, I feel compelled to address the argument of the 6 Debtor that Mr. Dondero is repeating his litigious behavior
7 from the Acis case. I don't know about the Acis case. I
8 wasn't involved except very, very peripherally. But with 9 respect to this case, we have only taken positions in court
10 that we believed -- that is, his lawyers -- believed were 11 warranted by law, facts as we knew them, and that are 12 consistent with professionalism. I'd be glad to explain any 13 position we took.

14 Often, through the Debtor's very persuasive powers, we 15 never had the chance to explain our position previously to the 16 Court. In fact, for the most part, as today, we have been 17 reactive rather than commencing proceedings. In fact, during 18 the first seven months of this case, we only appeared in court
19 a few times, when we felt we had to -- for example, when 20 discovery was being sought by the Creditors' Committee that we 21 feared might invade privilege. Then, much to the Debtor's
22 fury, we opposed the Acis 9019. We did so because we thought
23 it was too much.

24 Since, as the Court can see, the principal instigators of 25 litigation have been the Debtor, and to a lesser extent, the

1 Committee.

2 Indeed, in an apparent effort to drown Mr. Dondero and his
3 counsel in litigation, the Debtor has repeatedly sought court
4 action on a very short fuse, claiming need for expedited
5 hearing.

6 Perhaps the most startling example of this is the recent
7 contempt motion, for which there is no good reason for a quick
8 hearing. Resolution of that motion is not necessary to reach 9 the confirmation hearing. The motion could be heard after the 10 confirmation hearing. There is no need to put Mr. Dondero and 11 his professionals in a position where they have to respond in 12 a couple of days, two business days, and then will have two 13 days to prepare for trial.

14 Second, Your Honor, Mr. Seery has repeatedly asserted, 15 contrary to today's motion, that the HarbourVest claim was of 16 no merit. That is why, when he came in to settle for tens of 17 millions of dollars, we opposed this motion. It appears that 18 the motion is occurring without any cross-party discovery.
19 There is no consideration, apparently, of trying dispositive
20 -- dispositive motions first. There is no consideration for 21 junior classes of equity, which Mr. Seery has previously
22 opined were in the money. This, even though there's no reason
23 that this settlement is necessary pre-confirmation, unless Mr.
24 Seery wants HarbourVest's vote.

25 Third, for whatever reason, that seems to be the driving

1 factor for settling. On its face, the vote seems to be a key
2 factor of the settlement. About the longest provision of the 3 settlement agreement relates to voting. The motion itself --
4 in the motion itself, five of seven bullet points cited by the 5 Debtor for approval of the settlement deal with and emphasize 6 support of the plan or the vote that is to be cast for the 7 plan.

8 If the settlement is a good deal, it didn't need to have 9 as one of its parts the requirement that HarbourVest vote for 10 the plan.

11 Your Honor, I'll stop there. I know Your Honor would like 12 to get just a few minutes before your 1:30 docket. I've been 13 there and I understand that, and I do apologize for taking the 14 time we have, but I think that responsibility is shared with 15 the Debtor and HarbourVest.

16 Thank you, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: All right. Thank you for that.

18 Mr. Draper, any closing argument from you?

19 CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF GET GOOD AND DUGABOY TRUSTS

20 MR. DRAPER: Yes, I have three comments. The first 21 is the claim -- the loss claim, absent the fraud claim, is, at 22 best, $7 million. I think Mr. Seery's argument that a hundred 23 -- one hundred percent is attributable to there is just wrong.
24 If he and I both invested in a company 50-50 and it goes
25 broke, we only lost 50 cents each.

1 Number two, I think the Court heard the evidence. I think
2 this is, at best, a subordinated claim under 5 -- under the 3 Bankruptcy Code. It's really a "But for the 4 misrepresentations, we wouldn't have invested."

5 And the last one is the -- Judge Lynn represented the 6 voting, so I won't deal with that. But the one that troubles
7 me the most is the fact that this asset that is ultimately 8 being paid for in claim dollars that's being transferred over 9 to the Debtor and being put it outside the estate, outside the 10 purview of this Court, and placed in some subsidiary, this --
11 this transaction, if it is approved, must -- should contain a 12 provision that the asset that's being acquired come into the 13 Debtor and be owned by the Debtor.

14 THE COURT: All right.

15 MR. DRAPER: I have nothing further, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Draper.

17 Mr. Morris, you get the last word since it's your motion.

18 MR. MORRIS: Very quickly, Your Honor. The 19 subordination argument doesn't hold water. This is not a 20 claim against the Debtor for the security; it's a claim for 21 fraud. Okay? So, so 510(b), if it was a claim against HCLOF,
22 that might make sense, but this is a claim against the Debtor.
23 And it's a Debtor -- it's a claim for fraud. That's number 24 one.

25 Number two, we need to keep this exactly as it's been

1 structured in order to avoid litigation. Mr. Seery told the 2 Court. I'm sure the Court can make its own assessment as to 3 Mr. Seery's credibility as to whether or not the Debtor is 4 intending to somehow get this asset beyond the Court.

5 But there are reasons why we've done this, Your Honor.
6 They could have made an objection on that basis. In fact, if 7 they did, it would be overruled, because there's no -- there's 8 no basis for this Court to find that somehow the Debtor and 9 Mr. Seery are doing something untoward to get assets away from 10 this Court's jurisdiction.

11 You know, I don't know what to say about Mr. Lynn's 12 commentary. Much of it had nothing to do with any evidence in 13 the record.

14 The fact remains, Your Honor, that this settlement is 15 fair. It's reasonable. It's in the best interest of the 16 estate. And we would respectfully request that the Court
17 grant the motion.

18 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. Well, I
19 appreciate all the arguments and evidence I have heard today.
20 I'm going to be brief in my ruling here, but I reserve the 21 right to supplement in a more fulsome written order, which I'm 22 going to instruct Mr. Morris to submit. I am approving the 23 motion to compromise the HarbourVest claim today, and I guess
24 subsumed in that is granting the motion to allow their claim
25 for 3018 voting purposes.

1 I in all ways find this compromise to meet the required
2 legal standard set forth in such cases as TMT Trailer Ferry,
3 AWECO, and Foster Mortgage, numerous other Fifth Circuit
4 cases.

5 First, I'm going to specifically say for the record that I
6 found both witnesses today, Mr. Seery and Mr. Pugatch, to be 7 very credible. Very credible testimony and meaningful
8 testimony was provided to the Court today. And based on that 9 testimony, I find, first, that this compromise was the product
10 of arm's-length negotiations. It was a hard-fought 11 negotiation, as far as I'm concerned. The Debtor objected to 12 these numerous HarbourVest proofs of claim. The Debtor did
13 not want to allow HarbourVest a significant claim for voting
14 purposes. I duly note the statements made in the disclosure
15 statement before this compromise was reached suggesting, you
16 know, the Debtor didn't think HarbourVest should have a large
17 claim.

18 That is consistent with everything I typically see in a
19 bankruptcy case when there's a claim objection. The objector
20 vehemently denies the claimant should have a proof of claim,
21 and then people sit down and think about the risks and rewards
22 of litigating things. And I believe very fervently that's 23 what happened here. There were good-faith, arm's-length
24 negotiations that resulted in this proposed compromise.

25 I find the compromise -- and I'll add to that point, on

1 the good-faith point, I find nothing sinister or improper
2 about the fact that the compromise includes a commitment of 3 HarbourVest to vote in favor of the plan. Again, we see this 4 a lot. You know, there's even a buzz word that doesn't even
5 exist in the Bankruptcy Code: "plan support agreement." You
6 know, we see those a lot -- you know, oftentimes negotiated
7 before the case, but sometimes after. You know, it may be
8 improper in certain situations, but there was nothing here
9 that troubles me about that component of the compromise.

10 I find the compromise to meet the paramount interest of 11 creditors here. Notably, we have very large creditors in this 12 case who have not objected. The Foster Mortgage case from the 13 Fifth Circuit tells me I am supposed to consider support or 14 opposition of creditors. No opposition of UBS. No opposition
15 of the Redeemer Committee Crusader Fund. No opposition from 16 Josh Terry or Acis. No opposition from Daugherty.

17 But moreover, when considering the paramount interest of 18 creditors, I find this compromise to be in all ways fair and 19 equitable and in the best interest of the estate, and 20 certainly within the range of reasonableness. The evidence
21 showed that HarbourVest asserted over $300 million. Over $300
22 million. Granted, that was based on all kinds of legal 23 theories that would be contested and expensive to litigate,
24 but the evidence also showed that they invested over $70
25 million. You know, close to $75 million. I forget the exact

1 number. $75 or $80 million, somewhere in that range. And now
2 the credible evidence is that investment is worth about $22
3 million.

4 So, certainly, while the claim may not have, at the 5 ultimate end of the day in litigation, resulted in a $300
6 million proof of claim, certainly, certainly there were strong
7 arguments for a very sizeable claim, more than this compromise
8 amount. So it's certainly fair and equitable and reasonable
9 when considering the complexity and duration of further 10 litigation, the risks and rewards, the expense, delay, and 11 likely success.

12 A couple of last things I'm going to say are these. I 13 understand, you know, there is vehement disagreement on the 14 part of our Objectors to the notion that Highland might have 15 caused a $50 million loss to HarbourVest. But I will tell
16 you, for what it's worth -- I want the record clear that this 17 is part of my evaluation of the reasonableness of the 18 settlement -- my reaction is that, indeed, Highland's
19 litigation strategy in the Acis case caused HCLOF to lose a 20 huge portion of its value, to the detriment of HarbourVest.
21 You know, whether all evidence at the end of the day would 22 convince me of that, I don't know, but that's -- that is 23 definitely this judge's impression.

24 I'm very sympathetic to HarbourVest. It appears in all 25 ways from the record, not just the record before me today, but

1 the record in the Acis case that I presided over, that
2 Highland back then would have rather spent HarbourVest's
3 investment for HCLOF legal fees than let Josh Terry get paid
4 on his judgment. They were perfectly happy to direct the 5 spending of other people's money, is what the record suggested
6 to me.

7 And then, you know, I have alluded to this very recently,
8 as recently as last Friday: I can still remember Mr.
9 Ellington sitting on the witness stand over here to my left
10 and telling the Court, telling the parties under oath, that 11 HarbourVest -- he didn't use its name back then, okay? For 12 the first phase of the Acis case, or most of the Acis case, we 13 were told it was an investor from Boston. And at some point
14 someone even said their name begins with H. I mean, it seemed 15 almost humorous. But Mr. Ellington said it was they,
16 HarbourVest, the undisclosed investor, who was insistent that 17 the Acis name was toxic, and so that's what all of this had 18 been about: the rebranding, the wanting to extract or move
19 things away from Acis.

20 So, you know, I have heard for the -- well, at least the 21 second time today, from Mr. Pugatch, what I perceive to be 22 very credible testimony that that's just not the way it
23 happened.

24 And I guess the last thing I want to say here today, and 25 you know, I guess I have multiple reasons for saying this, not

1 just in connection with approving the settlement, you know,
2 I've heard about how the Acis CLOs, the HCLOF CLOs have lost,
3 you know, a crazy amount of value, that they underperform in 4 the market, that, you know, during the Acis/Brigade tenure
5 and, you know, they should have been reset. You know, I hope
6 those who have not been around as long as some of us in this 7 whole saga know that the -- Mr. Terry, Mr. Phelan, I think
8 Brigade, they all desperately wanted to reset these things,
9 but it was HCLOF, I believe directed by Highland, that wanted
10 to redeem, wanted to liquidate, take the pot of money,
11 warehouse it, and then do their own thing.

12 And there was, I think, from my vantage point, a
13 monumental effort to try to get everyone to the table to do
14 reasonable resets that would be good for the stakeholders at 15 HCLOF and be good for the creditors of Acis, including Josh
16 Terry. That was always the balancing act that most of us were 17 focused on during the Acis bankruptcy. But Highland, I 18 believe, directing HCLOF's strategy, just did not want the 19 resets to happen.

20 So, again, part of me, I suppose, just wants to make the 21 record clear on something that I fear not everyone is clear
22 about. And I say that because the comment was made that the 23 injunctions, the preliminary injunctions sought by the Acis
24 trustee caused the plummet in value, and I think that's just 25 not an accurate statement. I think litigation strategies are

1 what caused the plummet in value, and that's why I think
2 ultimately HarbourVest would potentially have a meritorious
3 claim here in a significant amount if this litigation were to 4 go forward.

5 So, I approve this under 9019. And again, Mr. Morris,
6 you'll upload an order.

7 It is now 1:41, so let's as quickly as possible hear the 8 other motion that I don't think had any objections. Mr.
9 Morris?

10 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, just -- yes, just very 11 quickly, just four things.

12 With respect to the order, I just want to make it clear
13 that we are going to include a provision that specifically 14 authorizes the Debtor to engage in -- to receive from 15 HarbourVest the asset, you know, the HCLOF interest, and that 16 that's consistent with its obligations under the agreement.

17 The objection has been withdrawn, I think the evidence is 18 what it is, and we want to make sure that nobody thinks that 19 they're going to go to a different court somehow to challenge
20 the transfer. So I just want to put the Court on notice and 21 everybody on notice that we are going to put in a specific 22 finding as to that.

23 THE COURT: All right. Fair --

24 MR. MORRIS: Number two is --

25 THE COURT: Fair enough. I do specifically approve

1 that mechanism and find it is appropriate and supported by the 2 underlying agreements.

3 And just so you know, I spent some time noodling this
4 yesterday before I knew it was going to be settled, so I'm not
5 just casually doing that. I think it's fine.

6 Okay. Next?

7 MR. MORRIS: Thank you very much, Your Honor. Number
8 two, with respect to the motion to pay, there is no objection.
9 If we can just submit an order. Or if Your Honor has other
10 guidance for us, we're happy to take it.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Does anyone have anything they 12 want to say about that motion?

13 Again, I looked at it. I didn't see any objections. I
14 didn't see any problem with it. It's -- you know, you're 15 going through this exercise because of the earlier protocol
16 order.

17 MR. MORRIS: Correct.

18 THE COURT: All right. Well, if there's nothing,
19 then, I will approve that, finding there is good cause to 20 grant that motion.

21 MR. MORRIS: Okay.

22 THE COURT: All right. Is the only other
23 housekeeping matter --

24 MR. MORRIS: I --

25 THE COURT: -- we have the contempt motion?

1 MR. MORRIS: It is, and I do -- I do have to point
2 out how troubled the Debtor is to learn that Mr. Dondero was 3 still receiving documents from Highland as late as this
4 morning. It's got to be a violation of both the TRO -- I
5 guess it's now the preliminary injunction.

6 I would respectfully request -- I know that time is what 7 it is -- but maybe Mr. Dondero can answer now where he got the 8 document, who he got the document from, what other documents
9 he's gotten from the Debtor since Your Honor ordered him not 10 to communicate with the Debtor's employees.

11 This is not saying hello in the hallway. I mean, this is 12 just -- it is really troubling, Your Honor, and it's why we 13 need the contempt motion heard as soon as possible.

14 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Wilson, do you want to address
15 that? I think the words I heard were that you just got the 16 document this morning, and you got it from Mr. Dondero, but we 17 don't know where and when Mr. Dondero got it. Mr. Wilson, are 18 you there?

19 MR. LYNN: I'm afraid I'm back, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. LYNN: I am not sure whether Mr. Dondero had it
22 in his files from some -- from back before he was asked not to 23 communicate with members or with employees of the Debtor. I
24 believe -- I believe he's with us, though I don't think he's 25 available by video.

1 Are you there, Mr. Dondero?

2 THE COURT: We can't hear you, Mr. Dondero.

3 MR. DONDERO: Judge?

4 THE COURT: Oh, go ahead.

5 MR. DONDERO: Can you hear me now?

6 THE COURT: Yes.

7 MR. DONDERO: Yes, I -- I -- when I moved offices, I
8 found it in a stack of paper, and --

9 MR. LYNN: I understand it shows that his microphone
10 is working.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead.

12 MR. DONDERO: Can you hear me?

13 THE COURT: Yes, go ahead.

14 MR. DONDERO: Yeah, I -- I'm sitting in new offices.
15 I've got everything in boxes. I was going through everything
16 yesterday, and I found those emails in a stack of papers and I
17 sent them over because I thought they would be relevant
18 relative to Seery's initial impression.

19 THE COURT: Okay. Well, let's talk about the timing
20 of this hearing. Mr. Morris, I'm going to -- I'm going to ask
21 you why --

22 MR. LYNN: Michael Lynn, Your Honor. I don't want to 23 waste the Court's time. We have not made available anything
24 to the Court objecting to the expedited hearing on the 25 contempt motion. We've been here.

1 I would say to Your Honor that if Mr. Dondero is indeed in 2 contempt, or was in contempt toward the motion, which has
3 nothing to do with the document that was presented as Dondero
4 Exhibit N, there is no need to hear this on an expedited
5 basis.

6 Every time we turn around, Your Honor, the Debtor is 7 asking that something be heard on an expedited basis. And we 8 have not opposed that. We have not fought that, to speak of, 9 to date. But this is getting a little ridiculous. We're 10 within days of confirmation of the Debtor's plan, and it is 11 simply a means of causing pain and suffering to Mr. Dondero
12 and those who are working with him and for him. And he does 13 have employees at NexPoint who are assisting him.

14 So we most strongly object to being put on a schedule
15 where we are expected to get a response to the contempt motion
16 on file by Monday, today being Thursday, and a weekend
17 intervening. And we strongly object to any setting of this 18 contempt motion on Tuesday or Wednesday. It is absurd, and it
19 is done solely, solely, Your Honor, to cause pain.

20 THE COURT: All right.

21 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, if I may?

22 THE COURT: Please.

23 MR. MORRIS: Just very briefly, we had a hearing the 24 other day. The evidence is the exact same. The evidence is 25 crystal clear that the violations are meaningful, they're

1 substantial, and they are repeated.

2 After the TRO was entered into, Mr. Dondero and only Mr.
3 Dondero chose to interfere with the Debtor's business. Mr.
4 Dondero and only Mr. Dondero chose to communicate with the 5 Debtor's employees, not about saying hello in the hallway but 6 about coordinating a legal defense strategy against the 7 Debtor.

8 The need is immediate, Your Honor, and I would 9 respectfully request that the hearing be set for Tuesday or 10 Wednesday. They've had this motion now since the 7th of 11 January. They had a full evidentiary hearing, so they know
12 most of the evidence that's going to be presented. They have 13 a whole team of -- they have an army of lawyers, Your Honor,
14 and half a dozen firms working on behalf of Mr. Dondero and 15 his interests. For him to cry here, for him to cry that this 16 is too much is really -- it's obscene. It just is.

17 THE COURT: All right. I'm going to say a couple --

18 MR. LYNN: That is absurd.

19 THE COURT: I'm going to say a couple of things. One
20 is that I -- well, the one time I remember getting reversed
21 for holding someone in contempt of court, the District Court
22 felt like I had not given enough notice of that. The District
23 Courts, what they think is reasonable notice, is sometimes 24 very different from what the bankruptcy judges think. We're 25 used to going very lickety-split fast in the bankruptcy

1 courts. And the Courts of Appeals, District Court, Courts of 2 Appeals obviously, for good reason, are very concerned about 3 due process in this kind of context. So I'm sensitive to 4 that.

5 I'm also sensitive to the fact that it is monetary damages
6 that are being sought here to purge the contempt. Okay? The 7 shifting of attorneys' fees is basically what I understand is 8 being sought at this point. You know, we have a preliminary 9 injunction halting behavior at this point, and so I think
10 that's another reason I'm hesitant to give an emergency
11 hearing. I feel like monetary damages can wait and we can 12 give 21-plus days' notice of the hearing.

13 But I'm going to throw this out there as well. If I do
14 feel like there is a showing of contempt, if I do feel like 15 the phone -- as I told you the other day, I'm very, very 16 fixated on the phone that may have been destroyed or thrown 17 away, maybe at Mr. Dondero's suggestion. I mean, the 18 potential monetary sanction here may be very, very large if 19 the evidence plays out in the way I fear it might play out.
20 So I need to make sure everybody has adequate time to prepare
21 for that hearing and make sure I get all the evidence I need
22 to see. All right? Contempt of court is very, very, very,
23 very serious, and I don't think anyone would deny that.

24 So, with that, it was filed what day? January 4th? Is 25 that what I heard? Or --

1 MR. MORRIS: January 7th, I believe, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: January 7th? All right. Well, Traci,
3 are you there? Hopefully, you're not in a hunger coma at this
4 point.

5 THE CLERK: I am here.

6 THE COURT: Okay. We have -- we're going to have to 7 go to that first week of February, right? Because we've got 8 the confirmation hearing that, you know, late in January, and 9 then --

10 THE CLERK: Yes. Uh-huh.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Do you have an available date to 12 give right now?

13 THE CLERK: How about -- if you're willing to hear
14 them on Friday, February 5th.

15 THE COURT: Okay. I can do that. February 5th at 16 9:30. Any -- anybody want to argue about that?

17 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor. That's 18 acceptable to the Debtor.

19 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Lynn, is that good with you?

20 MR. LYNN: We'll do that, Your Honor. I would say,
21 by the way, that I'll be happy to buy Mr. Seery, out of my own
22 pocket, five cell phones, which ought to make up for the one
23 that was lost, though I recognize that those cell phones will 24 not have on them the privileged information, the conversations
25 between his lawyers and Mr. Dondero that I imagine he was

1 looking forward to seeing.

2 THE COURT: Well, I wouldn't want him to see that
3 information, but I do think he's entitled to any nonprivileged
4 information, texting, or calls that are on that phone. So,
5 again, I'm either going to hear good explanations for that or 6 not, but it's something very concerning to me.

7 All right. So we have a game plan.

8 I'm going to ask, Did we have good-faith negotiations
9 between Dondero and the Committee and anything positive to 10 report? I'll ask Mr. Lynn and Mr. Clemente to weigh in.

11 MR. CLEMENTE: Yes, Your Honor. I'll go first, Your 12 Honor. Mr. Lynn and I have exchanged several emails over the 13 weekend, and the message that I sent to Mr. Lynn was very 14 clear. There had been a term sheet that Mr. Seery had sent 15 back to Mr. Dondero. I had asked Mr. Lynn to take a pencil
16 out and be very specific as to what it was Mr. Dondero was 17 prepared to do in connection with the pot plan. I instructed 18 him that some of the issues that the Committee still has is 19 obviously the overall value, along with the concept that's 20 signing up to a promise from Mr. Dondero to comply with 21 (indiscernible) as part of that value. As Your Honor may 22 understand, the Committee is obviously very skeptical of Mr.
23 Dondero's future performance under an agreement that he enters
24 into.

25 Those are but a couple of issues, Your Honor, that I

1 advised Mr. Lynn were very concerning to the Committee. And I
2 suggested to him that if he wanted to move things forward, the 3 best way to do it would be to come to us with a fulsome term
4 sheet that explained exactly what it was in clear and precise
5 detail that Mr. Dondero was proposing, and that would be the 6 best way to move the process forward, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Lynn, anything to add to 8 that?

9 MR. LYNN: Well, Your Honor, my experience in 10 negotiations is that it is useful to agree on substantive 11 terms, or at least be in the ballpark, before term sheets are 12 exchanged. Long ago, a term sheet was prepared and presented
13 to the Committee. Ultimately, I think it was rejected, though
14 I don't know if we ever received a formal rejection.

15 I explained in my emails, which I'm happy to share with 16 the Court if Your Honor wants to see them, why I was reluctant
17 to try to put into a term sheet form the proposal that I
18 suggested to Mr. Clemente. As I said, I'm more than happy to 19 provide you with that email chain and let you form your own
20 judgment, Your Honor, as to whether we're proceeding in good 21 faith.

22 THE COURT: All right. Well I'm not going to ask --

23 MR. POMERANTZ: Your Honor? Your Honor, this is Jeff
24 Pomerantz.

25 THE COURT: -- to see any of that. Mr. Pomerantz?

1 MR. POMERANTZ: May I just be heard real quickly?

2 THE COURT: Sure.

3 MR. POMERANTZ: Your Honor, we also took Your Honor's
4 comments to heart. We, Mr. Seery and I, had an over-an-hour
5 conversation with Mr. Lynn and with Mr. Bonds. We provided
6 them with our thoughts as to what they needed to do in order
7 to move forward. Of course, it's not really the Debtor to 8 agree. It's the creditors to agree. But as Mr. Seery has 9 testified many times before and as I have told the Court, we 10 would support a plan that the Committee and Mr. Dondero could 11 get behind.

12 So we again -- I'm not going to divulge the nature of 13 those communications, but we suggested several things that Mr.
14 Dondero could do in order to move the ball forward, and 15 unfortunately, we have not seen any of those things done thus 16 far. So we are, at this point, not optimistic that there will 17 be a grand bargain plan.

18 THE COURT: All right.

19 MR. DONDERO: Your Honor, could I comment for a 20 second? This is Mr. Dondero.

21 THE COURT: If you and your counsel want you to 22 comment, you can comment.

23 MR. DONDERO: I'd love to do a pot plan. I would 24 love to reach some kind of settlement and everybody move on 25 with their lives. The estate started with $360 million of

1 third-party assets and $90 million of notes. The $360 million
2 of third-party assets are down to $130 million.

3 MR. POMERANTZ: Again, Your Honor, I must interrupt.
4 I did this at the last hearing, and it's not my practice to 5 interrupt, but issues regarding what the value is or not, it's 6 going to require a response, and that's not really before Your 7 Honor. I think before Your Honor is --

8 MR. DONDERO: Okay.

9 MR. POMERANTZ: -- have there been negotiations?
10 Have they been in good faith? If Mr. Dondero wanted to 11 address that, that's fine, but I object to having any 12 discussion at this point, especially with Mr. Dondero not even 13 under oath, on what the nature of the value of the assets and 14 why they have changed and what not.

15 THE COURT: Well, --

16 MR. POMERANTZ: It's just not appropriate.

17 THE COURT: I understand --

18 MR. DONDERO: Okay. Can I --

19 THE COURT: Stop.

20 MR. DONDERO: Can I -- can I finish?

21 THE COURT: Let me please respond to that. I
22 understand your concern, but I've heard from Mr. Seery
23 testimony many months ago about the value plummeting during 24 the case. And I asked why, and I got some explanations. This 25 is not evidence. This is just, you know, this is not going to

1 be binding in any way. Mr. Dondero can speak as to what he 2 thinks, you know, the situation is.

3 Go ahead, Mr. Dondero.

4 MR. DONDERO: Okay. I'm not trying to fixate on the 5 numbers. And as far as the third-party assets are, we would 6 be willing to pay -- I would be willing to pay for those. I'd 7 be willing to pay more, and even some value for the affiliate
8 notes that were really part of compensation agreements
9 throughout the history of Highland and avoid the POC
10 arguments. I'd be willing to pay for the assets and I'd be 11 willing to pay even more than that.

12 I have no transparency in terms of what the assets are,
13 and there's no fulsome discussion in terms of, well, here are 14 the assets, here are the notes, here's what we think the 15 values are, can you get to this number? It's just a -- you --
16 the -- it -- I don't view there is good-faith negotiations
17 going on because it's always just a: You need to put a big 18 number on a piece of paper; otherwise, you're going to get run
19 over.

20 And there's no back and forth going on, but it's not due
21 to a lack of willingness on my part. And maybe there needs to 22 be a committee set up. Maybe there needs to be, I don't know,
23 a mediator or an examiner or somebody to try and push through 24 the pot plan, but there's nothing happening. People are not 25 returning the judge's calls, I mean, Mr. Lynn's calls, or my

1 calls. They're -- there's -- despite efforts of our -- of my 2 own and a willingness of my own, there's no negotiations of 3 any sort going on at the moment.

4 THE COURT: All right. I don't want anyone to 5 respond to that. I know people have different views of what's 6 going on. But let me just say a couple of things, and then
7 we're done.

8 We do have a Committee in this case. We have a Committee
9 with very sophisticated members and very sophisticated
10 professionals. Okay? That's who I wanted you to be talking
11 to before the end of the day Tuesday.

12 We have had co-mediators in this case. Okay? And, you
13 know, I identified very sophisticated human beings for that 14 role. Okay? And in fact, there ended up being settlements
15 that flowed out of the co-mediator process.

16 We're now 15 months into the case. There are major,
17 significant compromises now: HarbourVest, UBS, Acis, Terry,
18 and Redeemer Committee. I hate to use a worn-out metaphor,
19 but the train is leaving the station. We've got confirmation.
20 I've pushed out two weeks. I mean, you all are either going
21 to get there in the next few days or we're just going to go
22 forward with I think what everyone, you know, would rather be 23 a pot plan, but if we can't get there, we're just going to 24 have to consider the plan that's on the table now. Okay?

25 You know, the Committee, again, they're sophisticated.

1 They can compare apples to oranges and decide whether the plan
2 on the table, with its risks of future litigation and
3 recoveries, whether it's better or worse than whatever
4 consideration you're offering, Mr. Dondero.

5 And you know, as we all know, there is distrust here,
6 there, and everywhere among these parties. So I can totally 7 understand them, you know, taking a hard line: We either get 8 all cash or we're just not going to mess with it. We don't 9 want to risk broken promises. We'd rather just do litigation.

10 So, anyway, that's as much as I'm going to say except I am
11 going to further direct good-faith negotiations. It sounds
12 like to me a written term sheet might be the appropriate next 13 step, given where I've heard things are at the moment. But,
14 you know, I guess we don't have any hearings between now and 15 the 26th, right? No Highland hearings that I can think of 16 between now and the 26th.

17 MR. POMERANTZ: I don't think so.

18 MR. MORRIS: I think that's correct, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: So you have all this time --

20 MR. MORRIS: At the moment.

21 THE COURT: You have all this time to negotiate and 22 simultaneously get ready for the confirmation hearing without 23 any other battles. So I know you will use the time well.

24 All right. We're adjourned.

25 THE CLERK: All rise.

1 MR. BONDS: Thank you, Your Honor.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement (the “Agreement”) is entered into as of December 23, 2020, between Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”), on the one hand, and HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. RECITALS

WHEREAS, on October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code (the “Bankruptcy Case”) in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Bankruptcy Court”);

WHEREAS, on December 4, 2019, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s case to the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division, Case No. 19-34054-sgj (the “Bankruptcy Court”);

EXHIBIT 11

At all relevant times, HCM was headed by CEO and potential party James P. Seery (“Seery”). Seery negotiated a settlement with the several Harbourvest² entities who owned 49.98% of HCLOF. The deal had HCM (or its designee) purchasing the Harbourvest membership interests in HCLOF for $22.5 million. Recent revelations, however, show that the sale was predicated upon a sales price that was vastly below the Net Asset Value (“NAV”) of those interests. Upon information and belief, the NAV of HCLOF’s assets had risen precipitously, but was not disclosed to Harbourvest nor to Plaintiffs.

Under the Advisers Act, Defendants have a non-waivable duty of loyalty and candor, which includes its duty not to inside trade with its own investors, i.e., not to trade with an investor to which HCM and Seery had access to superior non-public information. Upon information and belief, HCM’s internal compliance policies required by the Advisers Act would not generally have allowed a trade of this nature to go forward—meaning, the trade either was approved in spite of compliance rules preventing it, or the compliance protocols themselves were disabled or amended to a level that leaves Defendants HCM and HCLOF exposed to liability. Thus, Defendants have created an unacceptable perpetuation of exposure to liability.

Additionally, Defendants are liable for a pattern of conduct that gives rise to liability for their conduct of the enterprise consisting of HCM in relation to HCFA and HCLOF, through a pattern of concealment, misrepresentation, and violations of the securities rules. In the alternative, HCFA and HCM, are guilty of self-dealing, violations of the Advisers Act, and tortious interference by (a) not disclosing that Harbourvest had agreed to sell at a price well below the current NAV, and (b) diverting the Harbourvest opportunity to themselves.

For these reasons, judgment should be issued in Plaintiffs' favor.

HCLOF IS FORMED

10. Plaintiff DAF is a charitable fund that helps several causes throughout the country, including providing funding for humanitarian issues (such as veteran's welfare associations and women's shelters), public works (such as museums, parks and zoos), and education (such as specialty schools in underserved communities). Its mission is critical.

11. Since 2012, DAF was advised by its registered investment adviser, Highland Capital Management, L.P., and its various subsidiaries, about where to invest. This relationship was governed by an Investment advisory Agreement.

12. At one point in 2017, HCM advised DAF to acquire 143,454,001 shares of HCLOF, with HCFA (a subsidiary of HCM) serving as the portfolio manager. DAF did so via a holding entity, Plaintiff CLO Holdco, Ltd.

13. On November 15, 2017, through a Subscription and Transfer Agreement, the DAF entered into an agreement with others to sell and transfer shares in HCLOF, wherein the DAF retained 49.02% in CLO Holdco.

14. Pursuant to that agreement, Harbourvest acquired the following interests in the following entities:

Harbourvest Dover Street IX Investment, L.P., acquired 35.49%;

Harbourvest 2017 Global AIF, L.P., acquired 2.42%;

Harbourvest 2017 lobal Fund, L.P., acquired 4.85%;

HV International VIII Secondary, L.P., acquired 6.5%; and for a total of 49.98% (altogether, the “Harbourvest interests”).

15. On or about October 16, 2019, Highland Capital Management filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in Delaware Bankruptcy Court, which was later transferred to the Northern District of Texas Bankruptcy Court, in the case styled In Re: Highland Capital Management, L.P., Debtor, Cause No. 19-34054, (the “HCM Bankruptcy” and the Court is the “Bankruptcy Court”).

The Harbourvest Settlement with Highland Capital Management in Bankruptcy

16. On April 8, 2020, Harbourvest submitted its proofs of claim in the HCM bankruptcy proceeding. Annexed to its proofs of claims was an explanation of the Proof of Claim and the basis therefor setting out various pre-petition allegations of wrongdoing by HCM. See, e.g., Case No. 19-bk-34054, Doc. 1631-5.

17. The debtor, HCM, made an omnibus response to the proofs of claims, stating they were duplicative of each other, overstated, late, and otherwise meritless.

18. Harbourvest responded to the omnibus objections on September 11, 2020. See Cause No. 19-bk-34054, Doc. 1057.

19. Harbourvest represented that it had invested in HCLOF, purchasing 49.98% of HCLOF's outstanding shares.

20. Plaintiff CLO Holdco was and is also a 49.02% holder of HCLOF's member interests.

21. In its Omnibus Response, Harbourvest explained that its claims included unliquidated legal claims for fraud, fraud in the inducement, RICO violations under 18 U.S.C. 1964, among others (the "Harbourvest Claims"). See Cause No. 19-bk-34054, Doc. 1057.

22. The Harbourvest Claims centered on allegations that when Harbourvest was intending to invest in a pool of Collateralized Loan Obligations, or CLOs, that were then-managed by Acis Capital Management ("Acis"), a subsidiary of HCM, HCM failed to disclose key facts about ongoing litigation with a former employee, Josh Terry.

23. Harbourvest contended that HCM never sufficiently disclosed the underlying facts about the litigation with Terry, and HCM's then-intended strategy to fight Terry caused HCLOF to incur around $15 million in legal fees and costs. It contended that had it known the nature of the lawsuit and how it would eventually turn out, Harbourvest never would have invested in HCLOF. See Cause No. 19-bk-34054, Doc. 1057.

24. HCLOF's portfolio manager is HCFA. HCM is the parent of HCFA and is managed by its General Partner, Strand Management, who employs Seery and acts on behalf of HCM.

25. Before acceding to the Harbourvest interests, HCM was a 0.6% holder of HCLOF interests.

26. While even assuming Harbourvest's underlying claims were valid as far as the lost $15 million went, the true damage of the legal fees to Harbourvest would have been 49.98% of the HCLOF losses (i.e., less than $7.5 million). Harbourvest claimed that it had lost over $100 million in the HCLOF transaction due to fraud, which, after trebling under the racketeering statute, it claimed it was entitled to over $300 million in damages.

27. In truth, as of September 2020, Harbourvest had indeed lost some $52 million due to the alleged diminishing value of the HCLOF assets (largely due to the underperformance of the Acis entities³)—and the values were starting to recover.

28. HCM denied the allegations in the Bankruptcy Court. Other than the claim for waste of corporate assets of $15 million, HCM at all times viewed the Harbourvest legal claims as being worth near zero and having no merit.

29. On December 23, 2020, HCM moved the Court to approve a settlement between itself and Harbourvest. No discovery had taken place between the parties, and Plaintiff did not have any notice of the settlement terms or other factors prior to the motion's filing (or even during its pendency) in order to investigate its rights.

30. HCM set the hearing right after the Christmas and New Year's holidays, almost ensuring that no party would have the time to scrutinize the underpinnings of the deal.

31. On January 14, 2021, the Bankruptcy Court held an evidentiary hearing and approved the settlement in a bench ruling, overruling the objections to the settlement.

³ Acis was being managed by Joshua Terry. JP Morgan had listed the four ACIS entities under his management as the four worst performers of the 1200 CLOs it evaluated.

32. An integral part of the settlement was allowing $45 million in unsecured claims that, at the time of the agreement, were expected to net Harbourvest around 70 cents on the dollar. In other words, Harbourvest was expected to recover around $31,500,000 from the allowed claims.

33. As part of the consideration for the $45 million in allowed claims, Harbourvest agreed to transfer all of its interests in HCLOF to HCM or its designee.

34. HCM and Seery rationalized the settlement value by allocating $22.5 million of the net value of the $45 million in unsecured claims as consideration to purchase Harbourvest's interests in HCLOF, meaning, if 70% of the unsecured claims—i.e., $31.5 million—was realized, because $22.5 million of that would be allocated to the purchase price of the Harbourvest interests in HCLOF, the true “settlement” for Harbourvest's legal claims was closer to $9 million.

35. Plaintiffs here are taking no position at this time about the propriety of settling the Harbourvest legal claims for $9 million. That is for another day.

36. At the core of this lawsuit is the fact that HCM purchased the Harbourvest interests in HCLOF for $22.5 million knowing that they were worth far more than that.

37. It has recently come to light that, upon information and belief, the Harbourvest interests, as of December 31, 2020, were worth in excess of $41,750,000, and they have continued to go up in value.

38. On November 30, 2020, which was less than a month prior to the filing of the Motion to Approve the Settlement, the net asset value of those interests was over $34.5 million. Plaintiffs were never made aware of that.

39. The change is due to how the net asset value, or NAV, was calculated. The means and methods for calculating the “net asset value” of the assets of HCLOF are subject to and governed by the regulations passed by the SEC pursuant to the Adviser's Act, and by HCM's internal policies and procedures.

40. Typically, the value of the securities reflected by a market price quote.

41. However, the underlying securities in HCLOF are not liquid and had not been traded in a long while.

42. There not having been any contemporaneous market quotations that could be used in good faith to set the marks⁴ meant that other prescribed methods of assessing the value of the interests, such as the NAV, would have been the proper substitutes.

43. Seery testified that the fair market value of the Harbourvest HCLOF interests was $22.5 million. Even allowing some leeway there, it was off the mark by a mile.

44. Given the artifice described herein, Seery and the entity Defendants had to know that the representation of the fair market value was false. But it does not appear that they disclosed it to Harbourvest to whom they owed fiduciary duties as the RIA in charge of HCLOF, and they certainly did not disclose the truth to the Plaintiff.

45. It is either the case that (i) Defendants conducted the proper analysis to obtain a current value of the assets but decided to use a far lower valuation in order to whitewash the settlement or enrich the bankruptcy estate; or (ii) Defendants never conducted the proper current valuation, and therefore baselessly represented what the current value of the assets was, despite knowingly having no reasonable basis for making such a claim.

46. For years HCM had such internal procedures and compliance protocols. HCM was not allowed by its own compliance officers to trade with an investor where HCM had superior knowledge about the value of the assets, for example. While Plaintiff has no reason to believe that those procedures were scrapped in recent months, it can only assume that they were either overridden improperly or circumvented wholesale.

47. Upon finalizing the Harbourvest Settlement Agreement and making representations to the Bankruptcy Court to the Plaintiffs about the value of the Harbourvest Interests, Seery and HCM had a duty to use current values and not rely on old valuations of the assets or the HCLOF interests.

48. Given Defendants' actual or constructive knowledge that they were purchasing Harbourvest's Interests in HCLOF for a less than 50% of what those interests were worth—Defendants owed Plaintiff a fiduciary duty not to purchase them for themselves.

49. Defendants should have either had HCLOF repurchase the interests with cash, or offer those interests to Plaintiff and the other members pro rata, before HCM agreed to purchase them all lock, stock and barrel, for no up-front cash.

50. Indeed, had Plaintiff been offered those interests, it would have happily purchased them and therefore would have infused over $20 million in cash into the estate for the purpose of executing the Harbourvest Settlement.

51. That Defendants (and to perhaps a lesser extent, the Unsecured Creditors Committee (the "UCC")) agreed to pay $22.5 million for the HCLOF assets, where they had previously not consented to any such expenditure by the estate on behalf of HCLOF, strongly indicates their awareness that they were purchasing assets for far below market value.

52. The above is the most reasonable and plausible explanation for why Defendants and the UCC forwent raising as much as $22.5 million in cash now in favor of hanging on to the HCLOF assets.

53. Indeed, in January 2021 Seery threatened Ethen Powell that “[Judge Jernigan] is laughing at you” and “we are coming after you” in response to the latter’s attempt to exercise his right as beneficial holder of the CLO, and pointing out a conflict of interest in Seery’s plan to liquidate the funds.

54. HCM’s threat, made by Seery, is tantamount to not only a declaration that he intends to liquidate the funds regardless of whether the investors want to do so, and whether it is in their best interests, but also that HCM intends to leverage what it views as the Bankruptcy Court’s sympathy to evade accountability.

CAUSES OF ACTION

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION Breaches of Fiduciary Duty

55. Plaintiffs respectfully incorporate the foregoing factual averments as if fully set forth herein and further alleges the following:

56. HCM is a registered investment advisor and acts on behalf of HCFA. Both are fiduciaries to Plaintiffs.

57. The Advisers Act establishes an unwaivable federal fiduciary duty for investment advisers.⁵

⁵ See e.g., SEC v. Capital Gains Research Bureau, Inc., 375 U.S. 180, 194 (1963); Transamerica Mortg. Advisors (tama) v. Lewis, 444 U.S. 11, 17 (1979) (“§ 206 establishes ‘federal fiduciary standards’ to govern the conduct of investment advisers.”); Santa Fe Indus. v. Green, 430 U.S. 462, 471, n.11 (1977) (in discussing SEC v. Capital Gains, stating that the Supreme Court’s reference to fraud in the “equitable” sense of the term was “premised on its recognition that Congress intended the Investment Advisers Act to establish federal fiduciary standards for investment advisers”). See also Investment Advisers Act Release No. 3060 (July 28, 2010) (“Under the Advisers Act, an adviser is a fiduciary whose duty is to serve the best interests of its clients, which includes an obligation not to subrogate clients’ interests to its own”) (citing Proxy Voting by Investment Advisers, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 2106 (Jan. 31, 2003)).

58. HCM and the DAF entered into an Amended and Restated Investment Advisory Agreement, executed between them on July 1, 2014 (the “RIA Agreement”). It renews annually and continued until the end of January 2021.

59. In addition to being the RIA to the DAF, HCM was appointed the DAF’s attorney-in-fact for certain actions, such as “to purchase or otherwise trade in Financial Instruments that have been approved by the General Partner.” RIA Agreement ¶ 4.

60. The RIA Agreement further commits HCM to value financial assets “in accordance with the then current valuation policy of the Investment Advisor [HCM], a copy of which will provided to the General Partner upon request.” RIA Agreement ¶ 5.

61. While HCM contracted for the recognition that it would be acting on behalf of others and could be in conflict with advice given the DAF, (RIA Agreement ¶ 12), nowhere did it purport to waive the fiduciary duties owed to the DAF not to trade as a principal in a manner that harmed the DAF.

62. HCFA owed a fiduciary duty to Holdco as an investor in HCLOF and to which HCFA was the portfolio manager. HCM owed a fiduciary duty to the DAF (and to Holdco as its subsidiary) pursuant to a written Advisory Agreement HCM and the DAF had where HCM agreed to provide sound investment advice and management functions.

63. As a registered investment adviser, HCM’s fiduciary duty is broad and applies to the entire advisor-client relationship.

64. The core of the fiduciary duty is to act in the best interest of their investors—the advisor must put the ends of the client before its own ends or the ends of a third party.

65. This is manifested in a duty of loyalty and a duty of utmost care. It also means that the RIA has to follow the terms of the company agreements and the regulations that apply to the investment vehicle.

66. The fiduciary duty that HCM and Seery owed to Plaintiff is predicated on trust and confidence. Section 204A of the Advisers Act requires investment advisors (whether SEC-registered or not) to establish, maintain, and enforce written policies and procedures reasonably designed to prevent the RIA from trading on material, non-public information. See 17 C.F.R. § 275.206(4)-7. That means that Plaintiff should be able to take Defendants at their word and not have to second guess or dig behind representations made by them.

67. The simple thesis of this claim is that Defendants HCFA and HCM breached their fiduciary duties by (i) insider trading with Harbourvest and concealing the rising NAV of the underlying assets—i.e., trading with Harbourvest on superior, non-public information that was neither revealed to Harbourvest nor to Plaintiff; (ii) concealing the value of the Harbourvest Interests; and (iii) diverting the investment opportunity in the Harbourvest entities to HCM (or its designee) without offering it to or making it available to Plaintiff or the DAF.

68. HCM, as part of its contractual advisory function with Plaintiffs, had expressly recommended the HCLOF investment to the DAF. Thus, diverting the opportunity for returns on its investment was an additional breach of fiduciary duty.

69. This violated a multitude of regulations under 27 C.F.R. part 275, in addition to Rules 10b-5 and 10b5-1. 17 CFR 240.10b5-1 (“Rule 10b5-1”) explains that one who trades while possessing non-public information is liable for insider trading, and they do not necessarily have to have used the specific inside information.

70. It also violated HCM’s own internal policies and procedures.

71. Also, the regulations impose obligations on Defendants to calculate a current valuation when communicating with an investor, such as what may or may not be taken into account, and what cannot pass muster as a current valuation. Upon information and belief, these regulations were not followed by the Defendants.

72. HCM's internal policies and procedures, which it promised to abide by both in the RIA Agreement and in its Form ADV SEC filing, provided for the means of properly calculating the value of the assets.

73. HCM either did not follow these policies, changed them to be out of compliance both with the Adviser Act regulations and its Form ADV representations, and/or simply misrepresented or concealed their results.

74. In so doing, because the fiduciary duty owed to Plaintiff is a broad one, and because Defendants' malfeasance directly implicates its relationship with Plaintiff, Defendants have breached the Advisers Act's fiduciary duties owed to Plaintiff as part of their fiduciary relationship.⁶

75. At no time between agreeing with Harbourvest to the purchase of its interests and the court approval did Defendants disclose to either Harbourvest or to Plaintiff (and the Bankruptcy Court for that matter) that the purchase was at below 50% the current net asset value as well, and when they failed to offer Plaintiff (and the other members of HCLOF) their right to purchase the interests pro rata at such advantageous valuations. Plaintiff's lost opportunity to purchase has harmed Plaintiff. Plaintiff had been led to believe by the Defendants that the value of what was being purchased in the Harbourvest settlement by HCM (or its designee) was at fair market value. This representation, repeated again in the Bankruptcy Court during the Harbourvest confirmation, implicitly suggested that a proper current valuation had been performed.

76. Defendant's principal, Seery, testified in January 2021 that the then-current fair market value of Harbourvest's 49.98% interest in HCLOF was worth around $22.5 million. But by then, it was worth almost double that amount and has continued to appreciate. Seery knew or should have known that fact because the value of some of the HCLOF assets had increased, and he had a duty to know the current value. His lack of actual knowledge, while potentially not overtly fraudulent, would nonetheless amount to a breach of fiduciary duty for acting without proper diligence and information that was plainly available.

77. Furthermore, HCLOF holds equity in MGM Studios and debt in CCS Medical via various CLO positions. But Seery, in his role as CEO of HCM, was made aware during an advisors meeting in December 2020 that Highland would have to restrict its trading in MGM because of its insider status due to activities that were likely to apply upward pressure on MGM's share price.

78. Furthermore, Seery controlled the Board of CCS Medical. And in or around October 2020, Seery was advocating an equatization that would have increased the value of the CCS securities by 25%, which was not reflected in the HCM report of the NAV of HCLOF's holdings.

79. Seery's knowledge is imputed to HCM.

80. Moreover, it is a breach of fiduciary duty to commit corporate waste, which is effectively what disposing of the HCLOF assets would constitute in a rising market, where there is no demand for disposition by the investors (save for HCM, whose proper 0.6% interest could easily be sold to the DAF at fair value).

81. As holder of 0.6% of the HCLOF interests, and now assignee of the 49.98% Harbourvest Interests), HCM has essentially committed self-dealing by threatening to liquidate HCLOF now that it may be compelled to do so under its proposed liquidation plan, which perhaps inures to the short term goals of HCM but to the pecuniary detriment of the other holders of HCLOF whose upside will be prematurely truncated.

82. Seery and HCM should not be allowed to benefit from the breach of their fiduciary duties because doing so would also cause Plaintiffs irreparable harm. The means and methods of disposal would likely render the full scope of damages to the DAF not susceptible to specific calculation—particularly as they would relate to calculating the lost opportunity cost. Seery and HCM likely do not have the assets to pay a judgment to Plaintiffs that would be rendered, simply taking the lost appreciation of the HCLOF assets.

83. Defendants are thus liable for diverting a corporate opportunity or asset that would or should have been offered to Plaintiff and the other investors. Because federal law makes the duties invoked herein unwaivable, it is preposterous that HCM, as a 0.6% holder of HCLOF, deemed itself entitled to the all of the value and optionality of the below-market Harbourvest purchase.

84. Defendants cannot rely on any contractual provision that purports to waive this violation. Nothing in any agreement purports to permit, authorize or otherwise sanitize Defendants' self-dealing. All such provisions are void.

85. In the fourth quarter of 2020, Seery and HCM notified staff that they would be terminated on December 31, 2020. That termination was postponed to February 28, 2021.

Purchasing the Harbourvest assets without staffing necessary to be a functioning Registered Investment Advisor was a strategic reversal from prior filings that outlined canceling the CLO management contracts and allowing investors to replace Highland as manager.

86. Seery's compensation agreement with the UCC incentivizes him to expedite recoveries and to prevent transparency regarding the Harbourvest settlement.

87. What is more, Seery had previously testified that the management contracts for the funds—HCLOF included—were unprofitable, and that he intended to transfer them. But he later rejected offers to purchase those management contracts for fair value and instead decided to continue to manage the funds—which is what apparently gave rise to the Harbourvest Settlement, among others. He simultaneously rejected an offer for the Harbourvest assets of $24 million, stating that they were worth much more than that.

88. Because of Defendants' malfeasance, Plaintiffs have lost over $25 million in damages—a number that continues to rise—and the Defendants should not be able to obtain a windfall.

89. For the same reason, Defendants' malfeasance has also exposed HCLOF to a massive liability from Harbourvest since the assignment of those interests is now one that is likely unenforceable under the Advisers Act, Section 47(b), if there was unequal information.

90. HCM and HCFA are liable as principals for breach of fiduciary duty, as are the principals and compliance staff of each entity.

91. Plaintiffs seek disgorgement, damages, exemplary damages, attorneys' fees and costs. To the extent the Court determines that this claim had to have been brought derivatively on behalf of HCLOF, then Plaintiffs represent that any pre-suit demand would have been futile since asking HCM to bring suit against its principal, Seery, would have been futile.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
Breach of HCLOF Company Agreement
(By Holdco against HCLOF, HCM and HCFA)

92. Plaintiffs respectfully incorporate the foregoing factual averments as if fully set forth herein and further alleges the following:

93. On November 15, 2017, the members of HCLOF, along with HCLOF and HCFA, executed the Members Agreement Relating to the Company (the “Company Agreement”).

94. The Company Agreement governs the rights and duties of the members of HCLOF.

95. Section 6.2 of HCLOF Company Agreement provides that when a member “other than ... CLO Holdco [Plaintiff] or a Highland Affiliate,” intends to sell its interest in HCLOF to a third party (i.e., not to an affiliate of the selling member), then the other members have the first right of refusal to purchase those interests pro rata for the same price that the member has agreed to sell.

96. Here, despite the fact that Harbourvest agreed to sell its interests in HCLOF for $22.5 million when they were worth more than double that, Defendants did not offer Plaintiff the chance to buy its pro rata share of those interests at the same agreed price of $22.5 million (adjusted pro rata).

97. The transfer and sale of the interests to HCM were accomplished as part of the Harbourvest Settlement which was approved by the Bankruptcy Court.

98. Plaintiff was not informed of the fact that Harbourvest had offered its shares to Defendant HCM for $22.5 million—which was under 50% of their true value.

99. Plaintiff was not offered the right to purchase its pro rata share of the Harbourvest interests prior to the agreement being struck or prior to court approval being sought.

100. Had Plaintiff been allowed to do so, it would have obtained the interests with a net equity value over their purchase price worth in excess of $20 million.

101. No discovery or opportunity to investigate was afforded Plaintiff prior to lodging an objection in the Bankruptcy Court.

102. Plaintiff is entitled to specific performance or, alternatively, disgorgement, constructive trust, damages, attorneys' fees and costs.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
Negligence
(By the DAF and CLO Holdco against HCM and HCFA)

103. Plaintiffs respectfully incorporate the foregoing factual averments as if fully set forth herein, and further alleges the following:

104. Plaintiffs incorporate the foregoing causes of action and note that all the foregoing violations were breaches of the common law duty of care imposed by law on each of Seery, HCFA and HCM.

105. Each of these Defendants should have known that their actions were violations of the Advisers Act, HCM's internal policies and procedures, the Company Agreement, or all three.

106. Seery and HCM owed duties of care to Plaintiffs to follow HCM's internal policies and procedures regarding both the propriety and means of trading with a customer [Harbourvest], the propriety and means of trading as a principal in an account but in a manner adverse to another customer [the DAF and Holdco], and the proper means of valuing the CLOs and other assets held by HCLOF.

107. It would be foreseeable that failing to disclose the current value of the assets in the HCLOF would impact Plaintiffs negatively in a variety of ways.

108. It would be reasonably foreseeable that failing to correctly and accurately calculate the current net asset value of the market value of the interests would cause Plaintiffs to value the Harbourvest Interests differently.

109. It would be reasonably foreseeable that referring to old and antiquated market quotations and/or valuations of the HCLOF assets or interests would result in a mis-valuation of HCLOF and, therefore, a mis-valuation of the Harbourvest Interests.

110. Likewise, it would have been foreseeable that Plaintiff's failure to give Plaintiff the opportunity to purchase the Harbourvest shares at a $22.5 million valuation would cause Plaintiff damages. Defendants knew that the value of those assets was rising. They further knew or should have known that whereas those assets were sold to HCM for an allowance of claims to be funded in the future, selling them to Plaintiff would have provided the estate with cash funds.

111. Defendants' negligence foreseeably and directly caused Plaintiff harm.

112. Plaintiff is thus entitled to damages.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION
Racketeering Influenced Corrupt Organizations Act
(CLO Holdco and DAF against HCM)

113. Plaintiffs respectfully incorporate the foregoing factual averments as if fully set forth herein, and further alleges the following:

114. Defendants are liable for violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations ("RICO") Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq., for the conduct of an enterprise through a pattern of racketeering activity.

115. HCLOF constitutes an enterprise under the RICO Act. Additionally, or in the alternative, HCM, HCLA, and HCLOF constituted an association-in-fact enterprise. The purpose of the association-in-fact was the perpetuation of Seery's position at HCM and using the Harbourvest settlement as a vehicle to enrich persons other than the HCLOF investors, including Holdco and the DAF, and the perpetuation of HCM's holdings in collateralized loan obligations owned by HCLOF, while attempting to deny Plaintiffs the benefit of its rights of ownership.

116. The association-in-fact was bound by informal and formal connections for years prior to the illicit purpose, and then changed when HCM joined it in order to achieve the association's illicit purpose. For example, HCM is the parent and control person over HCFA, which is the portfolio manager of HCLOF pursuant to a contractual agreement—both are registered investment advisors and provide advisory and management services to HCLOF.

117. Defendants injured Plaintiffs through their continuous course of conduct of the HCM-HCLA-HCLOF association-in-fact enterprise. HCM's actions (performed through Seery and others) constitute violations of the federal wire fraud, mail fraud, fraud in connection with a case under Title 11, and/or securities fraud laws, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1961(1)(B) and (D).

118. HCM operated in such a way as to violate insider trading rules and regulations when it traded with Harbourvest while it had material, non-public information that it had not supplied to Harbourvest or to Plaintiffs.

119. In or about November 2020, HCM and Harbourvest entered into discussions about settling the Harbourvest Claims. Seery's conduct of HCLOF and HCLA on behalf of HCM through the interstate mails and/or wires caused HCM to agree to the purchase of Harbourvest's interests in HCLOF.

120. On or about each of September 30, 2020, through December 31, 2020, Seery, through his conduct of the enterprise, utilized the interstate wires and/or mails to obtain or arrive at valuations of the HCLOF interests. Seery's conduct of the enterprise caused them to cease sending the valuation reports to Plaintiffs, which eventually allowed Plaintiffs to be misled into believing that Seery had properly valued the interests.

121. On or about September 30, 2020, Seery transmitted or caused to be transmitted though the interstate wires information to HCLOF investors from HCM (via HCFA), including Harbourvest, regarding the value of HCLOF interests and underlying assets.

122. Additionally, Seery operated HCM in such a way that he concealed the true value of the HCLOF interests by utilizing the interstate wires and mails to transmit communications to the court in the form of written representations on or about December 23, 2020, and then further transmitted verbal representations of the current market value (the vastly understated one) on January 14, 2021, during live testimony.

123. However, Harbourvest was denied the full picture and the true value of the underlying portfolio. At the end of October and November of 2020, HCM had updated the net asset values of the HCLOF portfolio. According to sources at HCM at the time, the HCLOF assets were worth north of $72,969,492 as of November 30, 2020. Harbourvest's share of that would have been $36,484,746.

124. The HCLOF net asset value had reached $86,440,024 as of December 31, 2021, which means that by the time Seery was testifying in the Bankruptcy Court on January 14, 2021, the fair market value of the Harbourvest Assets was $22.5 million, when it was actually closer to $43,202,724. Seery, speaking on behalf of HCM, knew of the distinction in value.

125. On January 14, 2021, Seery also testified that he (implying HCM, HCLA and HCLOF) had valued the Harbourvest Assets at their current valuation and at fair market value. This was not true because the valuation that was used and testified to was ancient. The ostensible purpose of this concealment was to induce Plaintiff and other interest holdings to take no action.

126. In supporting HCM’s motion to the Bankruptcy Court to approve the Harbourvest Settlement, Seery omitted the fact that HCM was purchasing the interests at a massive discount, which would violate the letter and spirit of the Adviser’s Act.

127. Seery was informed in late December 2020 at an in-person meeting in Dallas to which Seery had to fly that HCLOF and HCM had to suspend trading in MGM Studios’ securities because Seery had learned from James Dondero, who was on the Board of MGM, of a potential purchase of the company. The news of the MGM purchase should have caused Seery to revalue the HCLOF investment in MGM.

128. In or around October 2020, Seery (who controls the Board of CSS Medical) was pursuing “equatization” of CSS Medical’s debt, which would have increased the value of certain securities by 25%. In several communications through the U.S. interstate wires and/or mails, and with Plaintiffs, and the several communications with Harbourvest during the negotiations of the settlement, Seery failed to disclose these changes which were responsible in part for the ever-growing value of the HCLOF CLO portfolio.

129. Seery was at all relevant times operating as an agent of HCM.

130. This series of related violations of the wire fraud, mail fraud, and securities fraud laws, in connection with the HCM bankruptcy, constitute a continuing pattern and practice of racketeering for the purpose of winning a windfall for HCM and himself--a nearly $30,000,000 payday under the confirmation agreement.

131. The federal RICO statute makes it actionable for one’s conduct of an enterprise to include “fraud in connection with a [bankruptcy case]”. The Advisers’ Act antifraud provisions require full transparency and accountability to an advisers’ investors and clients and does not require a showing of reliance or materiality. The wire fraud provision likewise is violated when,

as here, the interstate wires are used as part of a “scheme or artifice ... for obtaining money or property by means of false ... pretenses, [or] representations[.]”

132. Accordingly, because Defendants’ conduct violated the wire fraud and mail fraud laws, and the Advisers’ Act antifraud provisions, and their acts and omissions were in connection with the HCM Bankruptcy proceedings under Title 11, they are sufficient to bring such conduct within the purview of the RICO civil action provisions, 18 U.S.C. § 1964.

133. Plaintiffs are thus entitled to damages, treble damages, attorneys’ fees and costs of suit, in addition to all other injunctive or equitable relief to which they are justly entitled.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION
Tortious Interference
(CLO Holdco against HCM)

134. Plaintiff respectfully incorporates the foregoing factual averments as if fully set forth herein and further alleges the following:

135. At all relevant times, HCM owned a 0.6% interest in HCLOF.

136. At all relevant times, Seery and HCM knew that Plaintiff had specific rights in HCLOF under the Company Agreement, § 6.2.

137. Section 6.2 of HCLOF Company agreement provides that when a member “other than ... CLO Holdco [Plaintiff] or a Highland Affiliate,” intends to sell its interest in HCLOF to a third party (i.e., not an affiliate of the member), then the other members have the first right of refusal to purchase those interests pro rata for the same price that the member has agreed to sell.

138. HCM, through Seery, tortiously interfered with Plaintiff’s contractual rights with HCLOF by, among other things, diverting the Harbourvest Interests in HCLOF to HCM without giving HCLOF or Plaintiff the option to purchase those assets at the same favorable price that HCM obtained them.

139. HCM and Seery tortiously interfered with Plaintiff's contractual rights with HCLOF by, among other things, misrepresenting the fair market value as $22.5 million and concealing the current value of those interests.

140. But for HCM and Seery's tortious interference, Plaintiff would have been able to acquire the Harbourvest Interests at a highly favorable price. HCM and Seery's knowledge of the rights and intentional interference with these rights has caused damage to Plaintiff CLO Holdco.

141. Plaintiff is therefore entitled to damages from HCM and Seery, as well as exemplary damages.

VI.

JURY DEMAND

142. Plaintiff demands trial by jury on all claims so triable.

VII.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

143. Wherefore, for the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully pray that the Court enter judgment in its favor and against Defendants, jointly and severally, for:

- a. Actual damages;
- b. Disgorgement;
- c. Treble damages;
- d. Exemplary and punitive damages;
- e. Attorneys' fees and costs as allowed by common law, statute or contract;
- f. A constructive trust to avoid dissipation of assets;
- g. All such other relief to which Plaintiff is justly entitled.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Before the Court are Appellants The Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. (Charitable DAF) and CLO Holdco, Ltd. (CLO Holdco)'s appeals from the bankruptcy court's Motion to Dismiss Order and Motion to Stay Order. For the reasons that follow, the Motion to Dismiss Order is REVERSED and REMANDED. The Motion to Stay Order is AFFIRMED.

I.

BACKGROUND¹

These are consolidated appeals from an adversary proceeding in a bankruptcy case. The Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (HCM), filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy on October 16, 2019, in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware and that court transferred venue to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the North District of Texas. In re Highland Cap. Mgmt. L.P., 2022 WL 780991, at *1 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 11, 2022).

In 2017, Charitable DAF—through the holding entity CLO Holdco—purchased 49.02% of the available shares of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (HCLOF) based upon investment advice from HCM.² Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 5. Another entity, HarbourVest, acquired 49.98% of the HCLOF shares and HCM and its employees acquired the remaining 1%. Id.; Doc. 21, Appellee’s Br., 7. A company agreement (the HCLOF Member Agreement) governing the rights and obligations of HCLOF shareholders purportedly prohibited a member from “sell[ing] shares to another member without first providing all other members the right to purchase a pro rata portion thereof at the same price” (the Right of First Refusal). Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 6. The value of the HCLOF shares fluctuated throughout the bankruptcy proceedings; the actual value is one of the issues giving rise to some of Charitable DAF’s causes of action. Id. at 6–7; R. at 551–65.

² Except where otherwise stated, the Court refers to Charitable DAF and CLO Holdco collectively as Charitable DAF because Charitable DAF controls and owns CLO Holdco and both entities have the same director. Doc. 21, Appellee’s Br., 7 & n.6. Appellant Charitable DAF does not dispute this relationship and imputes the actions of CLO Holdco to itself throughout Appellant’s brief. See Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 13–14 (imputing the Objection to both Appellants).

During the bankruptcy, “HarbourVest filed proof of claims against [HCM] totaling over $300 million, notionally.” Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 6. As part of the settlement for these claims, “HarbourVest agreed to sell its interest in HCLOF to [HCM].” Id. at 8. HCM would then have majority ownership of HCLOF. See id. at 5; Doc. 21, Appellee’s Br., 7. “CLO Holdco filed an objection to the settlement, contending that the HCLOF Member Agreement entitled [CLO] Holdco to a Right of first Refusal” (the Objection). Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 8. At the beginning of the settlement hearing (the Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing), CLO Holdco withdrew its Objection. Doc. 21, Appellee’s Br., 10–11; R. at 6269–70. After overruling the remaining objections from the other parties, the bankruptcy court approved the HarbourVest Settlement. Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 9.

This Adversary Proceeding stems from the complaint filed by Appellants on April 12, 2021, in this Court in Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. et al. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al., Case No. 3:21-CV-0842-B. Id.; Complaint, Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. v. Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P., No. 3:21-CV-0842-B (N.D. Tex. Apr. 12, 2021), Doc. 1. On September 20, 2021, this Court referred that case to the bankruptcy court for “docket[ing] as an Adversary Proceeding associated with the consolidated Chapter 11 Bankruptcy of Highland Capital Management, L.P.” Order of Reference, Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. v. Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P., No. 3:21-CV-0842-B (N.D. Tex. Sept. 20, 2021), Doc. 64. During the Adversary Proceeding, Appellants moved for a stay of the case (the Motion to Stay) and Appellees moved to dismiss the case (the Motion to Dismiss). R. at 1634–67, 3248–52. On November 23, 2021, the bankruptcy court held a hearing on the Motion to Stay and Motion to Dismiss. Id. at 5951. The bankruptcy court denied the Motion to Stay at the hearing and later entered an order granting the Motion to Dismiss, dismissing all causes of action with prejudice. Id. at 5977; In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *12. Appellants promptly appealed both orders; this Court consolidated the appeals. In re Highland Cap. Mgmt., 2022 WL 2193000, at *1, *4 (N.D. Tex. June 17, 2022). While the appeals were pending, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the HCM reorganization plan (the Plan), but vacated the exculpatory provision “as to all parties except [HCM], the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors for conduct within the scope of their duties.” Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P. v. NexPoint Advisors, L.P., 2022 WL 3571094, at *14 (5th Cir. Aug. 19, 2022).

The appeals are fully briefed and ripe for review. The Court considers them below.

II.

LEGAL STANDARDS

Final judgments, orders, and decrees of a bankruptcy court may be appealed to a federal district court. 28 U.S.C. § 158(a). Because the district court functions as an appellate court in this scenario, it applies the same standards of review that federal appellate courts use when reviewing district court decisions. In re Webb, 954 F.2d 1102, 1103–04 (5th Cir. 1992) (citations omitted).

A. Rule 12(b)(6) Motion to Dismiss for Failure to State a Claim

Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2), a complaint must contain “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2). Rule 12(b)(6) authorizes a court to dismiss a plaintiff’s complaint for “failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). In considering a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, “[t]he court accepts all well-pleaded facts as true, viewing them in the light most favorable to the plaintiff.” In re Katrina Canal Breaches Litig., 495 F.3d 191, 205 (5th Cir. 2007). But the court will “not look beyond the face of the pleadings to determine whether relief should be granted based on the alleged facts.” Spivey v. Robertson, 197 F.3d 772, 774 (5th Cir. 1999).

To survive a motion to dismiss, plaintiffs must plead “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). “Threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements, do not suffice.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009). “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id. “The plausibility standard is not akin to a ‘probability requirement’ but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556). When well-pleaded facts fail to meet this standard, “the complaint has alleged—but it has not shown—that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Id. at 679 (quotation marks and alterations omitted).

B. Motion to Stay

Incidental to a court’s inherent power to control its docket is the power to stay proceedings before it. Landis v. N. Am. Co., 299 U.S. 248, 254 (1936). A court considers four factors when determining whether to stay a case pending appeal: “(1) whether the stay applicant has made a strong showing that he is likely to succeed on the merits; (2) whether the applicant will be irreparably injured absent a stay; (3) whether issuance of the stay will substantially injure the other parties interested in the proceeding; and (4) where the public interest lies.” Veasey v. Perry, 769 F.3d 890, 892 (5th Cir. 2014) (quoting Nken v. Holder, 556 U.S. 418, 426 (2009)). “The first two factors of the traditional standard are the most critical.” Barber v. Bryant, 833 F.3d 510, 511 (5th Cir. 2016) (quoting Nken, 556 U.S. at 434).

III.

ANALYSIS

The Court begins with the appeal of the Motion to Dismiss Order because it can only review the appeal of the Motion to Stay Order if it reverses the bankruptcy court's decision to dismiss the causes of action in the adversary proceeding. In re Highland, 2022 WL 2193000, at *2. Finding reversal of the Motion to Dismiss Order warranted, the Court then reviews the appeal of the Motion to Stay Order.

A. *Appeal of the Motion to Dismiss Order*³

Charitable DAF raises three issues in its appeal of the Motion to Dismiss Order: (1) whether the bankruptcy court “commit[ted] reversible error by sua sponte dismissing this action on the basis of collateral estoppel without giving notice and an opportunity to respond”; (2) whether collateral estoppel barred Charitable DAF's claims when the claims were adjudicated in a Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing; and (3) whether the bankruptcy court's application of judicial estoppel erroneously relied on a transcription error, an ostensibly inconsistent position of Charitable DAF, or a failure to conclude that “subsequently discovered evidence . . . render[ed] the ostensible inconsistency ‘inadvertent.’” Doc. 9, Appellant's Br., 2.

An appellate court reviews a dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) de novo. Stripling v. Jordan Prod. Co., LLC, 234 F.3d 863, 868 (5th Cir. 2000). “[T]he application of collateral estoppel is” also reviewed de novo. Id. (quoting United States v. Brackett, 113 F.3d 1396, 1398 (5th Cir. 1997)). However, “a [bankruptcy] court's decision to invoke the equitable doctrine of judicial estoppel [is reviewed] for abuse of discretion.” Cox v. Richards, 761 F. App'x 244, 246 (5th Cir. 2019) (citing ³ For this appeal, the record and document citations are in case No. 3:22-CV-0695-B. However, Appellee's Brief is in case No. 21-CV-3129-B.

United States ex rel. Long v. GSDMIdea City, L.L.C., 798 F.3d 265, 271 (5th Cir. 2015)). Therefore, this Court reviews the bankruptcy court’s sua sponte invocation of collateral estoppel de novo, the application of collateral estoppel de novo, and the invocation of judicial estoppel for abuse of discretion. The Court addresses each in turn below.

1. Sua Sponte Dismissal

The bankruptcy court dismissed Charitable DAF’s claims with prejudice based on collateral estoppel—even though neither party raised the issue “per se”—finding their res judicata arguments relevant to the issue. In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *7. The Court first considers whether the sua sponte application was proper.

Charitable DAF challenges the bankruptcy court’s sua sponte invocation of collateral estoppel to dismiss its claims. Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 11–12. Specifically, Charitable DAF argues that the bankruptcy court could “only do so if the ‘procedure employed is fair’—that is, if prior notice is given with adequate time for the plaintiff to prepare a response.” Id. at 12 (quoting Carroll v. Fort James Corp., 470 F.3d 1171, 1177–78 (5th Cir. 2006)). The failure to provide “notice and an opportunity to dispute the claimed bases for dismissal is reversible error,” according to Charitable DAF. Id.

The Court disagrees. The Fifth Circuit has recognized two instances when a court may dismiss a case sua sponte on the basis of collateral estoppel: when (1) “both actions were brought in courts of the same district” or (2) “all of the relevant facts are contained in the record and . . . uncontroverted.” OneBeacon Am. Ins. Co. v. Barnett, 761 F. App’x 396, 399 (5th Cir. 2019) (first quoting Trammell Crow Residential Co. v. Am. Prot. Ins. Co., 574 F. App’x 513, 522 (5th Cir. 2014); and then quoting Mowbray v. Cameron Cnty., 274 F.3d 269, 281 (5th Cir. 2001)). This case easily fits into the first category because all of the proceedings at issue took place in the bankruptcy court before the same judge. See In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *7 (relying on the former category to dismiss the case). Thus, the bankruptcy court did not err by raising the collateral estoppel issue sua sponte.

This case is unlike the Carroll case cited by Charitable DAF, which did not involve collateral estoppel. 470 F.3d 1171. In Carroll, the Fifth Circuit held that a court may dismiss a case sua sponte under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) if the “procedure employed is fair[,]” which requires “both notice of the court’s intention and an opportunity to respond.” Id. at 1177 (quoting Bazrowx v. Scott, 136 F.3d 1053, 1054 (5th Cir. 1998)). The district court erred by not providing “notice or opportunity to be heard” and “did not even . . . mention [some of the dismissed] claims in its order of dismissal.” Id.

This case is more akin to McIntyre v. Ben E. Keith Co. where the Fifth Circuit upheld the district court’s sua sponte raising of the issue of res judicata to dismiss the case under Rule 12(b)(6). 754 F. App’x 262, 265 (5th Cir. 2018). In McIntyre, the plaintiff’s “Civil Rights Act and FLSA actions were brought before the same federal district court.” Id. Because the latter action closely resembled the former action, the Fifth Circuit found no reversible error with the district court’s raising the issue of res judicata sua sponte. Id.

First, dismissal for failure to state a claim like in Carroll and dismissal for collateral estoppel as in the instant case are conceptually and procedurally different. In the former, the plaintiff is in the process of attempting to “allege[] [their] best case,” Bazrowx, 136 F.3d at 1054, while collateral estoppel occurs after a plaintiff “alleged [their] best case” and fully litigated the issue. See Allen v. McCurry, 449 U.S. 90, 94 (1980). Put more succinctly, collateral estoppel eliminates “unnecessary judicial waste” from repeated attempts at alleging the best case. Arizona v. California, 530 U.S. 392, 412 (2000) (quoting United States v. Sioux Nation, 448 U.S. 371, 432 (1980) (Rehnquist, J., dissenting)). Second, the parties addressed res judicata during oral argument and in their pleadings before the bankruptcy court. While res judicata is not collateral estoppel, it is closely related. Hous. Prof'l Towing Ass'n v. City of Houston, 812 F.3d 443, 447 (5th Cir. 2016) (“[R]es judicata encompasses two separate but linked preclusive doctrines: (1) true res judicata or claim preclusion and (2) collateral estoppel or issue preclusion.”). Thus, the bankruptcy court employed a fair procedure by allowing the parties to litigate the issues, including res judicata, before dismissing the case sua sponte. See generally Carver v. Atwood, 18 F.4th 494, 497 (5th Cir. 2021) (“District courts may, for appropriate reasons, dismiss cases sua sponte.”).

The Court next considers whether the bankruptcy court’s substantive application of collateral estoppel was proper.

2. Collateral Estoppel

“Collateral estoppel prevents litigation of an issue when: ‘(1) the identical issue was previously adjudicated; (2) the issue was actually litigated; and (3) the previous determination was necessary to the decision.’”⁴ Bradberry v. Jefferson Cnty., 732 F.3d 540, 548 (5th Cir. 2013) (quoting Pace v. Bogalusa City Sch. Bd., 403 F.3d 272, 290 (5th Cir. 2005)). “Relitigation of an issue is not precluded unless the facts and the legal standard used to assess them are the same in both proceedings.” In re Southmark Corp., 163 F.3d at 932.

Charitable DAF attacks each element of collateral estoppel, so the Court addresses each element individually.

⁴ Appellant lists a fourth element occasionally referenced by the Fifth Circuit—“there is no special circumstance that would make it unfair to apply the doctrine”—but the Court finds no reason to address this possible fourth element in this case. See In re Southmark Corp., 163 F.3d 925, 932 n.9 (5th Cir. 1999) (declining to apply the fourth element because appellant “failed to support it factually”).

i. Identical issue

The bankruptcy court found “(a) consideration of the value that the estate was both receiving and paying, as well as (b) the potential existence of a ‘Right of First Refusal’ . . . [were] the gravamen of [Charitable DAF’s] Complaint.” In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *9 (emphasis omitted). During the settlement hearing, the bankruptcy court had to determine whether the HarbourVest Settlement “was ‘fair and equitable’ and in the ‘best interests of creditors,’ and whether it was the ‘product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion[.]’” Id. at *8. This determination entailed “arguments and evidence regarding the methodology for the valuation of the HCLOF interest and the existence or non-existence of a ‘Right of First Refusal.’” Id.

Charitable DAF argues that the issues are not identical because the Objection “only addressed whether HarbourVest . . . had performed all conditions precedent to being able to transfer the interest to Highland as another co-investor” and did not present an identical claim “for breach of the HCLOF [Member] Agreement” and associated damages. Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 13–14. Further, “even if this one contract issue was fully . . . litigated,” only the second cause of action in Charitable DAF’s complaint arguably parallels that issue, according to Charitable DAF—the others are distinct. Id. at 14–15. Charitable DAF contends that these non-contract causes of action rely on evidence that was not known at the Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing, “stem from events that either occurred post-hearing, or were not discovered until after the hearing.” Id. at 15.

The Court finds the issues are identical. CLO Holdco’s Objection specifically argued:

Harbourvest has no authority to transfer its interests in HCLOF without first complying with the Right of First Refusal. The only way to effectuate such a transfer without first providing other members the Right of First Refusal is an intentionally inaccurate interpretation of the Member Agreement's contractual provisions that would render specific passages redundant and meaningless.

R. at 4730. The bankruptcy court also heard argument and testimony from Seery, HCM's chief executive and chief restructuring officer, and Pugatch, a managing director of HarbourVest, about the valuation of HCLOF's assets at the settlement hearing. Id. at 6273, 6292, 6303–05 (“The twenty-two and a half [million] is the current—actually, the November value of HCLOF—the HarbourVest interests in HCLOF.”), 6358, 6374 (“The current value is right around $22-1/2 million.”).

In the Original Complaint, Charitable DAF brought five causes of action: breach of fiduciary duties, breach of the HCLOF Member Agreement, negligence, RICO, and tortious interference. Id. at 551–65. The breach of fiduciary duties and negligence causes of action center around the alleged concealment of the rising value of HCLOF's assets and failing to offer the purchase of the assets to CLO Holdco or Charitable DAF before offering to HCM. Id. at 553–55, 559–60. The breach of the HCLOF Member Agreement cause of action encompasses the Right of First Refusal in the agreement. Id. at 558–59. The RICO cause of action alleges that HCM used mail and wire fraud “to obtain or arrive at valuations of the HCLOF interests,” and “conceal[] the true value of the HCLOF interests.” Id. at 560–64. Lastly, the tortious interference cause of action stems from HCM's alleged interference with CLO Holdco's Right of First Refusal in the Member Agreement and “misrepresenting the fair market value” of HCLOF's assets. Id. at 564–65. In sum, all of these causes of action involve either the valuation of HCLOF or the Right of First Refusal, so the issues are the same as those before the bankruptcy court at the Rule 2019 Settlement Hearing.

ii. Actually Litigated

The bankruptcy court found the same arguments were also actually litigated, reasoning:

The Bankruptcy Court would never have approved the HarbourVest Settlement if it thought the value being exchanged was not fair, or if it thought the HCLOF Interests could not be transferred and that someone might later sue the Debtor, claiming the Transfer was improper. All parties had the chance to argue and present evidence about this. The Bankruptcy Court made a ruling based on the evidence and argument.

In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *9.

Charitable DAF argues that because the Objection was withdrawn and no one objected to the withdrawal, the issue asserted therein was not litigated. Doc. 9, Appellant's Br., 16. Additionally, it claims the Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing is not a mini-trial and, therefore, cannot serve as an opportunity for a party to litigate their claims. Id. at 17–18 (citing Off. Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Moeller (In re Age Refin., Inc.), 801 F.3d 530, 541 (5th Cir. 2015)).

An issue is not actually litigated and, thus, precluded unless the legal standard in the prior action mirrors the legal standard of the latter action. Copeland v. Merrill Lynch & Co., 47 F.3d 1415, 1422 (5th Cir. 1995) (citations omitted). The bankruptcy court approved the HarbourVest Settlement after applying the Jackson Brewing test, which considers:

(1) the probability of success in litigating the claims subject to the Settlement Agreement, with due consideration for the uncertainty in fact and law, (2) the complexity and likely duration of litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience, and delay, and (3) all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise, including: (i) the best interests of the creditors, with proper deference to their reasonable views, and (ii) the extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion.

R. at 5568; see also In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *8 (quoting Off. Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Moeller (In re Age Ref., Inc.), 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015)). Stated more succinctly, when faced with a settlement, the bankruptcy court ensures the “compromise is truly ‘fair and equitable’ and ‘in the best interest of the estate.’” In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980) (quoting Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry, Inc. v. Anderson (TMT Trailer), 390 U.S. 414, 424 (1968)).

However, in the context of litigating actual claims—such as those asserted by Charitable DAF—a court applies a preponderance of the evidence standard, not the probability of success standard from Jackson Brewing. Copeland, 47 F.3d at 1423; In re Zale Corp., 62 F.3d 746, 766 n.60 (5th Cir. 1995) (“We also note for future reference that the legal standard in a settlement hearing differs from that applicable in an adversary proceeding or state court trial Consequently, we doubt that the findings of the bankruptcy court in a settlement hearing would have preclusive effect in adversary proceedings or state court trials.”). See generally Weaver v. Aquila Energy Mktg., 196 B.R. 945, 957 (S.D. Tex. 1996) (“[S]ettlement hearings and preference actions involve the application of different legal standards.”). “Examining whether a particular settlement is fair or equitable and in the best interest of the estate and creditors is a different inquiry, driven by different policies, than litigation of the actual claim.” Copeland, 47 F.3d at 1423. While the issues of the Right of First Refusal and the valuation of HCLOF were raised in the Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing, the parties did not fully litigate the issues as one would at trial, and the bankruptcy court did not resolve the issues according to a preponderance of the evidence standard. Because the bankruptcy court applied a legal standard in the Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing that is inapplicable to the adjudication of Charitable DAF’s causes of action, the issues were not actually litigated in the Rule 9019 Settlement Hearing and collateral estoppel does not apply.⁵ The Court REVERSES the bankruptcy court on this issue.

⁵ Having found the second element of collateral estoppel unmet, the Court need not address the third element—necessity of the previous determination to the prior decision.

3. Judicial Estoppel

The bankruptcy court found the elements of judicial estoppel met and barred the second and fifth causes of action, which rely on the Right of First Refusal. In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *12. The Court now addresses whether judicial estoppel applies to Charitable DAF's second and fifth causes of action.

Judicial estoppel is an equitable common law doctrine aimed at preventing a party from asserting an inconsistent legal position from a previous proceeding. In re Coastal Plains, Inc., 179 F.3d 197, 205 (5th Cir. 1999). "The purpose of the doctrine is 'to protect the integrity of the judicial process', by 'prevent[ing] parties from playing fast and loose with the courts to suit the exigencies of self interest.'" Id. (alteration in original) (quoting Brandon v. Interfirst Corp., 858 F.2d 266, 268 (5th Cir. 1988)). A court examines three criteria when determining the applicability of judicial estoppel: "(1) the party against whom judicial estoppel is sought has asserted a legal position which is plainly inconsistent with a prior position; (2) a court accepted the prior position; and (3) the party did not act inadvertently." Reed v. City of Arlington, 650 F.3d 571, 574 (5th Cir. 2011) (en banc).

Charitable DAF raises arguments for each of the judicial estoppel elements, so the Court addresses each element below.

i. Inconsistent legal position

Charitable DAF argues that the bankruptcy court's determination relies on a transcription error that amounted to an admission of HCM's compliance with the Right of First Refusal. Doc. 9, Appellant's Br., 22–23. The corrected transcript makes clear that no admission was made on behalf of CLO Holdco, according to Charitable DAF. Id. at 23–24.

The relevant portion of the original transcript reads:

In response to Mr. Morris, I'm not going to enter into a stipulation on behalf of my client, but the Debtor is compliant with all aspects of the contract. We withdrew our objection, and we believe that's sufficient.

R. at 6280. The corrected transcript reads:

In response to Mr. Morris, I'm not going to enter into a stipulation on behalf of my client that the Debtor is compliant with all aspects of the contract. We withdrew our objection, and we believe that's sufficient.

Doc. 9-1, Appellant's Br. Ex. A, 4.

Accepting this version of the record, CLO Holdco refused to "enter into a short stipulation on the record reflecting that the Debtor's acquisition of HarbourVest's interests in HCLOF is compliant with all of the applicable agreements between the parties." Id.; R. at 6280. However, moments before this, CLO Holdco withdrew its Objection premised on the Right of First Refusal stating:

CLO Holdco has had an opportunity to review the reply briefing, and after doing so has gone back and scrubbed the HCLOF corporate documents. Based on our analysis of Guernsey law and some of the arguments of counsel in those pleadings and our review of the appropriate documents, I obtained authority from my client, Grant Scott, as Trustee for CLO Holdco, to withdraw the CLO Holdco objection based on the interpretation of the member agreement.

R. at 6269–70. The bankruptcy court's decision rests primarily on this earlier withdrawal of the Objection and only later buttresses its argument with the then-unknown transcription error. In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *11 (following discussion of the withdrawal of the Objection with "[i]f that weren't enough" before mentioning the then-unknown transcription error). Thus, if the earlier withdrawal—without the transcription error—satisfies the first element of judicial estoppel then the bankruptcy court did not commit any error even if it referenced an incorrect transcription of the latter exchange.

The Court finds the bankruptcy court did not err in finding the first element of judicial estoppel. CLO Holdco made clear in the withdrawal of its objection that it no longer disputed the other parties' interpretation of the Right of First Refusal, which now forms the basis of Charitable DAF's second and fifth causes of action. See R. at 6269–70. Thus, the withdrawal of the objection put CLO Holdco on the opposite side of the legal argument that Charitable DAF now makes in its second and fifth causes of action. The first element of judicial estoppel is established because Charitable DAF has taken inconsistent positions in separate proceedings.

ii. The bankruptcy court accepted the prior position

The bankruptcy court solely relied on the withdrawal of the Objection to find the second element of judicial estoppel established. In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *12. In the words of the bankruptcy court, it “perceived [this objection] as one of the major arguments that was relevant to the HarbourVest Settlement.” Id. “The [b]ankruptcy [c]ourt relied upon that withdrawal of CLO Holdco’s objection in making the determination to approve of the HarbourVest Settlement and, specifically, that Highland would not be running afoul of any obligation in entering into the HarbourVest Settlement.” Id.

Charitable DAF argues that there is no acceptance by the bankruptcy court of a prior position because without the transcription error, there is no admission and no inconsistent position. Doc. 9, Appellant’s Br., 25–26. Further, it contends that the withdrawal of the Objection is not the equivalent of stating the Right of First Refusal causes of action are meritless. Id. at 26–27.

The bankruptcy court did not err in finding the second element of judicial estoppel met because it necessarily relied on the change in CLO Holdco’s assessment of its Objection. The Right of First Refusal created a major obstacle to approval of the HarbourVest Settlement. When CLO

Holdco withdrew its Objection based on the Right of First Refusal, the Court had to accept CLO Holdco's position that the Right of First Refusal no longer posed an obstacle to the HarbourVest Settlement. Thus, the Court finds no error by the bankruptcy court for the second element of judicial estoppel.

iii. Inadvertence of Charitable DAF

The bankruptcy court did not examine the inadvertence of Charitable DAF in asserting inconsistent legal positions. See In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *12.

Charitable DAF argues that it did not know the facts for several of its claims until after the settlement hearings, so it could not have asserted these claims at the hearing. Doc. 9, Appellant's Br., 27. Charitable DAF relies on the allegations surrounding the valuations of the HCLOF assets and the alleged acts violating the RICO statutes. Id. at 27–29. Additionally, the bankruptcy court did not address the inadvertence element for judicial estoppel and a failure to apply the correct legal standard is reversible error, Charitable DAF contends. Doc. 9, Appellant's Br., 27; Doc. 27, Appellant's Reply, 3–4.

The Court agrees with Appellant's last argument. A court abuses its discretion by applying the wrong legal standard. Cooter & Gell v. Hartmarx Corp., 496 U.S. 384, 405 (1990); Def. Distrib. v. Bruck, 30 F.4th 414, 427 (5th Cir. 2022). And the misapplication of a legal standard is reviewed de novo. In re Woerner, 783 F.3d 266, 270–71 (5th Cir. 2015). By not addressing the third element of judicial estoppel, the bankruptcy court applied the wrong legal standard. The Fifth Circuit implicitly recognized this third element—inadvertence—in In re Coastal Plains, Inc., 179 F.3d at 206, 210, which the bankruptcy court cited for its legal standard. In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *11. The Fifth Circuit has since clarified that “[t]his circuit . . . recognizes three particular requirements” for judicial estoppel. Kane v. Nat'l Union Fire Ins. Co., 535 F.3d 380, 386 (5th Cir. 2008) (emphasis added). Because the bankruptcy court did not address the inadvertence element in its order dismissing Charitable DAF's second and fifth causes of action, the bankruptcy court abused its discretion. While the district court finds no issue in the bankruptcy court's analysis of the first two elements of judicial estoppel, the bankruptcy court did not address this third element, warranting remand for determination by the bankruptcy court whether Charitable DAF acted inadvertently to change its legal position.

3. Leave to Amend

Charitable DAF requested leave to amend its complaint in its response to the motion to dismiss, R. at 2272–73, which the bankruptcy court denied by dismissing all claims with prejudice. In re Highland, 2022 WL 780991, at *12. The Court need not address this argument because, upon remand, the bankruptcy court will have the opportunity to reassess Charitable DAF's claims and determine whether amendment should be allowed under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15(a). See Marucci Sports, L.L.C. v. Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n, 751 F.3d 368, 378 (5th Cir. 2014) (listing factors a court considers when determining whether to allow amendment of the complaint).

C. Appeal of the Motion to Stay Order⁶

Appellant Charitable DAF raises one issue on appeal of the Motion to Stay Order: “Did the bankruptcy court err by proceeding with the case rather than staying it” when Charitable DAF was enjoined “from litigating any action against Appellee [HCM]”? Doc. 11, Appellant's Br., 2. The bankruptcy court denied Charitable DAF's Motion to Stay All Proceedings and the subsequent Amended Motion to Stay All Proceedings, reasoning:

⁶ For this appeal, the record and document citations are in case No. 3:21-CV-3129-B.

I just don't think that you have shown that, you know, either the exculpation clause or the injunction provisions of the plan somehow tie your hands in arguing the 12(b)(6) motion, defending against the 12(b)(6) motion today or I just think that your arguments reflect, frankly, a misunderstanding of how the injunction language and exculpation language applies here.

R. at 2087; see also id. at 4–5.

On appeal, Charitable DAF argues that the bankruptcy court erred in its denial of the motion for a stay because the Plan Confirmation Order's injunction prohibited Charitable DAF from participating in the case, “terminat[ing] any case or controversy and stripp[ing] the bankruptcy court of jurisdiction.” Doc. 11, Appellant's Br., 7. Accordingly, “[t]he bankruptcy court could only stay the case pending the [appeal of the Plan Confirmation Order's injunction], or dismiss the case as barred by the injunction[,]” Charitable DAF contends.” Id. at 9.

As noted above, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the Plan in all respects except one and specifically affirmed the injunction. Highland, 2022 WL 3571094, at *13–14. The injunction in the Plan provides that “all Enjoined Parties are and shall be permanently enjoined . . . from directly or indirectly (i) commencing, conducting, or continuing in any manner any suit, action, or other proceeding of any kind . . . against or affecting the Debtor or the property of the Debtor.” R. at 2401. And the term Enjoined Parties includes “(i) all Entities who have held, hold, or may hold Claims against or Equity Interests in the Debtor [and] . . . (iii) any Entity that has appeared and/or filed any motion, objection, or other pleading in this Chapter 11 Case.” Id. at 2358.

Relatedly, the Plan exculpates HCM⁷ “from, any claim, obligation, suit, judgment, damage, demand, debt, right, Cause of Action, remedy, loss, and liability for conduct occurring on or after the Petition Date in connection with or arising out of [execution of the Plan].” Id. at 2398. However, this exculpation provision⁸ does “not apply to (a) any acts or omissions of an Exculpated Party arising out of or related to acts or omissions that constitute bad faith, fraud, gross negligence, criminal misconduct, or willful misconduct or (b) [other specific entities actions].” Id. at 2398–99.

The bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion⁹ in denying the motion for a stay of the case. The bankruptcy court found that the Plan’s injunction and exculpation provisions—which it approved—did not prevent Charitable DAF from pursuing its causes of action. Id. at 2087. In effect, the bankruptcy court held that Charitable DAF could continue to litigate its causes of action and the Court agrees. See id. Just like the bankruptcy court, this Court does not see how the injunction and exculpation provisions prohibit Charitable DAF from participating in the below action. The exculpation provision permits Charitable DAF to bring claims against HCM for “bad faith, fraud,

⁹ The parties disagree on whether this Court reviews the denial of the stay for abuse of discretion or de novo. Doc. 11, Appellant’s Br., 6 (“Questions of law are reviewed de novo.”); Doc. 16, Appellee’s Br., 2 (“The Court reviews the bankruptcy court’s order for abuse of discretion.”). Charitable DAF does not pursue this argument in its Reply, so this argument is considered waived, Black v. N. Panola Sch. Dist., 461 F.3d 584, 588 n.1 (5th Cir. 2006), as well as incorrect. See Moore v. Tangipahoa Par. Sch. Bd., 507 F. App’x 389, 392 (5th Cir. 2013) (citing Wildmon v. Berwick Universal Pictures, 983 F.2d 21, 23 (5th Cir. 1992)) (“We review a district court’s denial of a stay pending appeal for abuse of discretion.”).

gross negligence, criminal misconduct, or willful misconduct” and Charitable DAF’s causes of action—breach of fiduciary duty, breach of contract, negligence, and RICO—appear to fit within these categories of claims. Id. at 490–504, 2398–99. Further, Charitable DAF continued to participate by responding to HCM’s motion to dismiss and participating in the hearing regarding the motion to dismiss. See Section III(A) supra. Lastly and importantly, Charitable DAF did not even attempt to address the traditional stay elements. R. at 2087 (“I guess one might say the traditional four-factor test for a stay of a proceeding has really not been the subject of the argument here for a stay.”). Without argument on the factors for a stay, this Court lacks any basis to overturn the bankruptcy court.

The bankruptcy court’s Motion to Stay Order is AFFIRMED.

IV.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court REVERSES and REMANDS the bankruptcy court’s Motion to Dismiss Order and AFFIRMS the bankruptcy court’s Motion to Stay Order.

Memorandum. Notwithstanding the foregoing or anything to the contrary set forth herein, no transaction that is specifically authorized in the governing documents of the Company shall require approval of the Advisory Board, including, without limitation, sales or securitizations of all or a portion of the Company's loan portfolio into new Qualifying CLOs (i.e. the transfer of warehoused assets into new Qualifying CLOs), investments in CLO Notes issued by CLOs managed by Highland Affiliates, and the NexBank Credit Facility and any Permitted NexBank Credit Facility Amendments, in each case as described in the Offering Memorandum. - 4.4 Term of Members of Advisory Board. A member of the Advisory Board shall be deemed removed from the Advisory Board (i) if such member is no longer an officer, director, manager, trustee, employee, consultant or other representative of CLO Holdco or Dover IX, as applicable, or their respective Affiliates and shall be replaced as soon as practicable with a representative of CLO Holdco or Dover IX, or their respective Affiliates, as applicable, or (ii) if the Member represented by such member either becomes a Defaulting Member or such member ceases to be eligible to represent such Member pursuant to Clause 4.1.
- 4.5 No Duties to Other Members. No Advisory Board member who is the representative of any Member shall, to the extent permitted by law, owe a fiduciary duty to the Company or any other Member (other than the duty to act in good faith), and may, to the fullest extent permitted by law, in all instances act in such member's own interest and in the interest of the Member that appointed such member.

5. DEFAULTING MEMBERS

- 5.1 In the event any Member defaults in its obligation to pay the full amount of the purchase price of Shares called for settlement under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement on the applicable Settlement Date (such unpaid amount, an "Outstanding Settlement Amount"), the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, shall provide written or telephonic notice of such default to such Member. If such default is not cured within 5 business days after written (or if applicable telephonic or email) notice thereof given by the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, has been received by such Member, such Outstanding Settlement Amount shall automatically accrue interest on a retroactive basis from the date such Outstanding Settlement Amount was due at 12% (the "Default Interest Rate") (which interest, once paid, shall not be applied to the purchase of the unsettled Shares of such Member, but which will upon receipt be distributed pro rata to those Members who have funded any such Outstanding Settlement Amounts pursuant to this Clause 5). No such Shares which have failed to be settled will be issued to any Member until settlement of the full amount of the purchase price has been made. In addition, if such default is not cured within 10 business days after written or telephonic notice thereof given by the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, has been received by such Member (a "Defaulting Member"), the following provisions shall apply:
 - 5.2 Whenever the vote or consent of the Defaulting Member would otherwise be required or permitted hereunder or under the Articles, the Defaulting Member shall not be entitled to participate in such vote or consent in respect of his existing shareholding and with respect to any representative of such Defaulting Member on the Advisory Board, and such vote or consent shall be calculated as if such Defaulting Member were not a Member and, as applicable, any representative of such Defaulting Member on the Advisory Board were not a member of the Advisory Board.
 - 5.3 The Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may pursue and enforce all rights and remedies available, including the commencement of legal proceedings against the Defaulting Member to collect the Outstanding Settlement Amounts, together with interest thereon for the account of the Company from the date due at the Default Interest Rate, plus the costs and expenses of collection (including attorneys' fees and expenses).

- 5.4 The Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may (at the sole cost of the Defaulting Member) borrow funds from any person (other than the Defaulting Member or its Affiliates) to cover such shortfall and/or advance all or a portion of the Defaulting Member's Outstanding Settlement Amount to the Company on behalf of the Defaulting Member, and such advance shall be repaid by the Defaulting Member to the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, with interest for the account of the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, on the amount outstanding from time to time commencing on the date of the advance at the Default Interest Rate. To the extent the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, advances funds to the Company on behalf of a Defaulting Member, all distributions from the Company that would otherwise be made to the Defaulting Member shall be paid to the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, (with any such amounts being applied first against accrued but unpaid interest and then against principal), until all amounts payable by the Defaulting Member to the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, under this Clause 5.4 (including interest) have been paid in full.
- 5.5 The Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may elect, upon notice to the Defaulting Member, to redeem the Defaulting Member's shares in an amount equal to 50% of the outstanding amount existing as of the date of the default at a price of $0.0001 per Share. Thereupon, the commitment of the Defaulting Member under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement shall be zero, the Defaulting Member shall not be obligated to make any further settlements, the voting capital of such Defaulting Member and of each other Member shall be re-determined as of the date of such default to reflect the new commitment of the Defaulting Member, and the Portfolio Manager shall revise the books and records of the Company to reflect the reduction of the commitment of the Defaulting Member. The Members agree (x) that the damages suffered by the Company as the result of a failure by a Member to settle a commitment to purchase Shares that is required by this Agreement cannot be estimated with reasonable accuracy and (y) that the foregoing provisions of this Clause 5.5 shall act as liquidated damages for the default by the Defaulting Member (which each Member hereby agrees are reasonable).
- 5.6 The Board may offer to the non-Defaulting Members (pro rata in accordance with their respective Commitments) the option of purchasing the Defaulting Member's unsettled Shares on the terms set forth in the applicable Settlement Notice (as defined in the Subscription and Transfer Agreement).
- 5.7 At the election of the Board, distributions of dividends otherwise payable to the Defaulting Member under the Articles shall not be paid to the Defaulting Member, but instead shall be applied against the amount of the Outstanding Settlement Amount (plus interest at the Default Interest Rate and related costs); provided that any amounts so applied shall be deemed to have been distributed to the Defaulting Member under the Articles.
- 5.8 The Portfolio Manager may send an amended or new Settlement Notice to the Members other than the Defaulting Member in an amount equal to the Defaulting Member's Outstanding Settlement Amount and otherwise in accordance with the Subscription and Transfer Agreement.
- 5.9 Each Defaulting Member further appoints the Portfolio Manager as agent and attorney-in-fact for the Defaulting Member and hereby grants to the Portfolio Manager an irrevocable power of attorney to take all actions necessary on its behalf to sell, assign, or transfer the commitment to purchase unsettled Shares of such Defaulting Member pursuant to Clause 5.6 or as necessary on its behalf to effect the other remedies or rights set forth in this Clause 5; provided that the Portfolio Manager shall not bind any Defaulting Member to an indemnification or other similar obligation which guarantees the financial performance of the Company or which exceeds the ability of the Defaulting Member to provide indemnification under applicable law.
6. TRANSFERS OR DISPOSALS OF SHARES
- 6.1 No Member shall sell, pledge, charge, mortgage, assign, assign by way of security, transfer, convey, exchange or otherwise dispose of its Shares or its commitment to settle purchases of Shares under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement (each a "Transfer"), other than to an Affiliate of an initial Member party hereto, without the prior written consent of the Portfolio

Manager, which consent shall be in the sole discretion of the Portfolio Manager; provided that no such Transfer shall be made unless in the opinion of counsel reasonably satisfactory to the Portfolio Manager (who may be counsel for the Company, and which requirement for an opinion may be waived, in whole or in part, in the sole discretion of the Portfolio Manager) that:

- 6.1.1 such Transfer would not require registration under the Securities Act or any state securities or "Blue Sky" laws or other laws applicable to the Shares to be assigned or transferred and is conducted in conformance with the restrictions set forth in the Offering Memorandum;
 - 6.1.2 such Transfer would not be reasonably likely to cause the Company to be subject to tax in any jurisdiction other than of its incorporation on a net income basis, not be reasonably likely to cause the Company to become subject to registration as an investment company under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended;
 - 6.1.3 such Transfer would not cause the Company to be considered to be an entity whose underlying assets are considered to include "plan assets" by reason of investment by an "employee benefit plan" or "plan" in such entity pursuant to the U.S. Plan Assets Regulations; and
 - 6.1.4 such sale, assignment, disposition or transfer would not to cause all or any portion of the assets of the Company to constitute "plan assets" under ERISA or the Code.
- 6.2 Prior to making any Transfer of Shares (other than Transfers to Affiliates of an initial Member or, in the case of CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal, to Highland, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal) a Member must first offer to the other Members a right to purchase the Shares, on a pro rata basis with respect to their current Shares, at the same price (which must be cash) as such Shares are proposed to be purchased by the prospective third party purchaser pursuant to an irrevocable offer letter. The other Members will have 30 days following receipt of the letter to determine whether to purchase their entire pro rata portion of the Shares proposed to be Transferred. If the other Members do not accept the offer, the Member may (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement) Transfer the applicable Shares that such Members have not elected to purchase to a third party at a price equal to or greater than the price described in the offer letter, provided that if the Member has not (a) entered into a definitive agreement to effect such sale within 90 days after the expiration of the period that the other Members have to accept the offer in the offer letter or (b) consummated the sale within 120 day after the entry into the definitive agreement to consummate the sale, it must comply with these right of first refusal procedures again. Any Member (other than the Member proposing to Transfer its Shares) may assign its right to purchase its pro rata portion of the Shares to any other Member (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement), any initial Member (other than the Member proposing to Transfer its Shares) may assign its right to purchase its pro rata portion of the Shares to an Affiliate (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement), and CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals (unless such Member is the Member proposing the Transfer its Shares) may assign its right to purchase its pro rata portion of the Shares to Highland, an Affiliate of Highland or other Highland Principals (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement).
- 6.3 No Highland Principal may transfer his or its interests in the Company other than (i) to a trust or other tax or estate planning vehicle or (ii) to the Portfolio Manager, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal upon the termination of such Highland Principal's (or the beneficial owner of such Highland Principal, if applicable) employment by Highland Capital Management, L.P.
- 6.4 Any transferor of any Share shall remain bound by the terms of this Agreement applicable to it prior to such transfer and that nothing in this Agreement shall constitute a waiver of any rights a Party to this Agreement may have by reason of a breach of this Agreement by a transferor prior to transfer. The transferor and/or the transferee shall bear all costs of any Transfer.
- 6.5 The Parties agree not to Transfer their Shares to any person unless such transferee agrees to be bound by the terms of this Agreement.
- 6.6 All Adherence Agreements executed pursuant to this Clause shall be executed by the transferee or allottee and each Party.

7. CONFIDENTIALITY

- 7.1 Each Party agrees to keep any information received by it pursuant to this Agreement or relating to the Business as confidential and not (save with the relevant Party's consent or as may be required by Law or the rules of any regulatory authority or any stock exchange) disclose to any person such information.
- 7.2 Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Parties agree that the HarbourVest Entities may disclose to their limited partners and prospective limited partners (including any agents of such limited partners or prospective limited partners), clients and applicable governmental agencies (a) the name and address of the Company, (b) the capital commitment and the remaining capital commitment, (c) the net asset value of such HarbourVest Entity's interest in the Company, (d) the amount of distributions that have been made to such HarbourVest Entity by the Company and the amount of contributions that have been made by such HarbourVest Entity to the Company, (e) such ratios and performance information calculated by such HarbourVest Entity using the information in clauses (a) through (d) above, including the ratio of net asset value plus distributions to contributions (i.e., the "multiple") and such HarbourVest Entity's internal rate of return with respect to its investment in the Company, and (f) tax information with respect to the Company.

8. DIVIDENDS

- 8.1 The Company agrees that it shall not, and the Portfolio Manager agrees it shall not cause the Company to, make any dividends except pursuant to the section titled “Summary—Dividend Policy” of the Offering Memorandum.

9. TERM OF THE COMPANY

- 9.1 Each Party agrees to cause the winding up and dissolution of the Company after the ten year anniversary of the date hereof (the “Term”); provided that the Portfolio Manager, in its reasonable discretion, may postpone dissolution of the Company for up to 180 days in order to facilitate orderly liquidation of the investments; provided, further, that the Term shall be automatically extended for any amount of time for which the Investment Period may be extended.
- 9.2 Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Term may be extended with the consent of the Portfolio Manager and the Advisory Board for up to two successive periods of one year each.

10. ERISA MATTERS

- 10.1 The Portfolio Manager, the Company and each Member shall use their reasonable best efforts to conduct the affairs and operations of the Company so as to limit investment in the Company by “benefit plan investors” (within the meaning of the DOL Regulations as modified by section 3(42) of ERISA) to less than the U.S. Plan Threshold. In the event the U.S. Plan Threshold is met or exceeded, the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may require any Non-Qualified Holder that is a U.S. Plan Investor to sell or transfer their Shares to a person qualified to own the same that is not a U.S. Plan Investor within 30 days and within such 30 days and to provide the Company with satisfactory evidence of such sale or transfer such that such sale or transfer, together with other sale or transfers pursuant to this Clause, would result in the investment in the Company by “benefit plan investors” (within the meaning of the DOL Regulations as modified by section 3(42) of ERISA) to be less than the U.S. Plan Threshold. Where the conditions above are not satisfied within 30 days after the serving of the notice to transfer, such Non-Qualified Holder will be deemed, upon the expiration of such 30 days, to have forfeited their Shares.

11. TAX MATTERS

- 11.1 PFIC. For each fiscal year of the Company, the Company will no later than 120 days after the end of such fiscal year, commencing with the first fiscal year for which the Company is determined to be a PFIC (a "passive foreign investment company"), furnish to each of the 16.2 If any provision in the memorandum of incorporation of the Company or the Articles conflicts with any provision of this Agreement, the provisions of this Agreement shall prevail as between the Parties. Each of the Parties shall, to the extent that it is able to do so, exercise its voting rights and other powers in relation to the Company to procure the modification of the memorandum of association of the Company or the Articles (as the case may be) in order to eliminate the conflict, but this Agreement shall not itself constitute a modification of the memorandum of association of the Company or the Articles.

17. ASSIGNMENTS

Save as expressly permitted by this Agreement, no person may assign, or grant any security interest over, any of its rights under this Agreement or any document referred to in it without the prior written consent of the Parties.

The Investment Advisor shall have no authority to act for, represent, bind or obligate the Fund or its subsidiaries or the General Partner except as specifically provided herein.

7. Investments. ALL ULTIMATE INVESTMENT DECISIONS WITH RESPECT TO THE FUND AND ITS SUBSIDIARIES SHALL AT ALL TIMES REST SOLELY WITH THE GENERAL PARTNER AND/OR THE OFFICERS/DIRECTORS OF THE APPLICABLE SUBSIDIARY, IT BEING EXPRESSLY UNDERSTOOD THAT THE GENERAL PARTNER AND/OR THE OFFICERS/DIRECTORS OF THE APPLICABLE SUBSIDIARY SHALL BE FREE TO ACCEPT AND OR REJECT ANY OF THE ADVICE RENDERED BY THE INVESTMENT MANAGER HEREUNDER FOR ANY REASON OR FOR NO REASON.

8. Reimbursement by the General Partner. The Investment Advisor may retain, in connection with its responsibilities hereunder, the services of others to assist in the investment advice to be given to the General Partner with respect to the Fund and/or its subsidiaries (any such appointee, a “Sub-Advisor”), including, but not limited to, any affiliate of the Investment Advisor, but payment for any such services shall be assumed by the Investment Advisor, and, therefore, neither the General Partner nor the Fund or any of its subsidiaries shall have any liability therefor; provided, however, that the Investment Advisor, in its sole discretion, may retain the services of independent third party professionals, including, without limitation, attorneys, accountants and consultants, to advise and assist it in connection with the performance of its activities on behalf of the General Partner with respect to the Fund and/or its subsidiaries hereunder, and the Fund shall bear full responsibility therefor and the expense of any fees and disbursements arising therefrom.

9. Expenses.

(a) The Fund shall pay or reimburse the Investment Advisor and its affiliates for all expenses related to the services hereunder, including, but not limited to, investment-related expenses, brokerage commissions and other transaction costs, expenses related to clearing and settlement charges, professional fees relating to legal, auditing or valuation services, any governmental, regulatory, licensing, filing or registration fees incurred in compliance with the rules of any self-regulatory organization or any federal, state or local laws, research-related expenses (including, without limitation, news and quotation equipment and services, investment and trading-related software, including, without limitation, trade order management software (i.e., software used to route trade orders)), accounting (including accounting software), tax preparation expenses, costs and expenses associated with reporting and providing information to the Fund, any taxes imposed upon the Fund (including, but not limited to, collateralized debt obligations managed by the Investment Advisor or its affiliates), fees relating to valuing the Financial Instruments, and extraordinary expenses. In no event shall any of the foregoing costs or expenses include any salaries, occupational expense or general overhead of the Investment Advisor. For the avoidance of doubt, (i) the cost of all third party expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement shall not exceed standard market rates (which may include standard soft dollar arrangements) and (ii) to the extent any of the foregoing expenses were incurred on behalf of, or benefit of a number of Investment Advisor’s advised accounts, such expenses shall be allocated pro rata among such accounts.

(b) To the extent that expenses to be borne by the Fund are paid by the Investment Advisor or by any Sub-Advisor, the Fund shall reimburse the Investment Advisor (or Sub-Advisors, as applicable) for such expenses so long as such expenses are at market rates.

10. Fees.

(a) The Fund shall pay the Investment Advisor a quarterly fee (the “Management Fee”) equal to 2.0% per annum (0.5% per quarter) of the Net Assets (as defined below) of the Fund, payable in advance at and calculated as of the first business day of each calendar quarter. For purposes of calculating the Management Fee, the Net Assets of the Fund will be determined before giving effect to any of the following amounts payable by the Fund generally or in respect of any Investment which are effective as of the date on which such determination is made: (i) any fee payable to the Investment Advisor as of the date on which such determination is made; (ii) any capital withdrawals or distributions payable by the Fund which are effective as of the date on which such determination is made; and (iii) withholding or other taxes, expenses of processing withdrawals and other items payable, any increases or decreases in any reserves, holdback or other amounts specially allocated ending as of the date on which such determination is made. The Management Fee shall be prorated for partial periods and any applicable excess fees should be returned to the Fund by the Investment Advisor. Capital contributions made to the Fund after the commencement of a calendar quarter shall be subject to a prorated Management Fee based on the number of days remaining during such quarter.

(b) Subject to clauses (c) and (d) below, at the end of each Calculation Period (as defined below), an amount equal to 20% of the net capital appreciation of the Fund’s Investments (as defined below) after deducting the Management Fee shall be paid to the Investment Advisor (the “Performance Fee”); provided, however, that the net capital appreciation upon which the calculation of the Performance is based shall be reduced to the extent of any unrecovered balance remaining in the Loss Recovery Account (as defined below) maintained on the books and records of the Fund. The amount of the unrecovered balance remaining in the Loss Recovery Account at the time of calculating the Performance Fee shall be the amount existing immediately prior to its reduction pursuant to the second clause of the second sentence of clause (c) below.

(c) There shall be established on the books of the Fund a memorandum account (the “Loss Recovery Account”), the opening balance of which shall be zero. At the end of each Calculation Period, the balance in the Loss Recovery Account shall be adjusted as follows: first, if there has been, in the aggregate, net capital depreciation of the Fund’s Investments (as adjusted pursuant to the last sentence of this paragraph) since the end of the immediately preceding Calculation Period (or with respect to the initial Calculation Period, since the Effective Date), an amount equal to such net capital depreciation shall be credited to the Loss Recovery Account, and, second, if there has been, in the aggregate, net capital appreciation of the Fund’s investments (as adjusted pursuant to the last sentence of this paragraph) since the end of the immediately preceding Calculation Period, an amount equal to such net capital appreciation, before taking into account any Performance Fee to be paid to the Investment Advisor, shall be debited to and reduce any unrecovered balance in the Loss Recovery Account, but not below zero. Solely for purposes of this paragraph, in determining the Loss Recovery Account, net capital appreciation and net capital depreciation for any applicable Calculation Period shall be calculated by taking into account the amount of the Management Fee paid for such period.

(d) In the event that all or a portion of the Fund's capital is distributed or withdrawn while there exists an unrecovered balance in the Loss Recovery Account, the unrecovered balance in the Loss Recovery Account shall be reduced as of the beginning of the next Calculation Period by an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the balance in such Loss Recovery Account by a fraction, the numerator of which is the amount distributed or withdrawn with respect to the immediately preceding distribution or withdrawal date, and the denominator of which is the total fair value of the Fund's Investment immediately prior to such distribution or withdrawal.

(e) For purposes of this Section 10, the net capital appreciation and net capital depreciation of the Fund's Investments for any given period will be calculation in accordance with the then current valuation policy of the Investment Advisor, a copy of which will be provided upon the General Partner's request. As soon as reasonably practicable following the end of a Calculation Period, the Investment Advisor shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the General Partner a statement showing the calculation of the Performance Fee, if any, with respect to such Calculation Period. The Performance Fee, if any, shall be payable within three (3) business days of the General Partner's receipt of such statement.

(f) Payments due to the Investment Advisor shall be made by wire transfer to:

Bank Name: Compass Bank
ABA#: 113010547
FBO: Highland Capital Management, L.P. (Master Operating Account)
Acct#: 0025876342

(g) For purposes of this Section 10, the following terms have the definitions set forth below:

"Calculation Period" means the period commencing on the Effective Date (in the case of the initial Calculation Period) and thereafter each period commencing as of the day following the last day of the preceding Calculation Period, and ending as of the close of business on the first to occur of the following: (i) the last day of a calendar year; (ii) the distribution or withdrawal of capital of the Fund (but only with respect to such distributed or withdrawn amount); (iii) the permitted transfer of all or any portion of a partner's interest in the Fund; and (iv) the final capital distribution of the Fund following its dissolution;

"Investments" means all investments, securities, cash, receivables, financial instruments, contracts and other assets, whether tangible or intangible, owned by the Fund;

“Net Assets” means, with respect to the Fund as of any date, the excess of the total fair value of all Investments over the total liabilities, debts and obligations of the Fund, in each case, calculated on an accrual basis in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States and the then current valuation policy of the Service Provider, a copy of which will be provided to the General Partner upon request; and

“Services Agreement” means that certain Second Amended and Restated Service Agreement, dated effective as of the Effective Date, by and among the Parties, as amended, restated, modified and supplemented from time to time.

11. Exculpation; Indemnification.

(a) Whether or not herein expressly so provided, every provision of this Agreement relating to the conduct or affecting the liability of or affording protection to the Investment Advisor, its members or any of their respective affiliates and their respective partners, members, officers, directors, employees, shareholders and agents (including parties acting as agents for the execution of transactions) (each, a “Covered Person” and collectively, “Covered Persons”) shall be subject to the provisions of this Section.

(b) To the fullest extent permitted by law, no Covered Person shall be liable to the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries or anyone for any reason whatsoever (including but not limited to (i) any act or omission by any Covered Person in connection with the conduct of the business of the General Partner or the Fund, that is determined by such Covered Person in good faith to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the General Partner or the Fund, (ii) any act or omission by any Covered Person based on the suggestions of any professional advisor of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries whom such Covered Person believes is authorized to make such suggestions on behalf of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, (iii) any act or omission by the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, or (iv) any mistake, negligence, misconduct or bad faith of any broker or other agent of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries selected by Covered Person with reasonable care), unless any act or omission by such Covered Person constitutes willful misconduct or gross negligence by such Covered Person (as determined by a non-appealable judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction).

(c) Covered Persons may consult with legal counsel or accountants selected by such Covered Person and any act or omission by such Covered Person on behalf of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries or in furtherance of the business of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries in good faith in reliance on and in accordance with the advice of such counsel or accountants shall be full justification for the act or omission, and such Covered Person shall be fully protected in so acting or omitting to act if the counsel or accountants were selected with reasonable care.

Party”), from and against any and all claims, liabilities, damages, losses, costs and expenses, including amounts paid in satisfaction of judgments, in compromises and settlements, as fines and penalties and legal or other costs and expenses of investigating or defending against any claim or alleged claim, of any nature whatsoever, known or unknown, liquidated or unliquidated, that are incurred by any Indemnified Party and arise out of or in connection with the business of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, any investment made under or in connection with this Agreement, or the performance by the Indemnified Party of Covered Person’s responsibilities hereunder and against all taxes, charges, duties or levies incurred by such Covered Person or any Indemnified Party in connection with the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, provided that an Indemnified Party shall not be entitled to indemnification hereunder to the extent the Indemnified Party’s conduct constitutes willful misconduct or gross negligence (as determined by a non-appealable judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction). The termination of any proceeding by settlement, judgment, order or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the Indemnified Party’s conduct constituted willful misconduct or gross negligence.

(e) Expenses incurred by an Indemnified Party in defense or settlement of any claim that shall be subject to a right of indemnification hereunder, shall be advanced by the General Partner prior to the final disposition thereof upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the Indemnified Party to repay the amount advanced to the extent that it shall be determined ultimately that the Indemnified Party is not entitled to be indemnified hereunder.

(f) The right of any Indemnified Party to the indemnification provided herein shall be cumulative of, and in addition to, any and all rights to which the Indemnified Party may otherwise be entitled by contract or as a matter of law or equity and shall be extended to the Indemnified Party’s successors, assigns and legal representatives.

(g) The provisions of this Section are expressly intended to confer benefits upon Covered Persons and such provisions shall remain operative and in full force and effect regardless of the expiration or any termination of this Agreement.

(h) In no event shall any Covered Person be liable for special, exemplary, punitive, indirect, or consequential loss, or damage of any kind whatsoever, including without limitation lost profits.

(i) No Covered Person shall be liable hereunder for any settlement of any action or claim effected without its written consent thereto.

(j) Pursuant to the exculpation and indemnification provisions described above, the Investment Advisor and each Indemnified Party will generally not be liable to the General Partner or the Fund for any act or omission (or alleged act or omission), absent bad faith, willful misconduct, fraud or gross negligence, and the General Partner and the Fund will generally be required to indemnify such persons against any Losses they may incur by reason of any act or omission (or alleged act or omission) related to the General Partner, the Fund or its subsidiaries, absent bad faith, willful misconduct, fraud or gross negligence. As a result of these provisions, the General Partner, the Fund and its subsidiaries, as applicable (not the Investment Advisor or any other Indemnified Party) will be responsible for any Losses resulting from trading errors and similar human errors, absent bad faith, willful misconduct, fraud or gross negligence or the ability to waive or limit such Losses under applicable law. Trading errors might include, for example, keystroke errors that occur when entering trades into an electronic trading system or typographical or drafting errors related to derivatives contracts or similar agreements. Given the volume of transactions executed by the Investment Advisor and its affiliates on behalf of the Fund and/or its subsidiaries, the General Partner acknowledges that trading errors (and similar errors) will occur and that the General Partner will be responsible for any resulting Losses, even if such Losses result from the negligence (but not gross negligence) of the Investment Advisor or its affiliates.

12. Activities of the Investment Advisor and Others. The Investment Advisor, and its affiliates may engage, simultaneously with their investment management activities on behalf of the Fund, in other businesses, and may render services similar to those described in this Agreement to other individuals, companies, trusts or persons, and shall not by reason of such engaging in other businesses or rendering of services for others be deemed to be acting in conflict with the interests of the Fund. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Investment Advisor and its affiliates shall devote as much time to provide advisory service to the General Partner with respect to the management of the Fund's assets as the Investment Advisor deems necessary and appropriate. In addition, the Investment Advisor or any of its affiliates, in their individual capacities, may engage in securities transactions which may be different than, and contrary to, the investment advice provided by the Investment Advisor to the General Partner with respect to the Fund. The Investment Advisor may give advice and recommend securities to, or buy securities for, accounts and other clients, which advice or securities may differ from advice given to, or securities recommended or bought for, the Fund, even though their investment objectives may be the same or similar. The Investment Advisor may recommend transactions in securities and other assets in which the Investment Advisor has an interest, including securities or other assets issued by affiliates of the Investment Manager. Each of the General Partner and the Fund acknowledges that it has received, reviewed and had an opportunity with respect to (a) a copy of Part 2 of the Investment Advisor's Form ADV, and (b) the supplemental disclosures attached hereto as Exhibit A, each of which further describes conflicts of interest relating to the Investment Advisor, its affiliates and their respective advised accounts.

13. Term. This Agreement shall remain in effect through an initial term concluding December 31, 2017 and shall be automatically extended for additional one-year terms thereafter, except that it may be terminated by the Investment Advisor, on the one hand, or by the General Partner and the Fund, on the other hand, upon at least 90 days' prior written notice to the General Partner or the Investment Advisor, as the case may be, prior to General Partner's fiscal year-end.

14. Miscellaneous.

(b) Entire Agreement. This Agreement contains all of the terms agreed upon or made by the parties relating to the subject matter of this Agreement, and supersedes all prior and contemporaneous agreements, negotiations, correspondence, undertakings and communications of the parties, oral or written, respecting such subject matter.

(c) Amendments and Waivers. No provision of this Agreement may be amended, modified, waived or discharged except as agreed to in writing by the parties. No amendment to this Agreement may be made without first obtaining the required approval from the Fund. The failure of a party to insist upon strict adherence to any term of this Agreement on any occasion shall not be considered a waiver thereof or deprive that party of the right thereafter to insist upon strict adherence to that term or any other term of this Agreement.

(d) Binding Effect; Assignment. This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the General Partner, the Fund, the Investment Advisor, each Indemnified Party and their respective successors and permitted assigns. Any person that is not a signatory to this Agreement but is nevertheless conferred any rights or benefits hereunder (e.g., officers, partners and personnel of the Investment Advisor and others who are entitled to indemnification hereunder) shall be entitled to such rights and benefits as if such person were a signatory hereto, and the rights and benefits of such person hereunder may not be impaired without such person's express written consent. No party to this Agreement may assign (as such term is defined under the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended) all or any portion of its rights, obligations or liabilities under this Agreement without the prior written consent of the other parties to this Agreement; provided; however, that the Investment Advisor may assign all or any portion of its rights, obligations and liabilities hereunder to any of its affiliates at its discretion.

(e) Governing Law. Notwithstanding the place where this Agreement may be executed by any of the parties thereto, the parties expressly agree that all terms and provisions hereof shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Texas applicable to agreements made and to be performed in that State.

(f) Jurisdiction; Venue; Waiver of Jury Trial. The Parties hereby agree that any action, claim, litigation, or proceeding of any kind whatsoever against any other Party in any way arising from or relating to this Agreement and all contemplated transactions, including claims sounding in contract, equity, tort, fraud and statute (“Dispute”) shall be submitted exclusively to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas or, if such court does not have subject matter jurisdiction, the courts of the State of Texas sitting in Dallas County, and any appellate court thereof (“Enforcement Court”). Each Party irrevocably and unconditionally submits to the exclusive personal and subject matter jurisdiction of the Enforcement Court for any Dispute and agrees to bring any Dispute only in the Enforcement Court. Each Party further agrees it shall not commence any Dispute in any forum, including administrative, arbitration, or litigation, other than the Enforcement Court. Each Party agrees that a final judgment in any such action, litigation, or proceeding is conclusive and may be enforced in other jurisdictions by suit on the judgment or in any other manner provided by law.

EACH PARTY IRREVOCABLY AND UNCONDITIONALLY WAIVES, TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, ANY RIGHT IT MAY HAVE TO A TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY LEGAL ACTION, PROCEEDING, CAUSE OF ACTION OR COUNTERCLAIM ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THIS AGREEMENT, INCLUDING ANY EXHIBITS, SCHEDULES, AND APPENDICES ATTACHED TO THIS AGREEMENT, OR THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED HEREBY. EACH PARTY CERTIFIES AND ACKNOWLEDGES THAT (A) NO REPRESENTATIVE OF THE OTHER PARTY HAS REPRESENTED, EXPRESSLY OR OTHERWISE, THAT THE OTHER PARTY WOULD NOT SEEK TO ENFORCE THE FOREGOING WAIVER IN THE EVENT OF A LEGAL ACTION, (B) IT HAS CONSIDERED THE IMPLICATIONS OF THIS WAIVER, (C) IT MAKES THIS WAIVER KNOWINGLY AND VOLUNTARILY, AND (D) IT HAS BEEN INDUCED TO ENTER INTO THIS AGREEMENT BY, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE MUTUAL WAIVERS AND CERTIFICATIONS IN THIS SECTION.

Nothing in this Section 14(f) shall be construed to limit either party’s right to obtain equitable or injunctive relief in a court of competent jurisdiction in appropriate circumstances.

(g) Headings. The headings contained in this Agreement are intended solely for convenience and shall not affect the rights of the parties to this Agreement.

(h) Counterparts. This Agreement may be signed in any number of counterparts with the same effect as if the signatures to each counterpart were upon a single instrument, and all such counterparts together shall be deemed an original of this Agreement.

(i) Survival. The provisions of Sections 8, 9, 10, 11 and 14 hereof shall survive the termination of this Agreement.

(j) Pronouns. All pronouns shall be deemed to refer to the masculine, feminine, neuter, singular or plural as the identity of the person or persons’ firm or company may require in the context thereof.

(k) Arm's-Length Agreement. The General Partner and the Fund have approved this Agreement and reviewed the activities described in Section 12 and in the Investment Advisor's Form ADV and the risks related thereto.

EXHIBIT A

Supplemental Disclosures

Potential Conflicts of Interest

The scope of the activities of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Investment Adviser”), its affiliates, and the funds and clients managed or advised by the Investment Adviser or any of its affiliates may give rise to conflicts of interest or other restrictions and/or limitations imposed on Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. and its subsidiaries (collectively, the “Fund”) in the future that cannot be foreseen or mitigated at this time. The following briefly summarizes some of these conflicts, but is not intended to be an exhaustive list of all such conflicts. Additional conflicts are described in the Investment Adviser’s Form ADV. You are urged to review the Investment Adviser’s Form ADV in its entirety prior to investing in the Fund.¹

Highland Group & Highland Accounts. None of the Investment Adviser, its affiliates and their respective officers, directors, shareholders, members, partners, personnel and employees (collectively, the “Highland Group”) is precluded from engaging in or owning an interest in other business ventures or investment activities of any kind, whether or not such ventures are competitive with the Fund. The Investment Adviser is permitted to manage other client accounts, and does manage other client accounts, some of which may have objectives similar or identical to those of the Fund, including other collective investment vehicles that may be managed by the Highland Group and in which the Investment Adviser or any of its affiliates may have an equity interest.

The Fund will be subject to a number of actual and potential conflicts of interest involving the Highland Group including, among other things, the fact that: (i) the Highland Group conducts substantial investment activities for accounts, funds, collateralized debt obligations and collateralized loan obligations that invest in leveraged loans (collectively, “CDOs”) and other vehicles managed by members of the Highland Group (collectively, “Highland Accounts”) in which the Fund has no interest; (ii) the Highland Group advises Highland Accounts, which utilize the same, similar or different methodologies as the Fund and may have financial incentives (including, without limitation, as it relates to the composition of investors in such funds and accounts or to the Highland Group’s compensation arrangements) to favor certain Highland Accounts over the Fund; (iii) the Highland Group may use the strategy described herein in certain Highland Accounts; (iv) the Investment Adviser may give advice and recommend securities to, or buy or sell securities for, the Fund, which advice or securities may differ from advice given to, or securities recommended or bought or sold for, Highland Accounts; (v) the Investment Adviser has the discretion, to the extent permitted under applicable law, to use its affiliates as service providers to the Fund and its portfolio investments; (vi) certain investors affiliated with the Highland Group may choose to personally invest only in certain funds advised by the Highland Group and the amounts invested by them in such funds is expected to vary significantly; (vii) the Highland Group and Highland Accounts may actively engage in transactions in the same securities sought by the

Fund and, therefore, may compete with the Fund for investment opportunities or may hold positions opposite to positions maintained by the Fund; (viii) the Fund may invest in CDOs and Highland Accounts managed by members of the Highland Group; and (ix) the Investment Adviser will devote to the Fund only as much time as the Investment Adviser deems necessary and appropriate to manage the Fund's business.

The Investment Adviser undertakes to resolve conflicts in a fair and equitable basis, which in some instances may mean a resolution that would not maximize the benefit to the Fund's investors.

Allocation of Trading Opportunities. It is the policy of the Investment Adviser to allocate investment opportunities fairly and equitably over time. This means that such opportunities will be allocated among those accounts for which participation in the respective opportunity is considered appropriate, taking into account, among other considerations: (i) fiduciary duties owed to the accounts; (ii) the primary mandate of the accounts; (iii) the capital available to the accounts; (iv) any restrictions on the accounts and the investment opportunity; (v) the sourcing of the investment, size of the investment and amount of follow-on available related to the investment; (vi) whether the risk-return profile of the proposed investment is consistent with the account's objectives and program, whether such objectives are considered in light of the specific investment under consideration or in the context of the portfolio's overall holdings; (vii) the potential for the proposed investment to create an imbalance in the account's portfolio (taking into account expected inflows and outflows of capital); (viii) liquidity requirements of the account; (ix) potentially adverse tax consequences; (x) regulatory and other restrictions that would or could limit an account's ability to participate in a proposed investment; and (xi) the need to re-size risk in the account's portfolio.

The Investment Adviser has the authority to allocate trades to multiple Highland Accounts on an average price basis or on another basis it deems fair and equitable. Similarly, if an order for any accounts cannot be fully allocated under prevailing market conditions, the Investment Adviser may allocate the trades among different accounts on a basis it considers fair and equitable over time. One or more of the foregoing considerations may (and are often expected to) result in allocations among the Fund and one or more Highland Accounts on other than a pari passu basis. The Investment Adviser will allocate investment opportunities across its accounts for which the opportunities are appropriate, consistent with (i) its internal conflict of interest and allocation policies and (ii) the requirements of the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended. The Investment Adviser will seek to allocate investment opportunities among such entities in a manner that is fair and equitable over time and consistent with its allocation policy. However, there is no assurance that such investment opportunities will be allocated to the Fund fairly or equitably in the short-term or over time and there can be no assurance that the Fund will be able to participate in all investment opportunities that are suitable for it.

The Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates may open "average price" accounts with brokers. In an "average price" account, purchase and sale orders placed during a trading day for the Fund, the Highland Accounts or affiliates of the Investment Adviser are combined, and securities bought and sold pursuant to such orders are allocated among such accounts on an average price basis.

Highland Group Trading. As part of their regular business, the members of the Highland Group hold, purchase, sell, trade or take other related actions both for their respective accounts and for the accounts of their respective clients, on a principal or agency basis, with respect to loans, securities and other investments and financial instruments of all types. The members of the Highland Group also provide investment advisory services, among other services, and engage in private equity, real estate and capital markets oriented investment activities. The members of the Highland Group will not be restricted in their performance of any such services or in the types of debt or equity investments which they may make. The members of the Highland Group may have economic interests in or other relationships with obligors or issuers in whose obligations or securities or credit exposures the Fund may invest. In particular, such persons may make and/or hold an investment in an obligor's or issuer's securities that may be pari passu, senior or junior in ranking to an investment in such obligor's or issuer's securities made and/or held by the Fund or in which partners, security holders, members, officers, directors, agents, personnel or employees of such persons serve on boards of directors or otherwise have ongoing relationships. Each of such ownership and other relationships may result in securities laws restrictions on transactions in such securities by the Fund and otherwise create conflicts of interest for the Fund. In such instances, the members of the Highland Group may in their discretion make investment recommendations and decisions that may be the same as or different from those made with respect to the Fund's investments. In connection with any such activities described above, the members of the Highland Group may hold, purchase, sell, trade or take other related actions in securities or investments of a type that may be suitable to investments for the Fund. The members of the Highland Group will not be required to offer such securities or investments to the Fund or provide notice of such activities to the Fund. In addition, in managing the Fund's portfolio, the Investment Adviser may take into account its relationship or the relationships of its affiliates with obligors and their respective affiliates, which may create conflicts of interest. Furthermore, in connection with actions taken in the ordinary course of business of the Investment Adviser in accordance with its fiduciary duties to its other clients, the Investment Adviser may take, or be required to take, actions which adversely affect the interests of the Fund.

The Highland Group has invested and may continue to invest in investments that would also be appropriate for the Fund. Such investments may be different from those made by the Fund. The Highland Group does not have any duty, in making or maintaining such investments, to act in a way that is favorable to the Fund or to offer any such opportunity to the Fund, subject to the Investment Adviser's internal allocation policy. The investment policies, fee arrangements and other circumstances applicable to such other accounts and investments may vary from those applicable to the Fund and its investments. The Highland Group may also provide advisory or other services for a customary fee with respect to investments made or held by the Fund, and neither the Fund nor its investors shall have any right to such fees. The Highland Group may also have ongoing relationships with, render services to or engage in transactions with other clients who make investments of a similar nature to those of the Fund, and with companies whose securities or properties are acquired by the Fund.

As further described below, in connection with the foregoing activities the Highland Group may from time to time come into possession of material nonpublic information that limits the ability of the Investment Adviser to effect a transaction for the Fund, and the Fund's investments may be constrained as a consequence of the Investment Adviser's inability to use such information for advisory purposes or otherwise to effect transactions that otherwise may have been initiated on behalf of its clients, including the Fund.

Although the professional staff of the Investment Adviser will devote as much time to the Fund as the Investment Adviser deems appropriate to perform its duties in accordance with the Fund's advisory agreement and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards, the staff may have conflicts in allocating its time and services among the Fund and the Investment Adviser's other accounts.

Various Activities of the Investment Adviser and its Affiliates. The directors, officers, personnel, employees and agents of the Investment Adviser and its affiliates may, subject to applicable law, serve as directors (whether supervisory or managing), officers, personnel, employees, partners, agents, nominees or signatories or provide banking, agency, insurance and/or other services, and receive arm's length fees in connection with such services, for the Fund or its investments or other entities that operate in the same or a related line of business as the, for other clients managed by the Investment Adviser or its affiliates, or for any obligor or issuer in respect of the CDOs, and the Fund shall have no right to any such fees. In serving in these multiple capacities, they may have obligations to such other clients or investors in those entities, the fulfillment of which may not be in the best interests of the Fund. The Fund may compete with other Highland Accounts for capital and investment opportunities.

There is no limitation or restriction on the Investment Adviser or any of its affiliates with regard to acting as investment adviser or collateral manager (or in a similar role) to other parties or persons. This and other future activities of the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates may give rise to additional conflicts of interest. Such conflicts may relate to obligations that the Investment Adviser's investment committee, the Investment Adviser or its affiliates have to other clients.

The Investment Adviser and its affiliates may participate in creditors or other committees with respect to the bankruptcy, restructuring or workout of an investment of the Fund or another account. In such circumstances, the Investment Adviser or its affiliates may take positions on behalf of themselves or another account that are adverse to the interests of the Fund.

The Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates may act as an underwriter, arranger or placement agent, or otherwise participate in the origination, structuring, negotiation, syndication or offering of CDOs, Highland Accounts and other investments purchased by the Fund. Such transactions shall be subject to fees that are intended to be no greater than arm's-length fees, and the Fund shall have no right to any such fees. There is no expectation for preferential access to transactions involving CDOs and Highland Accounts that are underwritten, originated, arranged or placed by the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates and the Fund shall not have any right to any such fees.

Investments in Highland Accounts Managed by the Investment Manager or its Affiliates. The Fund may invest a significant portion of its capital in Highland Accounts. The Investment Adviser or its affiliates will receive senior and subordinated management fees and, in some cases, a performance-based allocation or fee with respect to its role as general partner and/or manager of the Highland Accounts. If the Fund invests in Highland Accounts in secondary transactions, the Fund will indirectly pay the fees (senior and subordinated) of such Highland Accounts and any carried interest. If the Fund provides all of the equity for a Highland Account, there may be no third party with whom the amount of such fees, expenses and carried interest can be negotiated on an arm's-length basis. The Investment Adviser or its affiliates will have conflicting division of loyalties and responsibilities regarding the Fund and a Highland Account, and certain other conflicts of interest would be inherent in the situation. There can be no assurance that the interests of the Fund would not be subordinated to those of a Highland Account or to other interests of the Investment Adviser.

Multiple Levels of Fees. The Investment Adviser and the Highland Accounts are expected to impose management fees, other administrative fees, carried interest and other performance allocations on realized and unrealized appreciation in the value of the assets managed and other income. This may result in greater expense than if investors in the Fund were able to invest directly in the Highland Accounts or their respective underlying investments. Investors in the Fund should take into account that the return on their investment will be reduced to the extent of both levels of fees. The general partner or manager of a Highland Account may receive the economic benefit of certain fees from its portfolio companies for services and in connection with unconsummated transactions (e.g., break-up, placement, monitoring, directors', organizational and set-up fees and financial advisory fees).

Cross Transactions and Principal Transactions. The Investment Adviser may effect client cross-transactions where the Investment Adviser causes a transaction to be effected between the Fund and another client advised by it or any of its affiliates. The Investment Adviser may engage in a client cross-transaction involving the Fund any time that the Investment Adviser believes such transaction to be fair to the Fund and such other client.

The Investment Adviser may effect principal transactions where the Fund acquires securities from or sells securities to the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates, in each case in accordance with applicable law, which will include the Investment Adviser obtaining independent consent on behalf of the Fund prior to engaging in any such principal transaction between the Fund and the Investment Adviser or its affiliates.

The Investment Adviser may advise the Fund to acquire or dispose of securities in cross trades between the Fund and other clients of the Investment Adviser or its affiliates in accordance with applicable legal and regulatory requirements. In addition, the Fund may invest in securities of obligors or issuers in which the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates have a debt, equity or participation interest, and the holding and sale of such investments by the Fund may enhance the profitability of the Investment Adviser's own investments in such companies. Moreover, the Fund may invest in assets originated by the Investment Adviser or its affiliates. In each such case, the Investment Adviser and such affiliates may have a potentially conflicting division of loyalties and responsibilities regarding the Fund and the other parties to such trade. Under certain circumstances, the Investment Adviser and its affiliates may determine that it is appropriate to avoid such conflicts by selling a security at a fair value that has been calculated pursuant to the Investment Adviser's valuation procedures to another client managed or advised by the Investment Adviser or such affiliates. In addition, the Investment Adviser may enter into agency cross-transactions where it or any of its affiliates acts as broker for the Fund and for the other party to the transaction, to the extent permitted under applicable law. The Investment Adviser may obtain independent consent in writing on behalf of the Fund, which consent may be provided by the managing member of the General Partner or any other independent party on behalf of the Fund, if any such transaction requires the consent of the Fund under Section 206(3) of the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended.

Material Non-Public Information. There are generally no ethical screens or information barriers among the Investment Adviser and certain of its affiliates of the type that many firms implement to separate persons who make investment decisions from others who might possess material, non-public information that could influence such decisions. If the Investment Adviser, any of its personnel or its affiliates were to receive material non-public information about a particular obligor or issuer, or have an interest in causing the Fund to acquire a particular security, the Investment Adviser may be prevented from advising the Fund to purchase or sell such asset due to internal restrictions imposed on the Investment Adviser. Notwithstanding the maintenance of certain internal controls relating to the management of material nonpublic information, it is possible that such controls could fail and result in the Investment Adviser, or one of its investment professionals, buying or selling an asset while, at least constructively, in possession of material non-public information. Inadvertent trading on material nonpublic information could have adverse effects on the Investment Adviser's reputation, result in the imposition of regulatory or financial sanctions, and as a consequence, negatively impact the Investment Adviser's ability to perform its portfolio management services to the Fund. In addition, while the Investment Adviser and certain of its affiliates currently operate without information barriers on an integrated basis, such entities could be required by certain regulations, or decide that it is advisable, to establish information barriers. In such event, the Investment Adviser's ability to operate as an integrated platform could also be impaired, which would limit the Investment Adviser's access to personnel of its affiliates and potentially impair its ability to manage the Fund's investments.

Conflicts Relating to Equity and Debt Ownership by the Fund and Affiliates. In certain circumstances, the Fund and other client accounts may invest in securities or other instruments of the same issuer (or affiliated group of issuers) having a different seniority in the issuer's capital structure. If the issuer becomes insolvent, restructures or suffers financial distress, there may be a conflict between the interests in the Fund and those other accounts insofar as the issuer may be unable (or in the case of a restructuring prior to bankruptcy may be expected to be unable) to satisfy the claims of all classes of its creditors and security holders and the Fund and such other accounts may have competing claims for the remaining assets of such issuers. Under these circumstances it may not be feasible for the Investment Adviser to reconcile the conflicting interests in the Fund and such other accounts in a way that protects the Fund's interests. Additionally, the Investment Adviser or its nominees may in the future hold board or creditors' committee memberships which may require them to vote or take other actions in such capacities that might be conflicting with respect to certain funds managed by the Investment Adviser in that such votes or actions may favor the interests of one account over another account. Furthermore, the Investment Adviser's fiduciary responsibilities in these capacities might conflict with the best interests of the investors.

Other Fees. The Investment Adviser and its affiliates are permitted to receive consulting fees, investment banking fees, advisory fees, breakup fees, director's fees, closing fees, transaction fees and similar fees in connection with actual or contemplated investments. Such fees will not reduce or offset the Management Fee. Conflicts of interest may also arise due to the allocation of such fees to or among co-investors.

Soft Dollars. The Investment Adviser's authority to use "soft dollar" credits generated by the Fund's securities transactions to pay for expenses that might otherwise have been borne by the Investment Adviser may give the Investment Adviser an incentive to select brokers or dealers for transactions, or to negotiate commission rates or other execution terms, in a manner that takes into account the soft dollar benefits received by the Investment Adviser rather than giving exclusive consideration to the interests of the Fund.

DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS COMPLAINT (26)
Court's Ruling - Under Advisement	103

1 THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.

2 All right. We have a setting in the Charitable DAF
3 Fund, et al., v. Highland, Adversary 21-3067. We have three 4 motions that are set.

5 Let me get appearances from the Plaintiffs' counsel
6 first. Go ahead.

7 MR. SBAITI: Good morning, Your Honor. This is Mazin
8 Sbaiti for the Plaintiffs.

9 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

10 Now for the Defendants, who do we have appearing?

11 MR. POMERANTZ: Good morning, Your Honor. It's Jeff
12 Pomerantz and John Morris from Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones.
13 Your Honor, before -- I understand Your Honor is going to take 14 up the motion to stay first.

15 Before Your Honor does so, I have a procedural issue
16 relating to that motion that I would like to address the Court
17 after appearances are made.

18 THE COURT: All right. I assume that's all the 19 lawyer appearances for this adversary.

20 MR. JORDAN: Your Honor?

21 THE COURT: Oh, go ahead.

22 MR. JORDAN: Your Honor, we are a nominal defendant,
23 but John Jordan on behalf of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd.

24 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Sorry about that.

25 MR. BESSETTE: And, Your Honor, Paul Bessette, Mr.

1 Jordan's colleague is on the phone, as well.

2 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

3 All right. Anyone else I missed?

4 (No audible response)

5 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Pomerantz, your 6 procedural issue?

7 MR. POMERANTZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

8 Your Honor, I must once again bring to this Court's
9 attention a violation of the Court Rules by the various counsel
10 representing Mr. Dondero. This time it's by Mr. Sbaiti.

11 When the district court entered its order granting 12 Highland's motion to enforce the reference and referring this 13 matter to Your Honor, there were three matters on the Court's 14 docket, district court's docket that got transferred. First 15 was the motion to dismiss, second was the motion to stay, and 16 third was the motion to strike, which essentially has been 17 rendered moot.

18 The briefing was complete with respect to the first 19 two matters, the motion to dismiss and the motion to stay. And 20 all that remained for the Court to do was to set a hearing and 21 have oral argument. Your Honor, on October 13th, Your Honor
22 set a hearing for today for each of those two motions.
23 Nevertheless, on November 10th, almost a month after the Court
24 set the matters for hearing and after pleadings were closed,
25 Plaintiffs filed what they called their amended motion to stay.

1 As an initial matter, Your Honor, the amended motion
2 was not even filed in this adversary proceeding initially. It
3 was filed in the main case, and there was an error that Mr.
4 Sbaiti corrected on November 18th, five days before this
5 hearing. Plaintiff did not ask for leave of court to file any 6 further pleadings. They did not provide the time under the 7 local rules for response. And, in fact, they raised additional 8 arguments in their amended motion.

9 Well, Your Honor, we can certainly argue to the Court
10 that the amended motion constitutes a new motion, is untimely,
11 and the hearing should be continued to allow us to file a 12 response. We're not going to do that, Your Honor. As I will 13 discuss when it's my time to respond substantively to the 14 motion, the new arguments to stay the proceedings, the amended
15 motion are equally as frivolous as the arguments contained in 16 the original motion.

17 But I bring this to the Court's attention because,
18 again, it's extremely frustrating to have the lawyers
19 representing Mr. Dondero's related entities continue to act as 20 if the rules do not apply to them. Your Honor will recall just 21 a week or so ago, Your Honor made a -- we had a similar issue
22 in connection with the motion to dismiss. Failure to follow
23 the rules is unprofessional, and it's disrespectful not only to 24 Highland's professionals but also to the Court and it
25 interferes with Your Honor's ability to control your docket and

1 sufficiently prepare for contested matters.

2 At some point, Your Honor, there should be real
3 consequences for the continued violation of the rules. Having 4 said that, Your Honor, we are prepared to go forward with the 5 motion to stay today.

6 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Sbaiti, what say you?
7 I'm looking at Docket Entry Number 69 in the adversary
8 proceeding that was filed last Thursday. So, obviously, very,
9 very late in the game, shall we say. What is your response to 10 this?

11 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, that was not filed in the 12 adversary as an error. When we asked one of our paralegals to 13 file it, we're not as familiar with the bankruptcy court system
14 and it was an error. It was corrected once the lawyers
15 realized it, which was last -- which was on November the 18th.
16 It was filed in, I guess in the main case. But it was simply 17 an inadvertent error, Your Honor.

18 MR. POMERANTZ: I would add, Your Honor, the original
19 motion filed inadvertently was November 10th. It still was not 20 timely. I think Mr. Sbaiti needs to answer the question of why
21 that was filed untimely, okay.

22 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Sbaiti.

23 So, one of my pet peeves in life is people blaming
24 paralegals, by the way. But be that as it may, as Mr.
25 Pomerantz points out that it was still untimely the motion

1 filed in the underlying bankruptcy case November 10th. So what
2 is your --

3 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, when we looked at the motion
4 and looked at the progression of the case, we filed an amended
5 motion simply to clarify our position. And really I don't 6 think we've changed our arguments all that much. We simply 7 clarified our position. We've seen amended motions filed in 8 the bankruptcy in our prior dealings, and so at that point, we 9 felt like there wasn't a rule explicitly saying we couldn't
10 have an amended motion.

11 But if it's untimely, Your Honor, you know, we don't 12 think it changes the underlying arguments. As Mr. Pomerantz
13 said, we don't think there's any prejudice to Highland either.

14 THE COURT: All right. Well, just to be clear, you
15 know, it's one thing in an underlying bankruptcy case to file
16 an amended motion after you've gotten a motion set for hearing
17 that might slightly adjust, you know, facts or relief sought.
18 And, of course, we independently look at it when it happens in 19 an underlying case to see do we need more notice to affected
20 parties.

21 But in an adversary proceeding, you know, you just 22 don't do this. All right? If you have some sort of 23 exceptional circumstances, you can file I guess a motion to 24 amend because I got to include this new information that didn't
25 exist. But you just don't do this, okay?

1 So I don't -- could you be clear what was the new
2 information? What was the new information that had to be
3 brought before the Court suddenly?

4 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, there wasn't new
5 information. We were simply giving notice of our understanding
6 of where the legal arguments were going. The reason being is 7 that after those motions were filed and recently, the debtor
8 took the position in two other cases that they should be 9 dismissed pursuant to the permanent injunction.

10 And so that clarified for us at least a couple of 11 arguments that were unclear to us where the debtor stood on 12 whether or not the permanent injunction would be a basis to 13 dismiss or stay any of the claims that were pending. There are 14 two other claims pending in district court. Since we had filed
15 that motion, the debtor filed a motion to reconsider the stays
16 that were granted in those two courts. And then they also 17 moved to dismiss on the basis of the permanent injunction.

18 And so given that the debtor took the position that 19 they were willing to dismiss those cases based upon the 20 permanent injunction, it in many ways contravenes the position
21 they took in response to our motion which is that the -- for 22 example, they somewhat take the position in Paragraph 22, it
23 wasn't as clear then but it's clear -- it seems clearer now
24 that the permanent injunction is not relevant to whether or not 25 the case can go forward in any capacity.

10

1 And so we simply wanted to incorporate that, but it's 2 mainly legal argument about the choices that are before the 3 Court. That was really it. I mean, theoretically, I would 4 have made them for the first time during oral argument and we 5 thought we were doing something good by giving -- apprising the 6 Court in writing and giving notice of these arguments to the 7 other side by filing an amended motion. We didn't add new 8 evidence or anything like that.

9 MR. POMERANTZ: Your Honor, that argument is 10 completely disingenuous because our motion to dismiss and 11 motion for reconsideration that Mr. Sbaiti refers to is several 12 weeks ago, okay. It wasn't November 10th. It was several 13 weeks ago.

14 I will respond substantively why Mr. Sbaiti is wrong
15 and there's no inconsistent positions when it's my time to 16 speak. But for Mr. Sbaiti to say he was doing us a favor and 17 he was reacting to recent new information is just wrong, Your 18 Honor. And they should just not be continued to allowed to get 19 away with flouting the rules.

20 THE COURT: All right. Well, let me just say I'm 21 confused, maybe I should say baffled, about this amended
22 motion. You know, the motion to dismiss that is before the 23 Court for oral argument today isn't about the injunction, isn't 24 about the plan injunction. It's about res judicata and other
25 12(b)(6) arguments.

1 So I'm confused and I think, you know, it's been
2 clear for many months in this adversary proceeding, in 3 particular, the debtor's position on the plan injunction,
4 particularly, you know, in the whole argument on the motion to 5 leave to add Mr. Seery as a defendant.

6 So I'm confused, but we're going to go forward on the 7 argument today, whatever argument you want to make. And you've 8 been, I guess, forewarned. I will say that these last-minute 9 amended motions are not going to be tolerated, are not going to 10 be considered. And so, you know, I hope you won't do it again.
11 Your firm has already been sanctioned once in this adversary
12 proceeding. I'm sure we all remember.

13 So, you know, I'm just kind of baffled why you would 14 take a chance filing an amended motion without leave or somehow 15 getting it to the attention of the Court or running it by the 16 other parties for their consent to you doing it. But we're 17 going to go forward and just hear the arguments, okay. And so 18 --

19 MR. SBAITI: Thank you.

20 THE COURT: -- I'll hear your argument.

21 I'm letting people know I don't know where this time
22 estimate came on the calendar today, three hours. I don't know
23 if someone specifically expressed that. But I'm letting you
24 know at noon I have a swearing-in ceremony that I'm doing back
25 in my chambers. So I will stop at noon Central time.

1 And so does anyone think that's going to be a
2 problem?

3 MR. SBAITI: It should not be, Your Honor, from our 4 perspective.

5 THE COURT: Mr. Pomerantz?

6 MR. POMERANTZ: I don't believe so. Mr. Morris is 7 going to handle the motion to dismiss which is going to be the 8 bulk. My presentation on the motion to stay is only going to 9 be around ten minutes or so.

10 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

11 Mr. Sbaiti, your argument on the motion for stay.

12 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor.

13 Your Honor, may I share my screen?

14 THE COURT: You may.

15 MR. SBAITI: I have a PowerPoint that can kind of --

16 THE COURT: Okay. You may.

17 MR. SBAITI: -- walk us through. Thank you.

18 Is Your Honor able to see my screen?

19 THE COURT: I can, yes.

20 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor.

21 Your Honor, what I would point you to is, first, the 22 injunction language. This is what Your Honor's permanent 23 injunction says, and this is really what animates our motion to 24 stay. Our motion to stay is derived specifically because my 25 clients and I feel like our case has been enjoined by this

1 injunction, if not completely disposed of.

2 The language says that we're an enjoined:

3 "An enjoined party is permanently enjoined from 4 commencing, conducting, or continuing in any manner
5 any suit, action, or other proceeding of any kind
6 including any proceeding in a judicial, arbitral,
7 administrative, or other forum against or affecting 8 the debtor or the property of the debtor."

9 And then (v) of that injunction says:

10 "or acting or proceeding in any manner in any place
11 whatsoever that does not conform to or comply with 12 the provisions of the plan."

13 One of the things that was suggested in Paragraph 22
14 of their response was that the DAF and Holdco are not enjoined
15 parties. But the final plan defines an enjoined party in 16 Article 1(b) (56) as any entity who has or -- all entities who 17 have held, hold, or may hold claims against the debtor; any 18 entity that has appeared and/or filed any motion, objection, or 19 other pleading in this Chapter 11 case regardless of the 20 capacity in which such entity appeared and any other party in 21 interest. And, five, the related persons of each of the 22 foregoing.

23 Article 1(b) (22) defines a claim as any claim that's 24 defined in Section 1015 of the Bankruptcy Code. And Section
25 1015 of the Bankruptcy Code defines a claim as a right to

1 payment whether or not such right is reduced to judgment,
2 liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured,
3 unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured, or 4 unsecured.

5 So given this definition, when we've read this
6 injunction, we believed that we were enjoined parties, the DAF
7 and Holdco were both enjoined parties. They had appeared in 8 the -- they have claims. Obviously, those are the claims being 9 asserted here.

10 And so going back to the injunction language, we 11 believe this lawsuit has been disposed of by this permanent
12 injunction. We believe there's really only one or two things
13 that should probably happen with this lawsuit. Either it could 14 be dismissed based upon the permanent injunction or what we 15 proposed in our motion to stay is that the Court exercise its 16 inherent authority to simply stay the case pending the appeal
17 of this language, which is up on appeal in the Fifth Circuit
18 right now.

19 If that language, and if the injunction gets affirmed
20 by the Fifth Circuit, then certainly the dismissal can happen
21 once that affirmance happens and there's no harm, no foul, and 22 no one's wasted any time.

23 If they're not, if it's overturned, then, obviously,
24 the injunction would be vacated, presumably by the Fifth
25 Circuit. And at some point, if the Court decides not to enter

1 a similar injunction that would likewise dispose of this case,
2 then the case could proceed on the merits.

3 The issue we've identified both in our original
4 motion and as we fleshed out in our -- as a matter of law in 5 our amended motion to simply put a finer point on it is that
6 the merits are now -- have been disposed of. This injunction
7 ends this case, at least as far as we read it. It ends this 8 case irrespective of the underlying merits of the lawsuit,
9 which means that the lawsuit merits themselves have become moot
10 and any opinion or any attempt to resolve it is obviously an 11 advisory opinion by the Court.

12 So we really only see two ways that this could go
13 right now without either gutting the injunction or 14 circumventing it completely, which is to say that either the 15 case should be dismissed based upon the permanent injunction or 16 the case should be stayed based upon the permanent injunction.

17 Mr. Pomerantz or the debtors' brief suggests that,
18 well, the injunction doesn't prevent hearing pending motions.
19 But I would respectfully disagree with that. If you look at 20 the language, "commencing, conducting, or continuing in any 21 manner in any suit, action, or other proceeding against or 22 affecting the debtor."

23 As 12(b)(6) hearing, I would imagine, was intended to 24 fall under the umbrella of a proceeding. And us arguing a 25 12(b)(6) motion would us be conducting and maybe even

1 continuing the suit because we're trying to protect the merits
2 of the suit, which as I said are at this juncture already moot.

3 And so it comes down to I think a very simple
4 question, which is what do we do at this juncture. Do we just 5 simply dismiss the lawsuit in light of this permanent
6 injunction or stay the lawsuit in light of this permanent
7 injunction?

8 The debtor makes a lot of hay out of the fact that,
9 well, there are special rules that apply when you're trying to 10 stay a case pending appeal. But if you look at all of their 11 case law, it has to do with different circumstances where an 12 appeal -- where there's a matter on appeal that could 13 substantially affect the resolution of the case, which here we 14 think it actually could. But in those cases, those appeals
15 would affect the resolution of the case on the merits; whereas,
16 here, the question goes to whether or not a permanent
17 injunction that really has stopped us all in our tracks.

18 As soon as we understood this injunction and its 19 scope, we're the ones who reached out to the debtor's counsel
20 and asked them on a meet-and-confer whether or not they would 21 just agree to stay the matter. And we were a little bit 22 surprised by their reaction when they first didn't think that 23 this applied to our case, and we didn't understand how. And 24 then they changed their mind, said it did apply to our case but 25 they didn't think that we should stay the case. And they

1 didn't suggest let's just dismiss it based upon the permanent
2 injunction.

3 So it kind of comes down to the same small -- same
4 simple issue, Your Honor. There's this permanent injunction,
5 and I don't think there's any way for us to get around it at 6 this juncture.

7 THE COURT: Mr. Pomerantz:

8 MR. POMERANTZ: Yes, Your Honor.

9 I'm going to respond to several of the arguments Mr.
10 Sbaiti made in his motion, which apparently he's abandoned
11 because he only is focused on the injunction. And I'm also 12 going to tell Your Honor, what our arguments are because 13 despite Mr. Sbaiti's efforts, he's completely misquoted them.

14 So in the motion and the amended motion, the 15 Plaintiffs make several arguments why this Court should stay
16 the matter. First, they argue they're entitled to a stay
17 because the exculpation provision in the plan prohibits them
18 from proceeding against the Defendants in the action. And 19 there are several problems with that argument.

20 First, Mr. Sbaiti and the Plaintiffs don't even 21 attempt to meet the Fifth Circuit's standards for a stay
22 pending appeal because, of course, they can't. Mr. Sbaiti's
23 trying to sidestep the grounds for a stay pending appeal by 24 arguing it doesn't apply just is incorrect.

25 They would have to show that there is a likelihood of

1 success on the merits, they would suffer irreparable harm, the
2 debtor wouldn't suffer irreparable harm, and there is -- public
3 interest supports a stay. They can't do any of them.

4 In fact, as Your Honor is well aware, Your Honor
5 denied the actual appellants in that suit, in that order, the 6 confirmation order, a stay pending appeal and that was denied
7 by the district court and also denied by the Fifth Circuit
8 Court of Appeals.

9 The Plaintiffs didn't object to the plan, they are 10 not parties to the appeal, and they never sought a stay pending
11 appeal. So they really can't explain why they as really 12 strangers to the appeal are entitled to a stay of the 13 effectiveness of the plan when the actual appellants to that 14 order were denied a stay pending appeal up through the 15 appellate ladder.

16 Second, notwithstanding Mr. Sbaiti's arguments in the 17 motion, the exculpation provision is neither as broad nor does 18 it affect all the parties that are subject to this litigation.
19 There are three Defendants in the complaint. The only 20 Defendant that is covered by the exculpation provision is the 21 debtor. The exculpation provision does not apply HCF Advisors,
22 and it does not apply to Highland CLO Funding.

23 Also, while the exculpation provision does apply to 24 the debtor, it only exculpates the debtor from claims of 25 negligence. The complaint raises a variety of causes of action

1 that have nothing to do with negligence and would not be
2 covered by the exculpation provision.

3 But, Your Honor, the biggest problem with their 4 argument that the exculpation provision supports a stay is that 5 the exculpation -- the appeal of the exculpation provision has 6 nothing to do with this case. Why? Because the Fifth Circuit
7 appeal concerns whether the exculpation provision is 8 appropriate for parties other than the debtor. The debtor is 9 the only Defendant in this case that obtains the benefit of the 10 exculpation.

11 And there is no dispute, there was no dispute at 12 confirmation, there's no dispute in the case law, there's no
13 dispute in Pacific Lumber, there's no dispute in the appeal
14 that a plan can exculpate the debtor. So the Fifth Circuit
15 appeal doesn't implicate the exculpation provision and cannot 16 support a basis for a stay.

17 The next argument Mr. Sbaiti makes is the injunction
18 provision, and the injunction provision is on appeal to the 19 Fifth Circuit. But the aspect of the appeal of the injunction
20 is not the provision that Mr. Sbaiti points to.

21 And, again, as with the exculpation provision, the 22 same arguments about failure to obtain a stay, failure to be 23 party to the appeals, and failure to object to the plan apply,
24 as well. But as is the case with the exculpation provision,
25 the resolution of the appeal of the injunction provision will

1 not affect this case in any way.

2 They point to the portion of the injunction that
3 prohibits enjoined parties from directly or indirectly
4 continuing, commencing, or conducting in any manner any suit or 5 action proceeding against the debtor. They argue that they 6 cannot proceed without violating the injunction because the 7 injunction was intended to put all litigation against the 8 debtor to an end.

9 But, of course, Your Honor, that is not true. That 10 is not what the injunction is. The issue on appeal before the 11 Fifth Circuit as it relates to the injunction is whether the 12 injunction impermissibly enjoins parties from enforcing their 13 rights with respect to post-effective date commercial 14 relationships with the reorganized debtor. And, of course, we 15 argue that it's appropriate, but it has nothing to do with the 16 provision Mr. Sbaiti identified.

17 The appeal does not impact in any way whether a plan
18 can enjoin prosecution of claims that arose prior to the 19 effective date. And, of course, such a plan provision is 20 completely appropriate and is customary. The plan provided the 21 debtor as the plan provides all debtors with a fresh start and 22 enjoins litigation against the debtor.

23 But importantly, Your Honor, that does not mean as 24 Plaintiffs argue that any liability for pre-effective date
25 conduct just goes away and that creditors are left without a

1 remedy to pursue claims against the debtor for pre-effective
2 date conduct.

3 Rather, if they have a pre-petition claim in lieu of 4 their litigation that's pending, they file a pre-petition claim
5 against the estate and that matter is resolved in the claims
6 objection procedure. Or, as in the case here, when they make 7 an allegation that there is a post-petition claim, what do they 8 do? They file a request for payment of an administrative 9 claim, and this Court addresses the validity of the 10 administration claim. The lawsuit pending in another 11 jurisdiction stops, but the claim has to be resolved in the 12 bankruptcy court.

13 The only conduct that the injunction really prohibits
14 is them from proceeding with actions in other courts. It does 15 not deny them a remedy. Accordingly, their argument that they 16 cannot proceed with claims against the debtor because of the 17 injunction provision just lacks any merit and can't form the 18 basis for a stay.

19 Plaintiffs' next argument in their briefing is that 20 if the Court refuses to stay the complaint, they will file a
21 motion to withdraw the reference of this matter to the district
22 court. Your Honor, this is the biggest head-scratcher of them
23 all given how this complaint ended up before Your Honor. This 24 exact issue and Plaintiffs' arguments as to why the reference
25 should be withdrawn have already been fully briefed and decided

1 by the district court.

2 As Your Honor may recall, the Plaintiff filed this
3 action in the district court, conveniently failing to include
4 the bankruptcy case as a related case or mentioning that the 5 bankruptcy courts have related jurisdiction in the filings.
6 Your Honor may have had occasion to review the underlying 7 complaint when the debtor brought a motion for contempt against
8 counsel for Plaintiffs for pursuing a claim against Mr. Seery
9 in violation of Your Honor's January 9th, 2020 and July 16th,
10 2020 orders.

11 Your Honor issued an order finding counsel and 12 various parties in contempt which order is, of course, subject
13 to appeal. At the time we were litigating the contempt motion,
14 we filed two motions in district court. The first was a motion
15 to enforce the reference and have the district court send that 16 complaint to Your Honor. And that motion to enforce the 17 reference is now on Your Honor's docket at Number 22 and 23.

18 The second was the motion to dismiss which is before 19 Your Honor today. Plaintiffs oppose the motion to enforce the 20 reference arguing that mandatory withdrawal was required
21 because the matter involved consideration of non-bankruptcy
22 federal law, specifically federal securities laws and the 23 Investment Advisors' Act.

24 Plaintiffs further argue to the district court why
25 would you refer the case to the bankruptcy court if it's only

1 going to end up back in the district court upon mandatory
2 withdrawal of the reference. They argue to the district court
3 that would be a complete waste of time.

4 We filed our reply at Docket Number 42 explaining to 5 the district court why mandatory withdrawal of the reference
6 did not apply and why this case should be referred to Your
7 Honor. And what did the district court subsequently do? It
8 entered an order referring this action to Your Honor which is 9 why we are here today.

10 Plaintiffs now flout the district court's order of 11 reference by telling the Court that if the Court does not stay
12 the matter, they will file a motion to withdraw the reference
13 before Your Honor, and they attach virtually identical pleading
14 that they filed in opposition to our motion to enforce the 15 reference.

16 Plaintiffs did not disclose in their amended motion
17 that there was a fully-briefed motion to enforce the reference
18 before the district court. Plaintiffs' argument is 19 disingenuous and designed to mislead the Court.

20 The district court has only agreed that mandatary
21 withdrawal of the reference does not apply and this case
22 belongs in Your Honor. And while we cannot stop the Plaintiffs
23 from filing any motion before this Court, we want to put them
24 on notice that if they do file a motion for withdrawal of the 25 reference in light of the facts as I just stated them, we will

1 seek sanctions.

2 In any event, Your Honor, the fact that they may file
3 a motion for withdrawal of the reference at some point in the 4 future is not grounds to stay the matter.

5 Lastly, Your Honor, Plaintiffs argued in the opening
6 that Highland's position today in opposing the motion to stay
7 is inconsistent with positions Highland has taken in two other
8 lawsuits commenced by the Sbaiti firm. Like all of their other
9 arguments, they misrepresent the facts and are frivolous.

10 The Sbaiti firm filed a complaint on behalf of the 11 DAF in the district court arguing that Highland mismanaged
12 (audio drop). That complaint followed in the heels of an 13 almost identical complaint filed by Dugaboy asserting the same
14 claims.

15 And Your Honor may recall questioning Mr. Sbaiti at a 16 hearing in June how Dugaboy could pursue such a claim in the 17 district court if Dugaboy had a pending proof of administrative 18 claim on file in the bankruptcy case. Well, soon after that 19 hearing, Your Honor, the Dugaboy complaint was dismissed, and a 20 few days later the DAF complaint was filed. That complaint has 21 never been served on Highland.

22 The second lawsuit is also a lawsuit filed by the 23 Sbaiti firm on behalf of an entity called PCMG in the district
24 court. And PCMG previously held less than five one-hundredths
25 of a percent interest in a certain fund managed by highland.

1 The lawsuit alleges that Highland acted improperly to sell
2 certain assets of the fund, thereby damaging PCMG. That 3 complaint has also never been served on Highland.

4 The Plaintiffs sought a stay of those matters before
5 Highland could file a response, and the court -- the district
6 court's entered stays in those matters. And Highland has filed
7 motions for reconsideration and the motions to dismiss because 8 they violate the injunction.

9 But, importantly, Your Honor, if you read the 10 motions, Highland does not argue that Plaintiffs do not have a 11 remedy for the alleged wrongs they say they suffer. Rather,
12 Highland's argument is that any claims alleged in those 13 lawsuits, just like any claims alleged in the lawsuit before
14 Your Honor today, must proceed in bankruptcy court as part of 15 the claims objection process. That's where they will have 16 their day in court. The lawsuits don't go away. The 17 injunction prevents them from continuing on in district court.

18 Accordingly, Highland is being totally consistent in 19 all matters, and the litigations may not proceed there but must 20 proceed before Your Honor. And, of course, none of these three 21 matters are implicated by the Fifth Circuit appeal.

22 Your Honor, the amended motion was procedurally
23 improper and is substantively without merit. And for all these 24 reasons, we request that the Court deny the stay motion and 25 proceed with the hearing on the motion to dismiss.

1 Thank you, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: All right.

3 Mr. Sbaiti, you get the last word.

4 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor.

5 Your Honor, the administrative claim process that was 6 described as being the way that these claims were supposed to 7 proceed, by the language of the order that we read, does not
8 allow for these claims. Those claims are limited to a specific 9 category of claims that don't include the claims that are 10 alleged in this lawsuit.

11 And in any event, this lawsuit wasn't filed as an 12 administrative claim. So if that's the case and it needs to be 13 refiled or reasserted as an administrative claim, then I think 14 that's a subject for another day. All I know is that we have 15 this injunction right now that either should stay this case
16 pending the appeal, which I'll address the issue on appeal in a
17 moment, or it should be dismissed, perhaps without prejudice so 18 that it can be refiled properly as an administrative claim if 19 that's what's supposed to happen, because I guess this converts
20 the matter.

21 The appeal, the subject of the appeal as to the 22 injunction, Your Honor, the appeal actually encompasses many of 23 the issues that we're talking about in this case. Now Mr.
24 Pomerantz tries to narrow the scope of what's up on appeal, and 25 that may indeed be the argument that they're going to present

1 to the Fifth Circuit or that they've presented to the Fifth
2 Circuit.

3 But the actual issue up on appeal is the 4 enforceability and validity of the order for a variety of 5 reasons which includes the provision that we're talking about
6 and the enforceability of the provision that we're talking
7 about because it gets rid of particular claims. And I guess
8 the argument back is, no, it doesn't because there's now an 9 alternative means of going there.

10 Mr. Pomerantz says that we shouldn't have proffered a 11 motion to enforce the reference. That proffer, however, was 12 because Judge Boyle's reference to this Court didn't deal with 13 our motion to -- our cross-motion to withdraw the reference.
14 All it dealt with was their motion to enforce the reference as 15 a -- to enforce the standing order in the district court. And 16 that's all she ordered was she cited the standing order and the 17 statutes, I think it's 157(a), and that's really all it did.

18 So it left open the question of whether she wanted
19 Your Honor to deal with the withdrawal of the reference
20 specifically as to the 12(b)(6) issue in the first instance.
21 It didn't resolve the question. It doesn't purport to resolve
22 that question. And it's not unheard of for the district court
23 then to send the matter to the bankruptcy court and then to 24 piecemeal which proceedings the withdrawal of the reference is 25 applicable to and then all the other proceedings would stay

1 with Your Honor or with the bankruptcy court.

2 So we weren't flouting the district court's order,
3 and we certainly weren't flouting any of the previous orders.
4 And the threat of a sanction for simply exercising our rights
5 in due course is not well taken.

6 Now Mr. Pomerantz says, well, the DAF and CLO Holdco
7 are not parties to the appeal. I don't think that's relevant
8 because if the provision is struck by the Fifth Circuit, it's 9 not only struck for the appellants, it's struck as to all.
10 It's either valid or it's invalid. And even if it's declared
11 to be invalid only as to the appellants, it's not suddenly
12 valid as to everyone else who didn't appeal. That's not 13 generally how these appeals have worked.

14 If the Court doesn't stay this matter, Your Honor,
15 and doesn't dismiss it, we still maintain, Your Honor, that as 16 it stands today, the question on the merits have been mooted
17 and we cannot proceed. I think what Mr. Pomerantz is hoping 18 for or the debtor is hoping for is a provision where our hands
19 are potentially tied to argue the motion.

20 And if the Court tells us they're not, then we'll 21 certainly argue the 12(b)(6). But what I don't want to do is 22 argue a 12(b)(6) motion that on its face appears to violate the 23 permanent injunction and then be held in contempt for violating 24 that injunction.

25 And so that's why we've asked for the Court to either

1 stay the matter under its inherent jurisdiction or to -- if 2 you're going to -- if it's not going to be stayed, then we
3 believe it has to be dismissed according to the permanent
4 injunction as it stands right now.

5 THE COURT: All right.

6 The motion to stay is denied. The amended motion to 7 stay is likewise denied. This is an odd argument. I guess one
8 might say the traditional four-factor test for a stay of a 9 proceeding has really not been the subject of the argument here
10 for a stay.

11 So suffice it to say the four-prong test for a stay,
12 you know, hasn't been met here. There hasn't been a showing of 13 substantial likelihood of success on the merits or irreparable
14 injury if the stay's not granted or a stay will not 15 substantially harm others or the stay would serve a public
16 interest.

17 But going on to the arguments that were focused on by 18 movant, I just don't think that you have shown that, you know,
19 either the exculpation clause or the injunction provisions of 20 the plan somehow tie your hands in arguing the 12(b)(6) motion,
21 defending against the 12(b)(6) motion today or I just think 22 that your arguments reflect, frankly, a misunderstanding of how 23 the injunction language and exculpation language applies here.

24 So the motion for stay is denied, and I will ask Mr.
25 Pomerantz to submit an order reflecting the Court's ruling.

1 So it looks like we have another procedural matter,
2 Mr. Sbaiti. You filed a motion to strike reply appendix of the 3 Plaintiffs quite a while back. So did you want to present
4 that?

5 MR. SBAITI: Yes, Your Honor. I think it's a very 6 simple procedural issue.

7 Generally, a party that files a 12(b)(6) is limited
8 to the four corners of the complaint. And if there's a 9 contract incorporated or a document incorporated as an 10 intrinsic part of the complaint, you know, that's usually 11 considered under the 12(b)(6) motion.

12 What the Defendants did, what the debtor here did is 13 they filed a bunch of evidence in their 12(b)(6), essentially 14 attempting to argue it as a summary judgment. We raised that 15 in our response. So as part of our response, we objected to 16 all the evidence. But then on the reply, they filed a bunch
17 more evidence both without leave and improperly, basically
18 sandbagged us.

19 And so we raised two points for striking that 20 evidence. One was akin to the first argument, which is it's 21 not an evidentiary hearing. It's not an evidentiary process in 22 the first instance. A 12(b)(6) motion has to assume that the 23 facts pled are true, and then the question is whether they 24 state a claim.

25 And, secondly, adding them to the reply is especially

1 egregious because the reply is the last word. And we didn't
2 have an opportunity to respond, and we also don't think it's 3 relevant nor should we have to respond to a whole bunch of 4 extra evidence that was attached.

5 That's essentially the basis of our motion, Your
6 Honor.

7 MR. POMERANTZ: Your Honor, the simple answer to the 8 issue is we filed the reply of the appendix in connection with 9 the motion to enforce the reference. We didn't file it in 10 connection with the motion to dismiss. The motion to enforce
11 the reference is moot. So what Mr. Sbaiti, his whole argument
12 doesn't make any sense.

13 As a substantive matter, just there wasn't any 14 evidence. It was pointing to court pleadings, orders, and 15 stuff. So it's irrelevant. I don't know why it's still on the 16 docket. It shouldn't be on the docket since it related to the 17 motion to enforce the reference.

18 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Sbaiti, did you just 19 simply --

20 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, much of that evidence was --

21 THE COURT: -- misunderstand or what?

22 MR. SBAITI: I think we might have because it was 23 filed as a separate item, and it may have been miscallendared or 24 misapplied on our system. But the way it was presented to us
25 when we got it was it appeared to be evidence in support of,

1 well, I guess both, but certainly evidence that was averted to 2 in the reply.

3 But if they're saying that the Court's not going to 4 consider it, then that moots the motion and I think we can move
5 on.

6 MR. POMERANTZ: Yes, Your Honor. I had nothing to do
7 with his motion. I guess there was another mistake on their 8 end. I guess that stuff happens occasionally.

9 THE COURT: Okay. All right. So I'll deny it as 10 based on a mistake that's been acknowledged here. And so with 11 that, let's have an order cleaning that up, as well, Mr.
12 Pomerantz, please.

13 With that, we'll move on to the Defendants' motion to 14 dismiss complaint. I think, Mr. Pomerantz, you said Mr. Morris
15 will be making this argument?

16 MR. POMERANTZ: That is correct, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: All right.

18 Mr. Morris, I'll hear your argument.

19 MR. MORRIS: Good morning, Your Honor. John Morris
20 for Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones for the reorganized debtor.
21 Can you hear me okay?

22 THE COURT: I can. Thank you.

23 MR. MORRIS: Okay.

24 Your Honor, this is a bit like Groundhog's Day. I
25 believe that we're going to spend the next half hour or an hour

1 discussing the very issues that were before the Court earlier
2 this year on the HarbourVest 9019 motion.

3 As the Court will recall from the June 8 hearing,
4 there is a complaint that's been filed ostensibly by the DAF
5 and CLO Holdco. As Your Honor will recall, the testimony
6 established that Mark Patrick had just been installed as the 7 trustee, had no knowledge of the prior events, and Mr. Dondero
8 and Mr. Sbaiti spent quite some time together formulating this 9 particular complaint that is nothing less than a collateral
10 attack on the Court's prior order.

11 I'd like to, if I can, just walk through a PowerPoint 12 presentation to try to make the debtor's position quite clear,
13 if I may.

14 THE COURT: You may.

15 MR. MORRIS: And I would ask my assistant, Ms. Canty
16 (phonetic), to put up the first slide.

17 Your Honor, you'll recall that last December, the 18 debtor filed its motion under Rule 9019 for court approval of a 19 settlement. The debtor was completely and utterly transparent
20 in what the terms of the settlement were.

21 Very briefly, as set forth in Appendix 2 or Exhibit 2
22 which was the motion itself, in Paragraph 32, Your Honor, the 23 debtor set forth the terms of the transaction for which it was 24 seeking approval. Those terms included in the very first 25 bullet point a statement that HarbourVest shall transfer its

1 entire interest in CLOF to an entity to be designated by the
2 debtor.

3 And that's an important point that we'll talk about
4 in a number of different contexts, Your Honor. The debtor made
5 it very clear at the very first moment of this matter that it
6 was not going to acquire the asset but the asset was going to 7 be transferred to an entity to be designated by the debtor.
8 The debtor's motion filed last December clearly stated the 9 value of the interest that it would be acquiring in return.
10 That was also set forth in Paragraph 32 in a footnote.

11 It didn't say that it was the fair market value. It
12 said the method of valuation was the net asset value and gave a
13 valuation date of December 1st so that all parties in interest
14 who received the motion understood the economics of the deal.
15 And the deal that the debtor was asking the Court to approve
16 was one whereby HarbourVest would receive certain claims and in 17 exchange for those claims, they were going to transfer their 18 interest in CLO -- HCLOF.

19 The debtor also filed on the docket for all to see a 20 copy of the settlement agreement. The settlement agreement
21 sets forth the terms of the deal, including again the statement
22 that HarbourVest "will transfer all of its rights, title, and 23 interest in HCLOF." It actually says to an affiliate or an 24 entity to be designated by the debtor. And the transfer
25 agreement itself was also put on the docket.

1 So that's where things stood just before Christmas.
2 I know that there's some due process and other type arguments
3 that are in the Plaintiffs' opposition to the motion. But, of 4 course, the undisputed facts are that the debtor timely filed
5 the motion. The time period was consistent with all applicable
6 rules. Nobody ever asked the debtor for an extension of time.
7 Nobody ever filed a motion for an extension of time. And so
8 those due process arguments I think carry no weight at all.

9 So the debtor filed the motion. And if we can go to 10 the next slide, we see what the responses were, and there were 11 several. All of the responses, the only responses were 12 objections to the motion filed by Mr. Dondero and his certain 13 of his affiliated entities.

14 Mr. Dondero's objection can be summarized as follows.
15 He made the following observations and asserted the following
16 objections to the proposed settlement. The first thing he said
17 is that the settlement far exceeds the bounds of 18 reasonableness. Now, of course, one cannot make a 19 determination of reasonableness without having an understanding 20 of value. The debtor was giving something and it was getting 21 something.

22 And so Mr. Dondero understood that the issue of value
23 was front and center. If there was any mistake about it, he 24 also noted that he understood that as part of the settlement
25 and, again, I've written this incorrectly, HarbourVest will

1 transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to the debtor. That is
2 not what Mr. Dondero understood. In fact, Mr. Dondero
3 understood that it would transfer its entire interest in HCLOF
4 "to an entity to be designated by the debtor," again, making it
5 clear that he knew exactly what the debtor was doing here. And 6 that can be found at Appendix 4 in Footnote 3 on Page 1 if you
7 want the exact quote from Mr. Dondero's pleading.

8 In the same footnote, he also specifically
9 acknowledges that he understood the valuation. He understood
10 the method valuation. He understood the valuation date of 11 December 1st. And he urged the Court in his pleading to 12 scrutinize the settlement to make clear that the available
13 value of the investment should be realized by the debtor's
14 estate.

15 And this is such a critical point, Your Honor. His 16 concern was that by placing the value in an entity other than 17 the debtor itself, that the Court wouldn't have jurisdiction
18 over that asset. That was his concern. So not only did he 19 understand that the asset was going to be transferred to an 20 affiliate, he wanted to make sure that this Court had 21 jurisdiction over the asset.

22 And, of course, Mr. Seery in his testimony and 23 otherwise, we provided the Court with all the comfort it needed
24 to know that even though it was being assigned to a special-
25 purpose vehicle wholly-owned by the debtor, it would

1 nevertheless be subject to the Court's jurisdiction.

2 Mr. Dondero's trusts also filed an objection if we
3 can go to the next slide.

4 Dugaboy and Get Good represented by Douglas Draper
5 made the following observations and asserted the following
6 objections to the HarbourVest Settlement. They, too, made
7 clear that they understood that the asset was going to be
8 transferred to an entity designated by the debtor. They, too,
9 acknowledge that they understood that the debtor was valuing
10 the asset at approximately $22 million as of December 1st. And 11 their objection was that the Court couldn't evaluate the 12 settlement without knowing how the asset was valued, without 13 knowing whether the debtor could acquire the asset, very 14 critical point.

15 These are the points that are made in the complaint.
16 These are the exact same points that are made in the complaint.
17 And also the Court couldn't evaluate the settlement unless they 18 understood that the value would be inure to the benefit of the 19 debtor's estate, again, mimicking Mr. Dondero's concern that by 20 placing the asset in an affiliate of the debtor, that it might 21 not be subject to the Court's jurisdiction.

22 Finally, and most importantly, if we can go to the 23 next slide. The Plaintiff, CLO Holdco, filed an objection to 24 the 9019 motion. And this is just so critical. And this is 25 the Groundhog Day aspect that I specifically speak of. CLO

1 Holdco's objection was based solely on its assertion that it
2 had a superior right to the opportunity to acquire the asset
3 that was being transferred by HarbourVest. It only made one
4 argument in support of its contention that it had a superior
5 right, but that argument was specifically premised on the 6 membership agreement, Section 6.1 and 6.2 of the membership
7 agreement.

8 CLO Holdco, the Plaintiff in the underlying action,
9 argued to this Court that HarbourVest had no authority to 10 transfer the asset without complying with the right of first 11 refusal that would give CLO Holdco the opportunity to take the 12 asset for itself. That's what this Court was told. CLO Holdco
13 didn't make this argument fleetingly. They provided an 14 extraordinarily detailed analysis of Sections 6.1 and 6.2 of 15 the membership agreement and concluded "that HarbourVest must 16 effectuate the right of first refusal before it can transfer
17 its interest in HCLOF. That was the objection. Objections
18 have consequences, as Your Honor knows.

19 If we can go to the next slide.

20 By filing an objection, CLO Holdco and the trusts and 21 Mr. Dondero became participants in the litigation.
22 Notwithstanding the Plaintiffs' arguments to the contrary, when 23 they file the objections, they participate in what's called a 24 contested matter. And in a contested matter, they had every 25 right to take all discovery on any issue that was related to

1 the 9019 motion, including the transfer, the disposition of the 2 asset to an affiliate of the debtor, the valuation of the asset
3 that's being received, the merits of the settlement itself, the 4 causes of action, whether, you know, what communications that
5 were, the negotiations, what did Mr. Seery and Mr. Pugatch
6 discuss? Right?

7 They could have taken any discovery they wanted. And 8 they did avail themselves of discovery, in fact. They did -- I
9 don't know why they did what they did, but they chose to take 10 one deposition, and that was Mr. Pugatch, okay.

11 His deposition transcript, I think is at Exhibit 7,
12 or Appendix Number 7, and it was a long deposition. It really 13 was. And they asked Mr. Pugatch at the deposition if he knew 14 what the value of the asset that was being transferred was.
15 And he said $22.5 million. So it wasn't just Mr. Seery or the 16 debtor who was subscribing to this valuation. The party on the 17 other side of an arm's length negotiation was subscribing to 18 the exact same valuation.

19 The Plaintiffs could have taken whatever discovery
20 they wanted. This is a full and fair opportunity to 21 participate in the litigation. We proceeded to trial. Before
22 we got there, actually, the debtor filed its response to CLO
23 Holdco's objection and proffered its own very detailed and 24 apparently very persuasive analysis that CLO Holdco's objection
25 was without merit, that CLO Holdco had no right of first

1 refusal under the facts and circumstances as they existed, and
2 with Grant Scott, Mr. Dondero's childhood friend at the helm,
3 we got to Court for the contested hearing on the debtor's 9019
4 motion, and CLO Holdco withdrew their objection.

5 And I've put up on the screen just an excerpt of the 6 transcript because, you know, when we talk about whether or res
7 judicata should apply, because was there a hearing on the 8 merits? Was there a decision on the merits? Just look at the 9 words of CLO Holdco's lawyer. "CLO Holdco has had an 10 opportunity to review the reply briefing and after doing so has 11 gone back and scrubbed the HCLOF corporate documents based on 12 our analysis of Guernsey law."

13 And some of the arguments of counsel in those 14 pleadings and our review of the appropriate documents, counsel
15 obtained the authority from Mr. Scott to withdraw the CLO
16 Holdco objection based on the interpretation of the member
17 agreement. We were grateful for that and the Court
18 specifically said in response, "That eliminates one of the 19 major arguments that we had anticipated this morning."

20 Apparently, the Plaintiffs believe that those events
21 have no meaning and that this Court's reliance on CLO Holdco's
22 substantive withdrawal of its objection has no meaning. I
23 think they're wrong, and we'll get to that in a moment.

24 We proceeded with the hearing. Mr. Seery and 25 Mr. Pugatch testified at length. If you look at Footnote 3,

1 you'll see Mr. Seery testified for almost 70 pages of 2 testimony. Mr. Pugatch testified for almost 45 pages of 3 testimony. His testimony was exhaustive. And, again, any of 4 the objecting parties had the right to ask whatever questions
5 they want.

6 But I do want to just note a few things that aren't
7 up on the screen right now. If you go to Appendix 9, Your 8 Honor, which is the transcript of the hearing, at Page 13, you
9 will see that the very first thing I discussed in my opening
10 statement was the economics and how with a valuation of $22.5
11 million this deal made sense for the debtor.

12 You will see from Pages 30 to 42 there is extensive 13 testimony from Mr. Seery about the amount and the value of the 14 asset. But the most important part of Mr. Seery's testimony is 15 that he explains how it came to be that HarbourVest agreed to 16 transfer its interest in HCLOF to an affiliate of the debtor.
17 And that came about, not because Mr. Seery or the debtor was 18 initially at all interested in doing this. The whole idea
19 originated with HarbourVest.

20 They wanted to extract themselves from the Highland
21 platform. They wanted to give this piece up. So there's no
22 conspiracy going on here. The unrebutted testimony that all of 23 the objecting parties had an opportunity to challenge was that 24 the whole idea originated with Mr. Pugatch and with 25 HarbourVest. I think that's an important point to take into

1 account.

2 And finally, again, from the hearing, if you look at 3 at Appendix 9, you'd also find that Mr. Pugatch, again,
4 testified, as he had in his deposition, as to the value of the 5 interest being transferred. So we completed the testimony. We 6 rested our case having had a full and fair opportunity to 7 contest the motion. The objecting parties rested as well. And 8 we got to the point where we had to prepare the notice, and we 9 were discussing that at the hearing, if we can go to the next 10 slide.

11 And it's very important, because again, this was all 12 done transparently, and it was all done on the record. And 13 after the close of evidence, I addressed the order that was 14 going to be prepared. I specifically said that I wanted to 15 make clear that we were going to include a provision, "that 16 specifically authorizes the debtor to engage in, to receive
17 HarbourVest the asset, you know, the HCLOF interest," right. I 18 wanted everybody to know that was what was going to happen, and 19 then I said, "The objection has been withdrawn." I think the 20 evidence is what it is and we want to make sure that nobody 21 thinks they're going to go to a different court somehow to 22 challenge the transfer. But yet, that is exactly what the 23 complaint seeks to do.

24 Having put everybody on notice as to where we were 25 going, as to what the evidence showed, the debtor drafted and

1 the Court adopted an order, and the order says, among other 2 things, that HarbourVest was authorized to transfer its
3 interest to the debtor. Actually, it says, "to a wholly owned 4 and controlled subsidiary of the debtor," pursuant to the 5 transfer agreement, "without the need to obtain the consent of 6 any party or to offer such interest first to any other investor
7 in HCLOF." So the Court heard the 9019 motion pursuant to a
8 Bankruptcy Rule and entered an order that was unambiguous and 9 that the Plaintiffs did not appeal from.

10 We can go to the next slide.

11 At a very high level, Your Honor, it is just crystal
12 clear that the complaint is just inextricably intertwined with 13 the 9019 proceedings and the order itself. I think Mr. Sbaiti
14 would agree with me that but for the order that approved the 15 transfer of the asset and the testimony about the value of that 16 asset, they have no claims.

17 Every single claim is predicated on what happened in 18 the 9019 hearing. Every single claim is predicated on the 19 Court's order approving the transfer of the asset and the 20 testimony and evidence that was adduced in relation to that 21 asset.

22 There were really only two issues that the Court -- I
23 mean, if you want to think about it at its most simplistic
24 level, the Court was being asked to assess, is it fair, is it
25 reasonable, is it legally permissible for the debtor to give

1 something. In this case, allowed claims and releases, and to
2 get something in return. In this case, HarbourVest's interest
3 in HCLOF and releases in return. And that is really the 4 gravamen of the complaint.

5 The complaint is based whether it's breach of 6 fiduciary duty or RICO or breach of contract or tortious
7 interference, whatever the claim is, none of them exist if the 8 debtor doesn't get this. They just don't exist. And that is 9 why the complaint and the proceeding are inextricably
10 intertwined. And if you just take a look at just one paragraph 11 of the pleading, it says at the core of this lawsuit is the 12 fact that HCM, that's the then debtor, purchased the 13 HarbourVest interests in HCLOF for $22.5 million knowing that 14 they were worth far more than that. There's not a cause of 15 action that exists in the complaint that isn't dependent on 16 Paragraph 36.

17 So if we can go to the next slide with that 18 background, I'd like to argue why under 12(b), the complaint
19 should be dismissed because the claim should be barred under 20 the doctrine of res judicata. Luckily, Your Honor, there is at 21 least one area of agreement between the parties here, and that 22 is the purpose of the doctrine and the elements that have to be 23 satisfied in order to meet the burden of proof necessary to 24 have the claims barred. And in Footnote 1, you can -- I've 25 tried to just be helpful to the Court to show that we may not

1 cite to the exact same cases, but the parties agree that the 2 doctrine is intended to foreclose the re-litigation of claims
3 that were or could have been raised in a prior action and that 4 there's four elements that have to be satisfied for the 5 doctrine to apply.

6 The parties have to be either identical or at least 7 in privity, the judgment in the prior action had to have been 8 rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction. Number three,
9 the prior action had to have been concluded by a judgment on 10 the merits. And the last one is that the same claim or cause
11 of action was involved in both suits. So I just want to spend 12 a few minutes now, Your Honor, going through those four 13 elements to show the Court how easily the reorganized debtor
14 meets this standard.

15 If we can go to the next slide, I can take care of 16 the first two elements very quickly.

17 The first element, the debtor asserted that the 18 Plaintiffs were parties or in privity with parties to the prior 19 proceeding. That's at Paragraph 17 of the motion to dismiss.
20 The debtor relies on the deposition testimony of Grant Scott,
21 who was then the trustee of the DAF.

22 CLO Holdco is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the DAF,
23 or wholly controlled, in any event, and Mr. Scott's testimony
24 was that he was the only director and there were no employees
25 of either entity. So we, in our motion, put forth evidence to

1 establish the first element, and I don't believe, maybe I've
2 missed it. I don't believe that the Plaintiffs have contested
3 that element. If they have, I think Mr. Scott's testimony will 4 carry the day, in any event.

5 The second element as to whether or not a court of 6 competent jurisdiction is the entity or the court that rendered
7 the ruling. Of course, that's been met, too. The Plaintiffs,
8 in their opposition to the motion to dismiss, suggested that 9 the bankruptcy court would have lacked jurisdiction if their 10 cross motion to withdraw the reference was granted. They said
11 if the district court decides that mandatory withdrawal
12 applies, then it cannot find that the bankruptcy courts already 13 entered final judgment was rendered on Plaintiffs' causes of 14 action and had jurisdiction to do so. I think that's just a 15 clear misstatement of the law.

16 But in any event, Your Honor, at this point, I
17 believe it's irrelevant because the district court, in fact,
18 sent the case back to Your Honor and back to this Court. And 19 so, at the end of the day, Plaintiffs' argument doesn't hold 20 water because of the district court's ruling, which can be 21 found -- the order of reference can be found at Docket
22 Number 64. And so I think that easily takes care of the second 23 prong.

24 The third prong is whether -- if we can go to the 25 next slide -- the prior proceeding resulted in a judgment on

1 the merits. And this is really the critical point, Your Honor.
2 As the Court knows, the whole doctrine of res judicata is 3 designed to prevent, as the parties agree, the re-litigation of 4 claims. Stated another way, it's to bring finale. It's to 5 make sure that the Court doesn't hear the same claims and the 6 same issues that either were brought or that could have been 7 brought in a prior proceeding. And so, we believe that we 8 easily meet the standards set forth in the third prong. The 9 9019 order necessarily determined that the quid pro quo that I
10 described earlier was fair, reasonable, and legally
11 permissible.

12 Notwithstanding their assertions to the contrary, the 13 Plaintiffs are most definitely seeking to unwind at least one
14 half of the Court's order by belatedly claiming that they are 15 entitled to the benefit of the bargain while leaving Highland 16 burdened, frankly, with the claims that HarbourVest got as part 17 of the deal. I will tell you, Your Honor, and this is 18 argument, the debtor would never have asked for, and I don't
19 believe that the Court would ever have granted, the 9019 motion
20 if they thought that there was a risk in the future that 21 Highland wouldn't get the benefit of the bargain and it was 22 incumbent upon CLO Holdco and the DAF, and frankly, any party
23 in interest, to stand up and be counted and tell the Court and 24 the debtor, why the debtor was not entitled to do this deal and 25 CLO Holdco did that. They actually did.

1 They stood up and they filed an objection and they
2 said we have a superior right to this asset in the form of a
3 right of first refusal. They wound up folding in the face of 4 persuasive argument, and I respect the lawyer who did that. I
5 just do. But that was the time to speak up, and that's why it
6 is on the merits because that is exactly what res judicata is 7 intended to do. It's intended to have everybody put your cards
8 on the table. You don't put one card on the table and say, I'm 9 going to challenge this under 6.2 of the members agreement, but 10 I'm not going to tell you that I also think you owe me a
11 fiduciary duty under the Advisors Act or as the control party
12 or under any other theory that they had. They can't do that.
13 That's exactly what the problem is here.

14 If we can go to the next slide. Is it a judgment on 15 the merits? The debtor and the Court relied on CLO Holdco's
16 representation that it was withdrawing its argument, its claim,
17 its contention, its assertion that it had a superior right to 18 obtain the HarbourVest interest in HCLOF. Again, they did so 19 not whimsically, not because Mr. Kane was going to be out of 20 town and he couldn't make the hearing. He did it after, and I
21 don't think this matters frankly, but I think it's worth noting 22 that he did it after an extremely careful analysis. I would 23 tell you, Your Honor, that -- well, I would argue, Your Honor, 24 that even if Mr. Kane at CLO Holdco had never filed an 25 objection, if they'd never filed -- if they'd gotten notice

1 that this was happening and they sat silently, that would have
2 been enough for res judicata because the issue before the Court
3 was whether it was legally permissible for the debtor to 4 acquire this asset.

5 And if they had an obligation, if they owed a duty to 6 another party, it wouldn't have been legally permissible. And 7 if somebody believed that it wasn't legally permissible because 8 a duty was owed to them, they had an obligation to speak up.

9 And so I think it's very important, particularly for the 10 collateral estoppel argument that I'll make in a moment, that 11 CLO Holdco did in fact file an objection. It was based on the 12 breach of contract claim that's in their complaint. It's the 13 exact same claim. And they withdrew it. I think it's very,
14 very important. I think it highlights why res judicata
15 applies. I think it is the linchpin of the collateral estoppel
16 argument.

17 But at the end of the day, I think if they say
18 nothing, they should be estopped or precluded under res
19 judicata from now asserting -- it would be like -- I was 20 thinking about this earlier, Your Honor. If you'll remember
21 earlier this year, Mr. Dondero and his entities have kind of a
22 habit of withdrawing objections at the last minute. We had a 23 couple of sale hearings earlier this year. And the issue was 24 valuation, you know, and the process, and could the debtor meet
25 its burden of proving that the sale outside of the ordinary

1 course of business was in the debtor's best interest. And they
2 sold that restaurant. And Mr. Dondero objected. And at the 3 last second, they withdrew the objection. Did they sue
4 tomorrow? Does Your Honor really think that they could bring a
5 lawsuit tomorrow and say they just found a document or theory
6 on which the debtor had an obligation to give them a right of 7 first refusal, even though we've already closed on the 8 transaction, even though they were given notice of the 9 transaction, even though they filed an objection to the 10 transaction, even though they withdrew the objection? Would 11 the Court tolerate for one second a new pleading tomorrow from 12 Mr. Dondero that the debtor actually had a fiduciary duty to 13 give him a right of first refusal to buy that asset under 14 whatever theory, just because he pleads it and the Court has to 15 accept as true the allegations in the complaint? I think not.
16 And I think it's worth thinking about that to highlight just 17 how -- just how wrong this is.

18 Continuing on. You know, the Plaintiffs in 19 opposition say it can't be a trial on the merits because we 20 weren't parties. Of course they were parties. Again, they 21 filed an objection. They were the parties to the contested
22 matter, full stop. They rely on a case called Applewood and 23 they say, this is the very first point they make in their 24 brief. Applewood, if it wasn't res judicata in Applewood, how 25 could it possibly be res judicata here? But the facts are just

1 so inapposite, right?

2 In Applewood, you had a garden variety plan and
3 release where the debtor and the officers and directors got a
4 discharge. No objection to it. And a secured lender later on 5 sought to sue guarantors who happened to be officers and 6 directors. And the court, not surprisingly, said that the 7 confirmation order wouldn't prevent the secured lender from 8 going after the officers and directors, not in their 9 capacities, as such, but in their capacity as guarantors, which 10 were never part of the confirmation order. That just doesn't 11 apply here because here, we have the debtor making a motion
12 before the Court in which it sought permission and authority to 13 acquire a particular asset. Anybody who had a claim to that 14 asset should have stepped forward and put their cards on the 15 table.

16 And again, CLO Holdco put their cards on the table
17 and they lost, and they folded. To use the poker analogy, they 18 folded. And to hear them come into Court today and say we're 19 going to sue you because I reshuffled the deck, it's not right
20 and Applewood has no relevance.

21 Finally, Your Honor, you know, it's not on the 22 merits, they say, because you know, Mr. Seery and the debtor
23 hid the true value of the asset, and had we only known the true
24 value of the asset, we would have made all of these other
25 claims. The fact of the matter is, you either have a fiduciary

1 duty or you don't. And if you had a fiduciary duty, they
2 should have spoken up and they did only under 6.2, but they 3 did.

4 But here's the important part, Your Honor. Take the 5 allegations as true. You have to take all of the allegations
6 as true, not just some of them. And if you look at 7 Paragraph 127 of the complaint, and I would ask Ms. Canty to go
8 to Appendix 11 and let's just put Paragraph 127 up on the 9 board.

10 Here's the irony of the whole thing, right. The 11 whole complaint is based on the fact that somehow Mr. Seery was 12 engaged in insider trading. They accused him of insider
13 trading, and they say he didn't disclose the full value of the 14 asset. Just read Paragraph 127. James Dondero, who was on the 15 board of MGM, is the tippee. You've got an insider trading
16 case -- I mean, I don't represent MGM. I'm not with the SEC.
17 I don't know why Mr. Dondero thought he should be telling
18 Mr. Seery in December, 2020. It's not clear if it was before 19 or after the 9019 motion was filed. But Mr. Dondero is the 20 very source of information -- you can't make this up. He's the 21 very source of the information that he now complains Mr. Seery
22 didn't disclose.

23 Of course, Mr. Dondero, the trust, CLO Holdco could 24 have asked Mr. Seery at any time, how did you come up with your 25 valuation? Mr. Dondero, knowing that he had supplied to

1 Mr. Seery, according to Paragraph 27, please take it as true
2 for purposes of this motion only. He's the source of the 3 inside information. And now he has the audacity to come to 4 this Court, notwithstanding the Court's approval, all of the 5 time and money and effort spent in the 9019 process, and say,
6 Mr. Seery was wrong because he didn't tell CLO Holdco and the 7 DAF about the information that Mr. Dondero gave to Mr. Seery.
8 It's not right.

9 It was a judgment on the merits. And if Mr. Dondero
10 or the DAF or CLO Holdco or the trust wanted to challenge the 11 valuation, they had every opportunity to do so. And based on 12 Paragraph 127, if the Court accepts it as true, shame on them.
13 Shame on them for not pursuing this issue before. The guy gave 14 Mr. Seery, according to this allegation, and I'm just going to 15 leave it there, inside information. And he sits there in 16 silence, right? It says, look at the last sentence: "The news
17 of the MGM purchase should have caused Seery to revalue HCLOF's
18 investment." Seriously?

19 The third element is (indiscernible). The fourth
20 element, if we can go to the next slide.

21 Are they the same claims? Did the claims arise from 22 the same set of operative facts? I've addressed this pretty 23 clearly already, so I don't want to belabor the point. But 24 obviously, both the 9019 motion and the complaint arise solely 25 from the debtor's settlement with HarbourVest. The debtor's

1 acquisition of HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF and the debtor's
2 valuation of that interest. Without those three facts, there
3 is no complaint. It's just not credible to argue that the 4 fourth element is not met.

5 The case law is clear. It's quoted in the 6 Plaintiffs' opposition. It's not just the test of whether the 7 claims are the same. It's whether the claim is the same as 8 that which was brought or could have been brought.

9 In their opposition, the Plaintiffs contend that the 10 claims "did not write them until after the settlement was 11 consummated," and that the first time the plaintiffs heard
12 about the valuation of HarbourVest's interests was at the 13 January 14, 2021, hearing. I think I quoted that. If you
14 look, I don't know if it's Page 10 or Paragraph 10; the way I
15 wrote it, it's probably Page 10. I think that's a quote right
16 out of there. But of course, as we saw the debtor disclosed
17 the valuation in its very initial motion, CLO Holdco's counsel
18 elicited valuation testimony directly from Mr. Pugatch, so that 19 was before the hearing.

20 And of course, Mr. Dondero and the trusts both cited
21 in their objections the valuation. The notion that this was 22 not right, just -- it's contradicted by their own conduct,
23 their objections, their questions in deposition, the 24 information that was contained in the motion that they objected
25 to.

1 I do want to go off-script for just a minute, if we
2 could just take that down because I know that this is probably
3 something that Mr. Sbaiti may argue. And that is, well, gee,
4 but you have to take the allegation as true that Mr. Seery
5 wasn't honest, that Mr. Seery lied to the court. I don't 6 understand why there's not a fraud cause of action in there,
7 but there's not. But that's their theory.

8 And gee, how does he get to skate away Scott free if 9 he's allowed to do that with impunity, right? I will tell you,
10 Your Honor, of course you've seen Mr. Seery many times. You've 11 made your own assessments of his credibility. I'm not here to 12 argue the merits, but I will just say that the Defendants, if 13 ever forced to, will contest the allegation.

14 But here's the thing, and here's the important point
15 about, you know, whether or not he could lie with impunity and 16 say, I suspect that's where Mr. Sbaiti is going to want to go.

17 Mr. Seery said what he said. And he had a reason to 18 speak, and he spoke, and he said what he said and he told 19 everybody who would listen exactly what he was doing and how he 20 was doing it. For whatever reason, the objectors put the 21 valuation front and center. It's right in their objections.
22 They noted the objections. But for whatever reason, they did
23 nothing.

24 Whether they were negligent or whether they were 25 lying in wait is kind of irrelevant. They had a full and fair

1 opportunity to contest this issue. And if they had done so,
2 and the evidence proved what they're now alleging, they can't
3 tell you what would have happened. So, you know, HarbourVest
4 may have taken a different position. The Court may have done
5 something.

6 We're never going to know now because Mr. Seery and 7 the debtor are getting away with something, but because they 8 put in evidence that went unchallenged by Mr. Dondero and the 9 Plaintiffs. It simply went unchallenged. And they say, oh,
10 gee, that's because we didn't know. Well first of all, you
11 didn't ask. And second of all, again, the source of the inside 12 information, the reason that Mr. Seery should have known the 13 asset was worth more. The reason that he should have refrained
14 from trading and not engaged in insider information was 15 Paragraph 127. It was Mr. Dondero.

16 Here's another thing. If -- if again Mr. Seery had 17 not been honest with the Court and that was ever brought out,
18 Maybe HarbourVest -- maybe HarbourVest would have had a right
19 to complain. There's a lot in the complaint about oh, 20 HarbourVest was misled. The actual evidence that's in the 21 record, and this is part of res judicata, Mr. Seery testified
22 very clearly to the arm's length negotiation that took place.
23 He told the Court under oath that the negotiations were 24 contentious.

25 He told the Court under oath that in order to try to

1 resolve the case, he and Mr. Pugatch went off and had their own
2 private conversation without lawyers. They could have taken
3 discovery on any of that, right. What did you guys talk about?
4 It's certainly not privileged. They had every opportunity.
5 But what we do know is that Mr. Pugatch under oath, in 6 deposition, and at trial, said the value is $22.5 million.

7 So I don't think Mr. Pugatch or HarbourVest is ever,
8 ever, every going to complain about the transaction they did.
9 Because of what the evidence simply shows. But again, you've 10 got the Plaintiffs in their complaint saying that somehow the 11 debtor and Mr. Seery in negotiating this transaction has now
12 exposed the debtor to liability. It just makes no sense.

13 So there was a time and there was a place to 14 challenge Mr. Seery. Somebody, you know, maybe HarbourVest
15 could have done something, maybe they could still do something.
16 I don't know. If they really think that there's a problem,
17 maybe we'll hear from HarbourVest someday. But the Plaintiffs
18 have no right to complain. They just don't. They knew 19 everything. They were the source of the inside information.
20 They sat on their hands, and they shouldn't be allowed to do
21 what they're doing now.

22 If we can go to the next slide. I want to move to 23 the next theory and try to finish this up. The next theory is 24 that the Plaintiffs' claims are barred by judicial estoppel.
25 The judicial estoppel argument is really, really very

1 straight-forward. And it's important because if the Court
2 thinks about this the way I do, it's that the whole issue of 3 valuation is completely irrelevant to the Plaintiffs unless 4 they can show that they were owed some kind of duty, that they
5 had some superior right to acquire the asset. But that's 6 exactly the issue that CLO Holdco relied upon and withdrew and 7 should now be estopped from pursuing. Right.

8 The legal standard, again the parties agree on, that 9 in order to be estopped, the party must take an inconsistent
10 position. And the party must have convinced the Court to 11 accept that position. Again, both prongs are easily met here
12 in just a few sentences from the January 14 hearing. You have 13 Mr. Kane saying that he understands and acknowledges and admits 14 that they have no superior right to the investment. And the 15 Court relying on that very representation in declining to 16 conduct a hearing and render a ruling on the merits of the 17 claim that was withdrawn. The objection that was withdrawn.

18 And for the avoidance of doubt, after Mr. Draper
19 spoke on behalf of the Trust, the Court, at Page 22 engaged in 20 the following colloquy. The Court asked Mr. Draper:

21 "THE COURT: Were you saying that the Court still 22 needs to drill down on the issue of whether the 23 debtor can acquire HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF.

24 "MR. DRAPER: No.

25 "THE COURT: Okay. I was confused whether you were

1 saying I needed to take an independent look of that.

2 Now that the objection has been withdrawn of CLO

3 Holdco, you're not pressing the issue.

4 "MR. DRAPER: No. I am not."

5 Okay. You can call it res judicata, you can call it
6 judicial estoppel, collateral estoppel, the two prongs are 7 easily met. They're taking an inconsistent position today and 8 through all kinds of different theories, including the one that 9 they withdrew, the Plaintiffs assert that they had a superior
10 right to acquire the interest from HarbourVest.

11 And they should have asserted those rights at the 12 hearing. That was the time. And they should be estopped now
13 from taking a completely inconsistent position from the one
14 that was before the Court. And I just do want to point out, 15 the statement from a case called Hall vs. G.E. Plastic. And 16 it's interesting, Your Honor, because there's only a few cases
17 that I focused on, because this is really more fact intensive.
18 And there isn't a dispute as to the, you know, the elements of 19 these matters.

20 But it is interesting that the Plaintiffs, you know,
21 generally ignore all of the cases that we cite to. One which 22 is Hall vs. G.E. Plastic, where the Court said that the focus 23 on the prior success or judicial acceptance requirements is to 24 minimize the degree of a party contradicting a Court's 25 determination, based on a party's prior position. That's the

1 whole point of the exercise. You can't do this. You can't do
2 this.

3 Just quickly, that leaves the individual arguments as to 4 each of the five causes of action and I just want to go through 5 some highlights. There's a negligence claim, Your Honor. And 6 we did not file a pleading, but the Court can certainly take 7 judicial notice of the fact that the effective date has 8 occurred. Under the effective date, the plan is now effective.
9 That includes the exculpation clause, as Mr. Pomerantz, I think 10 accurately and without contradiction pointed out earlier, the 11 exculpation clause applies specifically to the debtor and to 12 negligence claims. And that's not a matter that's at all 13 subject to appeal.

14 So I think just to add to the arguments that we have 15 in our papers, which I adopt and do not abandon for any 16 purpose, I would add to the argument on negligence, that it's 17 now precluded, as a result of the plan becoming effective.

18 The fiduciary duty count suffers from numerous defects. I
19 just want to point out a couple of them. They don't respond to 20 the argument under Corwin, that under the Advisor's Act, there
21 is no private right of action to sue for damages arising from a 22 breach of fiduciary duty. This claim rears its head in 23 virtually every single complaint. They've never addressed
24 Corwin. Corwin is binding on this Court, and it is unambiguous
25 that there is no private right of action to sue for damages for

1 breach of fiduciary duty under the Advisor's Act.

2 They ignore Goldstein. Goldstein is not from the 3 Fifth Circuit, but it's very persuasive authority that advisors
4 do not owe fiduciary duties to their individual investors.
5 Instead, they owe fiduciary duty to their client. Their client
6 is the entity with whom they're in contractual privity. And so
7 in this case, there's no fiduciary duty there, either.

8 The breach of contract claim. Again I just -- I
9 would just say quickly, Your Honor, it's barred under judicial 10 estoppel. Even if it wasn't, it's clear based on Mr. James'
11 analysis and admission that the debtor's, or the reorganized
12 debtor's interpretation of 6.2 is accurate. And you know, I 13 said this in the beginning. Now let me tie it in a bow because 14 the breach of contract claim, and the tortuous interference
15 claim are both tied to the same thing. And that is the 16 assertion that the Plaintiffs had a right under the membership
17 agreement, a right of first refusal.

18 And they basically say that the debtor was playing 19 games. That they shouldn't be able to get through 6.2 by 20 assigning it to an affiliate. And that's where I go back, Your 21 Honor, and just remind the Court that the debtor told the whole
22 world exactly what they were doing in their motion. And their 23 objections, Mr. Dondero and the Trusts both acknowledge to the 24 whole world that they understood exactly what was happening.

25 In fact, their concern was not that it was going to

1 the debtor, but that it might be going to an affiliate outside
2 of the bankruptcy court's jurisdiction. And for them to now
3 say, having taken all of those positions -- talk about
4 inconsistent positions. They should be barred from saying
5 today, that the use of an affiliate to effectuate the 6 transaction was wrongful, because they actually told the Court
7 that they needed to -- that the Court needed to make sure that
8 it had jurisdiction over the very entity they now say somehow
9 shouldn't have been allowed to get the asset.

10 It's a bit much. So that takes care of the tortuous
11 interference.

12 The RICO claim, Your Honor, again is a motion.
13 There's so many different aspects to it. But I don't think the 14 Court needs to get past the Supreme Court holdings in HJ, Inc.
15 Again, just simply ignored by the Plaintiffs in their 16 opposition to the motion to dismiss. In HJ, Inc., the Court --
17 the Supreme Court did an exhaustive analysis to try to 18 determine and ultimately did determine, what a pattern of 19 racketeering activity meant. And the Supreme Court came to the 20 following formulation. That it had to have two or more 21 predicate related offenses that amounted to a threat of 22 continued criminal activities.

23 You know, the notion here is that the debtor and Mr.
24 Seery engaged in insider trading. We've already -- I've 25 already mentioned that according to the complaint, which the

1 Court can take as true. Mr. Dondero, himself, was the tippee.
2 But be that as it may, they don't come close to meeting the 3 very high standards set forth by the Supreme Court in HJ, Inc.
4 to show that whatever conduct Mr. Seery and the debtor engaged
5 in, and if you take the allegations as true, in not telling
6 what the fair value of the asset was, that that doesn't amount
7 to a hill of beans for purposes of RICO. That you don't have 8 any, I think predicate acts. I think here's the Court,
9 predicate acts extending over a few weeks or months,
10 threatening no future criminal conduct, do not meet RICO
11 pleading grounds. Right.

12 Security fraud claims cannot be predicate acts for 13 purposes of RICO. That is also clear. And that is really, I
14 mean they say mail, wire and fraud. But what's really at heart
15 is the 10(b)(5). Okay, it's the 10(b)(5) claim. Again, Mr.
16 Seery being -- I mean Mr. Dondero being the tippee. But those 17 are just some of the reasons.

18 None of, you know, that the RICO claim fails. You
19 know, I'll otherwise rely on the papers, unless the Court has 20 specific questions as to any of the other pieces of the motion
21 to dismiss the RICO claim, or any other aspect of the 22 Defendants' motion. I think this is clear. I think we win, no
23 matter how you slice it. It's just wrong. It's just wrong.

24 This Court will never, ever have a final order if Mr.
25 Dondero is able to engineer complaints such as this, which seek

1 to assert claims that absolutely positively could have and 2 should have been brought at the time the debtor made its 3 motion.

4 Unless the Court has any questions, I have nothing
5 further.

6 THE COURT: I do not. All right.

7 Mr. Sbaiti, I'm going to let you have as much time as 8 Mr. Morris. He took 55 minutes. As I mentioned, I have a hard 9 stop at 12:00 to do a swearing in ceremony. So if you're not 10 finished in 40 minutes, then I'm going to have to take a break
11 and come back and let you finish. All right?

12 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor. Although I don't 13 think I'm going to be much longer than 35-ish minutes.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. SBAITI: if not less.

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. SBAITI: I think you'll be able to be done by --
18 we'll be able to be done by noon.

19 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

20 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor. Your Honor, may I
21 share my screen?

22 THE COURT: You may.

23 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor. Do you see my 24 Power Point, Your Honor?

25 THE COURT: I do.

1 MR. SBAITI: Thank you, Your Honor. I don't know
2 what which one you see. Is it the --

3 THE COURT: I see presentation.

4 MR. SBAITI: With the full page?

5 THE COURT: Yes, uh-huh.

6 MR. SBAITI: Okay, yeah, great. I just want to make 7 sure we're on the right page. Thank you, Your Honor. So Your 8 Honor, the defendant debtor is a registered investment advisor.
9 And it all begins with that. And this where the distinctions
10 between what happened in the 9019 and I'll get to the elements
11 of res judicata through argument.

12 But the first thing that has to be identified is that 13 the Defendant is a registered investment advisor. The 14 objection filed by Holdco back during the 9019 was an objection
15 against HarbourVest selling its interest by filing the right of 16 first refusal. It did not deal with the investment advisor
17 feature of Highland's relationship. And I'll get to why the 18 9019 doesn't preclude these arguments today.

19 This is essentially the structure. Highland was the 20 investment advisor of HCLOF, and Holdco is an investor in 21 HCLOF. And so Highland would owe a fiduciary duty under the 22 Advisor's Act against -- to CLO Holdco.

23 Highland also had a direct advisor relationship with 24 the DAF. And so under the Investment Advisor's Act, it owed
25 fiduciary duties to both of those entities. The law governing

1 registered investment advisors is that it's a federally
2 recognized and defined fiduciary duties. The fiduciary duty to 3 there's a fiduciary duty to affirmatively keep the advisee
4 informed and the fiduciary duty not to self-deal, i.e., not to 5 trade ahead of an advisee and opportunity that an advisee would
6 want or expect and without the advisee's expressed informed
7 consent.

8 This is a federally recognized and defined fiduciary
9 duty and it's actionable under state fiduciary duty laws.
10 While Mr. Morris ended his argument by saying we didn't deal 11 with their case law saying that there's no private right of 12 action under the Advisor's Act, the fact of the matter is that 13 Judge Boyle, about ten years ago, found that a state -- the 14 breach of fiduciary duty claim can be predicated on breaches of 15 federally imposed fiduciary duties under the Advisor's Act.
16 And that's what Douglass v. Beakley held. And that's actually 17 what we cited in our response. So I'm not sure why he would 18 argue that we haven't addressed the issue of where does this 19 private right of action come from.

20 Federal Law supplies the rules of the relationship
21 and State Law provides the cause of action for those breaches.
22 Now the scope of that has been expounded upon by many cases.
23 The Fifth Circuit held in Laird, as a fiduciary, the standard
24 of care to which an investment advisor must adhere imposes an 25 affirmative duty of utmost good faith and full and fair

1 disclosure to all material facts, as well as an affirmative
2 obligation to employ reasonable care to avoid misleading his 3 clients.

4 The word "affirmative" there is important because it
5 means the investment advisor is not supposed to wait to be 6 asked. The investment advisor as an affirmative duty to 7 proactively provide the information to the client.

8 The next standard comes from the SEC. We call it the 9 SEC interpretation letter. It's a release that came out in 10 2019. And to meet it's duty of loyalty, an advisor must make 11 full and fair disclosure to its clients of all material facts
12 relating to the advisor relationship. Material facts relating 13 to the advisor relationship include the capacity at which the 14 firm is acting with respect to the advice provided.

15 The SEC had another release in 2000 -- or excuse me,
16 in that same release, the SEC said the duty of loyalty requires 17 that an advisor not subordinate its clients interests to its 18 own. In other word, an investment advisor must not place its 19 own interest ahead of its clients' interests. An advisor has a 20 duty to act in the client's best interest, not its own.

21 The SEC general instruction three to part 2 of Form
22 ADV, that every investment advisor has to pull out. And this 23 is cited in our papers. As a fiduciary, you must also seek to 24 avoid conflicts of interest with your clients, and at a 25 minimum, make full disclosure of all material conflicts of

1 interest between you and your clients that could affect the 2 advisor relationship. This obligation requires that you provide
3 the client with sufficiently specific facts, so that the client
4 is able to understand the conflicts of interest you have, and 5 the business practices in which you engage, and can give 6 informed consent to such conflicts or practices or reject them.

7 And, finally, the Third Circuit in Belmont said:

8 "Under the best interest test, an advisor may benefit
9 from a transaction recommended to a client if, and 10 only if, that benefit, and all related details of the 11 transaction are fully disclosed."

12 These fiduciary duties are unwaivable by the advisor.
13 Any condition, stipulation or provision binding any person to 14 waive compliance with any provision of this subchapter, or with 15 any rule, regulation or order thereunder shall be void.

16 So the lawsuit does not allege that the HarbourVest
17 settlement should be undone or unwound. I'd like to move to 18 that point. Mr. Morris says well, you have to unwind half of 19 the settlement. Maybe HarbourVest doesn't have to give back
20 what it got, but Highland would still be saddled with the cost
21 of the settlement, but not with the benefit of the settlement.

22 Well, actually that's not true. There's two points
23 that we would make on that. Number one, our suit is a suit for 24 damages. In other words, the suit would be a suit for money
25 damages, based on the difference between the value of the asset

1 and what HarbourVest or what the actual value of the asset that
2 was represented, $22.5 million. So the second point, though,
3 is that even under a situation where CLO or Holdco or the DAF,
4 or even HCLOF were to purchase the HarbourVest suit, the 5 expectation would obviously be that they'd pay the $22.5
6 million that Highland paid for it.

7 So Highland is -- so it's not unwinding, and there's 8 no saddling Highland with a burden that they didn't otherwise
9 have, I think that's a misrepresentation. But we're not 10 seeking to unwind the lawsuit -- or excuse me, unwind the 11 settlement.

12 Now Mr. Morris is correct, the representation of 13 value by Mr. Seery is -- is one of the main points here. And 14 the representation was that the value of the entire asset. Not 15 just the shares of MGM, but the value of the entire asset was 16 $22.5 million. So in other word, nearly half of HCLOF was 17 represented to be worth $22.5 million. It was argued by 18 counsel on Page 14 of the January 14th transcript, and then on 19 Page 112 of that transcript, Mr. Seery specifically says the 20 current value is right around $22.5 million.

21 Now that was also in some of the filing papers and 22 Mr. Morris put up the evidence to Your Honor that Mr. Pugatch, 23 on behalf of HarbourVest also parroted that number. But 24 there's not any evidence today about where that number came
25 from, or whether he was simply relying on Highland's

1 representation of that value.

2 Now as a general rule, in these 12(B)(6) motions, as
3 I said before, we don't look at the evidence because the whole
4 point of discovery is to find out what's behind a lot of the 5 evidence. That's been quoted. The amount of evidence that 6 went into the 9019 motion as not necessarily full-blown
7 discovery.

8 I understand Mr. Morris saying well, they could have 9 asked the question. But as I just showed you, they shouldn't 10 have to ask the question. There should be fair and full 11 disclosure of all the material facts. And if it turns out,
12 which we believe it is true, that by January, the value of 13 HCLOF was twice what it was represented, or the HarbourVest
14 portion of HCLOF was twice as to what it was represented,
15 that's a material omission that Highland had an affirmative
16 duty to not misrepresent. Irrespective of the questions being 17 asked.

18 The DAF found out later on that the representation of 19 the value wasn't true. Now Mr. Morris talked for a very long
20 time about all the opportunities that somebody, Mr. Dondero,
21 somebody other than CLO Holdco. In addition to CLO Holdco,
22 could have asked the magic question to find out whether or not
23 they were telling the truth. But that runs right in the face
24 of the standards set forth by the SEC and by the Courts as to 25 the affirmative obligation of an advisor to disclose all the

1 material benefits that they're going to get as part of a trade.
2 The idea being that when you're a registered investment advisor
3 and you want to engage in a transaction, you make a full
4 disclosure and say this is the transaction. It's worth 41, but 5 I'm paying 22-1/2. But here's why I'd like to be able to do
6 it. And then that's the discussion that happens.

7 That clearly didn't happen here. And when it turned 8 out that there was this entirely huge upside that they were 9 gaining the benefit of, and maybe HarbourVest didn't care, that 10 that was a false statement. Now the reason we don't have a 11 common law fraud claim, or that we don't necessarily hang our 12 hat on a fraud claim is we don't have enough evidence as it
13 stands today, to specifically say that Mr. Seery intentionally
14 misrepresented that. Although we believe that it was grossly
15 reckless of him to do so. But we don't really need a fraud
16 claim with a gross recklessness standard. We have a breach of 17 fiduciary duty, which basically gets us to the same place.

18 So the timeline we have is September 30th was the 19 last valuation of HCLOF assets provided by HCMLP. And the 20 value of HCLOF, at that time, or the HarbourVest of that value,
21 would have been about 22.5 million. So what it appears to be 22 is that in January or in late December, the valuation that was 23 being done -- what was being reported, wasn't the current 24 valuation. It was the valuation as of the end of the third
25 quarter of 2020.

1 On December 22nd, the motion to approve the 2 settlement with HarbourVest was filed. HCMLP should have had
3 or would have had up-to-date valuations of the HCLOF assets,
4 but didn't necessarily disclose them as being different than 5 the 22.5 million. On January the 14th, Your Honor, held the 6 9019 hearing. And then that same day, Your Honor entered the 7 approval order.

8 And finally, in March, the DAF learns the true value
9 of HLOF assets as of January 2021 and starts to look into it.
10 Now Mr. Morris makes much of the fact that well, Mr. Dondero at 11 least knew that he had tipped them off, Mr. Seery. And if you
12 actually read Paragraph 127, you'll see specifically what it's 13 purported that he said. He said stop trading in the MGM
14 assets, because MGM might be in play. So you can't trade
15 because I'm an advisor, Mr. Dondero's an insider, he's the 16 tipper, not the tippee. Mr. Seery becomes the tippee under 17 that theory of the case, and he has to, and is required to,
18 because of their affiliation at the time, he's required to 19 cease trading. And that was the purpose of saying that.

20 The collateral issue that we point is that he at the 21 very least knew about that, and that should have caused him to 22 revalue, if he hadn't done so at the time. Not that, knowing
23 that alone is sufficient to know what the value of HCLOF
24 actually was on that date. That's a complete misrepresentation
25 of the point and purpose of that allegation.

1 And as Your Honor knows, under 12(B)(6)
2 jurisprudence, the way this is supposed to go is we get the 3 benefit of every inference based upon the allegations, not the 4 movant. So the first violation is that the debtor as an IRA
5 failed to affirmatively disclose the true current valuation of 6 HCLOF and failed to keep the DAF and CLO Holdco reasonably
7 informed of the value of the assets.

8 And the debtor as an IRA, failed to obtain CLO
9 Holdco's with the DAF's informed consent before it traded in 10 the asset, because it didn't have all of the information. The 11 typical remedy for breach of fiduciary duty is typically 12 damages for any loss suffered by the Plaintiff as a result of 13 the breach. I don't think there's a debate there.

14 So now we get to Mr. Morris' key argument. His key 15 argument is that we should be talking about res judicata. The 16 elements of res judicata and I think we agree is you have to 17 have identical parties in the action; the prior judgment was 18 rendered by a Court of competent jurisdiction; the final 19 judgment was final on the merits, and the cases involved the 20 same causes of action or the same transaction and nexus of 21 facts.

22 Now I'm going to skip to three, because I think
23 that's one of the key points that we disagree with them on.
24 There is no case, Your Honor, that we could find, and no case
25 that I read them citing that says an order on an 9019 has

1 preclusive effect under res judicata under an objector to the 2 settlement. We looked. We looked in the Fifth Circuit. We
3 looked outside of the Fifth Circuit. No District Court, no
4 Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals' opinion we could find held that
5 a 9019 order has res judicata effect on an objector's
6 objection. And I think the reason is pretty simple. Is it
7 doesn't.

8 Because the Plaintiff's claims, here our claims
9 hadn't even accrued. We have a four year statute of 10 limitations, but I think more importantly is that, as the Fifth
11 Circuit said, the 9019 motion grants the Court discretion.
12 It's not supposed to be a mini trial. The Court can approve a 13 settlement over even the valid objection of an objector. It's 14 not a trial on the merits. It's not supposed to be a trial on 15 the merits. It's not supposed to be a disposition on the 16 merits.

17 So the fact that Your Honor could have approved the 18 9019 settlement with HarbourVest, even if we had a valid
19 objection, means this isn't a disposition on the merits, as res
20 judicata would envision. It wasn't a trial on the merits, even 21 though it was withdrawn.

22 The other elements that we would point out to is that 23 neither the DAV nor Holdco were parties to the dispute between 24 HarbourVest and Highland. And this keys off of the issue that 25 I just raised. The cases that are cited by the debtor to Your

1 Honor all have to do with where one of the settling parties is 2 trying to undo the settlement for some collateral reason. And 3 the Courts have held, no, that's res judicata, because you were 4 a party to the action. HarbourVest brought the claims against 5 Highland. Highland settled those claims.

6 CLO Holdco was collateral to that settlement, it's 7 not a -- excuse me, collateral to that dispute. It's not a
8 party to that dispute. Its claims weren't being resolved by 9 the settlement. And while you have a notice to all creditors
10 and those objections can be raised, there was not inherently
11 any manner for resolving those objections on their own merits.
12 Only -- it was only resolved in so far as deciding whether or 13 not the settlement was in the best interest of the debtor,
14 which Your Honor decided, and we don't challenge that. But we 15 do argue that it caused damages and the debtor shouldn't get 16 off for those damages.

17 The fourth element is that the --

18 THE COURT: Just for the record, the standard in a 19 9019 context is not best interest of the debtor, right?

20 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, I mean that's what the rule
21 says and Your Honor's order --

22 THE COURT: That is not what the rule says. The rule
23 is actually very sparsely worded and then we have Fifth Circuit
24 case law and U.S. Supreme Court law that talk about what the 25 standard is.

1 MR. SBAITI: Yes, Your Honor. And there are five --

2 THE COURT: And it's -- is it fair?

3 MR. SBAITI: There are five elements.

4 THE COURT: Is it fair and equitable and in the best
5 interest of the estate given a long list --

6 MR. SBAITI: Correct, Your Honor. And I didn't mean
7 to --

8 THE COURT: -- of considerations that the Court is 9 supposed to consider that "bear on the wisdom of the 10 settlement." Okay. So it's actually much more involved, is my 11 point, than is it in the best interest of the estate. Is it in 12 the best interest of the estate and fair and equitable given 13 all factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise? And then 14 we have a long laundry list of things the Court should consider 15 as part of that analysis.

16 MR. SBAITI: That's a --

17 THE COURT: I just bring that up because if I'm still 18 -- my brain is still stuck five minutes ago on your comment
19 that you can't find any case saying that an order approving a 20 9019 compromise has res judicata effect on creditors. And it's 21 -- let me just say it's shocking to me that someone would argue
22 otherwise. Bankruptcy is a collective proceeding --

23 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor --

24 THE COURT: -- where creditors can weigh in and 25 object and raise whatever arguments they think the Court should

1 consider that bear on the wisdom of the compromise. And the 2 Fifth Circuit in Foster Mortgage has said the Court should give
3 great deference to the views of the creditors, the paramount
4 interest of creditors.

5 So it's a really sort of shocking proposition that
6 the order approving a 9019 compromise wouldn't have res
7 judicata effect on all parties and interests who got notice of 8 that. So if you have any elaboration on that, I'd like to hear 9 it.

10 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, we looked at the Fifth
11 Circuit cases that they cited, which I believe included that 12 case. And even in that case, the point that we made in our 13 papers and the point I was trying to arrive at is that among 14 the factors, yes, the Court should give great deference to the 15 creditors. But among the factors is not that the objections
16 lack merit or are meritless or that they wouldn't be winnable
17 if they were simply standalone claims.

18 And that was really the only point I was trying to 19 make is that Your Honor has discretion. Granted it's -- as you
20 mentioned, it's not unfettered discretion. It's bounded by 21 standards and there are -- there is, I know, about five 22 standards Your Honor has to consider or the Court has to 23 consider. But among those, that laundry list of standards, is 24 not that the Court finds that any objection lacks merit. And 25 that was really the only point I was making.

1 And in terms of the case law, we looked at the Fifth
2 Circuit. We looked, frankly, outside the Fifth Circuit as much
3 as we could, and because this is actually not an easy one to 4 research, as it turned out, despite the language. And we also 5 looked for district court opinions in the Fifth Circuit to see
6 did any district court or did any court of appeals give this
7 type of approval to the standard that a 9019 order has res
8 judicata effect on a claim raised in an objection by a 9 creditor.

10 And we couldn't find any and I read all the cases
11 that Mr. Morris cited in his papers, and they didn't cite one 12 that explicitly said that. They tried to drive at it through 13 insinuation that, well, if the Court has to give great 14 deference or if the Court has to take into account the 15 underlying facts and the fact that there is discovery, surely 16 that must mean this is akin to the trial on the merits. And I
17 think that's where we simply disagree in good faith. I'm not 18 ascribing any bad intention. But we disagree that that's where 19 the law goes.

20 Res judicata is not -- while it's supposed to stop
21 the relitigation of issues, it is predicated on there having 22 been actual litigation of those issues. And when HarbourVest
23 and Highland settle a case and my clients show up with an 24 objection, even though they withdraw an objection, that, in our 25 opinion -- and we're asking the Court to see it our way -- is

1 not trial on the merits. It's not a disposition on the merits
2 of the objection in and of itself. Some objections we can --

3 THE COURT: But the context matters. In the context
4 of a 9019 compromise, the hearing is about look at the bonafide
5 ease of the settlement. And it's either fair and equitable and 6 in the best interest of the estate or not. And an objector can 7 say this is a terrible settlement and here's why it's a
8 terrible settlement and let me cross-examine the movant and let 9 me put on my own witness that will enlighten the Court as to 10 why this is a terrible settlement, why I say terrible, why it's 11 not fair and equitable.

12 That's your chance to convince the Court, don't 13 approve this settlement because there are, you know, 14
14 problems with it. And if you convince the Court, then you
15 convince the Court and it's not approved. If you don't, you
16 appeal, and we do have an appeal of the settlement order.

17 So, again, I'm not understanding the "res judicata
18 doesn't apply" argument.

19 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, if I could riff on two 20 points based upon what you just said, if I could address those.

21 The first is there are clearly two kinds of 22 objections that get -- at least two kinds of objections that 23 get raised in these 9019 approval hearings. The two that you
24 heard recounted, some were this is bad for the estate. There's 25 reasons why we don't think the estate will benefit from it and

1 it will be harmed from it.

2 And those types of objections, which I believe mostly
3 comprise the objections that Mr. Morris was talking about 4 because they are concerns for the estate. And so creditors who 5 want to get money from the estate are concerned that the 6 settlement will not enter (phonetic) to the benefit of the 7 estate, and therefore, not enter to their benefit as creditors.
8 That's number one.

9 But those don't adhere in a lawsuit. Those aren't 10 claims for damages that the settlement is going to create for 11 the person objection or for the party objecting. There's a 12 whole separate set of objections similar to the ones HCLO
13 Holdco raised where that what inheres in the objection is this 14 is actually going to cause us some kind of damage.

15 And so, the factors though, don't require the Court
16 in those second set of instances to say, well, you know what?
17 Not only do I think you're wrong, but I think that your 18 lawsuit, the underlying causes of action that give rise to this
19 objection, have no merit on their own face, that the discovery
20 is not there to support them, that a jury is not going to find 21 there. I am now the trier or the Court is now the trier of 22 fact on the merits of the underlying causes of action that 23 animate the objection.

24 And that's where I believe we're diverging with the 25 debtor on the law. It goes too far to say that a 9019 hearing

1 where the Court in the end has discretion to approve it, even
2 over a meritorious objection by any party, regardless of what
3 bucket of objections the objection falls into. It goes -- our 4 argument today, Your Honor, and we're asking the Court to see
5 it our way, is that that would go too far. That an actual 6 cause of action shouldn't be eradicated simply because of the 7 9019 process because, as you pointed out, the Court does have 8 to go through a litany of factors.

9 And if the Court determines that it's fair and it's 10 more equitable to overrule the objection, the Court has that 11 discretion. And we're not here to unwind that discretion.

12 But the settlement process did violate certain 13 obligations and did cause my client damages. And that's what 14 we're saying isn't precluded.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. SBAITI: The fourth element, Your Honor, which I
17 guess in many ways maps on to the argument I just made to Your 18 Honor is that the cases, the underlying cases, do not involve
19 the same claims. Plaintiffs' claims arise from the settlement
20 process itself and not from the underlying issues being settled
21 between HarbourVest and Highland. So that's why we think at 22 least three of the four elements aren't met here. And we'll 23 reserve on the papers, you know, whether jurisdiction was 24 applicable because I think that's probably water under the 25 bridge at this point in the oral argument.

1 Now, Mr. Morris attacks the case that we cite,
2 Applewood Chair vs. Three Rivers Planning. And he argues that,
3 well, this is not applicable. And the argument he made however 4 was he put it in the context of, well, the parties there, the 5 issue was you had guarantors who were not parties in their
6 capacity as guarantors. But that's not actually what the Court
7 held.

8 The Court didn't say that the release wasn't 9 applicable to them because they didn't appear as parties in 10 their guarantee capacities. They -- the Court held that, well, 11 the specific discharge language doesn't enumerate those 12 specific guarantees, and so therefore it's not released.

13 And where this dovetails, we believe, as closely as 14 we can, this isn't a 9019 case. This is a final confirmed
15 plan. But where it dovetails with what our argument is, is 16 that the Court there as well was essentially saying the 17 underlying causes of action weren't really presented to us, so
18 we're not -- we -- and the confirmation of the plan didn't 19 involve disposing of them, so we're not going to say that they 20 are precluded. And we think that that's as close an analogy as 21 we've found in the Fifth Circuit to the issues here today.

22 So I would say, Your Honor, that we believe that 23 dispenses with the res judicata argument. The judicial 24 estoppel argument, they conflate the language. I'll go back to 25 this for a second. They conflate the language of judicial

1 estoppel on the success of the claim. None of the cases they
2 cite on judicial estoppel involved where a party took a
3 position, withdrew their argument, and then the Court moved on.

4 Mr. Morris tries to convert a judicial estoppel claim
5 into a judicial reliance claim, which is not the purpose of the 6 doctrine and is not the doctrine at all. The doctrine is that 7 if you take a successful position in one court, you can't take 8 the opposite position in another court. CLO Holdco didn't take 9 a successful position in one court and then change its position
10 later on. In fact, its positions, as Mr. Morris stated, are 11 remarkably similar. They're not inconsistent, which is the 12 problem with their judicial estoppel argument. And we -- I
13 think we fairly briefed that in our papers and we'll otherwise
14 rest on the papers.

15 To deal -- to address the actual claims, again, I
16 come back to the idea of a fiduciary duty claim, which is our 17 lead claim. And to be clear, it's a state claim predicated on 18 the violation of federally imposed fiduciary duties.

19 And I'm looking for a clock to make sure I'm not 20 abusing Your Honor's time, and I don't have one right in front
21 of me because my screen -- my screen is up.

22 Your Honor, the Douglass v. Beakley case is, like I
23 said, is Judge Boyle's case. It specifically provides a cause
24 of action based upon violations of the Advisers Act. We also 25 cite about four or five other cases in footnote 8 of our

1 response from other circuits, including the Third Circuit, the 2 Belton case that I referred to earlier, all of which held that,
3 yes, a state fiduciary duty claim can be predicated on breaches
4 of a federal Advisers Act violation.

5 The other point that they make on the fiduciary duty
6 claim is they argue HCMLP doesn't owe fiduciary duties to CLO
7 Holdco. And the cases they cite, Your Honor, we dealt with in 8 the papers why they were distinguishable, because in those 9 cases they were dealing with the fact that there wasn't any 10 harm or any direct relationship. But what they ignore is the 11 actual language of the Advisers Act, which is important.

12 Well, first of all, Mr. Seery admitted in his own
13 testimony during the approval hearing in July of 2019 that he 14 says, "We owe." He says, "There are third party investors in 15 the fund -- in these funds who have no relation whatsoever to 16 Highland, and we owe them a fiduciary duty both to manage their 17 assets prudently, but also to seek to maximize value." I think 18 Mr. Seery was absolutely correct when he said that. Highland 19 owes fiduciary duties to the investors in the funds that 20 Highland manages. The core of our case is that Highland is 21 using or abusing the assets of the funds it managed in HCLOF
22 for its own enrichment, which is a classic breach of fiduciary
23 duty case under the Advisers Act.

24 Now -- excuse me. The other point that I would say,
25 Your Honor, is that there is a statutory basis for us to argue

1 a breach of fiduciary duty. Excuse me. I didn't mean to stop
2 sharing. I apologize.

3 Are you back with me, Your Honor, on my --

4 THE COURT: Yes.

5 MR. SBAITI: -- PowerPoint?

6 THE COURT: Yes.

7 MR. SBAITI: Sorry about that, Your Honor. I just
8 hit the wrong thing. I'm not very technologically savvy. Here
9 we go.

10 So Holdco is an investor in HCLOF, which is a pooled
11 investment vehicle. A pooled investment vehicle under the case
12 law we cite is simply defined as an investment vehicle that 13 doesn't publicly solicit investors and has few than 100
14 investors. Highland advises it. That's the same holding in 15 TransAmerica Mortgage, by the way, which we also cite.

16 15 U.S. C. Section 80(b)(6) establishes the federal 17 fiduciary standards to govern the conduct of registered
18 investment advisers. That's also the TransAmerica case. 15
19 U.S.C. Section 80(b)(6)(D) delegated to the SEC the power to 20 decide the scope of those duties that are imposed under the 21 statute. And so the SEC enacted 17 C.F.R. Section 275.206(4)- 22 8.

23 And it expressly states, and we cite the statute or 24 the regular in full in our papers, that the fiduciary duties
25 are owed to investors in the pooled investment vehicles. It

1 specifically says that. It talks about two different duties
2 owed and they're owed to the investors in the vehicles, which 3 means they're owed to Holdco as an investor in HCLOF, which is 4 the vehicle that Highland manages.

5 It's black and white in the regulation. And we 6 haven't seen any response. There was no response of that in 7 the reply that was filed, Your Honor. And so the argument that 8 there's not a fiduciary duty owed to Holdco because it's merely 9 an investor in HCLOF simply doesn't comport with the law.

10 And finally, the petition lays out the basis for our 11 claims including the applicable federal and state law.
12 Plaintiffs' response lays out why the legal arguments aren't 13 opposite at the 12(b)(6) stage and Rule 9(b) is met where 14 necessary under the federal claim. And I'm trying to unshare
15 so that I can get back to regular argument.

16 I'd like to briefly address Mr. Morris' argument,
17 Your Honor. Your Honor, I re-raise my argument that I made 18 before, which is that a 12(b)(6) motion and hearing is not the 19 appropriate time for all the evidence that was poured in here.
20 And I understand Mr. Morris' contention, well, it's really hard 21 to ignore all the history of this case. But a lot of that 22 history really boils down to things that were actually admitted
23 in the complaint. The complaint recognized there was a 9019.
24 But what Mr. Morris wants to do is go beyond that and to go to 25 what people said and what they must have meant. What Mr.

1 Dondero must have meant in his objection, what Dugaboy must
2 have meant by their objection, what Mr. Pugatch must have meant
3 by his testimony.

4 All of that is highly improper at this stage of the 5 proceeding, Your Honor. It's outside of the 12(b)(6) confines.
6 It's outside the four corners of the complaint. And we object
7 to all of that evidence being considered.

8 THE COURT: Let me --

9 MR. SBAITI: The question we --

10 THE COURT: Let me ask you about that procedural
11 point.

12 MR. SBAITI: Yes, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: As we know, 12(d) provides that if 14 matters outside the pleadings are presented to and not excluded
15 by the Court in a 12(b)(6) motion, the motion must be treated
16 as one for a summary judgment under Rule 56 and all parties
17 must be given a reasonable opportunity to present all the 18 material that is pertinent to the motion.

19 Are you -- what are you arguing? That I should treat
20 it as a motion for summary judgment and give you more time to 21 present other materials? I mean, you both presented an 22 appendix, okay. And I'm telling you we're seeing this more and 23 more, I've noticed. People are going beyond the four corners
24 of a motion to dismiss and attaching things. And there's some,
25 you know, Fifth Circuit authority that says, well, if what is

1 attached is integral to understanding, you know, an allegation
2 or whatever in the pleading, you know, there is some discretion
3 to go outside the four corners.

4 So I'm trying to understand the point you're making
5 with this. Are you saying I should treat it as a motion for 6 summary judgment or do these attachments really -- you know, do
7 I have authority under the Fifth Circuit to consider them as 8 part of the 12(b)(6) motion or not?

9 MR. SBAITI: Typically, in our experience, Your 10 Honor, is when a summary or when a 12(b)(6) is going to be 11 treated as summary judgment under 12(d), the Court says that 12 and then the parties are given an opportunity, as you said, to 13 go do some discovery in order to put together the evidence and 14 materials to then come back and respond as a summary judgment.
15 We responded to a 12(b)(6) and objected to the evidence. If 16 the Court wants to treat it as a summary judgment, then we 17 would ask for an opportunity for -- to conduct discovery in 18 order to be able to respond as a summary judgment motion, but 19 we didn't -- because we responded to a 12(b)(6) --

20 THE COURT: You did the same thing though. You did 21 the same thing in your response. You submitted an appendix of 22 evidence, if you want to call it evidence. As someone pointed 23 out, it's stuff from the bankruptcy court record. I don't 24 think it went beyond what was already in the bankruptcy court.

25 MR. MORRIS: And if I -- can I be heard on this, Your

1 Honor?

2 THE COURT: You can. You can.

3 MR. MORRIS: Just to respond. This is really quite
4 simple. The motion to dismiss is based on res judicata. Res
5 judicata necessarily requires a review of what happened in 6 connection with the prior hearing. There's nothing that we 7 have identified or put forth in the appendix or on our exhibit
8 list except for the pleadings in the 9019, the transcripts, the 9 one deposition transcript, the one trial transcript, the 10 settlement agreement, the transfer agreement. I'd love to know
11 what the Court couldn't or shouldn't take judicial notice of.
12 There is no emails. There is no -- there is no -- there is no
13 extrinsic evidence, if you will. All of this is either on the 14 docket or was presented as part of the hearing.

15 THE COURT: Yeah. I'm just trying to ferret --

16 MR. MORRIS: And it's necessary. And it's necessary
17 for the motion.

18 THE COURT: Yeah. I'm just trying to ferret out the 19 procedural position that's being asserted here. And I don't 20 have the case cites off the top of my brain, but there is 21 authority from at least the Northern District judges, if not 22 the Fifth Circuit, saying in a 12(b)(6) motion I can take 23 judicial notice of items in the record. And then, you know,
24 there -- I know there's Fifth Circuit authority saying I can go
25 beyond the four corners in a 12(b) context if it's just basic,

1 you know, explaining things that are in allegations. You know,
2 such as --

3 MR. SBAITI: May I address that, Your Honor?

4 THE COURT: -- such as if a contract is in dispute,
5 okay. Like there's no way you can have a cause of action under 6 the contract and here's the contract. So I'm just trying to 7 nail down your procedural position here.

8 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, the distinction I was trying 9 to make that I don't think I put as artfully as I might be able
10 to put now is in a 12(b)(6) if there's a contract, as you said,
11 if there's a legal document, a contract and order that's 12 integral to the case, Your Honor can take judicial notice of 13 that. Generally, a court can take judicial notice of filings
14 in a bankruptcy, the fact that they were filed.

15 So the transcripts, which Your Honor can't take 16 judicial notice of, is the truth of those. And that was what I
17 was objecting to is it's one thing for him to say an objection
18 was filed and therefore, because an objection was filed, that 19 should be it. That was your only chance. I'm not saying Mr.
20 Morris can't make that argument.

21 But when he goes beyond the fact of the filing or the 22 fact that there was a transcript or the fact that there was a 23 deposition and starts to read from the depositions or read from 24 the filings and say this is what those mean, that goes against 25 the 12(b)(6) parameters because, number one, now it's

1 substantive evidence and not simply a judicial notice of
2 something that's right there in front of the Court, i.e., 3 something on its own docket. Because those statements and the 4 interpretation of those statements are subject to credibility
5 findings. They're subject to clarification. They're subject
6 to rebuttal. That's the purpose of discovery.

7 And so if Your Honor -- and Mr. Morris is right.
8 Usually, res judicata involves knowing what happened in the 9 prior proceedings. So if all he wants to do is rest on the 10 fact that an objection was filed by CLO Holdco and maybe even 11 other people, and that should be it and he thinks that's enough
12 for Your Honor to say res judicata applies, then I don't think 13 we have a problem. It's when he goes beyond that and says, 14 Your Honor, these people must have known and this is what they 15 meant by their argument, that's what I'm asking Your Honor not 16 to consider. And if Mr. Morris wants you to consider that, 17 that's a summary judgment motion and we should have the 18 opportunity to do discovery at the very least into the issues
19 he has now raised as supporting his res judicata defense which 20 he has the burden of proof on.

21 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, this is one of the strangest
22 arguments I have ever heard. I'm allowed to offer the Court
23 and the Court is allowed to accept the documents, but I'm not 24 allowed to read them. I'm not allowed to make arguments. I
25 don't understand what that even means. If it were a contract,

1 I would be allowed to put the contract in front of Your Honor,
2 but I wouldn't be able to argue why the contract doesn't say
3 what the Plaintiff says. I don't get it.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. MORRIS: That's --

6 THE COURT: Just I've heard enough on this. I don't 7 think we have moved into Rule 12(e), that realm of me needing 8 to treat this as a motion for summary judgment. I think the 9 so-called evidence, the appendix that was attached to the 10 motion as well as the appendix that was attached to Plaintiffs'
11 response, it's stuff that I can take judicial notice of that's 12 in the record of this Court and I can look at it. You know, it
13 is what it is, the record of this Court.

14 All right. So I have nine people waiting in 15 chambers. I'm trying to figure out should I take a break now
16 or are you fairly close to wrapping up. Either answer is fine,
17 Mr. Sbaiti. I just need to figure out who I make wait here.

18 MR. SBAITI: I have -- oh, I'm sorry. I didn't mean
19 to interrupt you, Your Honor. I was just going to say I have 20 five minutes left, but I know Mr. Morris probably wants to come 21 back. So if you want to break now and we can come back at 22 whenever the Court wants us to, we can do so.

23 THE COURT: All right. Why don't you make your final
24 five minutes and then we'll take a break?

25 MR. SBAITI: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

1 I just wanted to address some of the arguments that
2 Mr. Morris raised in his argument. The first thing is -- and I
3 addressed this in part -- but Mr. Morris makes a big deal about 4 paragraph 127 of the complaint and essentially suggests that 5 we're the -- or that Mr. Dondero is the perpetrator of a
6 nefarious scheme. Whereas, what the pleading actually says,
7 and I again encourage Your Honor to re-read -- to read it
8 specifically, is that Mr. Dondero warned Mr. Seery not to trade
9 in the stock and not to make any transactions because the stock
10 was going to appreciate in value.

11 That has two implications for us, Your Honor. Number
12 one, it means Mr. Seery was a tippee of insider information, 13 and number two, it means that Mr. Seery, if he did trade on 14 that information or if he did pass that information on to 15 someone else, that is a problem from the Advisers Act
16 standpoint, which is really the only purpose of saying that.

17 While paragraph 127 also says that that should have 18 caused Mr. Seery to revalue the NAV of HCLOF, it does not state
19 and we did not plead that the entire value of HCLOF is tied to 20 the MGM stock. So the insinuation that that somehow gave us
21 inside information about what the true value of HCLOF was and 22 we should have known or that Mr. Dondero should have known is 23 simply untrue.

24 The other argument Mr. -- that Mr. Morris likes to 25 harp on is that CLO Holdco withdrew its argument, but he

1 characterizes Mr. Kane's withdrawal testimony -- as he says,
2 Mr. Kane admitted that CLO Holdco lacked the superior right to 3 obtain the HarbourVest. If you read the very language that was 4 highlighted on Mr. Morris' slide, that's not what Mr. Kane
5 says. Mr. Kane says, "We've gone back to the drawing board.
6 We've read your reply. And my client has given me permission
7 to withdraw the argument or withdraw the objection." That's 8 all he said. There was not an admission that he was wrong.
9 There was not an admission that they had made a mistake. There
10 was simply an admission that they decided to withdraw the 11 objection for whatever reason.

12 Lastly, on the specific claims --

13 THE COURT: That's not an accurate description of the 14 record. He said he looked at --

15 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, I was reading it along with 16 him.

17 THE COURT: -- Guernsey Law. And I don't know if his 18 words were deep dive.

19 MR. SBAITI: Yeah.

20 THE COURT: But he had looked at the agreements
21 extensively. That's just not what he said.

22 MR. SBAITI: And he said he was with -- Your Honor,
23 he said he was withdrawing. He didn't say we were wrong. He 24 didn't say we don't have a claim. What he said was, "We're 25 withdrawing the objection."

1 THE COURT: After doing an extensive look at the 2 agreements in Guernsey Law, okay, so.

3 MR. SBAITI: Sure. But, Your Honor, he might have --
4 he could just as easily thought we have a chance, but it's not
5 a good one. And frankly, we'll be here for 20 days and we're
6 withdrawing it for that reason because we'll live to fight
7 another day. Your Honor, there's an innumerable number. To 8 simply say that he admitted that they didn't have a correct
9 claim, it's just he didn't say that. That's all. That's the 10 only point I'm making.

11 Your Honor, I don't disagree with the debtor that the 12 Court's exculpation clause gets rid of the negligence claim 13 which was obviously filed before the effective date, so that 14 claim is gone.

15 And I think the last argument that Mr. Morris makes 16 on the RICO claim is the federal court, the Supreme Court
17 standard for pleading a RICO claim, that acts that only 18 continue for a few weeks are not -- don't set out a RICO claim.
19 Your Honor, in our response to that, we actually submitted an 20 amended complaint that shows that the type of acts we're 21 talking about, the pattern of the debtor using its investor
22 vehicles assets to liquidate is a long pattern and practice
23 than simply the HarbourVest suit. And so, we move to amend on 24 that basis to satisfy that pleading defect, which is the main 25 one that they focused on.

1 That's all I have, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

3 We're going to take a 15 minute break and come back.

4 I'll ask Mr. Jordan and Mr. Bessette did they have anything
5 they wanted to say today. I know they joined in the debtor's
6 motion. And then we'll let Mr. Morris have rebuttal.

7 All right. So we'll be back in 15 minutes.

8 THE CLERK: All rise.

9 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 (Recess at 12:05 p.m./Reconvened at 12:23 p.m.)

11 THE CLERK: All rise.

12 THE COURT: All right. Please be seated.

13 We're back on the record in Charitable DAF v.
14 Highland Capital. All right. So I promised I was going to go
15 back to counsel for Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. So Mr. Jordan,
16 Mr. Bessette, is there anything you wanted to say for oral
17 argument?

18 MR. JORDAN: Thank you, Your Honor. John Jordan on 19 behalf of HCLOF.

20 Our points are two procedural points. The first is 21 as the Court anticipated, in our motion to dismiss filed back
22 in August, we joined in the motion to dismiss of Highland. And 23 so to the extent that the Court after deliberation is inclined
24 to grant that motion, we would ask that as a joining party,
25 HCLOF be pulled along with that.

1 The second procedural point is that back in our
2 motion to dismiss, we pointed out that the complaint does not
3 actually allege anything against HCLOF. In the story, we're 4 essentially the football and neither Oklahoma nor UT. And we
5 pointed that out as an additional argument to what you've heard
6 today. That motion was never responded to. The deadline by 7 agreement was extended to October 11th. And the lack of 8 response was, we believe, not inadvertent but simply an 9 acknowledgment that HCLOF is not a party that anything is being 10 claimed against.

11 It particularly makes sense since effectively and in 12 rough numbers, they're half owned by both sides. So for every 13 dollar that HCLOF spends hanging around the case, the parties 14 are paying essentially 100 cents collectively. So for that 15 reason, we would ask, and subject to Mr. Sbaiti's input,
16 whether the Court would ask us or direct us to upload an order
17 granting our motion as unopposed. We just feel like we don't 18 have any role in this case.

19 THE COURT: All right.

20 Mr. Sbaiti, what about that?

21 MR. SBAITI: Your Honor, they were originally added
22 as a nominal party. And as a nominal party, because of the 23 potential need to have a derivative action, I think that based 24 upon Highland's arguments and the arguments that we had, I
25 don't think the derivative action is necessary for us to

1 maintain on a go-forward basis. And so we don't oppose them
2 being dismissed.

3 THE COURT: All right. Then I assume, Mr. Morris,
4 you don't have any problem with this, correct?

5 MR. MORRIS: No, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Okay. So I'll look for the parties to 7 submit an agreed order of dismissal of HCLOF after the hearing.
8 All right?

9 MR. JORDAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Morris, you get the last 11 word.

12 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor. I hope to be 13 relatively brief. I really just want to focus on the arguments
14 concerning whether or not the order that was entered by this 15 Court was an order that was entered on the merits.

16 As the Court is well aware, a 9019 motion filed by a 17 debtor is done so on notice. It is to give all parties in 18 interest an opportunity to be heard, not just as to whether or 19 not the debtor meets its burden of proof under Rule 9019 but 20 whether or not the Court can find, as it must, that the 21 proposed settlement is in the best interest of the estate.

22 The purpose of -- I mean that is the purpose of the 23 giving notice so that everybody has a chance to be heard. The 24 questions that the Court asked, the questions that every 25 bankruptcy court asks in a 9019 is can the debtor do this deal,

1 should the debtor do this deal, is it in the best interest of
2 the estate to do this deal.

3 And, you know, the idea that a 9019 order is somehow
4 res judicata only to the parties to a settlement is just
5 something that doesn't make any sense to me because it
6 abrogates so many rules that exist that allows and encourages
7 and requires parties who have objections to be heard.

8 Mr. Sbaiti's clients filed an objection. They 9 initiated a contested matter. They obtained rights. They were 10 litigants. They are litigants in a contested matter where 11 they're required to tell the Court what objections they have to 12 the settlement, and they did that.

13 Mr. Sbaiti, you know, told me that I wasn't allowed 14 to characterize the words that are used in the documents that 15 have now been admitted by the Court. And, yet, I heard him say
16 that maybe Mr. Kane (phonetic) really meant to tell Your Honor
17 that he was withdrawing the claim because he was going to save
18 it for another day.

19 I'd just ask the Court to look at the transcript. I 20 don't have to interpret it at all. And I'd ask the Court to 21 read the words. I can put them back up on the screen, but 22 they're pretty short. It's at Pages 7 and 8 of the transcript
23 of what Mr. Kane told you and what you said in response. It's 24 on the page, not my interpretation, and what the import of that 25 was.

1 Mr. Sbaiti believes, I guess, if one is allowed to 2 engage in such conduct without consequence, that one is allowed
3 to allow to file objections, cause the Court and the litigants
4 to participate, to give discovery, to write briefs, to do
5 analyses, withdraw it on the basis of their own good faith
6 analysis of Guernsey law of the documents and somehow say it's 7 irrelevant. Not what the law is, not what res judicata is 8 intended to do.

9 He should have put all of his cards on the table. In 10 fact, I think that Mr. Kane believed he was putting all of his 11 cards on the table because that's what he did. He filed a very 12 comprehensive objection. He asserted a right to the 13 opportunity that the debtor was proposing to take in the 9019
14 motion. That's what he was doing. He was objecting on the 15 basis that he claimed his client had a superior right to this 16 asset.

17 And he didn't -- like I said earlier, Your Honor, I
18 don't think he would be permitted, I don't think these claims
19 would fly today if no objection was filed. But the fact that 20 there was renders, I think, indisputable that there was a 21 finding on the merits, right. And the only reason that the 22 Court didn't rule on Mr. Kane's motion, the only reason the 23 Court didn't rule on it is because Mr. Kane withdrew it.

24 Is that really the way this process is supposed to 25 work, that one can tell the Court that after a review of the

1 documents, I'm going to withdraw the objection and then file a
2 claim for damages three months later with a different client,
3 with a different control person, with a different lawyer?

4 That's okay under doctrine of res judicata? I don't think so.

5 They had a full and fair opportunity. The fact that 6 this was somehow -- you know, they're denigrating the fact that
7 this was a 9019 motion. There's not supposed to be a mini-
8 trial. Your Honor had discretion as to what to do. Every 9 court in every bench trial has discretion as to what to do and 10 whether or not to overrule objections and whether or not to 11 sustain [sic] objections. That's what judges to.

12 And there's nothing offensive about the fact that it
13 happened in the context of a 9019 motion. They don't get to 14 sit on their hands and wait to fight another day. If they 15 believed that the debtor was exposing itself to liability, and 16 that's what they actually say in the opposition, that's what I
17 actually think they say in the complaint, accept it as true,
18 they believe that the debtor created liability for itself by 19 rendering -- by entering into this transaction.

20 Shouldn't they have raised their hand and said you
21 can't do this deal, right? And the only response to that --
22 they have to that is they had no idea about value. Paragraph
23 127, Your Honor, Mr. Dondero, the architect of this complaint,
24 as was proven on June 8th, knew very well about value. And it
25 doesn't matter that it was only MGM. Your Honor commented on

1 that at the June 8th hearing in a different context. But
2 everybody knows, right, it is. He sits on the board of MGM.

3 And I'm sorry if I called him a tippee instead of a
4 tipper. But if this complaint goes forward, we'll dig into 5 that real deep. But there's no reason it ought to, Your Honor.
6 This case ought to be dismissed on res judicata grounds. It
7 should be dismissed on judicial estoppel grounds. And it
8 should be dismissed for all the reasons that I said in my
9 argument in my brief.

10 But I do just want to close with one point, and that 11 is to read from a case called Goldstein, which I think I
12 alluded to earlier on this issue of whether there's a fiduciary
13 duty that's owed by an advisor to an investor and a fund:

14 "At best, it is counterintuitive to characterize the 15 investors in a hedge fund as the clients of the 16 advisors. The advisor owes fiduciary duties only to 17 the fund, not to the fund's investors."

18 There's a lot of discussion about fiduciary duties,
19 Your Honor. But to the extent that they have any basis to 20 defeat the motion to dismiss on res judicata or collateral
21 estoppel grounds, we hope and we trust and we know the Court
22 will review the case law vigorously to test some of the 23 assertions to that.

24 I have nothing further, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: All right. Well, thank you to all of

1 you.

2 As a reminder, I don't think you need it, but as a
3 reminder, I am essentially acting as a magistrate for Judge
4 Boyle in this action. And whichever way I go on whichever
5 theories, I think she would expect a thorough write-up. It
6 would, of course, be in the form of a report and recommendation
7 for her to either adopt or not if I dispose of some or all of 8 the counts in the lawsuit.

9 Even to the extent I deny dismissal, even though the 10 rule typically does not require a court to make detailed 11 findings and conclusions in connection with a denial of a
12 motion to dismiss, again, since I'm sitting as a magistrate, I 13 think Judge Boyle would expect some thorough explanations and 14 reasoning from me.

15 So that's my way of saying I'm taking this under 16 advisement. I am going to drill down on some of the cases that 17 have been argued. I think some important issues are raised
18 here that need some thorough reasoning.

19 So I will do the best to get this out without too
20 much delay. I think there's probably zero chance, zero chance
21 I'm going to get it done by the end of the year. We're just 22 too behind with some of our under-advisements. But I will try 23 earnestly to get it out fairly soon after the first of the 24 year. All right?

25 Thank you. You all have a good holiday.

Prohibition of Fraud by Advisers to Certain Pooled Investment Vehicles

AGENCY: Securities and Exchange Commission.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Securities and Exchange Commission is adopting a new rule that prohibits advisers to pooled investment vehicles from making false or misleading statements to, or otherwise defrauding, investors or prospective investors in those pooled vehicles. This rule is designed to clarify, in light of a recent court opinion, the Commission's ability to bring enforcement actions under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 against investment advisers who defraud investors or prospective investors in a hedge fund or other pooled investment vehicle.

EFFECTIVE DATE: September 10, 2007.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Commission is adopting new rule 206(4)-8 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 ("Advisers Act").¹

I. INTRODUCTION

On December 13, 2006, we proposed a new rule under the Advisers Act that would prohibit advisers to pooled investment vehicles from defrauding investors or prospective investors in pooled investment vehicles they advise.² We proposed the rule in response to the opinion of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit in Goldstein v. SEC, which created some uncertainty regarding the application of sections 206(1) and 206(2) of the Advisers Act in certain cases where investors in a pool are defrauded by an investment adviser to that pool.³ In addressing the scope of the exemption from registration in section 203(b)(3) of the Advisers Act and the meaning of “client” as used in that section, the Court of Appeals expressed the view that, for purposes of sections 206(1) and (2) of the Advisers Act, the “client” of an investment adviser managing a pool is the pool itself, not an investor in the pool. As a result, it was unclear whether the Commission could continue to rely on sections 206(1) and (2) of the Advisers Act to bring enforcement actions in certain cases where investors in a pool are defrauded by an investment adviser to that pool.⁴

² Prohibition of Fraud by Advisers to Certain Pooled Investment Vehicles; Accredited Investors in Certain Private Investment Vehicles, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 2576 (Dec. 27, 2006) [72 FR 400 (Jan. 4, 2007)] (the “Proposing Release”). In the Proposing Release, we also proposed two new rules that would define the term “accredited natural person” under Regulation D and section 4(6) of the Securities Act of 1933 [15 USC 77d(6)] (“Securities Act”). As proposed, these rules would add to the existing definition of “accredited investor” and apply to private offerings of certain unregistered investment pools. On May 23, 2007, we voted to propose more general amendments to the definition of accredited investor. Proposed Modernization of Smaller Company Capital-Raising and Disclosure Requirements, Securities Act Release No. (, 2007) [72 FR (, 2007)]. We plan to defer consideration of our proposal to define the term accredited natural person until we have had the opportunity to evaluate fully the comments we received on that proposal together with those we receive on our May 2007 proposal.

In its opinion, the Court of Appeals distinguished sections 206(1) and (2) from section 206(4) of the Advisers Act, which is not limited to conduct aimed at clients or prospective clients of investment advisers.⁵ Section 206(4) provides us with rulemaking authority to define, and prescribe means reasonably designed to prevent, fraud by advisers.⁶ We proposed rule 206(4)-8 under this authority.

We received 45 comment letters in response to our proposal.⁷ Most commenters generally supported the proposal. Eighteen endorsed the rule as proposed, noting that the rule would strengthen the antifraud provisions of the Advisers Act or that the rule would clarify the Commission's enforcement authority with respect to advisers.⁸ Others, however, urged that we make revisions that would restrict the scope of the rule to more narrowly define the conduct or acts it prohibits.⁹

⁶ Section 206(4) of the Advisers Act makes it unlawful for an investment adviser to “engage in any act, practice, or course of business which is fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative” and authorizes us “by rules and regulations [to] define, and prescribe means reasonably designed to prevent, such acts, practices, and courses of business as are fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative.”

Today, we are adopting new rule 206(4)-8 as proposed. The rule prohibits advisers from (i) making false or misleading statements to investors or prospective investors in hedge funds and other pooled investment vehicles they advise, or (ii) otherwise defrauding these investors. The rule clarifies that an adviser's duty to refrain from fraudulent conduct under the federal securities laws extends to the relationship with ultimate investors and that the Commission may bring enforcement actions under the Advisers Act against investment advisers who defraud investors or prospective investors in those pooled investment vehicles.

II. DISCUSSION

Rule 206(4)-8 prohibits advisers to pooled investment vehicles from (i) making false or misleading statements to investors or prospective investors in those pools or (ii) otherwise defrauding those investors or prospective investors. We will enforce the rule through civil and administrative enforcement actions against advisers who violate it.

Section 206(4) authorizes the Commission to adopt rules and regulations that “define, and prescribe means reasonably designed to prevent, such acts, practices, and courses of business as are fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative.” In adopting rule 206(4)-8, we intend to employ all of the broad authority that Congress provided us in section 206(4) and direct it at adviser conduct affecting an investor or potential investor in a pooled investment vehicle.

⁹ E.g., Letter of American Bar Association (Mar. 12, 2007) (“ABA Letter”); Letter of Davis Polk & Wardwell (Mar. 9, 2007) (“Davis Polk Letter”); Letter of Dechert LLP (Mar. 8, 2007) (“Dechert Letter”); Letter of New York City Bar (Mar. 8, 2007) (“NYCB Letter”); Letter of Schulte Roth & Zabel LLP (Mar. 9, 2007) (“Schulte Roth Letter”); and Letter of Sullivan & Cromwell LLP (Mar. 9, 2007) (“Sullivan & Cromwell Letter”).

A. Scope of Rule 206(4)-8

Some commenters questioned the scope of the rule, arguing that the Commission should define fraud.¹⁰ We believe that we have done so, only more broadly than some commenters would have us do. As the Proposing Release indicated, our intent is to prohibit all fraud on investors in pools managed by investment advisers. Congress expected that we would use the authority provided by section 206(4) to “promulgate general antifraud rules capable of flexibility.”¹¹ The terms material false statements or omissions and “acts, practices, and courses of business as are fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative” encompass the well-developed body of law under the antifraud provisions of the federal securities laws. The legal authorities identifying the types of acts, practices, and courses of business that are fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative under the federal securities laws are numerous, and we believe that the conduct prohibited by rule 206(4)-8 is sufficiently clear and well understood.¹²

See, e.g., Superintendent of Insurance of New York v. Bankers Life & Casualty Co., 404 U.S. 6, 11 n. 7 (1971) (“We believe that section 10(b) and Rule 10b-5 prohibit all fraudulent schemes in connection with the purchase or sale of securities, whether the artifices employed involve a garden type variety of fraud, or present a unique form of deception. Novel or atypical methods should not provide immunity from the securities laws.” (quoting A. T. Brod & Co. v. Perlow, 375 F.2d 393, 397 (CA2 1967))); Santa Fe Industries, Inc. v. Green, 430 U.S. 462, 477 (1977) (“No doubt Congress meant to prohibit the full range of ingenious devices that might be used to manipulate securities prices.”). Moreover, the established legal principles are sufficiently flexible to encompass future novel factual scenarios. United States v. Brown, 555 F.2d 336, 339-40 (2d Cir. 1977) (“The fact that there is no litigated fact pattern precisely in point may constitute a tribute to the cupidity and ingenuity of the malefactors involved but hardly provides an escape from the penal sanctions of the securities fraud provisions here involved.”).

1. Investors and Prospective Investors

Rule 206(4)-8 prohibits investment advisers from making false or misleading statements to, or engaging in other fraud on, investors or prospective investors in a pooled investment vehicle they manage. The scope of the rule is modeled on that of sections 206(1) and (2) of the Advisers Act, which make unlawful fraud by advisers against clients or prospective clients. Rule 206(4)-8 prohibits false or misleading statements made, for example, to existing investors in account statements as well as to prospective investors in private placement memoranda, offering circulars, or responses to “requests for proposals,” electronic solicitations, and personal meetings arranged through capital introduction services.

Some commenters argued that the rule should not prohibit fraud against prospective investors in a pooled investment vehicle, asserting that such fraud does not actually harm investors until they, in fact, make an investment.¹³ We disagree. False or misleading statements and other frauds by advisers are no less objectionable when made in an attempt to draw in new investors than when made to existing investors.¹⁴ For similar policy reasons that we believe led Congress to apply the protections of sections 206(1) and (2) to prospective clients, we have decided to apply those of rule 206(4)-8 to prospective investors.¹⁵ We believe that prohibiting false or misleading statements made to, or other fraud on, any prospective investors is a means reasonably designed to prevent fraud.

¹⁴ See CFA Center Letter, supra note 8.

¹⁵ We have used the term “prospective investor” to give the term similar scope to the term “prospective client” in sections 206(1) and (2). See, e.g., In the Matter of Ralph Harold Seipel, 38 S.E.C. 256, 257-58 (1958) (the solicitation of clients is part of the activity of an investment adviser and it is immaterial for purposes of an enforcement action under sections 206(1) and (2) that an adviser engaging in fraudulent solicitations was not successful in his efforts to obtain clients).

2. Unregistered Investment Advisers

Rule 206(4)-8 applies to both registered and unregistered investment advisers.¹⁶ As we noted in the Proposing Release, many of our enforcement cases against advisers to pooled investment vehicles have been brought against advisers that are not registered under the Advisers Act, and we believe it is critical that we continue to be in a position to bring actions against unregistered advisers that manage pools and that defraud investors in those pools.¹⁷ The two commenters that expressed an explicit view on this aspect of the proposal supported our application of the rule to advisers that are not registered with the Commission.¹⁸

3. Pooled Investment Vehicles

The rule we are adopting today applies to investment advisers with respect to any “pooled investment vehicle” they advise. The rule defines a pooled investment vehicle¹⁹ as any investment company defined in section 3(a) of the Investment Company Act²⁰ and any privately offered pooled investment vehicle that is excluded from the definition of investment company by reason of either section 3(c)(1) or 3(c)(7) of the Investment Company Act.²¹ As a result, the rule

¹⁶ A few commenters requested that we clarify how we intend to apply rule 206(4)-8 to offshore advisers’ interaction with non-U.S. investors. See AIMA Letter, supra note 8; Letter of Jones Day (Mar. 9, 2007); Sullivan & Cromwell Letter, supra note 9. Our adoption of this rule will not alter our jurisdictional authority.

²¹ Section 3(c)(1) of the Investment Company Act excludes from the definition of investment company an issuer the securities (other than short-term paper) of which are beneficially owned by not more than 100 persons and that is not making or proposing to make a public offering of its securities. Section 3(c)(7) of the Investment Company Act excludes from the definition of investment company an issuer the outstanding securities of which are owned exclusively by persons who, at the time of acquisition of such securities, are “qualified purchasers” and that is not making or proposing to make a public offering of its securities. “Qualified purchaser” is applies to advisers to hedge funds, private equity funds, venture capital funds, and other types of privately offered pools that invest in securities, as well as advisers to investment companies that are registered with us.²²

Several commenters supported applying the protection of the new antifraud rule to investors in all these kinds of pooled investment vehicles, noting, for example, that every investor, not just the wealthy or sophisticated that typically invest in private pools, should be protected from fraud.²³ Some other commenters urged us not to apply the rule to advisers to registered investment companies, arguing that the rule is unnecessary because other provisions of the federal securities laws prohibiting fraud are available to the Commission to address these matters.²⁴ They expressed concern that application of another antifraud provision with different elements would be burdensome. These commenters claimed that the rule would, for example, make it necessary for advisers to conduct extensive reviews of all communications with clients. But the other antifraud provisions available to us contain different elements because they were not specifically designed to address frauds by investment advisers with respect to investors in pooled investment vehicles. In some cases, the other antifraud provisions may not permit us to defined in section 2(a)(51) of the Investment Company Act generally to include a natural person (or a company owned by two or more related natural persons) who owns not less than $5,000,000 in investments; a person, acting for its own account or accounts of other qualified purchasers, who owns and invests on a discretionary basis, not less than $25,000,000; and a trust whose trustee, and each of its settlors, is a qualified purchaser.

²² We have brought enforcement actions under the Advisers Act against advisers to these types of funds. See, e.g., In the Matter of Askin Capital Management, L.P and David J. Askin, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 1492 (May 23, 1995) (hedge fund); In the Matter of Thayer Capital Partners, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 2276 (Aug. 12, 2004) (private equity fund); SEC v. Michael A. Liberty, Litigation Release No. 19601 (Mar. 8, 2006) (venture capital fund).

²³ E.g., NASAA Letter, supra note 8.

²⁴ E.g., ABA Letter, supra note 9; Letter of Investment Adviser Association (Mar. 9, 2007); Letter of Investment Company Institute (Mar. 9, 2007) (“ICI Letter”); Sullivan & Cromwell Letter, supra note 9. Commenters noted in particular that section 34(b) of the Investment Company Act already prohibits an adviser from making fraudulent material statements or omissions in a fund’s registration statement or in required records.

proceed against the adviser.²⁵ As a result, the existing antifraud provisions may not be available to us in all cases. As we discussed above, before the Goldstein decision we had brought actions against advisers to mutual funds under sections 206(1) and (2) for defrauding investors in mutual funds.²⁶ Because, before the Goldstein decision, advisers to pooled investment vehicles operated with the understanding that the Advisers Act prohibited the conduct that this rule prohibits, we believe that advisers that are attentive to their traditional compliance responsibilities will not need to alter their business practices or take additional steps and incur new costs as a result of this rule's adoption.

B. Prohibition on False or Misleading Statements

Rule 206(4)-8(a)(1) prohibits any investment adviser to a pooled investment vehicle from making an untrue statement of a material fact to any investor or prospective investor in the pooled investment vehicle, or omitting to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements made to any investor or prospective investor in the pooled investment vehicle, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.²⁷

The provision is very similar to those in many of our antifraud laws and rules that, depending upon the circumstances, may also be applicable to the same investor

²⁵ This may be the case with respect to section 34(b) of the Investment Company Act, for example, if the adviser's fraudulent statements are not made in a document described in that section, or with respect to rule 10b-5 under the Exchange Act, where the fraudulent conduct does not relate to a misstatement or omission in connection with the purchase or sale of any security.

communications.²⁸ Sections 206(1) and (2) have imposed similar obligations on advisers since 1940 and, before Goldstein, were commonly accepted as imposing similar requirements on communications with investors in a fund. For these reasons, and because the nature of the duty to communicate without false statements is so well developed in current law, we believe that commenters' concerns about the breadth of the prohibition or any chilling effect the new rule might have on investor communications are misplaced.²⁹ Advisers to pooled investment vehicles attentive to their traditional compliance responsibilities will not need to alter their communications with investors.

Rule 206(4)-8(a)(1) prohibits advisers to pooled investment vehicles from making any materially false or misleading statements to investors in the pool regardless of whether the pool is offering, selling, or redeeming securities. While the new rule differs in this aspect from rule 10b-5 under the Exchange Act, the conduct prohibited is similar. The new rule prohibits, for example, materially false or misleading statements regarding investment strategies the pooled investment vehicle will pursue, the experience and credentials of the adviser (or its associated persons), the risks associated with an investment in the pool, the performance of the pool or other funds advised by the adviser, the valuation of the pool or investor accounts in it, and practices the adviser follows in the operation of its advisory business such as how the adviser allocates investment opportunities.³⁰

C. Prohibition of Other Frauds

Rule 206(4)-8(a)(2) makes it a fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative act, practice, or course of business for any investment adviser to a pooled investment vehicle to “otherwise engage in any act, practice, or course of business that is fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative with respect to any investor or prospective investor in the pooled investment vehicle.”³¹ As we noted in the Proposing Release, the wording of this provision is drawn from the first sentence of section 206(4) and is designed to apply more broadly to deceptive conduct that may not involve statements.³²

Some commenters asserted that section 206(4) provides us authority only to adopt prophylactic rules that explicitly identify conduct that would be fraudulent under the new rule.³³ We believe our authority is broader. We do not believe that the commenters’ suggested approach would be consistent with the purposes of the Advisers Act or the protection of investors. That approach would have us adopt the rule prohibiting fraudulent communications but not fraudulent conduct.³⁴ But, section 206(4) itself specifically authorizes us to adopt rules defining and prescribing “acts, practices and courses of business,” (i.e., conduct), and does not explicitly refer to communications, which, nonetheless, represent a form of an act, practice, or course of business. In addition, rule 206(4)-8 as adopted would provide greater protection to investors in pooled investment vehicles.

Alternatively, commenters would have us adopt a rule prohibiting identified known fraudulent conduct or would have us provide detailed commentary describing specific forms of fraudulent conduct that the rule would prohibit.³⁵ Either approach would fail to prohibit fraudulent conduct we did not identify, and could provide a roadmap for those wishing to engage in fraudulent conduct. This approach would be inconsistent with our historical application of the federal securities laws under which broad prohibitions have been applied against specific harmful activity.

D. Other Matters

We noted in the Proposing Release that, unlike violations of rule 10b-5 under the Exchange Act, the Commission would not need to demonstrate that an adviser violating rule 206(4)-8 acted with scienter.³⁶ Commenters questioned whether the rule should encompass negligent conduct, arguing that it would “expand the concept of fraud itself beyond its original meaning.”³⁷ We read the language of section 206(4) as not by its terms limited to knowing or deliberate conduct. For example, section 206(4) encompasses “acts, practices, and courses of business as are . . . deceptive,” thereby reaching conduct that is negligently deceptive as well as conduct that is recklessly or deliberately deceptive. In addition, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit concluded that “scienter is not required under section 206(4).”³⁸

³⁸ SEC v. Steadman, 967 F.2d 636, at 647 (D.C. Cir. 1992). The court in Steadman analogized section 206(4) of the Advisers Act to section 17(a)(3) of the Securities Act, which the Supreme Court had held did not require a finding of scienter, id. (citing Aaron v. SEC, 446 U.S. 680 (1980)). In discussing section 17(a)(3) and its lack of a scienter requirement, the Steadman court

We believe use of a negligence standard also is appropriate as a method reasonably designed to prevent fraud. As the Supreme Court noted in U.S. v. O'Hagan, “[a] prophylactic measure, because its mission is to prevent, typically encompasses more than the core activity prohibited.”³⁹ In O'Hagan, the Court held that under section 14(e) “the Commission may prohibit acts, not themselves fraudulent under the common law or §10(b), if the prohibition is ‘reasonably designed to prevent . . . acts and practices [that] are fraudulent.’”⁴⁰ Along these lines, the prohibitions in rule 206(4)-8 are reasonably designed to prevent fraud. We believe that, by taking sufficient care to avoid negligent conduct, advisers will be more likely to avoid reckless deception. Since the Commission clearly is authorized to prescribe conduct that goes beyond fraud as a means reasonably designed to prevent fraud, prohibiting deceptive conduct done negligently is a way to accomplish this objective.

Rule 206(4)-8 does not create under the Advisers Act a fiduciary duty to investors or prospective investors in a pooled investment vehicle not otherwise imposed by law. Nor does the rule alter any duty or obligation an adviser has under the Advisers Act, any other federal law or regulation, or any state law or regulation (including state securities laws) to investors in a pooled investment vehicle it advises.⁴¹ The rule, for example, will permit us to bring an enforcement action against an investment adviser that violates a fiduciary duty imposed by other law if the violation of such law or obligation also constitutes an act, practice, or course of business that is fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative within the meaning of the rule and section 206(4).⁴²

Finally, the rule does not create a private right of action.⁴³

III. PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 does not apply because rule 206(4)-8 does not impose a new “collection of information” within the meaning of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995. The rule does not create any filing, reporting, recordkeeping, or disclosure requirements for investment advisers subject to the rule. Accordingly, there is no “collection of information” under the Paperwork Reduction Act that requires the approval of the Office of Management and Budget under 44 U.S.C. 3501.

IV. COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS

The Commission is sensitive to costs imposed by our rules and the benefits that derive from them. In the Proposing Release, we encouraged commenters to discuss any potential costs and benefits that we did not consider in our discussion. Three commenters addressed the issue of cost. Two of them stated their belief that the rule would increase advisers’ costs of compliance, by, for example, making it necessary for advisers to conduct extensive reviews of all communications with clients.⁴⁴ One stated that the rule would achieve a reasonable balance of ⁴² For example, if an adviser has a duty from a source other than the rule to make a material disclosure to an investor in a fund and negligently or deliberately fails to make the disclosure, the rule would apply to the failure.

providing important benefits to investors at an acceptable cost.⁴⁵ None of the three commenters, however, provided analysis or empirical data in connection with their statements.

The rule makes it a fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative act, practice, or course of business within the meaning of section 206(4) for any investment adviser to a pooled investment vehicle to make any untrue statement of a material fact or to omit to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, to any investor or prospective investor in the pooled investment vehicle. The rule also makes it a fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative act, practice, or course of business within the meaning of section 206(4) for any investment adviser to a pooled investment vehicle to otherwise engage in any act, practice, or course of business that is fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative with respect to any investor or prospective investor in the pooled investment vehicle. For the reasons discussed, we do not believe that the rule will require advisers to incur new or additional costs.

Investment advisers to pooled investment vehicles should not be making untrue statements or omitting material facts or otherwise be engaged in fraud with respect to investors or prospective investors in pooled investment vehicles today, because federal authorities, state authorities, and private litigants often can, and do, seek redress from the adviser for the untrue statements or omissions or other frauds. In most cases, the conduct that the rule prohibits is already prohibited by federal securities statutes,⁴⁶ other federal statutes (including federal wire fraud statutes),⁴⁷ as well as state law.⁴⁸

⁴⁵ CFA Center Letter, supra note 8.

⁴⁶ See, e.g., section 10(b) of the Exchange Act [15 U.S.C. 78j(b)] and section 17(a) of the Securities Act [15 U.S.C. 77q] which would apply when the false statements are made “in connection with the purchase or sale of a security” or involve the “offer or sale” of a security, and section 34(b) of the Investment Company Act which makes it unlawful “to make any untrue statement of a

We recognize that there are costs involved in assuring that communications to investors and prospective investors do not contain untrue or misleading statements and preventing other frauds. Advisers have incurred, and will continue to incur, these costs due to the prohibitions and deterrent effect of the law and rules that apply under these circumstances. While each of the provisions noted above may have different limitation periods, apply in different factual circumstances, or require the government (or a private litigant) to prove different states of mind than the rule, as discussed above we believe that the multiple prohibitions against fraud, and the consequences under both criminal and civil law for fraud, should currently cause an adviser to take the precautions it deems necessary to refrain from such conduct.

Furthermore, prior to Goldstein, advisers operated with the understanding that the Advisers Act prohibited the same conduct that would be prohibited by the rule. Accordingly, we do not believe that advisers to pooled investment vehicles attentive to their traditional compliance responsibilities will need to take steps or alter their business practices in such a way that will require them to incur new or additional costs as a result of the adoption of the rule.

material fact in any registration statement, application, report, account, record, or other document filed or transmitted pursuant to [the Investment Company Act]”

⁴⁷ See, e.g., 18 U.S.C. 1341 (Frauds and Swindles) and 18 U.S.C. 1343 (Fraud by wire, radio, or television) which make it a criminal offense to use the mails or to communicate by means of wire, having devised a scheme to defraud or for obtaining money or property by means of false or fraudulent pretenses, and 18 U.S.C. 1957 (Engaging in monetary transactions in property derived from specified unlawful activity) which makes it a criminal racketeering offense to engage or attempt to engage in a transaction in criminally derived property of a value greater than $10,000.

We also recognize that the rule may cause some advisers to pay more attention to the information they present to better guard against making an untrue or misleading statement to an investor or prospective investor and to reevaluate measures that are intended to prevent fraud. As a consequence, some advisers might seek guidance, legal or otherwise, and more closely review the information that they disseminate to investors and prospective investors and the antifraud related policies and procedures they have implemented. While increased concern about making false statements or committing fraud could be attributable to the new rule, advisers should already be incurring these costs to ensure truthfulness and prevent fraud, regardless of the rule, because of the myriad of laws or regulations that may already apply.

The principal benefit of the rule is that it clearly enables the Commission to bring enforcement actions under the Advisers Act, if an adviser to a pooled investment vehicle disseminates false or misleading information to investors or prospective investors or otherwise commits fraud with respect to any investor or prospective investor. As noted above, the existing antifraud provisions may not be available to us in all cases. Through our enforcement actions we are able to protect fund investor assets by stopping ongoing frauds,⁴⁹ barring persons that have committed certain specified violations or offenses from being associated with an investment adviser,⁵⁰ imposing penalties,⁵¹ seeking court orders to protect fund assets,⁵² and to order disgorgement of ill-gotten gains.⁵³ Moreover, we believe that rule 206(4)-8 will deter advisers to pooled investment vehicles from engaging in fraudulent conduct with respect to investors in those pools and will provide investors with greater confidence when investing in pooled investment vehicles.

V. REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT ANALYSIS

The Commission certified, pursuant to section 605(b) of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, that rule 206(4)-8 will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.⁵⁴ This certification was included in the Proposing Release.⁵⁵ While we encouraged written comment regarding this certification, none of the commenters responded to this request.

We are adopting new rule 206(4)-8 pursuant to our authority set forth in sections 206(4) and 211(a) of the Advisers Act (15 U.S.C. 80b-6(4) and 80b-11(a)).

4. Policies of the Fund. The activities engaged in by the Investment Advisor on behalf of the Fund and/or its subsidiaries shall be subject to the policies and control of the General Partner.

The Investment Advisor shall submit such periodic reports to the General Partner regarding the Investment Advisor's activities hereunder as the General Partner may reasonably request and a representative of the Investment Advisor shall be available to meet with the General Partner and/or any other representative of the Fund or its subsidiaries as reasonably requested by the General Partner.

In furtherance of the foregoing, the General Partner hereby appoints the Investment Advisor as the Fund's attorney-in-fact, with full power of authority to act in the Fund's name and on its behalf with respect to the Fund, as follows:

(a) to purchase or otherwise trade in Financial Instruments that have been approved by the General Partner;

(b) to execute and combine purchase or sale orders on behalf of the Fund with orders for Other Accounts and allocate the Financial Instruments or other assets so purchased or sold, on an average-price basis or in any other manner deemed fair and equitable to the Investment Advisor in its sole discretion, among such accounts; provided, however, that such purchase or sale orders shall be market rates;

(c) to direct the Custodian to deliver funds or the Financial Instruments, but only in the course of effecting trading and investment transactions for the Fund and subject to such restrictions as may be contained in the custody agreement between the Custodian and the Fund;

(d) to enter into contracts, provide certifications or take any other actions necessary to effect any of the foregoing transactions; and

5. Valuation of Financial Instruments. Financial Instruments will be valued in accordance with the then current valuation policy of the Investment Advisor, a copy of which will be provided to the General Partner upon request.

6. Status of the Investment Advisor. The Investment Advisor shall, for all purposes, be an independent contractor and not an employee of the General Partner or the Fund or its subsidiaries, nor shall anything herein be construed as making the Fund or its subsidiaries or the General Partner, a partner, member or co-venturer with the Investment Advisor or any of its affiliates or clients. The Investment Advisor shall have no authority to act for, represent, bind or obligate the Fund or its subsidiaries or the General Partner except as specifically provided herein.

7. Investments. ALL ULTIMATE INVESTMENT DECISIONS WITH RESPECT TO THE FUND AND ITS SUBSIDIARIES SHALL AT ALL TIMES REST SOLELY WITH THE GENERAL PARTNER AND/OR THE OFFICERS/DIRECTORS OF THE APPLICABLE SUBSIDIARY, IT BEING EXPRESSLY UNDERSTOOD THAT THE GENERAL PARTNER AND/OR THE OFFICERS/DIRECTORS OF THE APPLICABLE SUBSIDIARY SHALL BE FREE TO ACCEPT AND OR REJECT ANY OF THE ADVICE RENDERED BY THE INVESTMENT MANAGER HEREUNDER FOR ANY REASON OR FOR NO REASON.

8. Reimbursement by the General Partner. The Investment Advisor may retain, in connection with its responsibilities hereunder, the services of others to assist in the investment advice to be given to the General Partner with respect to the Fund and/or its subsidiaries (any such appointee, a “Sub-Advisor”), including, but not limited to, any affiliate of the Investment Advisor, but payment for any such services shall be assumed by the Investment Advisor, and, therefore, neither the General Partner nor the Fund or any of its subsidiaries shall have any liability therefor; provided, however, that the Investment Advisor, in its sole discretion, may retain the services of independent third party professionals, including, without limitation, attorneys, accountants and consultants, to advise and assist it in connection with the performance of its activities on behalf of the General Partner with respect to the Fund and/or its subsidiaries hereunder, and the Fund shall bear full responsibility therefor and the expense of any fees and disbursements arising therefrom.

9. Expenses.

(a) The Fund shall pay or reimburse the Investment Advisor and its affiliates for all expenses related to the services hereunder, including, but not limited to, investment-related expenses, brokerage commissions and other transaction costs, expenses related to clearing and settlement charges, professional fees relating to legal, auditing or valuation services, any governmental, regulatory, licensing, filing or registration fees incurred in compliance with the rules of any self-regulatory organization or any federal, state or local laws, research-related expenses (including, without limitation, news and quotation equipment and services, investment and trading-related software, including, without limitation, trade order management software (i.e., software used to route trade orders)), accounting (including accounting software), tax preparation expenses, costs and expenses associated with reporting and providing information to the Fund, any taxes imposed upon the Fund (including, but not limited to, collateralized debt obligations managed by the Investment Advisor or its affiliates), fees relating to valuing the Financial Instruments, and extraordinary expenses. In no event shall any of the foregoing costs or expenses include any salaries, occupational expense or general overhead of the Investment Advisor. For the avoidance of doubt, (i) the cost of all third party expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement shall not exceed standard market rates (which may include standard soft dollar arrangements) and (ii) to the extent any of the foregoing expenses were incurred on behalf of, or benefit of a number of Investment Advisor’s advised accounts, such expenses shall be allocated pro rata among such accounts.

(b) To the extent that expenses to be borne by the Fund are paid by the Investment Advisor or by any Sub-Advisor, the Fund shall reimburse the Investment Advisor (or Sub-Advisors, as applicable) for such expenses so long as such expenses are at market rates.

10. Fees.

(a) The Fund shall pay the Investment Advisor a quarterly fee (the “Management Fee”) equal to 2.0% per annum (0.5% per quarter) of the Net Assets (as defined below) of the Fund, payable in advance at and calculated as of the first business day of each calendar quarter. For purposes of calculating the Management Fee, the Net Assets of the Fund will be determined before giving effect to any of the following amounts payable by the Fund generally or in respect of any Investment which are effective as of the date on which such determination is made: (i) any fee payable to the Investment Advisor as of the date on which such determination is made; (ii) any capital withdrawals or distributions payable by the Fund which are effective as of the date on which such determination is made; and (iii) withholding or other taxes, expenses of processing withdrawals and other items payable, any increases or decreases in any reserves, holdback or other amounts specially allocated ending as of the date on which such determination is made. The Management Fee shall be prorated for partial periods and any applicable excess fees should be returned to the Fund by the Investment Advisor. Capital contributions made to the Fund after the commencement of a calendar quarter shall be subject to a prorated Management Fee based on the number of days remaining during such quarter.

(b) Subject to clauses (c) and (d) below, at the end of each Calculation Period (as defined below), an amount equal to 20% of the net capital appreciation of the Fund’s Investments (as defined below) after deducting the Management Fee shall be paid to the Investment Advisor (the “Performance Fee”); provided, however, that the net capital appreciation upon which the calculation of the Performance is based shall be reduced to the extent of any unrecovered balance remaining in the Loss Recovery Account (as defined below) maintained on the books and records of the Fund. The amount of the unrecovered balance remaining in the Loss Recovery Account at the time of calculating the Performance Fee shall be the amount existing immediately prior to its reduction pursuant to the second clause of the second sentence of clause (c) below.

(c) There shall be established on the books of the Fund a memorandum account (the “Loss Recovery Account”), the opening balance of which shall be zero. At the end of each Calculation Period, the balance in the Loss Recovery Account shall be adjusted as follows: first, if there has been, in the aggregate, net capital depreciation of the Fund’s Investments (as adjusted pursuant to the last sentence of this paragraph) since the end of the immediately preceding Calculation Period (or with respect to the initial Calculation Period, since the Effective Date), an amount equal to such net capital depreciation shall be credited to the Loss Recovery Account, and, second, if there has been, in the aggregate, net capital appreciation of the Fund’s investments (as adjusted pursuant to the last sentence of this paragraph) since the end of the immediately preceding Calculation Period, an amount equal to such net capital appreciation, before taking into account any Performance Fee to be paid to the Investment Advisor, shall be debited to and reduce any unrecovered balance in the Loss Recovery Account, but not below zero. Solely for purposes of this paragraph, in determining the Loss Recovery Account, net capital appreciation and net capital depreciation for any applicable Calculation Period shall be calculated by taking into account the amount of the Management Fee paid for such period.

(d) In the event that all or a portion of the Fund's capital is distributed or withdrawn while there exists an unrecovered balance in the Loss Recovery Account, the unrecovered balance in the Loss Recovery Account shall be reduced as of the beginning of the next Calculation Period by an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the balance in such Loss Recovery Account by a fraction, the numerator of which is the amount distributed or withdrawn with respect to the immediately preceding distribution or withdrawal date, and the denominator of which is the total fair value of the Fund's Investment immediately prior to such distribution or withdrawal.

(e) For purposes of this Section 10, the net capital appreciation and net capital depreciation of the Fund's Investments for any given period will be calculation in accordance with the then current valuation policy of the Investment Advisor, a copy of which will be provided upon the General Partner's request. As soon as reasonably practicable following the end of a Calculation Period, the Investment Advisor shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the General Partner a statement showing the calculation of the Performance Fee, if any, with respect to such Calculation Period. The Performance Fee, if any, shall be payable within three (3) business days of the General Partner's receipt of such statement.

(f) Payments due to the Investment Advisor shall be made by wire transfer to:

Bank Name: Compass Bank
ABA#: 113010547
FBO: Highland Capital Management, L.P. (Master Operating Account)
Acct#: 0025876342

(g) For purposes of this Section 10, the following terms have the definitions set forth below:

"Calculation Period" means the period commencing on the Effective Date (in the case of the initial Calculation Period) and thereafter each period commencing as of the day following the last day of the preceding Calculation Period, and ending as of the close of business on the first to occur of the following: (i) the last day of a calendar year; (ii) the distribution or withdrawal of capital of the Fund (but only with respect to such distributed or withdrawn amount); (iii) the permitted transfer of all or any portion of a partner's interest in the Fund; and (iv) the final capital distribution of the Fund following its dissolution;

"Investments" means all investments, securities, cash, receivables, financial instruments, contracts and other assets, whether tangible or intangible, owned by the Fund;

“Net Assets” means, with respect to the Fund as of any date, the excess of the total fair value of all Investments over the total liabilities, debts and obligations of the Fund, in each case, calculated on an accrual basis in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States and the then current valuation policy of the Service Provider, a copy of which will be provided to the General Partner upon request; and

“Services Agreement” means that certain Second Amended and Restated Service Agreement, dated effective as of the Effective Date, by and among the Parties, as amended, restated, modified and supplemented from time to time.

11. Exculpation; Indemnification.

(a) Whether or not herein expressly so provided, every provision of this Agreement relating to the conduct or affecting the liability of or affording protection to the Investment Advisor, its members or any of their respective affiliates and their respective partners, members, officers, directors, employees, shareholders and agents (including parties acting as agents for the execution of transactions) (each, a “Covered Person” and collectively, “Covered Persons”) shall be subject to the provisions of this Section.

(b) To the fullest extent permitted by law, no Covered Person shall be liable to the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries or anyone for any reason whatsoever (including but not limited to (i) any act or omission by any Covered Person in connection with the conduct of the business of the General Partner or the Fund, that is determined by such Covered Person in good faith to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the General Partner or the Fund, (ii) any act or omission by any Covered Person based on the suggestions of any professional advisor of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries whom such Covered Person believes is authorized to make such suggestions on behalf of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, (iii) any act or omission by the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, or (iv) any mistake, negligence, misconduct or bad faith of any broker or other agent of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries selected by Covered Person with reasonable care), unless any act or omission by such Covered Person constitutes willful misconduct or gross negligence by such Covered Person (as determined by a non-appealable judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction).

(c) Covered Persons may consult with legal counsel or accountants selected by such Covered Person and any act or omission by such Covered Person on behalf of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries or in furtherance of the business of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries in good faith in reliance on and in accordance with the advice of such counsel or accountants shall be full justification for the act or omission, and such Covered Person shall be fully protected in so acting or omitting to act if the counsel or accountants were selected with reasonable care.

(d) To the fullest extent permitted by law, the General Partner and the Fund and its subsidiaries shall indemnify and hold harmless Covered Persons (the “Indemnified Party”), from and against any and all claims, liabilities, damages, losses, costs and expenses, including amounts paid in satisfaction of judgments, in compromises and settlements, as fines and penalties and legal or other costs and expenses of investigating or defending against any claim or alleged claim, of any nature whatsoever, known or unknown, liquidated or unliquidated, that are incurred by any Indemnified Party and arise out of or in connection with the business of the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, any investment made under or in connection with this Agreement, or the performance by the Indemnified Party of Covered Person’s responsibilities hereunder and against all taxes, charges, duties or levies incurred by such Covered Person or any Indemnified Party in connection with the General Partner or the Fund or any of its subsidiaries, provided that an Indemnified Party shall not be entitled to indemnification hereunder to the extent the Indemnified Party’s conduct constitutes willful misconduct or gross negligence (as determined by a non-appealable judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction). The termination of any proceeding by settlement, judgment, order or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the Indemnified Party’s conduct constituted willful misconduct or gross negligence.

(e) Expenses incurred by an Indemnified Party in defense or settlement of any claim that shall be subject to a right of indemnification hereunder, shall be advanced by the General Partner prior to the final disposition thereof upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the Indemnified Party to repay the amount advanced to the extent that it shall be determined ultimately that the Indemnified Party is not entitled to be indemnified hereunder.

(f) The right of any Indemnified Party to the indemnification provided herein shall be cumulative of, and in addition to, any and all rights to which the Indemnified Party may otherwise be entitled by contract or as a matter of law or equity and shall be extended to the Indemnified Party’s successors, assigns and legal representatives.

(g) The provisions of this Section are expressly intended to confer benefits upon Covered Persons and such provisions shall remain operative and in full force and effect regardless of the expiration or any termination of this Agreement.

(h) In no event shall any Covered Person be liable for special, exemplary, punitive, indirect, or consequential loss, or damage of any kind whatsoever, including without limitation lost profits.

(i) No Covered Person shall be liable hereunder for any settlement of any action or claim effected without its written consent thereto.

(j) Pursuant to the exculpation and indemnification provisions described above, the Investment Advisor and each Indemnified Party will generally not be liable to the General Partner or the Fund for any act or omission (or alleged act or omission), absent bad faith, willful misconduct, fraud or gross negligence, and the General Partner and the Fund will generally be required to indemnify such persons against any Losses they may incur by reason of any act or omission (or alleged act or omission) related to the General Partner, the Fund or its subsidiaries, absent bad faith, willful misconduct, fraud or gross negligence. As a result of these provisions, the General Partner, the Fund and its subsidiaries, as applicable (not the Investment Advisor or any other Indemnified Party) will be responsible for any Losses resulting from trading errors and similar human errors, absent bad faith, willful misconduct, fraud or gross negligence or the ability to waive or limit such Losses under applicable law. Trading errors might include, for example, keystroke errors that occur when entering trades into an electronic trading system or typographical or drafting errors related to derivatives contracts or similar agreements. Given the volume of transactions executed by the Investment Advisor and its affiliates on behalf of the Fund and/or its subsidiaries, the General Partner acknowledges that trading errors (and similar errors) will occur and that the General Partner will be responsible for any resulting Losses, even if such Losses result from the negligence (but not gross negligence) of the Investment Advisor or its affiliates.

12. Activities of the Investment Advisor and Others. The Investment Advisor, and its affiliates may engage, simultaneously with their investment management activities on behalf of the Fund, in other businesses, and may render services similar to those described in this Agreement to other individuals, companies, trusts or persons, and shall not by reason of such engaging in other businesses or rendering of services for others be deemed to be acting in conflict with the interests of the Fund. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Investment Advisor and its affiliates shall devote as much time to provide advisory service to the General Partner with respect to the management of the Fund's assets as the Investment Advisor deems necessary and appropriate. In addition, the Investment Advisor or any of its affiliates, in their individual capacities, may engage in securities transactions which may be different than, and contrary to, the investment advice provided by the Investment Advisor to the General Partner with respect to the Fund. The Investment Advisor may give advice and recommend securities to, or buy securities for, accounts and other clients, which advice or securities may differ from advice given to, or securities recommended or bought for, the Fund, even though their investment objectives may be the same or similar. The Investment Advisor may recommend transactions in securities and other assets in which the Investment Advisor has an interest, including securities or other assets issued by affiliates of the Investment Manager. Each of the General Partner and the Fund acknowledges that it has received, reviewed and had an opportunity with respect to (a) a copy of Part 2 of the Investment Advisor's Form ADV, and (b) the supplemental disclosures attached hereto as Exhibit A, each of which further describes conflicts of interest relating to the Investment Advisor, its affiliates and their respective advised accounts.

13. Term. This Agreement shall remain in effect through an initial term concluding December 31, 2017 and shall be automatically extended for additional one-year terms thereafter, except that it may be terminated by the Investment Advisor, on the one hand, or by the General Partner and the Fund, on the other hand, upon at least 90 days' prior written notice to the General Partner or the Investment Advisor, as the case may be, prior to General Partner's fiscal year-end.

14. Miscellaneous.

(b) Entire Agreement. This Agreement contains all of the terms agreed upon or made by the parties relating to the subject matter of this Agreement, and supersedes all prior and contemporaneous agreements, negotiations, correspondence, undertakings and communications of the parties, oral or written, respecting such subject matter.

(c) Amendments and Waivers. No provision of this Agreement may be amended, modified, waived or discharged except as agreed to in writing by the parties. No amendment to this Agreement may be made without first obtaining the required approval from the Fund. The failure of a party to insist upon strict adherence to any term of this Agreement on any occasion shall not be considered a waiver thereof or deprive that party of the right thereafter to insist upon strict adherence to that term or any other term of this Agreement.

(d) Binding Effect; Assignment. This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the General Partner, the Fund, the Investment Advisor, each Indemnified Party and their respective successors and permitted assigns. Any person that is not a signatory to this Agreement but is nevertheless conferred any rights or benefits hereunder (e.g., officers, partners and personnel of the Investment Advisor and others who are entitled to indemnification hereunder) shall be entitled to such rights and benefits as if such person were a signatory hereto, and the rights and benefits of such person hereunder may not be impaired without such person's express written consent. No party to this Agreement may assign (as such term is defined under the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended) all or any portion of its rights, obligations or liabilities under this Agreement without the prior written consent of the other parties to this Agreement; provided; however, that the Investment Advisor may assign all or any portion of its rights, obligations and liabilities hereunder to any of its affiliates at its discretion.

(e) Governing Law. Notwithstanding the place where this Agreement may be executed by any of the parties thereto, the parties expressly agree that all terms and provisions hereof shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Texas applicable to agreements made and to be performed in that State.

(f) Jurisdiction; Venue; Waiver of Jury Trial. The Parties hereby agree that any action, claim, litigation, or proceeding of any kind whatsoever against any other Party in any way arising from or relating to this Agreement and all contemplated transactions, including claims sounding in contract, equity, tort, fraud and statute (“Dispute”) shall be submitted exclusively to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas or, if such court does not have subject matter jurisdiction, the courts of the State of Texas sitting in Dallas County, and any appellate court thereof (“Enforcement Court”). Each Party irrevocably and unconditionally submits to the exclusive personal and subject matter jurisdiction of the Enforcement Court for any Dispute and agrees to bring any Dispute only in the Enforcement Court. Each Party further agrees it shall not commence any Dispute in any forum, including administrative, arbitration, or litigation, other than the Enforcement Court. Each Party agrees that a final judgment in any such action, litigation, or proceeding is conclusive and may be enforced in other jurisdictions by suit on the judgment or in any other manner provided by law.

EACH PARTY IRREVOCABLY AND UNCONDITIONALLY WAIVES, TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, ANY RIGHT IT MAY HAVE TO A TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY LEGAL ACTION, PROCEEDING, CAUSE OF ACTION OR COUNTERCLAIM ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THIS AGREEMENT, INCLUDING ANY EXHIBITS, SCHEDULES, AND APPENDICES ATTACHED TO THIS AGREEMENT, OR THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED HEREBY. EACH PARTY CERTIFIES AND ACKNOWLEDGES THAT (A) NO REPRESENTATIVE OF THE OTHER PARTY HAS REPRESENTED, EXPRESSLY OR OTHERWISE, THAT THE OTHER PARTY WOULD NOT SEEK TO ENFORCE THE FOREGOING WAIVER IN THE EVENT OF A LEGAL ACTION, (B) IT HAS CONSIDERED THE IMPLICATIONS OF THIS WAIVER, (C) IT MAKES THIS WAIVER KNOWINGLY AND VOLUNTARILY, AND (D) IT HAS BEEN INDUCED TO ENTER INTO THIS AGREEMENT BY, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE MUTUAL WAIVERS AND CERTIFICATIONS IN THIS SECTION.

Nothing in this Section 14(f) shall be construed to limit either party’s right to obtain equitable or injunctive relief in a court of competent jurisdiction in appropriate circumstances.

(g) Headings. The headings contained in this Agreement are intended solely for convenience and shall not affect the rights of the parties to this Agreement.

(h) Counterparts. This Agreement may be signed in any number of counterparts with the same effect as if the signatures to each counterpart were upon a single instrument, and all such counterparts together shall be deemed an original of this Agreement.

(i) Survival. The provisions of Sections 8, 9, 10, 11 and 14 hereof shall survive the termination of this Agreement.

(j) Pronouns. All pronouns shall be deemed to refer to the masculine, feminine, neuter, singular or plural as the identity of the person or persons’ firm or company may require in the context thereof.

(k) Arm's-Length Agreement. The General Partner and the Fund have approved this Agreement and reviewed the activities described in Section 12 and in the Investment Advisor's Form ADV and the risks related thereto.

Supplemental Disclosures

Potential Conflicts of Interest

The scope of the activities of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Investment Adviser”), its affiliates, and the funds and clients managed or advised by the Investment Adviser or any of its affiliates may give rise to conflicts of interest or other restrictions and/or limitations imposed on Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. and its subsidiaries (collectively, the “Fund”) in the future that cannot be foreseen or mitigated at this time. The following briefly summarizes some of these conflicts, but is not intended to be an exhaustive list of all such conflicts. Additional conflicts are described in the Investment Adviser’s Form ADV. You are urged to review the Investment Adviser’s Form ADV in its entirety prior to investing in the Fund.¹

Highland Group & Highland Accounts. None of the Investment Adviser, its affiliates and their respective officers, directors, shareholders, members, partners, personnel and employees (collectively, the “Highland Group”) is precluded from engaging in or owning an interest in other business ventures or investment activities of any kind, whether or not such ventures are competitive with the Fund. The Investment Adviser is permitted to manage other client accounts, and does manage other client accounts, some of which may have objectives similar or identical to those of the Fund, including other collective investment vehicles that may be managed by the Highland Group and in which the Investment Adviser or any of its affiliates may have an equity interest.

The Fund will be subject to a number of actual and potential conflicts of interest involving the Highland Group including, among other things, the fact that: (i) the Highland Group conducts substantial investment activities for accounts, funds, collateralized debt obligations and collateralized loan obligations that invest in leveraged loans (collectively, “CDOs”) and other vehicles managed by members of the Highland Group (collectively, “Highland Accounts”) in which the Fund has no interest; (ii) the Highland Group advises Highland Accounts, which utilize the same, similar or different methodologies as the Fund and may have financial incentives (including, without limitation, as it relates to the composition of investors in such funds and accounts or to the Highland Group’s compensation arrangements) to favor certain Highland Accounts over the Fund; (iii) the Highland Group may use the strategy described herein in certain Highland Accounts; (iv) the Investment Adviser may give advice and recommend securities to, or buy or sell securities for, the Fund, which advice or securities may differ from advice given to, or securities recommended or bought or sold for, Highland Accounts; (v) the Investment Adviser has the discretion, to the extent permitted under applicable law, to use its affiliates as service providers to the Fund and its portfolio investments; (vi) certain investors affiliated with the Highland Group may choose to personally invest only in certain funds advised by the Highland Group and the amounts invested by them in such funds is expected to vary significantly; (vii) the Highland Group and Highland Accounts may actively engage in transactions in the same securities sought by the

Fund and, therefore, may compete with the Fund for investment opportunities or may hold positions opposite to positions maintained by the Fund; (viii) the Fund may invest in CDOs and Highland Accounts managed by members of the Highland Group; and (ix) the Investment Adviser will devote to the Fund only as much time as the Investment Adviser deems necessary and appropriate to manage the Fund's business.

The Investment Adviser undertakes to resolve conflicts in a fair and equitable basis, which in some instances may mean a resolution that would not maximize the benefit to the Fund's investors.

Allocation of Trading Opportunities. It is the policy of the Investment Adviser to allocate investment opportunities fairly and equitably over time. This means that such opportunities will be allocated among those accounts for which participation in the respective opportunity is considered appropriate, taking into account, among other considerations: (i) fiduciary duties owed to the accounts; (ii) the primary mandate of the accounts; (iii) the capital available to the accounts; (iv) any restrictions on the accounts and the investment opportunity; (v) the sourcing of the investment, size of the investment and amount of follow-on available related to the investment; (vi) whether the risk-return profile of the proposed investment is consistent with the account's objectives and program, whether such objectives are considered in light of the specific investment under consideration or in the context of the portfolio's overall holdings; (vii) the potential for the proposed investment to create an imbalance in the account's portfolio (taking into account expected inflows and outflows of capital); (viii) liquidity requirements of the account; (ix) potentially adverse tax consequences; (x) regulatory and other restrictions that would or could limit an account's ability to participate in a proposed investment; and (xi) the need to re-size risk in the account's portfolio.

The Investment Adviser has the authority to allocate trades to multiple Highland Accounts on an average price basis or on another basis it deems fair and equitable. Similarly, if an order for any accounts cannot be fully allocated under prevailing market conditions, the Investment Adviser may allocate the trades among different accounts on a basis it considers fair and equitable over time. One or more of the foregoing considerations may (and are often expected to) result in allocations among the Fund and one or more Highland Accounts on other than a pari passu basis. The Investment Adviser will allocate investment opportunities across its accounts for which the opportunities are appropriate, consistent with (i) its internal conflict of interest and allocation policies and (ii) the requirements of the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended. The Investment Adviser will seek to allocate investment opportunities among such entities in a manner that is fair and equitable over time and consistent with its allocation policy. However, there is no assurance that such investment opportunities will be allocated to the Fund fairly or equitably in the short-term or over time and there can be no assurance that the Fund will be able to participate in all investment opportunities that are suitable for it.

The Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates may open "average price" accounts with brokers. In an "average price" account, purchase and sale orders placed during a trading day for the Fund, the Highland Accounts or affiliates of the Investment Adviser are combined, and securities bought and sold pursuant to such orders are allocated among such accounts on an average price basis.

Highland Group Trading. As part of their regular business, the members of the Highland Group hold, purchase, sell, trade or take other related actions both for their respective accounts and for the accounts of their respective clients, on a principal or agency basis, with respect to loans, securities and other investments and financial instruments of all types. The members of the Highland Group also provide investment advisory services, among other services, and engage in private equity, real estate and capital markets oriented investment activities. The members of the Highland Group will not be restricted in their performance of any such services or in the types of debt or equity investments which they may make. The members of the Highland Group may have economic interests in or other relationships with obligors or issuers in whose obligations or securities or credit exposures the Fund may invest. In particular, such persons may make and/or hold an investment in an obligor's or issuer's securities that may be pari passu, senior or junior in ranking to an investment in such obligor's or issuer's securities made and/or held by the Fund or in which partners, security holders, members, officers, directors, agents, personnel or employees of such persons serve on boards of directors or otherwise have ongoing relationships. Each of such ownership and other relationships may result in securities laws restrictions on transactions in such securities by the Fund and otherwise create conflicts of interest for the Fund. In such instances, the members of the Highland Group may in their discretion make investment recommendations and decisions that may be the same as or different from those made with respect to the Fund's investments. In connection with any such activities described above, the members of the Highland Group may hold, purchase, sell, trade or take other related actions in securities or investments of a type that may be suitable to investments for the Fund. The members of the Highland Group will not be required to offer such securities or investments to the Fund or provide notice of such activities to the Fund. In addition, in managing the Fund's portfolio, the Investment Adviser may take into account its relationship or the relationships of its affiliates with obligors and their respective affiliates, which may create conflicts of interest. Furthermore, in connection with actions taken in the ordinary course of business of the Investment Adviser in accordance with its fiduciary duties to its other clients, the Investment Adviser may take, or be required to take, actions which adversely affect the interests of the Fund.

The Highland Group has invested and may continue to invest in investments that would also be appropriate for the Fund. Such investments may be different from those made by the Fund. The Highland Group does not have any duty, in making or maintaining such investments, to act in a way that is favorable to the Fund or to offer any such opportunity to the Fund, subject to the Investment Adviser's internal allocation policy. The investment policies, fee arrangements and other circumstances applicable to such other accounts and investments may vary from those applicable to the Fund and its investments. The Highland Group may also provide advisory or other services for a customary fee with respect to investments made or held by the Fund, and neither the Fund nor its investors shall have any right to such fees. The Highland Group may also have ongoing relationships with, render services to or engage in transactions with other clients who make investments of a similar nature to those of the Fund, and with companies whose securities or properties are acquired by the Fund.

As further described below, in connection with the foregoing activities the Highland Group may from time to time come into possession of material nonpublic information that limits the ability of the Investment Adviser to effect a transaction for the Fund, and the Fund's investments may be constrained as a consequence of the Investment Adviser's inability to use such information for advisory purposes or otherwise to effect transactions that otherwise may have been initiated on behalf of its clients, including the Fund.

Although the professional staff of the Investment Adviser will devote as much time to the Fund as the Investment Adviser deems appropriate to perform its duties in accordance with the Fund's advisory agreement and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards, the staff may have conflicts in allocating its time and services among the Fund and the Investment Adviser's other accounts.

Various Activities of the Investment Adviser and its Affiliates. The directors, officers, personnel, employees and agents of the Investment Adviser and its affiliates may, subject to applicable law, serve as directors (whether supervisory or managing), officers, personnel, employees, partners, agents, nominees or signatories or provide banking, agency, insurance and/or other services, and receive arm's length fees in connection with such services, for the Fund or its investments or other entities that operate in the same or a related line of business as the, for other clients managed by the Investment Adviser or its affiliates, or for any obligor or issuer in respect of the CDOs, and the Fund shall have no right to any such fees. In serving in these multiple capacities, they may have obligations to such other clients or investors in those entities, the fulfillment of which may not be in the best interests of the Fund. The Fund may compete with other Highland Accounts for capital and investment opportunities.

There is no limitation or restriction on the Investment Adviser or any of its affiliates with regard to acting as investment adviser or collateral manager (or in a similar role) to other parties or persons. This and other future activities of the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates may give rise to additional conflicts of interest. Such conflicts may relate to obligations that the Investment Adviser's investment committee, the Investment Adviser or its affiliates have to other clients.

The Investment Adviser and its affiliates may participate in creditors or other committees with respect to the bankruptcy, restructuring or workout of an investment of the Fund or another account. In such circumstances, the Investment Adviser or its affiliates may take positions on behalf of themselves or another account that are adverse to the interests of the Fund.

The Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates may act as an underwriter, arranger or placement agent, or otherwise participate in the origination, structuring, negotiation, syndication or offering of CDOs, Highland Accounts and other investments purchased by the Fund. Such transactions shall be subject to fees that are intended to be no greater than arm's-length fees, and the Fund shall have no right to any such fees. There is no expectation for preferential access to transactions involving CDOs and Highland Accounts that are underwritten, originated, arranged or placed by the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates and the Fund shall not have any right to any such fees.

Investments in Highland Accounts Managed by the Investment Manager or its Affiliates. The Fund may invest a significant portion of its capital in Highland Accounts. The Investment Adviser or its affiliates will receive senior and subordinated management fees and, in some cases, a performance-based allocation or fee with respect to its role as general partner and/or manager of the Highland Accounts. If the Fund invests in Highland Accounts in secondary transactions, the Fund will indirectly pay the fees (senior and subordinated) of such Highland Accounts and any carried interest. If the Fund provides all of the equity for a Highland Account, there may be no third party with whom the amount of such fees, expenses and carried interest can be negotiated on an arm's-length basis. The Investment Adviser or its affiliates will have conflicting division of loyalties and responsibilities regarding the Fund and a Highland Account, and certain other conflicts of interest would be inherent in the situation. There can be no assurance that the interests of the Fund would not be subordinated to those of a Highland Account or to other interests of the Investment Adviser.

Multiple Levels of Fees. The Investment Adviser and the Highland Accounts are expected to impose management fees, other administrative fees, carried interest and other performance allocations on realized and unrealized appreciation in the value of the assets managed and other income. This may result in greater expense than if investors in the Fund were able to invest directly in the Highland Accounts or their respective underlying investments. Investors in the Fund should take into account that the return on their investment will be reduced to the extent of both levels of fees. The general partner or manager of a Highland Account may receive the economic benefit of certain fees from its portfolio companies for services and in connection with unconsummated transactions (e.g., break-up, placement, monitoring, directors', organizational and set-up fees and financial advisory fees).

Cross Transactions and Principal Transactions. The Investment Adviser may effect client cross-transactions where the Investment Adviser causes a transaction to be effected between the Fund and another client advised by it or any of its affiliates. The Investment Adviser may engage in a client cross-transaction involving the Fund any time that the Investment Adviser believes such transaction to be fair to the Fund and such other client.

The Investment Adviser may effect principal transactions where the Fund acquires securities from or sells securities to the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates, in each case in accordance with applicable law, which will include the Investment Adviser obtaining independent consent on behalf of the Fund prior to engaging in any such principal transaction between the Fund and the Investment Adviser or its affiliates.

The Investment Adviser may advise the Fund to acquire or dispose of securities in cross trades between the Fund and other clients of the Investment Adviser or its affiliates in accordance with applicable legal and regulatory requirements. In addition, the Fund may invest in securities of obligors or issuers in which the Investment Adviser and/or its affiliates have a debt, equity or participation interest, and the holding and sale of such investments by the Fund may enhance the profitability of the Investment Adviser's own investments in such companies. Moreover, the Fund may invest in assets originated by the Investment Adviser or its affiliates. In each such case, the Investment Adviser and such affiliates may have a potentially conflicting division of loyalties and responsibilities regarding the Fund and the other parties to such trade. Under certain circumstances, the Investment Adviser and its affiliates may determine that it is appropriate to avoid such conflicts by selling a security at a fair value that has been calculated pursuant to the Investment Adviser's valuation procedures to another client managed or advised by the Investment Adviser or such affiliates. In addition, the Investment Adviser may enter into agency cross-transactions where it or any of its affiliates acts as broker for the Fund and for the other party to the transaction, to the extent permitted under applicable law. The Investment Adviser may obtain independent consent in writing on behalf of the Fund, which consent may be provided by the managing member of the General Partner or any other independent party on behalf of the Fund, if any such transaction requires the consent of the Fund under Section 206(3) of the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended.

Material Non-Public Information. There are generally no ethical screens or information barriers among the Investment Adviser and certain of its affiliates of the type that many firms implement to separate persons who make investment decisions from others who might possess material, non-public information that could influence such decisions. If the Investment Adviser, any of its personnel or its affiliates were to receive material non-public information about a particular obligor or issuer, or have an interest in causing the Fund to acquire a particular security, the Investment Adviser may be prevented from advising the Fund to purchase or sell such asset due to internal restrictions imposed on the Investment Adviser. Notwithstanding the maintenance of certain internal controls relating to the management of material nonpublic information, it is possible that such controls could fail and result in the Investment Adviser, or one of its investment professionals, buying or selling an asset while, at least constructively, in possession of material non-public information. Inadvertent trading on material nonpublic information could have adverse effects on the Investment Adviser's reputation, result in the imposition of regulatory or financial sanctions, and as a consequence, negatively impact the Investment Adviser's ability to perform its portfolio management services to the Fund. In addition, while the Investment Adviser and certain of its affiliates currently operate without information barriers on an integrated basis, such entities could be required by certain regulations, or decide that it is advisable, to establish information barriers. In such event, the Investment Adviser's ability to operate as an integrated platform could also be impaired, which would limit the Investment Adviser's access to personnel of its affiliates and potentially impair its ability to manage the Fund's investments.

Conflicts Relating to Equity and Debt Ownership by the Fund and Affiliates. In certain circumstances, the Fund and other client accounts may invest in securities or other instruments of the same issuer (or affiliated group of issuers) having a different seniority in the issuer's capital structure. If the issuer becomes insolvent, restructures or suffers financial distress, there may be a conflict between the interests in the Fund and those other accounts insofar as the issuer may be unable (or in the case of a restructuring prior to bankruptcy may be expected to be unable) to satisfy the claims of all classes of its creditors and security holders and the Fund and such other accounts may have competing claims for the remaining assets of such issuers. Under these circumstances it may not be feasible for the Investment Adviser to reconcile the conflicting interests in the Fund and such other accounts in a way that protects the Fund's interests. Additionally, the Investment Adviser or its nominees may in the future hold board or creditors' committee memberships which may require them to vote or take other actions in such capacities that might be conflicting with respect to certain funds managed by the Investment Adviser in that such votes or actions may favor the interests of one account over another account. Furthermore, the Investment Adviser's fiduciary responsibilities in these capacities might conflict with the best interests of the investors.

Other Fees. The Investment Adviser and its affiliates are permitted to receive consulting fees, investment banking fees, advisory fees, breakup fees, director's fees, closing fees, transaction fees and similar fees in connection with actual or contemplated investments. Such fees will not reduce or offset the Management Fee. Conflicts of interest may also arise due to the allocation of such fees to or among co-investors.

Soft Dollars. The Investment Adviser's authority to use "soft dollar" credits generated by the Fund's securities transactions to pay for expenses that might otherwise have been borne by the Investment Adviser may give the Investment Adviser an incentive to select brokers or dealers for transactions, or to negotiate commission rates or other execution terms, in a manner that takes into account the soft dollar benefits received by the Investment Adviser rather than giving exclusive consideration to the interests of the Fund.

Under federal law, an investment adviser is a fiduciary.² The fiduciary duty an investment adviser owes to its client under the Advisers Act, which comprises a duty of care and a duty of loyalty, is important to the Commission's investor protection efforts. Also important to the Commission's investor protection efforts is the standard of conduct that a broker-dealer owes to a retail customer when it makes a recommendation of any securities transaction or investment strategy involving securities.³ Both investment advisers and broker-dealers play an important role in our capital markets and our economy more broadly. Investment advisers and broker-dealers have different types of relationships with investors, offer different services, and have different compensation models. This variety is important because it presents investors with choices regarding the types of relationships they can have, the services they can receive, and how they can pay for those services.

² SEC v. Capital Gains Research Bureau, Inc., 375 U.S. 180, 194 (1963) ("SEC v. Capital Gains"); see also infra footnotes 34–44 and accompanying text; Investment Adviser Codes of Ethics, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 2256 (July 2, 2004); Compliance Programs of Investment Companies and Investment Advisers, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 2204 (Dec. 17, 2003); Electronic Filing by Investment Advisers; Proposed Amendments to Form ADV, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 1862 (Apr. 5, 2000). Investment advisers also have antifraud liability with respect to prospective clients under section 206 of the Advisers Act.

³ See Regulation Best Interest, Exchange Act Release No. 34-86031 (June 5, 2019) ("Reg. BI Adoption"). This final interpretation regarding the standard of conduct for investment advisers under the Advisers Act ("Final Interpretation") interprets section 206 of the Advisers Act, which is applicable to both SEC- and

On April 18, 2018, the Commission proposed rules and forms intended to enhance the required standard of conduct for broker-dealers⁴ and provide retail investors with clear and succinct information regarding the key aspects of their brokerage and advisory relationships.⁵ In connection with the publication of these proposals, the Commission published for comment a separate proposed interpretation regarding the standard of conduct for investment advisers under the Advisers Act (“Proposed Interpretation”).⁶ We stated in the Proposed Interpretation, and we continue to believe, that it is appropriate and beneficial to address in one release and reaffirm—and in some cases clarify—certain aspects of the fiduciary duty that an investment adviser owes state-registered investment advisers, as well as other investment advisers that are exempt from registration or subject to a prohibition on registration under the Advisers Act. This Final Interpretation is intended to highlight the principles relevant to an adviser’s fiduciary duty. It is not, however, intended to be the exclusive resource for understanding these principles. Separately, in various circumstances, case law, statutes (such as the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (“ERISA”)), and state law impose obligations on investment advisers. In some cases, these standards may differ from the standard enforced by the Commission.

to its clients under section 206 of the Advisers Act.⁷ After considering the comments received, we are publishing this Final Interpretation with some clarifications to address comments.⁸

A. Overview of Comments

We received over 150 comment letters on our Proposed Interpretation from individuals, investment advisers, trade or professional organizations, law firms, consumer advocacy groups, and bar associations.⁹ Although many commenters generally agreed that the Proposed Interpretation was useful,¹⁰ some noted the challenges inherent in a Commission interpretation covering the broad scope of the fiduciary duty that an investment adviser owes to its clients under the Advisers Act.¹¹ Some of these commenters suggested modifications to or withdrawal

⁷ Further, the Commission recognizes that many advisers provide impersonal investment advice. See, e.g., Advisers Act rule 203A-3 (defining “impersonal investment advice” in the context of defining “investment adviser representative” as “investment advisory services provided by means of written material or oral statements that do not purport to meet the objectives or needs of specific individuals or accounts”). This Final Interpretation does not address the extent to which the Advisers Act applies to different types of impersonal investment advice.

⁸ In the Proposed Interpretation, the Commission also requested comment on: licensing and continuing education requirements for personnel of SEC-registered investment advisers; delivery of account statements to clients with investment advisory accounts; and financial responsibility requirements for SEC-registered investment advisers, including fidelity bonds. We are continuing to evaluate the comments received in response.

⁹ Comment letters submitted in File No. S7-09-18 are available on the Commission’s website at <https://www.sec.gov/comments/s7-09-18/s70918.htm>. Some commenters requested that we adopt rule text instead.¹⁴ The relationship between an investment adviser and its client has long been based on fiduciary principles not generally set forth in specific statute or rule text. We believe that this principles-based approach should continue as it expresses broadly the standard to which investment advisers are held while allowing them flexibility to meet that standard in the context of their specific services. In our view, adopting rule text is not necessary to achieve our goal in this Final Interpretation of reaffirming and in some cases clarifying certain aspects of the fiduciary duty.

II. INVESTMENT ADVISERS' FIDUCIARY DUTY

The Advisers Act establishes a federal fiduciary duty for investment advisers.¹⁵ This fiduciary duty is based on equitable common law principles and is fundamental to advisers' relationships with their clients under the Advisers Act.¹⁶ The investment adviser's fiduciary duty is broad and applies to the entire adviser-client relationship.¹⁷ The fiduciary duty to which advisers are subject is not specifically defined in the Advisers Act or in Commission rules, but reflects a Congressional recognition "of the delicate fiduciary nature of an investment advisory relationship" as well as a Congressional intent to "eliminate, or at least to expose, all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser—consciously or unconsciously—to render advice which was not disinterested."¹⁸ An adviser's fiduciary duty is imposed under the Green*, 430 U.S. 462, 471, n.11 (1977) (in discussing SEC v. ¹⁶ See SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2 (discussing the history of the Advisers Act, and how equitable principles influenced the common law of fraud and changed the suits brought against a fiduciary, "which Congress recognized the investment adviser to be").

¹⁷ The Commission has previously recognized the broad scope of section 206 of the Advisers Act in a variety of contexts. See, e.g., Investment Advisers Act Release 2106, supra footnote 15; Timbervest, LLC, et al., Advisers Act Release No. 4197 (Sept. 17, 2015) (Commission Opinion) ("[O]nce an investment advisory relationship is formed, the Advisers Act does not permit an adviser to exploit that fiduciary relationship by defrauding his client in any investment transaction connected to the advisory relationship."); see also SEC v. Sept. 24, 2008) ("Unlike the antifraud provisions of the Securities Act and the Exchange Act, Section 206 of the Advisers Act does not require that the activity be 'in the offer or sale of any' security or 'in connection with the purchase or sale of any security.'"); Thomas P. Lemke & Gerald T. Lins, Regulation of Investment Advisers (2013 ed.), at § 2:30 ("[T]he SEC has ... applied [sections 206(1) and 206(2)] where fraud arose from an investment advisory relationship, even though the wrongdoing did not specifically involve securities.").

¹⁸ See SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2; see also In the Matter of Arleen W. Hughes, Exchange Act Release No. 4048 (Feb. 18, 1948) ("Arleen Hughes") (Commission Opinion) (discussing the relationship of

Advisers Act in recognition of the nature of the relationship between an investment adviser and a client and the desire “so far as is presently practicable to eliminate the abuses” that led to the enactment of the Advisers Act.¹⁹ It is made enforceable by the antifraud provisions of the Advisers Act.²⁰

An investment adviser’s fiduciary duty under the Advisers Act comprises a duty of care and a duty of loyalty.²¹ This fiduciary duty requires an adviser “to adopt the principal’s goals, trust and confidence between the client and a dual registrant and stating that the registrant was a fiduciary and subject to liability under the antifraud provisions of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934).

It is hereby declared that the policy and purposes of this title, in accordance with which the provisions of this title shall be interpreted, are to mitigate and, so far as is presently practicable to eliminate the abuses enumerated in this section”) (citing S. 3580, 76th Cong., 3d Sess., § 202 and Investment Trusts and Investment Companies, Report of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Pursuant to Section 30 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, on Investment Counsel, Investment Management, Investment Supervisory, and Investment Advisory Services, H.R. ²⁰ Id.; Transamerica Mortgage v. Lewis, supra footnote 15 (“[T]he Act’s legislative history leaves no doubt that Congress intended to impose enforceable fiduciary obligations.”). Some commenters questioned the standard to which the Advisers Act holds investment advisers. See, e.g., Comment Letter of Stark & Stark, PC (undated) (“The duty of care at common law and under the Advisers Act only requires that advisers not be negligent in performing their duties.”) (internal citation omitted); Comment Letter of Institutional Limited Partners Association (Nov. 21, 2018) (“ILPA Letter 2”) (“The Advisers Act standard is a lower simple ‘negligence’ standard.”). Claims arising under Advisers Act section 206(2) are not scienter-based and can be adequately pled with only a showing of negligence. Robare Group, Ltd., et al. v. SEC, 922 F.3d 468, 472 (D.C. Cir. 2019) (“Robare v. SEC”); SEC v. Steadman, 967 F.2d 636, 643, n.5 (D.C. Cir. 1992) (citing SEC v. Supp. 2d 653, 669 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) (“Claims arising under Section 206(2) are not scienter-based and can be adequately pled with only a showing of negligence.”). However, claims arising under Advisers Act section 206(1) require scienter. See, e.g., Robare v. SEC; SEC v. Moran, 922 F. Supp. 867, 896 (S.D.N.Y. 1996); Carroll v. Bear, Stearns & Co., 416 F. ²¹ See, e.g., Investment Advisers Act Release 2106, supra footnote 15. These duties were generally recognized by commenters. objectives, or ends.”²² This means the adviser must, at all times, serve the best interest of its client and not subordinate its client’s interest to its own. In other words, the investment adviser cannot place its own interests ahead of the interests of its client. This combination of care and loyalty obligations has been characterized as requiring the investment adviser to act in the “best interest” of its client at all times.²³ In our view, an investment adviser’s obligation to act in the best interest of its client is an overarching principle that encompasses both the duty of care and the duty of loyalty. As discussed in more detail below, in our view, the duty of care requires an investment adviser to provide investment advice in the best interest of its client, based on the client’s objectives. Under its duty of loyalty, an investment adviser must eliminate or make full and fair disclosure of all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser—consciously or unconsciously—to render advice which is not disinterested such that a client can provide informed consent to the conflict.²⁴ We believe this is another part of an investment adviser’s obligation to act in the best interest of its client.

A. Application of Duty Determined by Scope of Relationship

An adviser’s fiduciary duty is imposed under the Advisers Act in recognition of the Laby, The Fiduciary Obligations as the Adoption of Ends, 56 Buffalo Law Review 99 (2008); see also Restatement (Third) of Agency, §2.02 Scope of Actual Authority (2006) (describing a fiduciary’s authority in terms of the fiduciary’s reasonable understanding of the principal’s manifestations and objectives).

²³ Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15 (adopting amendments to Form ADV and stating that “under the Advisers Act, an adviser is a fiduciary whose duty is to serve the best interests of its clients, which includes an obligation not to subrogate clients’ interests to its own,” citing Investment Advisers Act Release 2106, supra footnote 15). See SEC v. Tambone, 550 F.3d 106, 146 (1st Cir. 2008) (“SEC v. Tambone”) (“Section 206 imposes a fiduciary duty on investment advisers to act at all times in the best interest of the fund...”); SEC v. Moran, 944 F. Supp. 286, 297 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) (“SEC v. Moran”) (“Investment advisers are entrusted with the responsibility and duty to act in the best interest of their clients.”). Although most commenters agreed that an adviser has an obligation to act in its client’s best interest, some questioned whether the Proposed Interpretation appropriately considered the best interest obligation as part of the duty of care, or whether it instead should be considered part of the duty of loyalty. See, e.g., MMI Letter; Comment Letter of Investment Company Institute (Aug. 7, 2018) (“ICI Letter”).

nature of the relationship between an adviser and its client—a relationship of trust and confidence.²⁵ The adviser’s fiduciary duty is principles-based and applies to the entire relationship between the adviser and its client. The fiduciary duty follows the contours of the relationship between the adviser and its client, and the adviser and its client may shape that relationship by agreement, provided that there is full and fair disclosure and informed consent.²⁶ With regard to the scope of the adviser-client relationship, we recognize that investment advisers provide a wide range of services, from a single financial plan for which a client may pay a one-time fee, to ongoing portfolio management for which a client may pay a periodic fee based on the value of assets in the portfolio. Investment advisers also serve a large variety of clients, from retail clients with limited assets and investment knowledge and experience to institutional clients with very large portfolios and substantial knowledge, experience, and analytical resources.²⁷ In our experience, the principles-based fiduciary duty imposed by the Advisers Act has provided sufficient flexibility to serve as an effective standard of conduct for investment advisers, regardless of the services they provide or the types of clients they serve.

Although all investment advisers owe each of their clients a fiduciary duty under the Advisers Act, that fiduciary duty must be viewed in the context of the agreed-upon scope of the relationship between the adviser and the client. In particular, the specific obligations that flow from the adviser's fiduciary duty depend upon what functions the adviser, as agent, has agreed to assume for the client, its principal. For example, the obligations of an adviser providing comprehensive, discretionary advice in an ongoing relationship with a retail client (e.g., monitoring and periodically adjusting a portfolio of equity and fixed income investments with limited restrictions on allocation) will be significantly different from the obligations of an adviser to a registered investment company or private fund where the contract defines the scope of the adviser's services and limitations on its authority with substantial specificity (e.g., a mandate to manage a fixed income portfolio subject to specified parameters, including concentration limits and credit quality and maturity ranges).²⁸

²⁶ Several commenters asked that we clarify that an adviser and its client can tailor the scope of the relationship to which the fiduciary duty applies through contract. See, e.g., MMI Letter; Financial Engines Letter; ABA Letter.

²⁷ This Final Interpretation also applies to automated advisers, which are often colloquially referred to as “robo-advisers.” Automated advisers, like all SEC-registered investment advisers, are subject to all of the requirements of the Advisers Act, including the requirement that they provide advice consistent with the fiduciary duty they owe to their clients. See Division of Investment Management, Robo Advisers, IM Guidance Update No. 2017-02 (Feb. 2017), available at <https://www.sec.gov/investment/im-guidance-2017-02.pdf> (describing Commission staff’s guidance as to three distinct areas under the Advisers Act that automated advisers should consider, due to the nature of their business model, in seeking to comply with their obligations under the Advisers Act).

While the application of the investment adviser's fiduciary duty will vary with the scope of the relationship, the relationship in all cases remains that of a fiduciary to the client. In other words, an adviser's federal fiduciary duty may not be waived, though it will apply in a manner that reflects the agreed-upon scope of the relationship.²⁹ A contract provision purporting to waive the adviser's federal fiduciary duty generally, such as (i) a statement that the adviser will not act as a fiduciary, (ii) a blanket waiver of all conflicts of interest, or (iii) a waiver of any ²⁸ See, e.g., infra text following footnote 35.

²⁹ Because an adviser's federal fiduciary obligations are enforceable through section 206 of the Advisers Act, we would view a waiver of enforcement of section 206 as implicating section 215(a) of the Advisers Act, which provides that "any condition, stipulation or provision binding any person to waive compliance with any provision of this title. . . shall be void." See also Restatement (Third) of Agency, § 8.06 Principal's Consent (2006) ("[T]he law applicable to relationships of agency as defined in § 1.01 imposes mandatory limits on the circumstances under which an agent may be empowered to take disloyal action. These limits serve protective and cautionary purposes. Thus, an agreement that contains general or broad language purporting to release an agent in advance from the agent's general fiduciary obligation to the principal is not likely to be enforceable. This is because a broadly sweeping release of an agent's fiduciary duty may not reflect an adequately informed judgment on the part of the principal; if effective, the release would expose the principal to the risk that the agent will exploit the agent's position in ways not foreseeable by the principal at the time the principal agreed to the release. In contrast, when a principal consents to specific transactions or to specified types of conduct by the agent, the principal has a focused opportunity to assess risks that are more readily identifiable.").

specific obligation under the Advisers Act, would be inconsistent with the Advisers Act,³⁰ regardless of the sophistication of the client.³¹

³⁰ See sections 206 and 215(a). Commenters generally agreed that a client cannot waive an investment adviser's fiduciary duty through agreement. See Dechert Letter; Comment Letter of Ropes & Gray LLP (Aug. 7, 2018) ("Ropes & Gray Letter"), at n.20; see also supra footnote 29. In the Proposed Interpretation, we stated that "the investment adviser cannot disclose or negotiate away, and the investor cannot waive, the federal fiduciary duty." One commenter disputed this broad statement, believing that it called into question "the ability of an investment adviser and client to define the scope of the adviser's services and duties." ABA Letter; see also Financial Engines Letter. We have modified this statement to clarify that a general waiver of the fiduciary duty would violate that duty and to provide examples of such a general waiver.

³¹ Some commenters mentioned a 2007 No-Action Letter in which staff indicated that whether a clause in an advisory agreement that purports to limit an adviser's liability under that agreement (a so-called "hedge clause") would violate sections 206(1) and 206(2) of the Advisers Act depends on all of the surrounding facts and circumstances. Heitman Capital Management, LLC, SEC Staff No-Action Letter (Feb. 12, 2007) ("Heitman Letter"). A few commenters indicated that the Heitman Letter expanded the ability of investment advisers to private funds, and potentially other sophisticated clients, to disclaim their fiduciary duties under state law in an advisory agreement. See, e.g., ILPA Letter 1; ILPA Letter 2. The commenters' descriptions of the Heitman Letter suggest that it may have been applied incorrectly. The Heitman Letter does not address the scope or substance of an adviser's federal fiduciary duty; rather, it addresses the extent to which hedge clauses may be misleading in violation of the Advisers Act's antifraud provisions. Another commenter agreed with this reading of the Heitman Letter. See Comment Letter of American Investment Council (Feb. 25, 2019). In response to these comments, we express below the Commission's views about an adviser's obligations under sections 206(1) and 206(2) of the Advisers Act with respect to the use of hedge clauses. Accordingly, because we are expressing our views in this Final Interpretation, the Heitman Letter is withdrawn.

This Final Interpretation makes clear that an adviser's federal fiduciary duty may not be waived, though its application may be shaped by agreement. This Final Interpretation does not take a position on the scope or substance of any fiduciary duty that applies to an adviser under applicable state law. See supra footnote 3. The question of whether a hedge clause violates the Advisers Act's antifraud provisions depends on all of the surrounding facts and circumstances, including the particular circumstances of the client (e.g., sophistication). In our view, however, there are few (if any) circumstances in which a hedge clause in an agreement with a retail client would be consistent with those antifraud provisions, where the hedge clause purports to relieve the adviser from liability for conduct as to which the client has a non-waivable cause of action against the adviser provided by state or federal law. Such a hedge clause generally is likely to mislead those retail clients into not exercising their legal rights, in violation of the antifraud provisions, even where the agreement otherwise specifies that the client may continue to retain its non-waivable rights. Whether a hedge clause in an agreement with an institutional client would violate the Advisers Act's antifraud provisions will be determined based on the particular facts and circumstances. To the extent that a hedge clause creates a conflict of interest between an adviser and its client, the adviser must address the conflict as required by its duty of loyalty.

B. Duty of Care

As fiduciaries, investment advisers owe their clients a duty of care.³² The Commission has discussed the duty of care and its components in a number of contexts.³³ The duty of care includes, among other things: (i) the duty to provide advice that is in the best interest of the client, (ii) the duty to seek best execution of a client's transactions where the adviser has the responsibility to select broker-dealers to execute client trades, and (iii) the duty to provide advice and monitoring over the course of the relationship.

1. Duty to Provide Advice that is in the Best Interest of the Client

The duty of care includes a duty to provide investment advice that is in the best interest of the client, including a duty to provide advice that is suitable for the client.³⁴ In order to ³² See Investment Advisers Act Release 2106, supra footnote 15 (stating that under the Advisers Act, “an adviser is a fiduciary that owes each of its clients duties of care and loyalty with respect to all services undertaken on the client’s behalf, including proxy voting,” which is the subject of the release, and citing SEC v. Capital Gains supra footnote 2, to support this point). This Final Interpretation does not address the specifics of how an investment adviser might satisfy its fiduciary duty when voting proxies. See also Restatement (Third) of Agency, § 8.08 (discussing the duty of care that an agent owes its principal as a matter of common law); Tamar Frankel & Arthur B. Laby, The Regulation of Money Managers (updated 2017) (“Advice can be divided into three stages. The first determines the needs of the particular client. The second determines the portfolio strategy that would lead to meeting the client’s needs. The third relates to the choice of securities that the portfolio would contain. The duty of care relates to each of the stages and depends on the depth or extent of the advisers’ obligation towards their clients.”).

³⁴ In 1994, the Commission proposed a rule that would have made express the fiduciary obligation of investment advisers to make only suitable recommendations to a client. Investment Advisers Act Release 1406, supra footnote 33. Although never adopted, the rule was designed, among other things, to reflect the Commission’s interpretation of an adviser’s existing suitability obligation under the Advisers Act. In addition, we do not cite Investment Advisers Act Release 1406 as the source of authority for the view we express here, which at least one comment letter suggested, but cite it merely to show that the Commission has long held this view. See Comment Letter of the Managed Funds Association and the Alternative Investment Management Association (Aug. 7, 2018) (indicating that the Commission’s failure to adopt the proposed suitability rule means “investment advisers are not subject to an express ‘suitability’ standard provide such advice, an adviser must have a reasonable understanding of the client's objectives. The basis for such a reasonable understanding generally would include, for retail clients, an understanding of the investment profile, or for institutional clients, an understanding of the investment mandate.³⁵ The duty to provide advice that is in the best interest of the client based on a reasonable understanding of the client's objectives is a critical component of the duty of care.

Reasonable Inquiry into Client's Objectives

How an adviser develops a reasonable understanding will vary based on the specific facts and circumstances, including the nature of the client, the scope of the adviser-client relationship, and the nature and complexity of the anticipated investment advice.

In order to develop a reasonable understanding of a retail client's objectives, an adviser should, at a minimum, make a reasonable inquiry into the client's financial situation, level of financial sophistication, investment experience, and financial goals (which we refer to collectively as the retail client's "investment profile"). For example, an adviser undertaking to formulate a comprehensive financial plan for a retail client would generally need to obtain a under existing regulation"). We believe that this obligation to make only suitable recommendations to a client is part of an adviser's fiduciary duty to act in the best interest of its client. Accordingly, an adviser must provide investment advice that is suitable for its client in providing advice that is in the best interest of its client. See SEC v. Tambone, supra footnote 23 ("Section 206 imposes a fiduciary duty on investment advisers to act at all times in the best interest of the fund...."); SEC v. Moran, supra footnote 23 ("Investment advisers are entrusted with the responsibility and duty to act in the best interest of their clients.").

³⁵ Several commenters stated that the duty to make a reasonable inquiry into a client's investment profile may not apply in the institutional client context. See, e.g., Comment Letter of BlackRock, Inc. (Aug. 7, 2018); Comment Letter of Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association of America (Aug. 7, 2018); Comment Letter of Allianz Global Investors U.S. LLC (Aug. 7, 2018) ("Allianz Letter"); Comment Letter of John Hancock Life Insurance Company (U.S.A.) (Aug. 3, 2018). Accordingly, we are describing the duty as a duty to have a reasonable understanding of the client's objectives. While not every client will have an investment profile, every client will have objectives. For example, an institutional client's objectives may be ascertained through its investment mandate.

range of personal and financial information about the client such as current income, investments, assets and debts, marital status, tax status, insurance policies, and financial goals.³⁶

In addition, it will generally be necessary for an adviser to a retail client to update the client's investment profile in order to maintain a reasonable understanding of the client's objectives and adjust the advice to reflect any changed circumstances.³⁷ The frequency with which the adviser must update the client's investment profile in order to consider changes to any advice the adviser provides would itself turn on the facts and circumstances, including whether the adviser is aware of events that have occurred that could render inaccurate or incomplete the investment profile on which the adviser currently bases its advice. For instance, in the case of a financial plan where the investment adviser also provides advice on an ongoing basis, a change in the relevant tax law or knowledge that the client has retired or experienced a change in marital status could trigger an obligation to make a new inquiry.

By contrast, in providing investment advice to institutional clients, the nature and extent of the reasonable inquiry into the client's objectives generally is shaped by the specific investment mandates from those clients. For example, an investment adviser engaged to advise on an institutional client's investment grade bond portfolio would need to gain a reasonable understanding of the client's objectives within that bond portfolio, but not the client's objectives

³⁶ Investment Advisers Act Release 1406, supra footnote 33. After making a reasonable inquiry into the client's investment profile, it generally would be reasonable for an adviser to rely on information provided by the client (or the client's agent) regarding the client's financial circumstances, and an adviser should not be held to have given advice not in its client's best interest if it is later shown that the client had misled the adviser concerning the information on which the advice was based.

³⁷ Such updating would not be needed with one-time investment advice. In the Proposed Interpretation, we stated that an adviser "must" update a client's investment profile in order to adjust the advice to reflect any changed circumstances. We believe that any obligation to update a client's investment profile, like the nature and extent of the reasonable inquiry into a retail client's objectives, turns on what is reasonable under the circumstances. Accordingly, we have revised the wording of this statement in this Final Interpretation.

within its entire investment portfolio. Similarly, an investment adviser whose client is a registered investment company or a private fund would need to have a reasonable understanding of the fund's investment guidelines and objectives. For advisers acting on specific investment mandates for institutional clients, particularly funds, we believe that the obligation to update the client's objectives would not be applicable except as may be set forth in the advisory agreement.

Reasonable belief that advice is in the best interest of the client

An investment adviser must have a reasonable belief that the advice it provides is in the best interest of the client based on the client's objectives. The formation of a reasonable belief would involve considering, for example, whether investments are recommended only to those clients who can and are willing to tolerate the risks of those investments and for whom the potential benefits may justify the risks.³⁸ Whether the advice is in a client's best interest must be evaluated in the context of the portfolio that the adviser manages for the client and the client's objectives.

For example, when an adviser is advising a retail client with a conservative investment objective, investing in certain derivatives may be in the client's best interest when they are used to hedge interest rate risk or other risks in the client's portfolio, whereas investing in certain directionally speculative derivatives on their own may not. For that same client, investing in a particular security on margin may not be in the client's best interest, even if investing in that same security without the use of margin may be in the client's best interest. However, for example, when advising a financially sophisticated client, such as a fund or other sophisticated client that has an appropriate risk tolerance, it may be in the best interest of the client to invest in such derivatives or in securities on margin, or to invest in other complex instruments or other products that may have limited liquidity.

³⁸ Item 8 of Part 2A of Form ADV requires an investment adviser to describe its methods of analysis and investment strategies and disclose that investing in securities involves risk of loss which clients should be prepared to bear. This item also requires that an adviser explain the material risks involved for each significant investment strategy or method of analysis it uses and particular type of security it recommends, with more detail if those risks are significant or unusual. Accordingly, investment advisers are required to identify and explain certain risks involved in their investment strategies and the types of securities they recommend. An investment adviser needs to consider those same risks in determining the clients to which the adviser recommends those investments.

Similarly, when an adviser is assessing whether high risk products—such as penny stocks or other thinly-traded securities—are in a retail client’s best interest, the adviser should generally apply heightened scrutiny to whether such investments fall within the retail client’s risk tolerance and objectives. As another example, complex products such as inverse or leveraged exchange-traded products that are designed primarily as short-term trading tools for sophisticated investors may not be in the best interest of a retail client absent an identified, short-term, client-specific trading objective and, to the extent that such products are in the best interest of a retail client initially, they would require daily monitoring by the adviser.³⁹

A reasonable belief that investment advice is in the best interest of a client also requires that an adviser conduct a reasonable investigation into the investment sufficient not to base its advice on materially inaccurate or incomplete information.⁴⁰ We have taken enforcement action where an investment adviser did not independently or reasonably investigate securities before recommending them to clients.⁴¹

³⁹ See Exchange-Traded Funds, Securities Act Release No. 10515 (June 28, 2018); SEC staff and FINRA, Investor Alert, Leveraged and Inverse ETFs: Specialized Products with Extra Risks for Buy-and-Hold Investors (Aug. 1, 2009); SEC Office of Investor Education and Advocacy, Investor Bulletin: Exchange-Traded Funds (ETFs) (Aug. 2012); see also FINRA Regulatory Notice 09-31, Non-Traditional ETFs – FINRA Reminds Firms of Sales Practice Obligations Relating to Leveraged and Inverse Exchange-Traded Funds (June 2009).

⁴⁰ See, e.g., Concept Release on the U.S. Proxy System, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 3052 (July 14, 2010) (indicating that a fiduciary “has a duty of care requiring it to make a reasonable investigation to determine that it is not basing its recommendations on materially inaccurate or incomplete information”).

⁴¹ See, e.g., In the Matter of Larry C. Grossman, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 4543 (Sept. 30, 2016) (Commission Opinion) (“In re Grossman”) (in connection with imposing liability on a principal of a

The cost (including fees and compensation) associated with investment advice would generally be one of many important factors—such as an investment product’s or strategy’s investment objectives, characteristics (including any special or unusual features), liquidity, risks and potential benefits, volatility, likely performance in a variety of market and economic conditions, time horizon, and cost of exit—to consider when determining whether a security or investment strategy involving a security or securities is in the best interest of the client. When considering similar investment products or strategies, the fiduciary duty does not necessarily require an adviser to recommend the lowest cost investment product or strategy.

Moreover, an adviser would not satisfy its fiduciary duty to provide advice that is in the client’s best interest by simply advising its client to invest in the lowest cost (to the client) or least remunerative (to the investment adviser) investment product or strategy without any further analysis of other factors in the context of the portfolio that the adviser manages for the client and the client’s objective. Rather, the adviser could recommend a higher-cost investment or strategy if the adviser reasonably concludes that there are other factors about the investment or strategy that outweigh cost and make the investment or strategy in the best interest of the client, in light of that client’s objectives. For example, it might be consistent with an adviser’s fiduciary duty to advise a client with a high risk tolerance and significant investment experience to invest in a private equity fund with relatively higher fees and significantly less liquidity as compared with a fund that invests in publicly-traded companies if the private equity fund was in the client’s best interest because it provided exposure to an asset class that was appropriate in the context of the client's overall portfolio.

An adviser's fiduciary duty applies to all investment advice the investment adviser provides to clients, including advice about investment strategy, engaging a sub-adviser, and account type.⁴² Advice about account type includes advice about whether to open or invest through a certain type of account (e.g., a commission-based brokerage account or a fee-based advisory account) and advice about whether to roll over assets from one account (e.g., a retirement account) into a new or existing account that the adviser or an affiliate of the adviser manages.⁴³ In providing advice about account type, an adviser should consider all types of accounts offered by the adviser and acknowledge to a client when the account types the adviser offers are not in the client's best interest.⁴⁴

⁴² In addition, with respect to prospective clients, investment advisers have antifraud liability under section 206 of the Advisers Act, which, among other things, applies to transactions, practices, or courses of business which operate as a fraud or deceit upon prospective clients, including those regarding investment strategy, engaging a sub-adviser, and account type. We believe that, in order to avoid liability under this antifraud provision, an investment adviser should have sufficient information about the prospective client and its objectives to form a reasonable basis for advice before providing any advice about these matters. At the point in time at which the prospective client becomes a client of the investment adviser (e.g., at account opening), the fiduciary duty applies. Accordingly, while advice to prospective clients about these matters must comply with the antifraud provisions under section 206 of the Advisers Act, the adviser must also satisfy its fiduciary duty with respect to any such advice (e.g., regarding account type) when a prospective client becomes a client.

⁴³ We consider advice about "rollovers" to include advice about account type, in addition to any advice regarding the investments or investment strategy with respect to the assets to be rolled over, as the advice necessarily includes the advice about the account type into which assets are to be rolled over. As noted below, as a general matter, an adviser's duty to monitor extends to all personalized advice it provides to the client, including, for example, in an ongoing relationship, an evaluation of whether a client's account or program type (for example, a wrap account) continues to be in the client's best interest. See infra text accompanying footnote 52.

⁴⁴ Accordingly, in providing advice to a client or customer about account type, a financial professional who is dually licensed (i.e., an associated person of a broker-dealer and a supervised person of an investment adviser (regardless of whether the professional works for a dual registrant, affiliated firms, or unaffiliated firms)) should consider all types of accounts offered (i.e., both brokerage accounts and advisory accounts) when determining whether the advice is in the client's best interest. A financial professional who is only a supervised person of an investment adviser (regardless of whether that advisory firm is a dual registrant or affiliated with a broker-dealer) may only recommend an advisory account the adviser offers when the account is in the client's best interest. If a financial professional who is only a supervised person of an

2. Duty to Seek Best Execution

An investment adviser's duty of care includes a duty to seek best execution of a client's transactions where the adviser has the responsibility to select broker-dealers to execute client trades (typically in the case of discretionary accounts).⁴⁵ In meeting this obligation, an adviser must seek to obtain the execution of transactions for each of its clients such that the client's total cost or proceeds in each transaction are the most favorable under the circumstances. An adviser fulfills this duty by seeking to obtain the execution of securities transactions on behalf of a client with the goal of maximizing value for the client under the particular circumstances occurring at the time of the transaction. Maximizing value encompasses more than just minimizing cost. When seeking best execution, an adviser should consider "the full range and quality of a broker's services in placing brokerage including, among other things, the value of research provided as well as execution capability, commission rate, financial responsibility, and responsiveness" to the adviser.⁴⁶ In other words, the "determinative factor" is not the lowest possible commission cost, "but whether the transaction represents the best qualitative execution."⁴⁷ Further, an investment adviser chooses to advise a client to consider a non-advisory account (or to speak with other personnel at a dual registrant or affiliate about a non-advisory account), that advice should be in the best interest of the client. This same framework applies in the case of a prospective client, but any advice or recommendation given to a prospective client would be subject to the antifraud provisions of the federal securities laws. See supra footnote 42 and Reg. BI Adoption, supra footnote 3.

⁴⁵ See Commission Guidance Regarding Client Commission Practices Under Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, Exchange Act Release No. 54165 (July 18, 2006) (stating that investment advisers have "best execution obligations"); Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15 (discussing an adviser's best execution obligations in the context of directed brokerage arrangements and disclosure of soft dollar practices); see also Advisers Act rule 206(3)-2(c) (referring to adviser's duty of best execution of client transactions).

investment adviser should “periodically and systematically” evaluate the execution it is receiving for clients.⁴⁸

3. Duty to Provide Advice and Monitoring over the Course of the Relationship

An investment adviser’s duty of care also encompasses the duty to provide advice and monitoring at a frequency that is in the best interest of the client, taking into account the scope of the agreed relationship.⁴⁹ For example, when the adviser has an ongoing relationship with a client and is compensated with a periodic asset-based fee, the adviser’s duty to provide advice and monitoring will be relatively extensive as is consistent with the nature of the relationship.⁵⁰ Conversely, absent an express agreement regarding the adviser’s monitoring obligation, when the adviser and the client have a relationship of limited duration, such as for the provision of a ⁴⁸ Id. The Advisers Act does not prohibit advisers from using an affiliated broker to execute client trades. However, the adviser’s use of such an affiliate involves a conflict of interest that must be fully and fairly disclosed and the client must provide informed consent to the conflict. See also Interpretation of Section 206(3) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, Investment Advisers Act Release No. 1732 (Jul. 17, 1998) (discussing application of section 206(3) of the Advisers Act to certain principal and agency transactions). Two commenters requested that we prescribe specific obligations related to best execution. Comment Letter of the Healthy Markets Association (Aug. 7, 2018); Comment Letter of ICE Data Services (Aug. 7, 2018). However, prescribing specific requirements of how an adviser might satisfy its best execution obligations is outside of the scope of this Final Interpretation.

⁵⁰ However, an adviser and client may scope the frequency of the adviser’s monitoring (e.g., agreement to monitor quarterly or monthly and as appropriate in between based on market events), provided that there is full and fair disclosure and informed consent. We consider the frequency of monitoring, as well as any other material facts relating to the agreed frequency, such as whether there will also be interim monitoring when there are market events relevant to the client’s portfolio, to be a material fact relating to the advisory relationship about which an adviser must make full and fair disclosure and obtain informed consent as required by its fiduciary duty.

one-time financial plan for a one-time fee, the adviser is unlikely to have a duty to monitor. In other words, in the absence of any agreed limitation or expansion, the scope of the duty to monitor will be indicated by the duration and nature of the agreed advisory arrangement.⁵¹ As a general matter, an adviser's duty to monitor extends to all personalized advice it provides to the client, including, for example, in an ongoing relationship, an evaluation of whether a client's account or program type (for example, a wrap account) continues to be in the client's best interest.⁵²

C. Duty of Loyalty

The duty of loyalty requires that an adviser not subordinate its clients' interests to its own.⁵³ In other words, an investment adviser must not place its own interest ahead of its client's interests.⁵⁴ To meet its duty of loyalty, an adviser must make full and fair disclosure to its clients

⁵¹ See also Laby Villanova Article, supra footnote 49, at 728 (2010) ("If an adviser has agreed to provide continuous supervisory services, the scope of the adviser's fiduciary duty entails a continuous, ongoing duty to supervise the client's account, regardless of whether any trading occurs. This feature of the adviser's duty, even in a non-discretionary account, contrasts sharply with the duty of a broker administering a non-discretionary account, where no duty to monitor is required.") (internal citations omitted).

⁵² Investment advisers also may consider whether written policies and procedures relating to monitoring would be appropriate under Advisers Act rule 206(4)-7, which requires any investment adviser registered or required to be registered under the Advisers Act to adopt and implement written policies and procedures reasonably designed to prevent violation of the Advisers Act and the rules thereunder by the adviser and its supervised persons.

⁵⁴ For example, an adviser cannot favor its own interests over those of a client, whether by favoring its own accounts or by favoring certain client accounts that pay higher fee rates to the adviser over other client accounts. The Commission has brought numerous enforcement actions against advisers that allocated trades to their own accounts and allocated less favorable or unprofitable trades to their clients' accounts. See, e.g., SEC v. Strategic Capital Management, LLC and Michael J. Breton, Litigation Release No. 23867 (June 23, 2017) (partial settlement) (adviser placed trades through a master brokerage account and then allocated profitable trades to adviser's account while placing unprofitable trades into the client accounts in

of all material facts relating to the advisory relationship.⁵⁵ Material facts relating to the advisory relationship include the capacity in which the firm is acting with respect to the advice provided. This will be particularly relevant for firms or individuals that are dually registered as broker-dealers and investment advisers and who serve the same client in both an advisory and a brokerage capacity. Thus, such firms and individuals generally should provide full and fair disclosure about the circumstances in which they intend to act in their brokerage capacity and the circumstances in which they intend to act in their advisory capacity. This disclosure may be accomplished through a variety of means, including, among others, written disclosure at the beginning of a relationship that clearly sets forth when the dual registrant would act in an advisory capacity and how it would provide notification of any changes in capacity.⁵⁶ Similarly, a dual registrant acting in its advisory capacity should disclose any circumstances under which its advice will be limited to a menu of certain products offered through its affiliated broker-dealer or affiliated investment adviser.

violation of fiduciary duty and contrary to disclosures). In the Proposed Interpretation, we stated that the duty of loyalty requires an adviser to “put its client’s interest first.” One commenter suggested that the requirement of an adviser to put its client’s interest “first” is very different from a requirement not to “subordinate” or “subrogate” clients’ interests, and is inconsistent with how the duty of loyalty had been applied in the past. See Comment Letter of the Asset Management Group of the Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association (Aug. 7, 2018) (“SIFMA AMG Letter”). Accordingly, we have revised the description of the duty of loyalty in this Final Interpretation to be more consistent with how we have previously described the duty. See Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15 (“Under the Advisers Act, an adviser is a fiduciary whose duty is to serve the best interests of its clients, which includes an obligation not to subrogate clients’ interests to its own.”) (citing Investment Advisers Act Release 2106, supra footnote 15). In practice, referring to putting a client’s interest first is a plain English formulation commonly used by investment advisers to explain their duty of loyalty in a way that may be more understandable to retail clients.

⁵⁵ See SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2 (“Failure to disclose material facts must be deemed fraud or deceit within its intended meaning.”); Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15 (“as a fiduciary, an adviser has an ongoing obligation to inform its clients of any material information that could affect the advisory relationship”); see also General Instruction 3 to Part 2 of Form ADV (“Under federal and state law, you are a fiduciary and must make full disclosure to your clients of all material facts relating to the advisory relationship.”).

⁵⁶ See also Reg. BI Adoption, supra footnote 3, at 99.

In addition, an adviser must eliminate or at least expose through full and fair disclosure all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser—consciously or unconsciously—to render advice which was not disinterested.⁵⁷ We believe that while full and fair disclosure of all material facts relating to the advisory relationship or of conflicts of interest and a client’s informed consent prevent the presence of those material facts or conflicts themselves from violating the adviser’s fiduciary duty, such disclosure and consent do not themselves satisfy the adviser’s duty to act in the client’s best interest.⁵⁸ To illustrate what ⁵⁷ In the Proposed Interpretation, we stated that an adviser must seek to avoid conflicts of interest with its clients. Proposed Interpretation, supra footnote 6. Some commenters requested clarity on what it means to “seek to avoid” conflicts of interest. See, e.g., Comment Letter of Schulte Roth & Zabel LLP (Aug. 8, 2018); ABA Letter (stating that this wording could be read to require an adviser to first seek to avoid a conflict, before addressing a conflict through disclosure, rather than being able to provide full and fair disclosure of a conflict, and only seek avoidance if the conflict cannot be addressed through disclosure). The Commission first used this phrasing when adopting amendments to the Form ADV Part 2 instructions. See Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15 and General Instruction 3 to Part 2 of Form ADV (“As a fiduciary, you also must seek to avoid conflicts of interest with your clients, and, at a minimum, make full disclosure of all material conflicts of interest between you and your clients that could affect the advisory relationship.”). The release adopting this instruction clarifies the Commission’s intent that it capture the fiduciary duty described in SEC v. Capital Gains and Arleen Hughes. See Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15, at n.4 and accompanying text (citing SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2, and Arleen Hughes, supra footnote 18, as the basis of this language). Both of these cases emphasized that the adviser, as a fiduciary, should seek to avoid conflicts, but at a minimum must make full and fair disclosure of the conflict and obtain the client’s informed consent. See SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2 (“The Advisers Act thus reflects . . . a congressional intent to eliminate, or at least to expose, all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser—consciously or unconsciously—to render advice which was not disinterested.”); Arleen Hughes, supra footnote 18 (“Since loyalty to his trust is the first duty which a fiduciary owes to his principal, it is the general rule that a fiduciary must not put himself into a position where his own interests may come in conflict with those of his principal” but if a fiduciary “chooses to assume a role in which she is motivated by conflicting interests, . . . she may do so if, but only if, she obtains her client’s consent after disclosure . . .”). We believe the Commission’s reference to “seek to avoid” conflicts in the Form ADV Part 2 instructions is consistent with the Final Interpretation’s statement that an adviser “must eliminate or at least expose all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser—consciously or unconsciously—to render advice which was not disinterested” as well as the substantively identical statements in SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2, and Arleen Hughes, supra footnote 18. While an adviser may satisfy its duty of loyalty by making full and fair disclosure of conflicts of interest and obtaining the client’s informed consent, an adviser is prohibited from overreaching or taking unfair advantage of a client’s trust.

⁵⁸ As noted above, an investment adviser’s obligation to act in the best interest of its client is an overarching principle that encompasses both the duty of care and the duty of loyalty. See SEC v. Tambone, supra footnote 23 (stating that Advisers Act section 206 “imposes a fiduciary duty on investment advisers to act at all times in the best interest of the fund . . . and includes an obligation to provide ‘full and fair disclosure of all material facts’”) (emphasis added) (citing SEC v. Capital Gains, supra footnote 2). We describe constitutes full and fair disclosure, we are providing the following guidance on (i) the appropriate level of specificity, including the appropriateness of stating that an adviser “may” have a conflict, and (ii) considerations for disclosure regarding conflicts related to the allocation of investment opportunities among eligible clients.

In order for disclosure to be full and fair, it should be sufficiently specific so that a client is able to understand the material fact or conflict of interest and make an informed decision whether to provide consent.⁵⁹ For example, it would be inadequate to disclose that the adviser has “other clients” without describing how the adviser will manage conflicts between clients if and when they arise, or to disclose that the adviser has “conflicts” without further description.

above in this Final Interpretation how the application of an investment adviser’s fiduciary duty to its client will vary with the scope of the advisory relationship. See supra section II.A.

⁵⁹ Arleen Hughes, supra footnote 18, at 4 and 8 (stating, “[s]ince loyalty to his trust is the first duty which a fiduciary owes to his principal, it is the general rule that a fiduciary must not put himself into a position where his own interests may come in conflict with those of his principal. To prevent any conflict and the possible subordination of this duty to act solely for the benefit of his principal, a fiduciary at common law is forbidden to deal as an adverse party with his principal. An exception is made, however, where the principal gives his informed consent to such dealings,” and adding that, “[r]egistrant has an affirmative obligation to disclose all material facts to her clients in a manner which is clear enough so that a client is fully apprised of the facts and is in a position to give his informed consent.”); see also Hughes v. Securities and Exchange Commission, 174 F.2d 969 (1949) (affirming the SEC decision in Arleen Hughes); General Instruction 3 to Part 2 of Form ADV (stating that an adviser’s disclosure obligation “requires that [the adviser] provide the client with sufficiently specific facts so that the client is able to understand the conflicts of interest [the adviser has] and the business practices in which [the adviser] engage[s], and can give informed consent to such conflicts or practices or reject them”); Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15; Restatement (Third) of Agency §8.06 (“Conduct by an agent that would otherwise constitute a breach of duty as stated in §§ 8.01, 8.02, 8.03, 8.04, and 8.05 [referencing the fiduciary duty] does not constitute a breach of duty if the principal consents to the conduct, provided that (a) in obtaining the principal’s consent, the agent (i) acts in good faith, (ii) discloses all material facts that the agent knows, has reason to know, or should know would reasonably affect the principal’s judgment unless the principal has manifested that such facts are already known by the principal or that the principal does not wish to know them, and (iii) otherwise deals fairly with the principal; and (b) the principal’s consent concerns either a specific act or transaction, or acts or transactions of a specified type that could reasonably be expected to occur in the ordinary course of the agency relationship.”). See infra footnotes 67-70 and accompanying text for a more detailed discussion of informed consent and how it is generally considered on an objective basis and may be inferred.

Similarly, disclosure that an adviser “may” have a particular conflict, without more, is not adequate when the conflict actually exists.⁶⁰ For example, we would consider the use of “may” inappropriate when the conflict exists with respect to some (but not all) types or classes of clients, advice, or transactions without additional disclosure specifying the types or classes of clients, advice, or transactions with respect to which the conflict exists. In addition, the use of “may” would be inappropriate if it simply precedes a list of all possible or potential conflicts regardless of likelihood and obfuscates actual conflicts to the point that a client cannot provide informed consent. On the other hand, the word “may” could be appropriately used to disclose to a client a potential conflict that does not currently exist but might reasonably present itself in the future.⁶¹

Whether the disclosure is full and fair will depend upon, among other things, the nature of the client, the scope of the services, and the material fact or conflict. Full and fair disclosure for an institutional client (including the specificity, level of detail, and explanation of terminology) can differ, in some cases significantly, from full and fair disclosure for a retail client because institutional clients generally have a greater capacity and more resources than ⁶⁰ We have brought enforcement actions in such cases. See, e.g., In the Matter of The Robare Group, Ltd., et al., Investment Advisers Act Release No. 4566 (Nov. 7, 2016) (Commission Opinion) (finding, among other things, that adviser’s disclosure that it may receive a certain type of compensation was inadequate because it did not reveal that the adviser actually had an arrangement pursuant to which it received fees that presented a potential conflict of interest); aff’d in part and rev’d in part on other grounds Robare v. SEC, supra footnote 20; In re Grossman, supra footnote 41 (indicating that “the use of the prospective ‘may’ in [the relevant Form ADV disclosures] is misleading because it suggested the mere possibility that [the broker] would make a referral and/or be paid ‘referral fees’ at a later point, when in fact a commission-sharing arrangement was already in place and generating income”). Cf. Dolphin & Bradbury, Inc. v. SEC, 512 F.3d 634, 640 (D.C. Cir. 2008) (“The Commission noted the critical distinction between disclosing the risk that a future event might occur and disclosing actual knowledge the event will occur.”) (emphasis in original). For Form ADV Part 2 purposes, advisers are instructed that when they have a conflict or engage in a practice with respect to some (but not all) types or classes of clients, advice, or transactions, to indicate as such rather than disclosing that they “may” have the conflict or engage in the practice. General Instruction 2 to Part 2 of Form ADV.

retail clients to analyze and understand complex conflicts and their ramifications.⁶²

Nevertheless, regardless of the nature of the client, the disclosure must be clear and detailed enough for the client to make an informed decision to consent to the conflict of interest or reject it.

When allocating investment opportunities among eligible clients, an adviser may face conflicts of interest either between its own interests and those of a client or among different clients.⁶³ If so, the adviser must eliminate or at least expose through full and fair disclosure the conflicts associated with its allocation policies, including how the adviser will allocate investment opportunities, such that a client can provide informed consent.⁶⁴ When allocating investment opportunities, an adviser is permitted to consider the nature and objectives of the client and the scope of the relationship.⁶⁵ An adviser need not have pro rata allocation policies, or any particular method of allocation, but, as with other conflicts and material facts, the

⁶³ See Restatement (Third) of Agency, § 8.01 General Fiduciary Principle (2006) (“Unless the principal consents, the general fiduciary principle, as elaborated by the more specific duties of loyalty stated in §§ 8.02 to 8.05, also requires that an agent refrain from using the agent’s position or the principal’s property to benefit the agent or a third party.”).

⁶⁴ The Commission has brought numerous enforcement actions alleging that advisers unfairly allocated client trades to preferred clients without making full and fair disclosure. See Staff of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Study on Investment Advisers and Broker-Dealers As Required by Section 913 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Jan. 2011), available at <https://www.sec.gov/news/studies/2011/913studyfinal.pdf>, at 23–24 (citing enforcement actions). This Final Interpretation sets forth the Commission’s views regarding what constitutes full and fair disclosure. See, e.g., supra text accompanying footnote 59; see also Barry Barbash and Jai Massari, The Investment Advisers Act of 1940: Regulation by Accretion, 39 Rutgers Law Journal 627 (2008) (stating that under section 206 of the Advisers Act and traditional notions of fiduciary and agency law, an adviser must not give preferential treatment to some clients or systematically exclude eligible clients from participating in specific opportunities without providing the clients with appropriate disclosure regarding the treatment).

⁶⁵ An adviser and a client may even agree that certain investment opportunities or categories of investment opportunities will not be allocated or offered to a client.

adviser's allocation practices must not prevent it from providing advice that is in the best interest of its clients.⁶⁶

While most commenters agreed that informed consent is a component of the fiduciary duty, a few commenters objected to what they saw as subjectivity in the use of the term "informed" to describe a client's consent to a disclosed conflict.⁶⁷ The fact that disclosure must be full and fair such that a client can provide informed consent does not require advisers to make an affirmative determination that a particular client understood the disclosure and that the client's consent to the conflict of interest was informed. Rather, disclosure should be designed to put a client in a position to be able to understand and provide informed consent to the conflict of interest. A client's informed consent can be either explicit or, depending on the facts and circumstances, implicit.⁶⁸ We believe, however, that it would not be consistent with an adviser's fiduciary duty to infer or accept client consent where the adviser was aware, or reasonably should have been aware, that the client did not understand the nature and import of the conflict.⁶⁹

⁶⁶ In the Proposed Interpretation, we stated that "in allocating investment opportunities among eligible clients, an adviser must treat all clients fairly." Some commenters interpreted this statement to mean that it would be impermissible for an adviser to allocate a particular investment to one eligible client instead of a second eligible client, even when the second client had received full and fair disclosure and provided informed consent to such an investment being allocated to the first client. See, e.g., Ropes & Gray Letter; SIFMA AMG Letter. We have removed that sentence from this Final Interpretation and replaced it with this discussion that clarifies our views regarding allocation of investment opportunities.

⁶⁷ See, e.g., Comment Letter of LPL Financial LLC (Aug. 7, 2018); Ropes & Gray Letter.

⁶⁸ We do not interpret an adviser's fiduciary duty to require that full and fair disclosure or informed consent be achieved in a written advisory contract or otherwise in writing. For example, an adviser could provide a client full and fair disclosure of all material facts relating to the advisory relationship as well as full and fair disclosure of all conflicts of interest which might incline the adviser, consciously or unconsciously, to render advice that was not disinterested, through a combination of Form ADV and other disclosure and the client could implicitly consent by entering into or continuing the investment advisory relationship with the adviser.

⁶⁹ See Arleen Hughes, supra footnote 18 ("Registrant cannot satisfy this duty by executing an agreement with her clients which the record shows some clients do not understand and which, in any event, does not contain the essential facts which she must communicate."). In the Proposed Interpretation, we stated that inferring or accepting client consent to a conflict would not be consistent with the fiduciary duty where "the material facts concerning the conflict could not be fully and fairly disclosed." Some commenters expressed

In some cases, conflicts may be of a nature and extent that it would be difficult to provide disclosure to clients that adequately conveys the material facts or the nature, magnitude, and potential effect of the conflict sufficient for a client to consent to or reject it.⁷⁰ In other cases, disclosure may not be specific enough for a client to understand whether and how the conflict could affect the advice it receives. For retail clients in particular, it may be difficult to provide disclosure regarding complex or extensive conflicts that is sufficiently specific, but also understandable. In all of these cases where an investment adviser cannot fully and fairly disclose a conflict of interest to a client such that the client can provide informed consent, the adviser should either eliminate the conflict or adequately mitigate (i.e., modify practices to reduce) the conflict such that full and fair disclosure and informed consent are possible.

Full and fair disclosure of all material facts relating to the advisory relationship, and all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser—consciously or unconsciously—to render advice which was not disinterested, can help clients and prospective clients in evaluating and selecting investment advisers. Accordingly, we require advisers to deliver to their clients a “brochure,” under Part 2A of Form ADV, which sets out minimum disclosure requirements, including disclosure of certain conflicts.⁷¹ Investment advisers are required to agreement with this statement. See, e.g., CFA Letter (agreeing that “advisers should be precluded from inferring or accepting client consent to a conflict” where the material facts concerning the conflict could not be fully and fairly disclosed). Other commenters expressed doubt that such disclosure could be impossible. See, e.g., Allianz Letter (“[W]e have not encountered a situation in which we could not fully and fairly disclose the material facts, including the nature, extent, magnitude and potential effects of the conflict.”). In response to commenters, we have replaced the general statement about an inability to fully and fairly disclose material facts about the conflict with more specific examples of how advisers can make such full and fair disclosure. See supra text accompanying footnotes 59-66.

⁷⁰ As discussed above, institutional clients generally have a greater capacity and more resources than retail clients to analyze and understand complex conflicts and their ramifications. See supra text accompanying footnote 62.

⁷¹ Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15; General Instruction 3 to Part 2 of Form ADV (“Under federal and state law, you are a fiduciary and must make full disclosure to your clients of all material facts relating to the advisory relationship. As a fiduciary, you also must seek to avoid conflicts of deliver the brochure to a prospective client at or before entering into a contract so that the prospective client can use the information contained in the brochure to decide whether or not to enter into the advisory relationship.⁷² In a concurrent release, we are requiring all investment advisers to deliver to retail investors, at or before the time the adviser enters into an investment advisory agreement, a relationship summary, which would include, among other things, a plain English summary of certain of the firm's conflicts of interest, and would encourage retail investors to inquire about those conflicts.⁷³

III. ECONOMIC CONSIDERATIONS

As noted above, this Final Interpretation is intended to reaffirm, and in some cases clarify, certain aspects of an investment adviser's fiduciary duty under the Advisers Act. The Final Interpretation does not itself create any new legal obligations for advisers. Nonetheless, the Commission recognizes that to the extent an adviser's practices are not consistent with the Final Interpretation provided above, the Final Interpretation could have potential economic effects. We discuss these potential effects below.

interest with your clients, and, at a minimum, make full disclosure of all material conflicts of interest between you and your clients that could affect the advisory relationship. This obligation requires that you provide the client with sufficiently specific facts so that the client is able to understand the conflicts of interest you have and the business practices in which you engage, and can give informed consent to such conflicts or practices or reject them.”). See also Robare v. SEC, supra footnote 20 (“[R]egardless of what Form ADV requires, [investment advisers have] a fiduciary duty to fully and fairly reveal conflicts of interest to their clients.”).

⁷² Investment Advisers Act rule 204-3. See Investment Advisers Act Release 3060, supra footnote 15 (adopting amendments to Form ADV and stating that, “A client may use this disclosure to select his or her own adviser and evaluate the adviser’s business practices and conflicts on an ongoing basis. As a result, the disclosure clients and prospective clients receive is critical to their ability to make an informed decision about whether to engage an adviser and, having engaged the adviser, to manage that relationship.”). To the extent that the information required for inclusion in the brochure does not satisfy an adviser’s disclosure obligation, the adviser “may have to disclose to clients information not specifically required by Part 2 of Form ADV or in more detail than the brochure items might otherwise require” and this disclosure may be made “in [the] brochure or by some other means.” General Instruction 3 to Part 2 of Form ADV.

A. Background

The Commission's interpretation of the standard of conduct for investment advisers under the Advisers Act set forth in this Final Interpretation would affect investment advisers and their associated persons as well as the clients of those investment advisers, and the market for financial advice more broadly.⁷⁴ As of December 31, 2018, there were 13,299 investment advisers registered with the Commission with over $84 trillion in assets under management as well as 17,268 investment advisers registered with states with approximately $334 billion in assets under management and 3,911 investment advisers who submit Form ADV as exempt reporting advisers.⁷⁵ As of December 31, 2018, there are approximately 41 million client accounts advised by SEC-registered investment advisers.⁷⁶

These investment advisers currently incur ongoing costs related to their compliance with their legal and regulatory obligations, including costs related to understanding the standard of conduct. We believe, based on the Commission's experience, that the interpretations set forth in this Final Interpretation are generally consistent with investment advisers' current understanding of their fiduciary duty under the Advisers Act.⁷⁷ However, we recognize that as the scope of the ⁷⁴ See Relationship Summary Proposal, supra footnote 5, at section IV.A (discussing the market for financial advice generally).

⁷⁵ Data on investment advisers is based on staff analysis of Form ADV, particularly Item 5.F.(2)(c) of Part 1A for Regulatory Assets under Management. Because this Final Interpretation interprets an adviser's fiduciary duty under section 206 of the Advisers Act, this interpretation would be applicable to both SEC- and state-registered investment advisers, as well as other investment advisers that are exempt from registration or subject to a prohibition on registration under the Advisers Act.

⁷⁶ Item 5.F.(2)(f) of Part 1A of Form ADV.

⁷⁷ See supra section II.B.i. For example, some commenters asked that we clarify from the Proposed Interpretation that an adviser and its client can tailor the scope of the relationship to which the fiduciary duty applies, through contract. See, e.g., MMI Letter; Financial Engines Letter; ABA Letter. See supra footnotes 67–69 and accompanying text, including clarifications addressing these commenters' concerns. More generally, some commenters requested clarifications from the Proposed Interpretation, and we are issuing this Final Interpretation to address those issues raised by commenters, as discussed in more detail above.

adviser-client relationship varies and in many cases can be broad, there may be certain current circumstances where investment advisers interpret their fiduciary duty to require something less, and other current circumstances where they interpret their fiduciary duty to require something more, than this Final Interpretation. We lack data to identify which investment advisers currently understand their fiduciary duty to require something different from the standard of conduct articulated in this Final Interpretation. Based on our experience over decades of interacting with the investment management industry as its primary regulator, however, we generally believe that it is not a significant portion of the market.

One commenter suggested that the Proposed Interpretation's discussion of how an adviser fulfills its fiduciary duty appeared to be based in the context of having as a client an individual investor, and not a fund.⁷⁸ This commenter indicated its concerns about the ability of a fund manager to infer consent from a client that is a fund, and that issues regarding inferring consent from funds could significantly increase compliance costs for venture capital funds.⁷⁹ Our discussion above in this Final Interpretation includes clarifications to address comments, and expressly acknowledges that while all investment advisers owe each of their clients a fiduciary duty, the specific application of the investment adviser's fiduciary duty must be viewed in the context of the agreed-upon scope of the adviser-client relationship.⁸⁰ This Final Interpretation, as compared to the Proposed Interpretation, includes significantly more examples of the application of the fiduciary duty to institutional clients, and clarifies the Commission's interpretation of what constitutes full and fair disclosure and informed consent, acknowledging a number of comments on this topic.⁸¹ We believe that these clarifications will help address some of this commenter's concerns with respect to increased compliance costs for venture capital funds, in part by clarifying how the fiduciary duty can apply to institutional clients. We continue to believe, based on our experience with investment advisers to different types of clients, that advisers understand their fiduciary duty to be generally consistent with the standards of this Final Interpretation.

⁷⁸ See Comment Letter of National Venture Capital Association (Aug. 7, 2018) ("NVCA Letter").

⁷⁹ Id.

⁸⁰ See supra section II.A.

B. Potential Economic Effects

Based on our experience as the long-standing regulator of the investment adviser industry, the Commission's interpretation of the fiduciary duty under section 206 of the Advisers Act described in this Final Interpretation generally reaffirms the current practices of investment advisers. Therefore, we expect there to be no significant economic effects from this Final Interpretation. However, as with other circumstances in which the Commission speaks to the legal obligations of regulated entities, we acknowledge that affected firms, including those whose practices are consistent with the Commission's interpretation, incur costs to evaluate the Commission's interpretation and assess its applicability to them. Further, to the extent certain investment advisers currently understand the practices necessary to comply with their fiduciary duty to be different from those discussed in this Final Interpretation, there could be some economic effects, which we discuss below.

Clients of investment advisers

The typical relationship between an investment adviser and a client is a principal-agent relationship, where the principal (the client) hires an agent (the investment adviser) to perform

some service (investment advisory services) on the principal's behalf.⁸² Because investors and investment advisers are likely to have different preferences and goals, the investment adviser relationship is subject to agency problems, including those resulting from conflicts: that is, investment advisers may take actions that increase their well-being at the expense of investors, thereby imposing agency costs on investors.⁸³ A fiduciary duty, such as the duty investment advisers owe their clients, can mitigate these agency problems and reduce agency costs by deterring investment advisers from taking actions that expose them to legal liability.⁸⁴

To the extent this Final Interpretation causes a change in behavior of those investment advisers, if any, who currently interpret their fiduciary duty to require something different from this Final Interpretation, we expect a potential reduction in agency problems and, consequently, a reduction of agency costs to the client.⁸⁵ For example, an adviser that, as part of its duty of loyalty, fully and fairly discloses⁸⁶ a conflict of interest and receives informed consent from its client with respect to the conflict may reduce agency costs by increasing the client's awareness of the conflict and improving the client's ability to monitor the adviser with respect to this conflict. Alternatively, the client may choose to not consent given the information the adviser

⁸² See, e.g., James A. Brickley, Clifford W. Smith, Jr. & Jerold L. Zimmerman, Managerial Economics and Organizational Architecture (2004), at 265 ("An agency relationship consists of an agreement under which one party, the principal, engages another party, the agent, to perform some service on the principal's behalf."); see also Michael C. Jensen & William H. Meckling, Theory of the Firm: Managerial Behavior, Agency Costs and Ownership Structure, 3 Journal of Financial Economics 305-360 (1976) ("Jensen and Meckling").

⁸⁵ To the extent that this Final Interpretation clarifies the fiduciary duty for investment advisers, one commenter suggested it may then clarify what clients expect of their investment advisers. See Cambridge Letter (stating that "greater clarity on all aspects of an investment adviser's fiduciary duty will improve the ability to craft such policies and procedures, as well as support the elimination of confusion for retail clients and investment professionals").

discloses about a conflict of interest if the perceived risk associated with the conflict is too significant, and instead try to renegotiate the contract with the adviser or look for an alternative adviser or other financial professional. In addition, the obligation to fully and fairly disclose a current conflict may cause the adviser to take other actions, for example eliminating or adequately mitigating (i.e., modifying practices to reduce) that conflict rather than taking the risk that the client will not provide informed consent or will look for an alternative adviser or other financial professional. The extent to which agency costs would be reduced by such a disclosure is difficult to assess given that we are unable to ascertain the total number of investment advisers that currently interpret their fiduciary duty to require something different from the Commission's interpretation,⁸⁷ and consequently we are not able to estimate the agency costs such advisers currently impose on investors. In addition, we believe that there may be potential benefits for clients of those investment advisers, if any, to the extent this Final Interpretation is effective at strengthening investment advisers' understanding of their obligations to their clients. Further, to the extent that this Final Interpretation enhances the understanding of any investment advisers of their duty of care, it may potentially raise the quality of investment advice and also lead to increased compliance with the duty to monitor, for example whether advice about an account or program type remains in the client's best interest, thereby increasing the likelihood that the advice fits with a client's objectives.

In addition, to the extent that this Final Interpretation causes some investment advisers to properly identify circumstances in which conflicts may be of a nature and extent that it would be difficult to provide disclosure to clients that adequately conveys the material facts or nature, magnitude, and potential effect of the conflict sufficient for clients to consent to it or reject it, or in which the disclosure may not be specific enough for clients to understand whether and how the conflict could affect the advice they receive, this Final Interpretation may lead those investment advisers to take additional steps to improve their disclosures or to determine whether adequately mitigating (i.e., modifying practices to reduce) the conflict may be appropriate such that full and fair disclosure and informed consent are possible. This Final Interpretation may also cause some investment advisers to conclude in some circumstances that they cannot fully and fairly disclose a conflict of interest to a client such that the client can provide informed consent. We would expect that these advisers would either eliminate the conflict or adequately mitigate (i.e., modify practices to reduce) the conflict such that full and fair disclosure and informed consent would be possible. Thus, to the extent this Final Interpretation would cause investment advisers to better understand their obligations and therefore to modify their business practices in ways that (i) reduce the likelihood that conflicts and other agency costs will cause an adviser to place its interests ahead of the interests of the client or (ii) help those advisers to provide full and fair disclosure, it would be expected to ameliorate the agency conflict between investment advisers and their clients. In turn, this may improve the quality of advice that the clients receive and therefore produce higher overall returns for clients and increase the efficiency of portfolio allocation. However, as discussed above, we would generally expect these effects to be minimal because we believe that the interpretations we are setting forth in this Final Interpretation are generally consistent with investment advisers' current understanding of their fiduciary duty under the Advisers Act. Finally, this Final Interpretation would also benefit clients of investment advisers to the extent it assists the Commission in its oversight of investment advisers' compliance with their regulatory obligations.

⁸⁷ One commenter did not agree that the discussion of fiduciary obligations in the Proposed Interpretation applied to advisers to funds as well as advisers to retail investors. See NVCA Letter. As discussed above, this Final Interpretation has clarified the discussion to address this commenter's concerns and acknowledges that the application of the fiduciary duty of an adviser to a retail client would be different from the specific application of the fiduciary duty of an adviser to a registered investment company or private fund.

Investment advisers and the market for investment advice

In general, we expect this Final Interpretation to affirm investment advisers' understanding of the fiduciary duty they owe their clients under the Advisers Act, reduce uncertainty for advisers, and facilitate their compliance. Further, by addressing in one release certain aspects of the fiduciary duty that an investment adviser owes to its clients under the Advisers Act, this Final Interpretation could reduce investment advisers' costs associated with comprehensively assessing their compliance obligations. We acknowledge that, as with other circumstances in which the Commission speaks to the legal obligations of regulated entities, affected firms, including those whose practices are consistent with the Commission's interpretation, incur costs to evaluate the Commission's interpretation and assess its applicability to them. Moreover, as discussed above, there may be certain investment advisers who currently understand their fiduciary duty to require something different from the fiduciary duty described in this Final Interpretation. Those investment advisers would experience an increase in their compliance costs as they change their systems, processes, disclosures, and behavior, and train their supervised persons, to align with this Final Interpretation. However, this increase in costs would be mitigated by potential benefits in efficiency for investment advisers that are able to understand aspects of their fiduciary duty by reference to a single Commission release that reaffirms—and in some cases clarifies—certain aspects of the fiduciary duty.⁸⁸ In addition, and as discussed above, in the case of an investment adviser that believed it owed its clients a lower standard of conduct, there will be client benefits from the ensuing adaptation of a higher standard of conduct and related change in policies and procedures.

Moreover, to the extent any investment advisers that understood their fiduciary duty to require something different from the fiduciary duty described in this Final Interpretation change their behavior to align with this Final Interpretation, there could also be some economic effects on the market for investment advice. For example, any improved compliance may not only reduce agency costs in current investment advisory relationships and increase the value of those relationships to current clients, it may also increase trust in the market for investment advice among all investors, which may result in more investors seeking advice from investment advisers. This may, in turn, benefit investors by improving the efficiency of their portfolio allocation. To the extent it is costly or difficult, at least in the short term, to expand the supply of investment advisory services to meet an increase in demand, any such new demand for investment advisory services could put some upward price pressure on fees. At the same time, however, if any such new demand increases the overall profitability of investment advisory services, then we expect it would encourage entry by new investment advisers—or hiring of new representatives by current investment advisers—such that competition would increase over time. Indeed, the recent growth in the investment adviser segment of the market, both in terms of number of firms and number of representatives,⁸⁹ may suggest that the costs of expanding the supply of investment advisory services are currently relatively low.

Additionally, we acknowledge that to the extent certain investment advisers recognize, as a result of this Final Interpretation, that their fiduciary duty is stricter than the fiduciary duty as they currently interpret it, it could potentially affect competition. Specifically, this Final

Interpretation of certain aspects of the standard of conduct for investment advisers may result in additional compliance costs for investment advisers seeking to meet their fiduciary duty. This increase in compliance costs, in turn, may discourage competition for client segments that generate lower revenues, such as clients with relatively low levels of financial assets, which could reduce the supply of investment advisory services and raise fees for these client segments. However, the investment advisers who already are complying with the understanding of their fiduciary duty reflected in this Final Interpretation, and who may therefore currently have a comparative cost disadvantage, could find it more profitable to compete for the clients of those investment advisers who would face higher compliance costs as a result of this Final Interpretation, which would mitigate negative effects on the supply of investment advisory services. Further, as noted above, there has been a recent growth trend in the supply of investment advisory services, which is likely to mitigate any potential negative supply effects from this Final Interpretation.⁹⁰

One commenter discussed that, in its view, any statement in the Proposed Interpretation that certain circumstances may require the elimination of material conflicts, rather than full and fair disclosure or the mitigation of such conflicts, could lead to an effect on the market and costs to advisers, if such a requirement would cause advisers who had not shared that interpretation to change their business models or product offerings or the ways in which they interact with clients.⁹¹ We disagree that this Final Interpretation includes a requirement to eliminate conflicts of interest. As discussed in more detail above, elimination of a conflict is one method of addressing that conflict; when appropriate advisers may also address the conflict by providing full and fair disclosure such that a client can provide informed consent to the conflict.⁹² Further, we believe that any potential costs or market effects resulting from investment advisers addressing conflicts of interest may be decreased by the flexibility advisers have to meet their federal fiduciary duty in the context of the specific scope of services that they provide to their clients, as discussed in this Final Interpretation.

⁹⁰ Beyond having an effect on competition in the market for investment adviser services, it is possible that this Final Interpretation could affect competition between investment advisers and other providers of financial advice, such as broker-dealers, banks, and insurance companies. This may be the case if certain investors base their choice between an investment adviser and another provider of financial advice, at least in part, on their perception of the standards of conduct each owes to their customers. To the extent that this Final Interpretation increases investors' trust in investment advisers' overall compliance with their standard of conduct, certain of these investors may become more willing to hire an investment adviser rather than one of their non-investment adviser competitors. As a result, investment advisers as a group may become more competitive compared to that of other types of providers of financial advice. On the other hand, if this Final Interpretation raises costs for investment advisers, they could become less competitive with other financial advice providers.

The commenter also drew particular attention to the question of whether the Commission's discussion of the fiduciary duty in the Proposed Interpretation applied to advisers to institutional clients as well as those to retail clients. The same commenter indicated that failing to accommodate the application of the concepts in the Proposed Interpretation to sophisticated clients could risk changing the marketplace or limiting investment opportunities for sophisticated clients, increasing compliance burdens for advisers to sophisticated clients, or chilling innovation. As explained above, this Final Interpretation, as compared to the Proposed Interpretation, discusses in more detail the ability of investment advisers and different types of clients to shape the scope of the relationship to which the fiduciary duty applies.⁹³ In particular, this Final Interpretation acknowledges that while advisers owe each of their clients a fiduciary duty, the specific obligations of, for example, an adviser providing comprehensive, discretionary advice in an ongoing relationship with a retail client will be significantly different from the ⁹¹ See Dechert Letter.

⁹² See supra section II.C.

⁹³ See supra footnotes 78-81 and accompanying text.

obligations of an adviser to an institutional client, such as a registered investment company or private fund, where the contract defines the scope of the adviser's services and limitations on its authority with substantial specificity.⁹⁴

Finally, to the extent this Final Interpretation causes some investment advisers to reassess their compliance with their duty of loyalty, it could lead to a reduction in the expected profitability of advice relating to particular investments for which compliance costs would increase following the reassessment.⁹⁵ As a result, the number of investment advisers willing to advise a client to make these investments may be reduced. A decline in the supply of investment adviser advice regarding these types of investments could affect efficiency for investors; it could reduce the efficiency of portfolio allocation for those investors who might otherwise benefit from investment adviser advice regarding these types of investments and are no longer able to receive such advice. At the same time, if providing full and fair disclosure and appropriate monitoring for highly complex products (e.g., those with a complex payout structure, such as those that include variable or contingent payments or payments to multiple parties) results in these products becoming less profitable for investment advisers, investment advisers may be discouraged from supplying advice regarding such products. However, investors may benefit from (1) no longer receiving inadequate disclosure or monitoring for such products, (2) potentially receiving advice regarding other, less complex or expensive products that may be more efficient for the investor, and (3) only receiving recommendations for highly complex or high cost products for which an ⁹⁴ See supra section II.A.

MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“Highland”) and Highland CLO Funding, Ltd.
 (“HCLOF”) hereby file their joint objection (the “Objection”) to final approval of the disclosure statement [Doc. No. 442] (as amended, the “Disclosure Statement”) and to confirmation of the First Amended Joint Plan for Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis

Capital Management GP, LLC [Doc. No. 441] (as amended, the “Plan”),¹ and respectfully state as follows:²

I.

“If at first you don’t succeed, try, try again.” –William Edward Hickson

1. In proposing Plans A, B and C, it would appear that the Chapter 11 Trustee has taken this old adage to heart. Although originally penned as a motivator to would-be teachers, in the context of these bankruptcy proceedings, this approach by the Chapter 11 Trustee has proven to be a colossal waste of time and resources at a cost to the estates that eclipses not only the value of the estates’ assets, but the very pre-petition claims the Chapter 11 Trustee is purportedly responsible for paying. The result of this case appears to be nothing more than functionally administratively insolvent estates with mountains of administrative claims continuing to accrue daily.

2. By their literal interpretation, the Chapter 11 Trustee’s Plans, supported by unequivocal admissions in his pleadings, establish that post-petition, he has intentionally breached pre-petition contractual obligations of the Debtors to create a purported $100 million post-petition claim against the estates for an entity that had no claims against the estates when the Orders for Relief were entered. By his own account, he has rendered the estates administratively insolvent. Having thus admitted to putting the estates into this predicament—which under almost every other measure would be considered a flagrant breach of fiduciary duty—he is now championing to “fix” the situation by either (i) taking non-estate property from the purported (involuntary) claimant and selling it along with some executory contracts of the estates that are otherwise valueless, then distributing the ill-gotten proceeds after carving off a substantial fee for himself, or (ii) re-writing multiple securities contracts to which the estates are not a party in order to not only insulate the estates from the consequences of his self-proclaimed intentional breach, but to radically alter the bargained-for rights of third party market participants in five collateralized loan obligation funds with over $2 billion at stake, none of which ever belonged to the Debtors.

² HCLOF has filed no proof of claim in these cases, seeks no monetary relief from the Debtors, and has moved to amend its pending adversary proceeding claim to reflect that it no longer seeks the equitable claims that it sought previously (such claims are moot in any event). Nonetheless, HCLOF objects on the basis that the proposed plans propose either to take its property or alter its contractual and legal rights. HCLOF asserts no creditor standing in any of the objections set forth herein, and makes these objections as a party in interest given the substantial harm the plans propose to impose on it.

3. What the Chapter 11 Trustee is proposing under each of Plans A, B and C violates some of the most basic tenets of Title 11 and ignores the very confines of this Court’s jurisdiction. These Plans are patently unconfirmable with an unconscionable premise: that a Chapter 11 Trustee should be handsomely rewarded for an intentional post-petition breach of the estates pre-petition contractual obligations. Such a conclusion is beyond the pale no matter how allegedly noble the cause. These cases should be either dismissed or, at most, converted back to Chapter 7 liquidation.

II.

RELEVANT BACKGROUND

4. On January 30, 2018, Joshua N. Terry (“Terry”) filed involuntary petitions for relief under Chapter 7, Title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”) against Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (“Acis GP,” and with Acis LP, the “Debtors”). A Chapter 7 Trustee was thereafter appointed.

5. On May 4, 2018, the Chapter 7 Trustee filed an Expedited Motion to Convert Cases to Chapter 11 [Doc. No. 171] (the “Motion to Convert”). Also on May 4, 2018, Terry filed an Emergency Motion for an Order Appointing Trustee for the Chapter 11 Estates of Acis

Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC Pursuant to Bankruptcy Code Section 1104(a) [Doc. No. 173] (the “Motion to Appoint Chapter 11 Trustee”).

6. On May 11, 2018, after a hearing on the matter, the Court entered orders granting the Motion to Convert [Doc. No. 205] and the Motion to Appoint Chapter 11 Trustee [Doc. No. 206]. Thereafter, the United States Trustee appointed Robin Phelan as Chapter 11 Trustee (the “Chapter 11 Trustee”).³

7. On July 5, 2018, the Chapter 11 Trustee filed the initial Plan [Doc. No. 383], which proposed three (3) alternatives – Plans A, B and C. In summary, Plan A of the Chapter 11 Trustee’s Plan proposes to transfer HCLOF’s Equity Notes, along with the portfolio management agreements (the “PMAs”) to which Acis LP is a counter-party, to a third party “plan funder,” which is Oaktree. Through this transaction, the Chapter 11 Trustee claims that all creditors will be satisfied in full. Alternatively, the Chapter 11 Trustee has proposed Plans B and C, which are effectively identical in their treatment of creditors and call for Acis LP to retain the PMAs and pay out creditors from future cash flow streams therefrom, as well as potential recoveries from estates’ causes of action. Both Plans B and C require radical modification to of the CLO Indentures, ostensibly to ensure the future income stream to the estates.

8. On July 13, 2018, the Chapter 11 Trustee filed (i) the Disclosure Statement [Doc. No. 405]; (ii) the First Modification to the Joint Plan for Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Doc. No. 406]; and (iii) the Motion for Entry of Order (A) Conditionally Approving Disclosure Statement; (B) Scheduling Combined Hearing on Final Approval of Disclosure Statement and Confirmation of Plan, and Setting Related Deadlines; (C)

³ Mr. Phelan was initially appointed on May 11, 2018 as the Chapter 11 Trustee of Acis LP and was appointed on May 16, 2018 as the Chapter 11 Trustee of Acis GP.

Approving Forms for Voting and Notice; and (D) Granting Related Relief [Doc. No. 407] (the “Motion for Conditional Approval”).

9. On July 24, 2018, Highland and HCLOF filed respective objections to the Motion for Conditional Approval, [Doc. No. 431] and [Doc. No. 432]. On July 28, 2018, Highland filed a supplement to such objection [Doc. No. 440]. In each objection, Highland and HCLOF reserved rights to object to the final approval of the Disclosure Statement.

10. On July 29, 2018, the Chapter 11 Trustee amended the Plan and Disclosure Statement following an expedited hearing on the Motion for Conditional Approval held earlier that day. Thereafter, on July 30, 2018, the Court entered the Order (I) Conditionally Approving Disclosure Statement, (II) Scheduling Combined Hearing on Final Approval of Disclosure Statement and Confirmation of Plan, and Setting Related Deadlines, (III) Approving Forms for Voting and Notice, and (IV) Approving Related Matters [Doc. No. 446] (the “Conditional Approval Order”), conditionally approving the Disclosure Statement, setting an August 21, 2018 combined hearing for final approval of the Disclosure Statement and confirmation of the Plan, and setting related deadlines, including a compressed and expedited discovery schedule (the “Discovery Schedule”).

11. The Conditional Approval Order required the Chapter 11 Trustee to file a “Limited Issues Brief” on or before 4:00 p.m. on August 10, 2018, addressing: (a) issues related to section 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code in connection with the proposed transfer of HCLOF’s subordinated notes under the Plan A alternative, and (b) issues related to sections 365 and 1123(a)(5)(F) of the Bankruptcy Code in connection with the proposed modification of the existing Indentures under the proposed Plan B and Plan C (collectively, the “Limited Issues”).

Also as per the Conditional Approval Order, the deadline for parties to respond to the Limited Issues Brief is 4:00 p.m. on August 16, 2018.

12. Per the Discovery Schedule, the Chapter 11 Trustee filed the Limited Issues Brief on August 10, 2018 [Doc. No. 493]. Highland and/or HCLOF intend to timely respond to the Limited Issues Brief per the Discovery Schedule. As such, while certain Limited Issues are mentioned herein, Highland and HCLOF reserve all rights on those issues for subsequent objection. Per the Discovery Schedule, this joint objection is to cover matters other than the Limited Issues; provided, however, discovery is actually occurring after the deadline to file this objection. Thus, Highland and HCLOF reserve their rights to supplement these objections.

III. OBJECTION

13. In order to confirm the Plan, the Chapter 11 Trustee bears the burden of establishing the various provisions of Bankruptcy Code section 1129 by a preponderance of the evidence. See In re Couture Hotel Corp., 536 B.R. 712, 732 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2015). The Plan is deficient on almost every applicable subsection of 1129 and, as a result, the Plan is unconfirmable as a matter of law.

A. The Bankruptcy Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction to Confirm the Plan

14. The Bankruptcy Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over this proceeding and, therefore, proceeding with confirmation of any plan will be void ab initio. This Court should have dismissed the involuntary petitions that were filed by Joshua Terry in bad faith, and because this Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over essentially a two-party dispute subject to arbitration. See Brief of Appellant Neutra (Case No. 3:18-cv-01056 (N.D. Tex.)), [Doc. No. 11].

15. Even assuming this Court has subject matter over this proceeding, the Plans violate the strictures of that jurisdiction in at least two critical and insurmountable ways:

- a. Plan A is premised on the taking of non-estate property without its owners consent; and
- b. Plans B and C are premised on radically altering non-estate executory contracts.

16. The Court's lack of subject matter jurisdiction is so fundamental, that frankly the Court need look no further. The Chapter 11 Trustee has presented the Court with patently unconfirmable Plans. Section 1129(a)(1) and (a)(2) require, respectively, that the plan and the plan proponent, comply with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code. The Chapter 11 Trustee's Plan A, however, asks this Court to exceed its constitutional and statutory authority to infringe upon the rights of a non-creditor and effect a taking of non-estate property (the "Equity Notes") via an equitable subrogation theory that is completely contrary to the law, and convert that non-estate property into "property of the estate," so that he can then sell it to a third party (Oaktree). This Court cannot approve this scheme because it has no jurisdiction to do so. Confirming Plan B or C likewise would require the Court to exceed its authority because both plans are premised on the nonconsensual alteration of non-executory contracts. Worse yet, the amendments will be to the detriment of third parties who are not creditors of these estates and who are not remotely implicated in these proceedings. This Court simply has no such jurisdiction.

17. It is fundamental that bankruptcy courts do not have subject matter jurisdiction over property that does not belong to a debtor's estate. See TMT Procurement Corp. v. Vantage Drilling Co. (In re TMT Procurement Corp.), 764 F.3d 512, 525 (5th Cir. 2014) (bankruptcy court did not have in rem jurisdiction over assets that were not "property of the estate"); see also Scott v. Bierman, 429 F. App'x. 225, 231 (4th Cir. 2011) ("[A] bankruptcy court's jurisdiction does not extend to property not part of a debtor's estate."); see also NovaCare Holdings, Inc. v. Mariner Post-Acute Network, Inc. (In re Mariner Post-Acute Network, Inc.), 267 B.R. 46, 59

(Bankr. D. Del. 2001) (same); In re Funneman, 155 B.R. 197, 199-200 (Bankr. S.D. Ill. 1993) (partnership property was not property of the debtor-partner's estate and, therefore, outside the court's subject matter jurisdiction).

18. These jurisdictional principles exist to protect the very type of non-debtor property interests that are at issue in this case. And they apply even when the property would benefit a debtor's estate. See, e.g., Vineyard v. McKenzie (In re Quality Holstein Leasing), 752 F.2d 1009, 1013 (5th Cir. 1985) (noting the limitations placed on the trustee's strong arm powers by section 541, and stating that "Congress did not mean to authorize a bankruptcy estate to benefit from property that the debtor did not own.").

19. Before the Court can order a transfer of the Equity Notes to Oaktree, it would necessarily have to find that they constitute "property of the estate." If the Court cannot conclude that the Equity Notes are property of the estate, then it will lack jurisdiction to order their transfer by any means. See, e.g., In re Murchison, 54 B.R. 721, 725 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1985). (finding that the court was without jurisdiction to approve the sale of property that was not property of the estate: "Because the criterion of § 541(a)(1) has not been satisfied, § 363(b)(1) cannot apply.").

20. Section 541 of the Bankruptcy Code defines "property of the estate" as, in relevant part, (i) "all legal or equitable interests of the debtor in property as of the commence of the case," (ii) "[a]ny interest in property that the trustee recovers under section 329(b), 363(n), 543, 550, 553, or 723 of this title," and (iii) "[a]ny interest in property that the estate acquires after the commencement of the case." 11 U.S.C. §§ 541(a)(1), (a)(3), (a)(7).

⁴ Bankruptcy courts have been held to be without jurisdiction to order the sale of non-estate assets, even where the sale was entirely consensual. See, e.g., First Nat'l Bank v. Community Trust Bank, No. 05-1610, 2006 WL 724882, at *4 (W.D. La. Mar. 21, 2006) ("Since the property was not part of the bankruptcy estate, the Bankruptcy Court had no authority or jurisdiction to order the consensual sale and, therefore, the sale was void").

21. Neither the Chapter 11 Trustee nor his proposed transferee, Oaktree, dispute that the Equity Notes are the property of HCLOF. See July 6, 2018 Hrg. Tr. at 71:19-25; 119:11-18. Nor has the Chapter 11 Trustee obtained an interest in the Equity Notes via any of the Bankruptcy Code sections enumerated in section 541(a)(3). Thus, for the Equity Notes to be “property of the estate,” they would necessarily have to be “property that the estate[s] acquire after the commencement of the case” under section 541(a)(7).⁵

22. Upon first blush, that would seem to require only that the Chapter 11 Trustee prevail upon his equitable subrogation theory, thereby converting the Equity Notes into “property of the estate.” However, even if the Chapter 11 Trustee successfully can obtain ownership of the Equity Notes, such property acquired post-petition is not “property of the estate” under section 541(a)(7).

23. Under controlling Fifth Circuit law, section 541(a)(7) only applies to “property interest that are themselves traceable to ‘property of the estate’ or generated in the normal course of the debtor’s business.” In re TMT Procurement Corp., 764 F.3d at 524-25 (“As we previously recognized in In re McLain, ‘Congress enacted § 541(a)(7) to clarify its intention that § 541 be an all-embracing definition and to ensure that property interests created with or by property of the estate are themselves property of the estate’) (citing In re McLain, 516 F.3d 301 (5th Cir. 2008)) (emphasis added); see also In re Cent. Med. Ctr., 122 B.R. 568 (Bankr. E.D. Mo. 1990) (“Congress did not intend Section 541 ‘to enlarge a debtor’s rights against others beyond those existing at the commencement of the case..”) (citing In re N.S. Garrott & Sons, 772 F.2d 462, 466 (8th Cir. 1985)). That is not the case with the Equity Notes, which are not traceable to any property of the estate, but under the Chapter 11 Trustee’s (unsupportable) theory, are property of the estate as a result of a subrogation right that purportedly vested with the estates post-petition.

24. The property at issue in In re TMT Procurement was certain corporate shares that were pledged by a non-debtor third party into a court-ordered escrow that served as the collateral for the debtors’ DIP loan. In re TMT Procurement Corp., 764 F.3d at 524. The shares never belonged to the debtors at issue. Id. at 524-25. The corporation whose shares had been pledged appealed the orders of the district court (which had withdrawn the reference from the bankruptcy court), arguing that the district court did not have jurisdiction to issue orders with respect to the shares, which were not “property of the estate.” Id. at 522-23.

25. The Fifth Circuit, vacating the district court’s order, rejected the debtors’ argument that the shares were property of the estate under section 541(a)(7). In doing so, the Fifth Circuit made clear that: “[T]he Vantage Shares are not ‘property of the estate’ under § 541(a)(7) because they were not created with or by property of the estate, they were not acquired in the estate’s normal course of business, and they are not traceable to or arise out of any pre-petition interest included in the bankruptcy estate.” Id. at 525 (rejecting also the argument that the tracing limitation did not apply to corporate debtors in chapter 11 bankruptcies).

26. The Plan does not satisfy sections 1129(a)(1) and (a)(2) because it seeks to impermissibly expand the scope of estate property and requires the Court to exceed its jurisdiction. The Equity Notes were not “property of the estate” at the commencement of these cases and the Chapter 11 Trustee has not obtained the Equity Notes through one of the enumerated sections in Section 541(a)(3). Nor are the Equity Notes traceable to any property of the estate. Therefore, the Plan cannot be confirmed. See In re Cent. Med. Ctr., 122 B.R. at 573 (holding that the plan failed to satisfy section 1129(a) “[b]ecause the Plan violates Section 541(a) due to its improper expansion of the estate’s interest” in certain funds in which it only had a reversionary interest at the commencement of the case; the plan “baldly seeks to divest the bondholders of property which is rightfully theirs.”).

B. Sections 1129(a)(1), (3) – The Plan Violates the Bankruptcy Code and Violates Other Applicable Law

27. Bankruptcy Code section 1129(a)(1) requires that a plan comply “with the applicable provisions of this title,” and section 1129(a)(3) states that a plan cannot be proposed “by any means forbidden by law.” As to section 1129(a)(1), the Plan violates well-accepted tenets of bankruptcy law because the Chapter 11 Trustee seeks to (i) take possession of non-estate property and (ii) fundamentally alter non-debtor executory contracts. These are included among the Limited Issues and will be set forth in the response to the Limited Issues Brief.

28. As to section 1129(a)(3), despite the Chapter 11 Trustee’s obfuscations regarding “transfers” and other similar self-serving characterizations, the practical reality is that the Plan A transaction effects a sale of the Equity Notes to Oaktree. The Equity Notes are undoubtedly securities. See Reves v. Ernst & Young, 494 U.S. 56, 65 (1990); Arco Capital Corps. Ltd. v. Deutsche Bank AG, 949 F. Supp. 2d 532, 542-43 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (finding sale of CLO notes to be a sale of a security under Morrison v. Nat’l Australian Bank Ltd., 561 U.S. 247 (2010)). Any sale of securities must comport with the requirements of federal securities laws, including the Securities Act of 1933 (the “’33 Act”).⁶

⁶ Moreover, none of the Indentures or other relevant documents permit the Chapter 11 Trustee, on behalf of Acis, or otherwise, to market HCLOF’s Equity Notes for sale. The Chapter 11 Trustee cannot sell the Equity Notes in violation of the terms of the Indentures, and seek at the same time to retain the benefits of the Indentures.

29. Section 77e of the '33 Act makes it unlawful “to offer to sell or offer to buy . . . any security, unless a registration statement has been filed as to such security.” 15 U.S.C. § 77e(c).⁷ The Chapter 11 Trustee has not filed a registration statement covering his proposed sale of the Equity Notes.

30. Section 1145(a)(1) and (a)(2) do not absolve the Chapter 11 Trustee from compliance with these requirements because Oaktree is not receiving the Equity Notes on account of claims against the estates. See also SEC v. Universal Express, Inc., 475 F. Supp. 2d 412, 425 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (“[T]he section 1145(a) exemption is available only when the offerees are receiving the securities, at least in part, in exchange for claims against or interests in the debtor which they hold.” (internal citation omitted)).

31. The mechanism set forth in the Plan for the transfer of the Equity Notes makes plain that Oaktree is not the initial transferee (or subrogee). Instead, the initial transferee are the bankruptcy estates. As described, the estates will then transfer the notes to Oaktree. Because Oaktree will not be receiving the Equity Notes in exchange for claims or interests that Oaktree has against the Debtors, the section 1145(a) exemption cannot, and does not, apply.

32. Bankruptcy Code section 1145 provides a limited exemption when the Chapter 11 Trustee sells a security “of an issuer other than the debtor or an affiliate” 11 U.S.C. § 1145(a)(3). The exemption allows trustees to raise cash for an estate while protecting purchasers by requiring that adequate information about the securities is available. This “portfolio securities” exemption should be strictly construed because public policy strongly supports the registration of securities. See Quinn & Co. v. S.E.C., 452 F.2d 943, 946 (10th Cir. 1971); 8

Collier on Bankr. ¶ 1145.02 (16th ed. 2018). This exemption requires that (1) the debtor own the security on the date the bankruptcy petition was filed; (2) any exempt securities are not securities of the debtor's affiliates; (3) the issuer of the securities is in full compliance with registration and disclosure laws; and (4) the volume of the securities sold be limited to less than 4% of shares outstanding. 11 U.S.C. § 1145(a)(3).

33. The Chapter 11 Trustee's Plan A transaction clearly does not qualify for this exemption. First, neither the Chapter 11 Trustee nor the Debtors owned the Equity Notes on the date the bankruptcy petition was filed, nor do they own them now. Second, the proposed sale would be far in excess of the 4% threshold permitted by the exemption. Because the section 1145 exemptions do not apply, the Chapter 11 Trustee will be in violation of the '33 Act.

34. In addition to violating the '33 Act, the Plan violates the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 (the "IAA"). It is clear that the Chapter 11 Trustee owes fiduciary duties to HCLOF and its investors. In agreeing to manage the CLO investments, Acis LP represented to the CLOs that it is "registered as an investment adviser" under the IAA and agreed to perform its portfolio management services consistent with the IAA. See, e.g., 2013-1 PMA § 17(b)(i). The IAA imposes a fiduciary duty on Acis LP to act for the benefit of the CLO and its investors, including Equity Noteholders like HCLOF. See Transamerica Mortg. Advisors v. Lewis, 444 U.S. 11, 36 (1979) ("Congress intended to impose enforceable fiduciary obligations" in passing the Act); 15 U.S.C. § 80b-6.⁸ The scope of Acis LP's (and thus the Chapter 11 Trustee's) fiduciary duties is broad. The Chapter 11 Trustee's obligations include a duty to refrain from conduct that directly harms the CLOs, as well as the more general duty of undivided loyalty. See Bullmore v. Banc of

⁸ Acis LP also owes fiduciary duties as an investment advisor under New York's common law. See Bullmore v. Ernst & Young Cayman Islands, 846 N.Y.S.2d 145, 148 (N.Y. App. Div. 2007) ("Professionals such as investment advisors, who owe fiduciary duties to their clients, 'may be subject to tort liability for failure to exercise reasonable care, irrespective of their contractual duties'" (citations omitted)).

Am. Sec. LLC, 485 F. Supp. 2d 464, 471 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (applying New York law). Each of the plans proposed by the Chapter 11 Trustee rest upon a flagrant violation of Acis LP's fiduciary duties: Plan A proposes to sell HCLOF's property without its consent and Plan B and Plan C propose to impermissibly modify the Indentures to strip HCLOF and the other noteholders of their right to call a redemption. These issues will be more thoroughly addressed in HCLOF and Highland's response to the Chapter 11 Trustee's Limited Issues Brief.

35. Moreover, the Chapter 11 Trustee cannot disclaim the duties he owes to the CLOs and the investors under the contracts and securities laws, including the IAA. In one analogous case, In re New Center Hospital, 200 B.R. 592 (E.D. Mich. 1996), the chapter 11 trustee sought to escape the duties of the debtor-hospital as the administrator of an employee benefit plan governed by ERISA. The chapter 11 trustee argued that if he were to administer the plan, he would be required to act solely in the interest of the ERISA plan beneficiaries which would be in conflict with his duties to the bankruptcy estates; therefore, he could not serve as an ERISA fiduciary and a bankruptcy estate fiduciary at the same time. Id. The district court rejected this argument and overturned the decision of the bankruptcy court, concluding that, "[t]he Bankruptcy Trustee assumes the position of the debtor as to that debtor's many obligations. Courts have held that statutory obligations that bind the debtor will subsequently bind the bankruptcy estate." Id. (internal citations omitted). Likewise, the Chapter 11 Trustee is bound to perform the obligations and duties of Acis LP under relevant contract and applicable law, including the IAA. Because the Chapter 11 Trustee has put forth a Plan that violates such duties, he cannot meet the section 1129(a)(3) standard that the Plan is not "forbidden by law."

C. Section 1129(a)(3) – The Plan Was Not Proposed in Good Faith

36. Bankruptcy Code section 1129(a)(3) further provides that a plan must be proposed in good faith. The Chapter 11 Trustee, as proponent of the Plan, bears the burden of demonstrating that it was filed in good faith. In re Barnes, 309 B.R. 888, 892 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003). A good faith plan “must fairly achieve a result consistent with the [Bankruptcy] Code.” Id. (quoting In re Block Shim Dev. Co. – Irving, 939 F.2d 289, 292 (5th Cir. 1991)). Good faith itself is “evaluated in light of the totality of the circumstances surrounding establishment of [the] plan, mindful of the purposes underlying the Bankruptcy Code.” In re Village at Camp Bowie I, L.P., 710 F.3d 239, 247 (5th Cir. 2013). The ultimate goal of the analysis is to determine the “subjective motive” of a plan proponent. In re Texas Star Refreshments, LLC, 494 B.R. 684, 694 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2013).

37. The record demonstrates there was virtually no negotiation of the economic terms of the Oaktree proposal, and in particular there was no effort by the Chapter 11 Trustee to secure the highest possible price for the Equity Notes.⁹ The purported consideration for the PMAs was clearly based not on any actual metric of value for those contract rights, but on an amount necessary to pay Josh Terry’s claim. Certainly as to the Equity Notes, this was not a negotiation between a willing seller and a willing buyer – the seller was not even present. It is instead a scheme, concocted in bad faith, to take property from one party and provide a windfall to other parties.

38. Moreover, improper motives have tainted these bankruptcy cases from the beginning. Joshua Terry initiated these proceedings on the eve of a state court hearing to consider the very relief he then requested from this Court. From the very beginning, Terry has made clear his motivation for initiating the involuntary bankruptcy: to prevent Acis LP from meeting its contractual obligation to effectuate the reset requested by the equity—so that the Debtors could continue to earn management fees they are not entitled to.¹⁰

39. The Chapter 11 Trustee has adopted Terry’s cause.

40. At the end of the day, these bankruptcy cases and the Plan amount to nothing but a free option play by Terry, the Chapter 11 Trustee, and Oaktree to monetize PMAs with less than nominal value, at the expense of Highland (who is effectively funding the administrative expenses of these cases on account of the substantial management fees being withheld from it) and HCLOF (who is being denied its contractual rights with non-debtor parties and stripped of its own property against its will to fund that payment). The Chapter 11 Trustee has nothing to lose from this strategy – he can turn an asset with little or no value into a big pay day for Terry and himself. Oaktree similarly has nothing to lose – if it doesn’t end up getting the Equity Notes, it walks away with all its expenses paid and a $2.5 million break-up fee for its time.

41. In these circumstances, the Court should not make a good faith finding.

D. Section 1129(a)(5) – The Plan Does Not Properly Disclose or Address Insider Issues

42. Bankruptcy Code section 1129(a)(5)(A)(i) requires a plan proponent to disclose “The identity and affiliations of any individual proposed to serve, after confirmation of the plan, as a director, officer, or voting trustee of the debtor, an affiliate of the debtor participating in a joint plan with the debtor, or a successor to the debtor under the plan.” Under both Plan B and Plan C, Terry is slated to receive 100% of the equity in the Reorganized Debtor (as well as, inexplicably, any residual assets of the Acis Trust upon payment in full of all creditors). Terry therefore clearly comes within the definition of individuals described in section 1129(a)(5)(A)(i).

¹⁰ Among the things acknowledged by Terry at the involuntary trial in March 2018 was the fact that he “had no issues with the rest or refinance transaction. [Rather,] the issue was that these collateral-management agreements were transferred for no consideration to Acis.” March 21, 2018 Hrg. Tr. At 132:16-19. Note, however, that fees would not continue to be payable under the PMAs following a reset in any circumstance. See also Id. at 27:22-28:1: “Q: And you knew there was an extreme likelihood that the [reset] transaction was not going forward as a result of the bankruptcy filing, correct? MR. TERRY: Yes, that was our goal on filing the involuntary petitions.”

While Terry's identity is disclosed in Plans B and C, his affiliations are not. Specifically, the Chapter 11 Trustee makes no effort to describe Terry's relationship and affiliations with other parties in interest in this case including (without limitation) Oaktree, Brigade Capital Management, L.P., and Cortland Capital Markets Services LLC. Furthermore, the Chapter 11 Trustee does not disclose or otherwise describe the post-petition affiliation between Terry and the Chapter 11 Trustee himself. Discovery in this matter has revealed, and evidence at the confirmation hearing will further demonstrate, that Terry has essentially acted as the co-trustee in this case. This includes: taking it upon himself to market the Debtors' assets, introducing the Chapter 11 Trustee to Oaktree, participating in most substantive communications with Oaktree, and participating in the formulation of a Plan that (under Plans B and C) hands control of the Debtors over to him. On this record, it is clear that Terry's affiliations have not been disclosed, in violation of section 1129(a)(5)(A)(i).

43. While Terry's undisclosed affiliations is a significant issue in and of itself, the relationship between Terry and the Chapter 11 Trustee raises yet another, troubling issue. The facts of this case lead inexorably to the conclusion that Terry is an insider of the Plan proponent (i.e., the Chapter 11 Trustee). The term "insider" is defined in Bankruptcy Code section 101(31) to "include" parties who have certain officer, director, or ownership interests in a debtor. However, the concept of a non-statutory insider has been recognized by many courts, including the Supreme Court. See U.S. Bank N.A. v. Village at Lakeside, LLC, 138 S. Ct. 960 (2018). The Fifth Circuit has identified the following factors to consider when determining whether a party is non-statutory insider: (1) the closeness of the relationship between the party and the debtor; and (2) whether the transactions between the party and the debtor were conducted at arms-length. Browning Interests v. Allison (In re Holloway), 955 F.2d 1008, 1011 (5th Cir. 1992).

Importantly, cases recognize that control over the debtor is not a requirement for determining non-statutory insider status. See, e.g., In re The Village at Lakeridge, LLC, 814 F.3d 993, 1001 (9th Cir. 2016); Anstine v. Carl Zeiss Meditec AG (In re U.S. Med., Inc.), 531 F.3d 1272, 1277 n.5 (10th Cir. 2008).

44. The ultimate point of analyzing whether any party is an insider is to determine whether such party is using “their privileged position to disadvantage non-insider creditors.” See In re South Beach Secs., Inc., 376 B.R. 881, 888 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2007). Insider status is also critical for determining whether a party’s desire to obtain, or maintain, control over a debtor is motivating the party. See In re Rexford Props., LLC, 557 B.R. 788, 799 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2016) (noting that insiders seeking to retain ownership of the reorganized debtor were “influenced by totally different considerations from those motivating the other creditors.”) (quoting In re Featherworks Corp., 25 B.R. 634, 640 (1st Cir. BAP 1982)).

45. In this case, the Chapter 11 Trustee is the proponent of the Plan. Plan proponent insiders should be scrutinized because they, like a debtor insider, may be using a plan process to benefit their “privileged position.” For example, in In re Allegheny Int’l, Inc., 118 B.R. 282 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 1982), the court found that a non-debtor plan proponent (Japonica Partners, L.P.) was considered an insider because Japonica during the case had access to “voluminous and thorough” information available only to insiders. Moreover, the court noted that while Japonica “did not have actual control or legal decision making power [over the debtor] . . . [Japonica] attempted to influence, in not very subtle ways, decisions made by the debtor.” Id. at 298.

46. Terry’s actions fit perfectly into such a non-statutory insider analysis. A review of the Plan makes plain Terry’s favorable treatment. His claim is separately classified, the claim is treated the same as an entirely secured claim would be, despite the fact that Terry did not even alleged his claim was fully secured, he is being permitted to use $1 million to acquire Acis LP's equity, despite the fact that the claim on file is less than $1 million, and the Chapter 11 Trustee has made no indication that Terry's secured claim may be avoided, despite the fact that the garnishment took place well within the 90-day pre-petition preference period.

47. In addition, while Terry is not in formal "control" of the Chapter 11 Trustee, Terry had access to voluminous insider information during the pendency of this case and he clearly influenced decisions made by the Chapter 11 Trustee. Nothing about the relationship between Terry and the Chapter 11 Trustee suggests that they acted at arms-length. Moreover, Terry used his close relationship to further his non-creditor motivation to put into place provisions that will allow him to take sole control over the Reorganized Debtor. Thus, Terry meets every single element for establishing that he is a non-statutory insider of the Plan proponent in this case. Moreover, any attempt by the Chapter 11 Trustee to distinguish the facts and cases on the basis that the Chapter 11 Trustee is not the same entity as the Debtors is specious. Once again, the Chapter 11 Trustee is the Plan proponent in this case. If a Chapter 11 trustee were able to hide behind an "I am not the debtor" argument, then it would follow that parties could engage in all manner of inside dealing and wrongful acts with a trustee with impunity. That makes no sense. The non-statutory insider analysis is designed to identify whether a party has a close relationship that allows the party to influence the process to further non-creditor goals (i.e., control). Terry meets that test with respect to the Plan proponent in this case. And, as discussed below, the fact that Terry is a non-statutory insider means the Chapter 11 Trustee cannot cram down the Plan.

E. Sections 1129(a)(7) and 1129(b) – The Plan Is Not In the Best Interest of Creditors and Is Not Fair And Equitable

48. Bankruptcy Code sections 1129(a)(7) and 1129(b) require that a plan be in the best interest of creditors and otherwise fair and equitable. First and foremost, Plans A, B, and C are premised on actions that are not supported by the law. How could it ever be in the best interest of creditors for a plan proponent to act outside the law? The Plan is a legal fallacy and, even if confirmed, will be the subject of years of litigation and ever-increasing administrative expense claims. That is not in the creditors' best interests.

49. Also, included in a best interest of creditors analysis is a determination that creditors who have not accepted the plan will receive no less under the Plan than they would in a hypothetical Chapter 7 liquidation. In re Briscoe Enters., Ltd. II, 994 F.2d 1160, 1167 (5th Cir. 1993). This requires a valuation analysis comparing what the creditor would receive if the property were sold today versus the value such creditor would receive as a creditor in a Chapter 7 case. Id.

50. The Chapter 11 Trustee cannot meet his burden on this valuation issue with respect to HCLOF.¹¹ It is undisputable that HCLOF was not a creditor as of the Petition Date. That is, the basis for the Chapter 11 Trustee asserting that HCLOF is a creditor is the equitable relief sought in an adversary proceeding brought by HCLOF against the Chapter 11 Trustee after the Petition Date. In a hypothetical Chapter 7 case, there would simply be an orderly liquidation and therefore no need to twist the law of equitable relief and subrogation to support a plan process and HCLOF would keep its subordinated notes. As such, any liquidation analysis by the Chapter 11 Trustee is a non-sequitur from the beginning because it would be based on the facially incorrect assumption that HCLOF was a creditor on the Petition Date. Moreover, even if that flaw is simply ignored (and there is no reason to do so), the valuation numbers do not add up. The Plan proposes to pay HCLOF amounts based entirely on a May 2018 letter sent by Highland. Evidence has shown in this case that circumstances have changed dramatically since May 2018, and further, that HCLOF values its Equity Notes much higher than what is being proposed under the Plan. The Chapter 11 Trustee bears the burden of rebutting that valuation evidence and, based on the record of this case, he will not be able to meet such burden. In fact, the Chapter 11 Trustee has not even substantively included HCLOF in its analysis purporting to satisfy section 1129(a)(7)¹² and he has advanced no expert witness to address the valuation issues necessary to do so at the confirmation hearing. Therefore, the Chapter 11 Trustee cannot satisfy the required test under section 1129(a)(7).

F. Sections 1129(a)(8), (10) and 1129(b) – The Plan Does Not Meet the Requirements for Cram Down

51. Bankruptcy Code sections 1129(a)(8) requires that each impaired class vote in favor of a plan. Bankruptcy Code section 1129(a)(10) permits a plan proponent to cram down a plan on non-voting classes, as long as one class of impaired creditors votes in favor of the plan. Insider votes are not counted for the purposes of consent under 1129(a)(10). Section 1129(b), in turn, requires in a cram down plan that the plan not unfairly discriminate and is fair and equitable to the non-voting creditors. Based on the record of this case, it is assumed that Class 3 (the Terry Secured Claim) will be the only class with the claim amount and numerosity to be deemed (according to the Chapter 11 Trustee) a consenting class. Therefore, in order to meet the cram down confirmation requirements, the Chapter 11 Trustee has the burden of showing that: (i) Terry is impaired; (ii) Terry is not an insider; and (iii) cramming the Plan down solely on ¹² The Chapter 11 Trustee's liquidation analysis is attached as Exhibit 2-D to the Disclosure Statement. The amount of the Class 2 HCLOF claim is listed as "TBD." Id.

Terry's vote does not unfairly discriminate and is fair and equitable to other creditors. The Chapter 11 Trustee cannot meet such a burden.

52. The Fifth Circuit interprets the concept of impairment broadly to include any alternation of a creditor's rights. In re Village at Camp Bowie I, L.P., 710 F.3d at 245. However, a broad interpretation does not mean that the concept of impairment does not exist. The policy reason for requiring an impaired class to accept the plan under a cram down is to ensure that at least one group of creditors that is "hurt . . . nonetheless favors the plan." In re One Times Square Assocs. Ltd. P'ship, 165 B.R. 773, 776-77 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (emphasis added).

53. Here, no viable argument can be made that Terry is impaired under Plan A because Plan A proposes to pay Terry in full with interest. The interest element, of course, compensates Terry for any delay in receiving what he alleges he is owed. Paying a creditor in full with interest is the very definition of non-impairment. Using a lone creditor, let alone an insider such as Terry, should not be sufficient to fulfill the section 1129(a)(10) requirement. This is a textbook case of using artificial impairment to generate an impaired accepting class.

54. Moreover, even if Terry were considered impaired under Plan A, Terry's votes should not be counted under any of the plans (A, B, or C) because Terry is a non-statutory insider. The basis for deeming Terry a non-statutory insider is set forth above. Because of his status as such, the Chapter 11 Trustee is prohibited by the plain language of section 1129(a)(10) from relying on Terry's votes to support a plan.

55. The final requirement for a cram down plan is that it is fair and equitable and does not unfairly discriminate. Whether a plan is proposed in good faith is a critical element of this determination. See In re Village at Camp Bowie I, L.P., 710 F.3d at 247 (citing In re Sandy Ridge Dev. Corp., 881 F.2d 1346 (5th Cir. 1989)). Because, as set forth above, the Chapter 11

Trustee is unable to establish that the Plan was proposed in good faith, he likewise will be unable to establish that he meets the cram down standard. The Plan also unfairly discriminates on a number of different bases. Moreover, the Chapter 11 Trustee provides no basis for classifying Highland's claims separately under the Plan, other than to gerrymander the classes.

G. Section 1129(a)(10) – The Plan's Claim Classifications are Improper

56. A further requirement under section 1129(a)(10) and related case law is that claims be properly classified under a plan. See, e.g., In re Greystone III Joint Venture, 995 F.2d 1274, 1279 (5th Cir. 1991) (prohibiting the gerrymandering of classes to create a consenting impaired class). Claims that are "substantially similar" must be classified together. Terry's claim treatment under the Plan is a blatant example of gerrymandering. Terry has alleged a partial secured claim based on pre-petition garnishment of certain funds. However, the garnishment occurred within the 90-day preference period and is per se avoidable. As such, Terry is nothing more than a general unsecured creditor in this case. His claim should be classified alongside other general unsecured creditors in Class 4.

57. Highland is a general unsecured creditor in the case, but its claim has been separately classified from other general unsecured creditors. Similarly, HCLOF is a Class 2 claimant under Plan A, but is effectively a Class 5B claimant under Plan B and Plan C. Presumably, the Chapter 11 Trustee bases such separate classification and disparate treatment on his allegation that Highland and/or HCLOF are liable for a fraudulent transfer. However, that matter remains subject to an on-going adversary proceeding. In other words, the Chapter 11 Trustee has simply made an allegation and is yet to prove his case. Permitting separate classification based on unproven allegations would seem an invitation for plan proponents to engage in all manner of mischief in order to craft around the requirement that substantially similar claims be classified together.¹³

H. Section 1129(a)(11) – The Plan is Not Feasible

58. Bankruptcy Code section 1129(a)(11) has been interpreted to require a finding that a plan is economically feasible. This requires the Chapter 11 Trustee to demonstrate that the plan has a “reasonable assurance of commercial viability.” In re Briscoe Enters., Ltd. II, 994 F.2d at 1166. Moreover, the Chapter 11 Trustee must “present proof through reasonable projections that there will be sufficient cash flow to funder the [Plan].” See In re Couture Hotel Corp., 536 B.R. 712, 737 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2015).

59. On the record before the Court, the Chapter 11 Trustee has failed to demonstrate sufficient funds to meet all the obligations set forth in the Plan. That includes the very substantial administrative expense burden that appears to have surpassed the total claims alleged by the Chapter 11 Trustee to be payable in this case.

I. The Plan Cannot Effect an Assumption and Assignment of the PMAs Without Consent.

60. The Plan A transaction cannot be confirmed because it proposes to assume and assign the PMAs to Oaktree (see Plan § 2.17(c)) in violation of section 365(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code and without the requisite consent. See 11 U.S.C. § 365(c)(1) (trustee “may not assume or assign any executory contract . . . if applicable law excuses a party, other than the debtor, to such contract . . . from accepting performance from or rendering performance to an entity other than the debtor . . . and such party does not consent to such assumption or assignment”); In re Cedar Chem. Corp., 294 B.R. 224, 232 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2003) (“a contract otherwise unassignable under § 365(c)(1) can be assumed and assigned if the non-debtor party consents”). The IAA and New York state law provide the relevant “applicable law” prohibiting assignment and excusing HCLOF from accepting performance from anyone other than Acis and/or Highland.

¹³ HCLOF and Highland object to the Chapter 11 Trustee’s apparent attempt to litigate the fraudulent transfer claims currently pending in the adversary proceeding as part of the plan confirmation process. As set forth in their separately-filed joint motion to strike the expert report of Kevin Haggard of Miller Buckfire, any such attempts are procedurally improper and inconsistent with the parties’ understanding and agreed-upon schedule. Highland and HCLOF have a right under the Bankruptcy Code and applicable rules to litigate the fraudulent transfer claims in a proceeding subject to the heightened procedural protections available in an adversary proceeding—not in the context of a harried and accelerated confirmation process (a process of the Trustee’s own making). See In re Mansaray-Ruffin, 530 F.3d 230, 242 (3d Cir. 2008) (“[W]here the Rules require an adversary proceeding—which entails a fundamentally different, and heightened, level of procedural protections—to resolve a particular issue, a creditor has the due process right not to have that issue without one.”). The Court should not condone this type of “litigation by ambush.” See In re Vidal, No. 12-11758 BLS, 2013 WL 441605, at *5 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 5, 2013) (applying Mansaray-Ruffin to avoid “lien-stripping by ambush”).

61. The IAA prohibits the assumption and assignment of the PMAs to Oaktree without, among other things, the Equity Noteholders’ consent. Section 205(a)(2) of the IAA prohibits investment advisers (i.e., Acis LP) from entering into an investment advisory contract with a client (here, the CLOs) that “fails to provide, in substance, that no assignment of such contract shall be made by the investment adviser without the consent of the other party by the contract.” 15 U.S.C. § 80b-5(a)(2). Section 202(a)(1) of the IAA defines “assignment” generally to include “any direct or indirect transfer . . . of an investment advisory contract” by an adviser. 15 U.S.C. § 80b-2(a)(1) (emphasis added).

62. Section 14 of the PMAs (titled “Delegations/Assignments”) provides the provisions intended to satisfy section 205(a)(2) of the IAA. Those sections, in relevant part, prohibit Acis from assigning its responsibilities under the PMAs without the written consent of each relevant CLO, at least a majority of the Equity Notes of each CLO, at least a majority of the Controlling Class (as defined in the indentures), and satisfaction of the Global Rating Agency Condition. See, e.g., 2013-1 PMA, § 14(a). Acis cannot transfer, either directly or indirectly, its responsibilities under the PMAs without first satisfying the requisite conditions, including obtaining the written consent of a majority of the Equity Noteholders of each CLO (which the Chapter 11 Trustee has not obtained).

63. The CWCapital Cobalt VR Ltd. v. CWCapital Invs. LLC, No. 17 Civ. 9463, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90174 (S.D.N.Y. May 23, 2018) case does not mandate a different result. First, the language the Trustee quotes is from a decades-old SEC no-action letter. Id. at *12 (quoting SEC No-Action Letter, Am. Century Cos., 1997 WL 1879138, at *5 (Dec. 23, 1997)). SEC no-action letters are only binding with respect to the party requesting guidance, have no precedential value unless the SEC agrees to allow a party to rely on them, and the SEC is free to change their interpretation at any time. See SEC, Fast Answers, available at <https://www.sec.gov/fast-answers/answersnoactionhtm.html>. Second, CWCapital did not decide whether the IAA separately requires client consent. 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90174, at *12-13. Third, a reported case from a court in this District recently found to be well-pleaded a cause of action for “assigning the benefits of [an] agreement to provide investment advisory services to others” based on the IAA. Douglass v. Beakley, 900 F. Supp. 2d 736, 748 (N.D. Tex. 2012).

64. The proposed assumption and assignment undermines the public policy reasons for section 205(a)(2) of the IAA. The Chapter 11 Trustee’s transfer of portfolio management duties to Oaktree thus violates section 205(a)(2) of the IAA, and in turn, violates section 365(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Chapter 11 Trustee and this Court cannot ignore the dictates of the IAA. Cf. In re Adelphia Commc’ns Corp., 359 B.R. 65, 78-79 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007) (local ordinances provided “applicable law” that prohibited assignment).

65. The PMAs are also a personal services contract that cannot be assigned under New York law without consent. See Wien & Malkin LLP v. Helmsley-Spear, Inc., 6 N.Y.3d 471, 482 (N.Y. 2006) (hotel management contract held below to be personal services contract; “personal services contracts generally may not be assigned absent the principal's consent”) (citing 9 Corbin, Contracts § 865 [interim ed.]; 3 Farnsworth, Contracts §§ 11.4, 11.10 [3d ed]); Marriott Int’l, Inc. v. Eden Roc, LLP, 104 A.D.3d 583, 584 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep’t 2013) (“The parties’ detailed management agreement places full discretion with plaintiffs to manage virtually every aspect of the hotel. Such an agreement, in which a party has discretion to execute tasks that cannot be objectively measured, is a classic example of a personal services contract that may not be enforced by injunction”); see also 6A N.Y. Jur., Assignments § 11 (“[T]he principle that all ordinary business contracts are assignable is subject to the exception that executory contracts for personal services or those involving a relationship of personal confidence are not assignable by one party unless the other party consents or waives the right to object. Thus, as a general rule, an employment contract for the performance of personal duties or services is not assignable by the employer so as to vest in the assignee the right to the labor of someone who never agreed to such employment. In fact, generally, no executory contract for personal services can be assigned by either party.”).

66. Under New York law, personal service contracts are generally those that depend on the skill or reputation of the performing party. See In re Schick, 235 B.R. 318, 323 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1999) (“Faced with a state law restricting assignment . . . a court must inquire into its rationale and uphold the restriction under section 365(c) if the identity of the contracting party is material to the agreement”). As one bankruptcy court has stated with respect to New York law on the issue:

It is well settled that when an executory contract is of such a nature as to be based upon personal services or skills, or upon personal trust or confidence, the debtor-in-possession or trustee is unable to assume or assign the rights of the bankrupt in such contract. . . . It is patently unfair in such cases to require a non-debtor third party to accept performance from anyone other than the original contract vendee, unless the contract clearly provides for the right to assign to another contract vendee.

In re Grove Rich Realty Corp., 200 B.R. 502, 510 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 1996); see also Donald Rubin, Inc. v. Schwartz, 559 N.Y.S. 2d 307, 310 (N.Y. App. Div. 1990) (describing a consulting agreement as being “in the nature of a personal services contract”); Carbo Indus., Inc. v. Coastal Ref & Mktg., Inc., 154 F. App’x 218, 220 (2d Cir. 2005) (“this case does not fall within the limited exception developed for ‘personal services contracts’—e.g., consulting contracts.”) (citing Donald Rubin, 559 N.Y.S. 2d at 310) (emphasis added).

67. As has been previously explained, HCLOF and its investors invested in reliance on the skill and expertise of Highland to manage the CLOs. In this case, a witness put on by the Chapter 11 Trustee – Zach Alpern of Stifel, Niocolas – testified to the fact investors pick sub-advisors based on the fact that different advisors “have different styles and make different creditor choices.”¹⁴ Mr. Alpern further testified that “equity holders make an informed decision when they make their investment and their opinion of the advisor is one of the considerations that they may make at the time of their investment, and it’s a consideration that they probably take into account whether they hold or sell that investment.”¹⁵

68. Replacing Acis/Highland with Oaktree/Brigade frustrates the investment objective of the parties, denies them the benefit of their bargain, and undermines and violates the IAA as well as black-letter New York law relating to personal service contracts. The assumption and assignment of the PMAs cannot be approved.

J. The Disclosure Statement Should Not be Finally Approved

69. As to the Disclosure Statement, Highland and HCLOF renew their objections to its final approval based on the fact that it describes a patently unconfirmable Plan. See In re Quigley Co., 377 B.R. 110, 115-16 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007); In re Arnold, 471 B.R. 578, 586 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2002).

IV.
RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

70. Nothing herein shall be construed as an admission of, or concession to, any fact contained in the Disclosure Statement or the Plan, and Highland and HCLOF reserve all rights to contest and rebut any and all factual allegations at the Confirmation Hearing. As previously mentioned herein, because discovery is ongoing per the Discovery Schedule, Highland and HCLOF reserve their rights to amend these Objections.

WHEREFORE, Highland and HCLOF respectfully request entry of an order (i) denying confirmation of the Plan; (ii) denying final approval of the Disclosure Statement; and (iii) granting such other and further relief to which Highland and HCLOF are entitled.

Dear Counsel:

The following is the court's ruling on the request of the Chapter 11 Trustee ("Acis Trustee") of Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively, the "Debtors") to confirm the First Amended Joint Plan for the Debtors (the "Plan"), as modified, which contains therein alternatives Plan A, Plan B, and Plan C.

The court will deny confirmation of Plans A, B, and C. Below is some of the court's reasoning.

Plans B and C

First, Plans B and C are unconfirmable because they contemplate the amendment of the various CLO Indentures to which Acis is not a party. Specifically, Section 3.24 (for Plan B) and Section 4.24 (for Plan C) each provide as follows:

"Amendment of Indentures. The Indentures shall be amended pursuant to section 1123(a)(5)(F) of the Bankruptcy Code to provide that the Acis CLOs cannot be called for redemption until the later of (a) the date on which all Allowed Claims against the Debtors have been paid in full, or (b) three (3) years after the Effective Date. In the event that the Acis CLOs are reset, any new indenture with respect to a reset CLO shall provide the reorganized Acis will continue as the portfolio manager and that the reset CLO cannot be called for redemption until the later of (y) the date on which all Allowed Claims against the Debtors have been paid in full, or (z) three (3) years after the Effective Date."

The court recognizes that section 1123(a)(5)(F) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a Chapter 11 plan may provide for adequate means for the plan's implementation, such as cancellation or modification of any indenture or similar instrument. However, the court concludes that section 1123(a)(5)(F) applies only to an indenture on which the debtor is a party—namely the issuer. While the court understands that oftentimes multiple, intertwined agreements are sometimes read together and treated in many respects as one integrated document, and while the court recognizes that, in this case, the CLO Indentures and CLO PMAs (the latter of which Acis is party to) are very interrelated, the court does not believe that this gives Acis the right to amend the Indentures without every single party thereto otherwise agreeing. For this simple reason, the current Plans B and C will not be confirmed.

Plan A

Next, with regard to Plan A, the issues are much more complicated. But the court finds Plan A unconfirmable because—while HCLOF has repeatedly asked the Bankruptcy Court for relief, and has also made certain demands upon the CLO Issuers, the Indenture Trustee and the Acis Trustee with regard to optional redemptions—HCLOF is not the holder of a claim against Acis, as defined in Section 101(5) of the Bankruptcy Code, to which the doctrine of equitable subrogation can be applied.

Plan A, distilled to its essence, is premised upon: (1) treating HCLOF as an entity with a “claim” against Acis, pursuant to the Bankruptcy Code’s definition in section 101(5)(B), that can be provided for in an Acis plan as an unsecured claim (Class 2); (2) monetizing or liquidating that claim—by calculating the amount HCLOF would realize if HCLOF received exactly what it has demanded from the CLO Issuers, the Indenture Trustee, and the Acis Trustee; (3) paying the monetized/liquidated claim of HCLOF in cash in full on the Effective Date of the Plan, with cash that the Acis Trustee would receive from Plan funder Oaktree; (4) after payment of HCLOF on its liquidated/monetized claim, the Acis Trustee would be entitled to step into the shoes of HCLOF, and be the new holder of HCLOF’s Sub Notes, via the court’s application of the common law doctrine of equitable subrogation to the Acis Trustee—it is argued that this would be equitable, since the Acis Trustee would essentially be paying the CLO Issuers’ (a debtor’s) obligations on the Sub Notes to HCLOF (a creditor) and, thus, should be able to step into that creditor’s shoes to avert HCLOF’s double recovery; and (5) the Acis Trustee, after acquiring the Sub Notes through equitable subrogation, would convey those Sub Notes to Oaktree, the plan funder.

HCLOF, Highland Capital Management (“Highland”), and the CLO Issuers object to this use of equitable subrogation—essentially arguing that, no matter what one calls it, this is forcing a non-debtor party to sell its property that is not property of the estate. The court does not find this to be an easy analysis at all. To be sure, this is a novel proposed application of the equitable subrogation doctrine. To be sure, the Acis Trustee’s proposal, at first blush—and even after a second or third turn—looks a little like an effort to force a sale of non-debtor property. This would be a novel application of the equitable subrogation doctrine—which, admittedly, has grown from a somewhat narrow to a much broader doctrine over time, with the historical purpose always being to serve the interests of fairness and justice. It is worth noting that, initially, courts in New York attempted to limit the scope of equitable subrogation to apply only to persons standing directly in the place of a surety. Then, as courts in other states expanded the concept of equitable subrogation, so did the courts of New York, eventually expanding the concept to cover third party guarantors. It was further expanded to parties who pay off a mortgage and in the case of refinancing mortgagees. The doctrine essentially went from a narrow remedy only available to sureties, to a broad doctrine available to almost any party regardless of his legal interest.

But the court believes there are at least a couple of reasons the doctrine should not be applied here. First, the court does not believe HCLOF can be construed to have a “claim” against Acis, pursuant to section 101(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code.

The evidence (Exh. 38) was that HCLOF made statements in correspondence dated May 4, 2018, from HCLOF to U.S. Bank, the indenture trustee for all five Acis CLOs, arguing that Acis, as portfolio manager under the CLO-PMAs, was breaching its duties, and stating that both the CLO Issuer “and the Subordinated Noteholders have a claim for the losses caused by the actions of the Portfolio Manager and the Chapter 11 Trustee” and claiming setoff right against funds held by the indenture trustee belonging to the Debtors.

Additionally, the evidence was also that HCLOF has twice during the bankruptcy case purported to direct the CLO Issuers, the Indenture Trustee, and Acis “to effect an Optional Redemption of all Secured Notes and the Subordinated Notes in full.” Exhs. 20 & 21. In the second notice, HCLOF added language that this would be “for the express purpose of placement of a portion of the portfolio assets held by the Co-issuers into a warehouse arrangement or a total return swap or other derivatives arrangement with Highland Capital Management, L.P.” The end result of this, of course, would be that the Debtor Acis would no longer have any assets to manage and no revenue stream to potentially pay its creditors.

Then, after the Trustee refused to effectuate an optional redemption, both HCLOF and Highland filed, on May 30, 2018, an adversary proceeding against the Acis Trustee, demanding that the Acis Trustee specifically perform and effectuate an optional redemption (the "Adversary"-- Adversary No. 18-03078-sgj). The Adversary Complaint states: "Under the [CLO] funds' governing documents, the investors [e.g. HCLOF] have the right to have their money returned upon demand. Consequently, to mitigate their on-going losses, the investors have instructed the Indenture Trustee and Acis LP, as the putative portfolio manager of the funds, to sell the funds' assets through a redemption process provided for in the Indenture, and return the investors' money to be invested elsewhere with higher yields The Debtors, which are controlled by a Chapter 11 Trustee, have refused to authorize the necessary processes to effectuate a redemption of the funds to allow the return of the investors' money The investors are suffering daily losses because of the Chapter 11 Trustee's inaction. . . . The Plaintiffs file this Complaint to protect their interests and urge the Court to promptly enter a preliminary injunction enjoining the Chapter 11 Trustee from interfering with the redemption process and allowing the investors to have their money returned before they incur further losses." Para. 2.

The Original Complaint went on to state that the ACIS CLO PMAs are valid and enforceable contracts between the CLOs and Acis LP. Under the PMAs, Acis LP provides investment advisory services to the CLOs. "Plaintiff HCLOF, who holds an equity position in the CLO, is a third-party beneficiary of the PMA. The Chapter 11 Trustee, as Acis LP's Chapter 11 trustee, has anticipatorily breached the PMA by communicating his refusal to effect the Subordinated Noteholders' requested redemption as required by the PMA. The Chapter 11 Trustee's breach has caused damage to HCLOF." Paragraphs 67-70. See also paras. 74-77; 81-84; 88-91; 95-98.

Subsequently, HCLOF withdrew its two sets of redemption notices and on August 10, 2018 (after appealing a bankruptcy court preliminary injunction in the Adversary and after also moving to withdraw the reference in the Adversary), moved to amend the Adversary to ask for only the following: "Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201, HCLOF seeks a declaration that the Chapter 11 Trustee has no authority to sell or transfer HCLOF's property without HCLOF's consent. HCLOF seeks no money damages or other relief not sought in this Amended Complaint."

Is this all enough for HCLOF to have a "claim" against the Debtor, pursuant to section 101(5)—in other words, does it amount to an assertion of a "right to an equitable remedy for breach of performance if such breach gives rise to a right to payment"—particularly when HCLOF has now withdrawn its two notices requesting the Indenture Trustee and Debtor commence an optional redemption process and has also sought to amend the Original Complaint to specify that it is not seeking any damages?

The court believes no. The five CLO PMAs specifically provide that there are no third party beneficiaries (except that four of the five CLO PMAs carve out the Indenture Trustee as a third party beneficiary). Thus, HCLOF—although it alleged in the Original Complaint—that it was an alleged "third party beneficiary," never had any basis to state that or to complain of Acis's alleged "anticipatory breach" of the CLO PMAs, as it purported to do in the Original Complaint. Moreover, there is, of course, no longer a PMA between Acis and HCLOF (f/k/a/ as ALF), as of October 27, 2017, as a result of the series of transactions that "the Highlands" apparently orchestrated after the Josh Terry arbitration award and judgment. Thus, HCLOF cannot claim any breach of contract between Acis and HCLOF. Acis is technically not a party to the Indentures. Thus, as far as the court is aware, there is no contract between HCLOF and Acis whatsoever. If there is some theory under which HCLOF can assert liability against Acis , it has not been articulated.

In summary, the court does not believe HCLOF (though it has made many threats and demands and filed an Adversary) has ever articulated a viable claim against Acis. Without a viable claim, the court does not believe the equitable subrogation doctrine asserted by the Acis Trustee works. And, without some sort of claim being validly asserted against Acis, any payment by it on account of the Sub Notes would appear to be voluntary.

The court recognizes that some courts have applied the equitable subrogation doctrine where a party paid a debt on which it had no liability and seemed to do it somewhat voluntarily—despite there being a long-standing exception to the doctrine for “voluntary payment.” The strongest example of this is the case of NY Stock Exchange v, Sloan, 1980 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13316 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 15. 2018). But it appears to this court that, in any case where a court has allowed equitable subrogation where “voluntariness” was somewhat in existence, there was a situation where there was a primary obligor who wasn't paying its obligation. Here, the CLO Issuers are perfectly willing and able to perform their obligations. Thus, applying equitable subrogation here seems a bridge too far. The Acis Trustee would appear to an “officious meddler” (although with good motives) and—with no real exposure to HCLOF, in the court’s view—the payment of the Sub Notes obligations would be purely voluntary. The court recognizes that the Acis Trustee would be attempting to protect an interest of its own (the Acis PMA revenue stream) somewhat like the property developer in the Hamlet case. Hamlet v. Northeast, 64 A.D.3d 85 (N.Y App. Div. Second Dept. 2009). But, in Hamlet, the property developer who paid the Environmental fees to the town of Brookhaven, that the subcontractor had bonded and agreed to pay, was itself primarily liable on the Environmental fees (in other words, the Town had a claim against Hamlet). Again, equitable subrogation under the exact facts and circumstances of this case seems a bridge too far.

Miscellaneous Rulings

The court rules on a few miscellaneous matters that were contested, although it is denying confirmation. This may be useful for any future appeals or for any future proposed plans.

Assumption and Assignment of the PMAs would not violate section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code.

The court believes that the assumption of the CLO PMAs by the Acis Trustee and the assignment of the CLO PMAs to a third party (either Oaktree or Brigade or Cortland) would be permissible under section 365 of the Code. Section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code does not prohibit the Trustee from assigning its rights under the PMAs without the written consent of the CLOs, the Subordinated Noteholders, and others. Section 365(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code provides:

“The trustee may not assume or assign any executory contract . . . if . . . applicable law excuses a party, other than the debtor, to such contract . . . from accepting performance or rendering performance to an entity other than the debtor or debtor in possession, whether or not such contract . . . prohibits or restricts assignment of rights; and . . . such party does not consent to such assumption or assignment[.]”

11 U.S.C. § 365(c)(1).

The court overrules any objection that there is some applicable law that excuses the counterparties to the PMAs (i.e., the CLO Issuers) from accepting performance from a party other than the debtor. First, these are not personal services contracts. Assessing whether a contract is a personal service contract "depends upon the subject of the contract, the circumstances of the case and the intent of the parties to the contract." Leonard v. Gen. Motors Corp. (In re Headquarters Dodge), 13 F.3d 674, 682-83 (3d Cir. 1993) (internal quotation marks omitted); see also In re Compass Van & Storage Corp., 65 B.R. 1007, 1011-12 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 1986) ("Ascertaining whether a contract is personal posits on close distinctions, e.g., the nature and subject matter of the contract, the circumstances of the case placed in juxtaposition with the intention of the parties."). Even "clauses in the contract . . . attesting to a personal relationship will not be dispositive." Leonard, 13 F.3d at 683. Ultimately, if "the identity of that person or entity [rendering performance under the contract] is an essential element of the contract, and if the contract is non-assignable under applicable non-bankruptcy law then the estate cannot assign the contract." Grove Rich Realty, 200 B.R. at 507. Accordingly, in order to determine whether the PMAs are personal service contracts, the court must assess the particular circumstances in the case, the nature of the services provided by Acis under the PMAs, and whether such services are nondelegable. Highland contends that because the PMAs "depend on the skill and reputation of the performing party," the PMAs are personal service contracts, and thus unassignable. If this were the standard, the exception would swallow the rule—any prudent party contracting for another's services considers the other party's skill, expertise, and reputation—and any contract for services premised on the skill and reputation of the party providing services would be a personal service contract. It is not whether the party providing services is skilled and reputable—it is whether such services are unique in nature. See Compass Van & Storage Corp., 65 B.R. at 1011. To support its contention, Highland cites New York cases under which hotel management contracts or consulting contracts were found to be personal service contracts. In the Marriott case cited by Highland, in which the court found the hotel management to be a personal service contract, the court observed that the hotel manager had "full discretion . . . to manage virtually every aspect of the hotel." Marriott Int'l, Inc. v. Eden Roc, LLLP, 104 A.D.3d 583, 584 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2013). Marriott is distinguishable. Here, Acis did not manage virtually every aspect of the CLOs. Pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement and Sub-Advisory Agreement, Acis LP delegated certain of its responsibilities under the PMAs to Highland. Accordingly, the personal qualities of Acis LP were not essential to performance under the PMAs. While the expertise of Acis LP was relevant to its selection as portfolio manager, such expertise is not unique—as demonstrated by the expertise and reputation of Oaktree, Brigade, and others who act as CLO portfolio managers. Also, importantly, the PMAs themselves provide that Acis may delegate the performance of its duties under the PMAs to third parties: "In providing services hereunder, the Portfolio Manager may employ third parties, including its Affiliates, to render advice (including investment advice), to provide services to arrange for trade execution and otherwise provide assistance to the Issuer, and to perform any of the Portfolio Manager's duties under this Agreement; provided that the Portfolio Manager shall not be relieved of any of its duties hereunder regardless of the performance of any services by third parties." 2014-3 PMA § 3(h)(iii). And although section 14 the PMAs requires consent for assignment, section 14 contemplates that an Affiliate assignee "has demonstrated ability, whether as an entity or by its personnel, to professionally and competently perform duties similar to those imposed upon the Portfolio Manager pursuant to this Agreement." Id. § 14(a). Further, sections 14 and 32 of the PMAs provide for merger, consolidation, or amalgamation of Acis with another company, where the resulting entity succeeds "to all or substantially all of the collateral management business of the Portfolio Manager." Pursuant to the terms of the PMAs themselves, the duties of Acis were not "so unique that the dut[ies were] thereby rendered nondelegable." See Compass Van & Storage, 65 B.R. at 1011 (citing RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF CONTRACTS § 318(2) (1981)). As such, unlike personal service contracts, the PMAs do not "synthesize into those consensual agreements . . . distinctive characteristics that commit to a special knowledge, unique skill or talent, singular judgment and taste." Compass

Case 18-30264-sgj11 Doc 549 Filed 09/04/18 Entered 09/04/18 08:52:13 Desc
Main Document Page 6 of 7

Van & Storage, 65 B.R. at 1011. Accordingly, because the duties of Acis LP under the PMAs are delegable (and were delegated) and are not unique, the PMAs cannot be personal service contracts that fall within the narrow exception of section 365(c)(1).

Additionally, Section 205(a)(2) of the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 ("IAA") is not a nonbankruptcy law that precludes assumption and assignment of the PMAs. Section 205(a)(2) of the IAA provides that a registered investment adviser (such as Acis) cannot enter into an investment advisory contract unless such contract provides "that no assignment of such contract shall be made by the investment adviser without the consent of the other party to the contract[.]" 15 U.S.C. § 80b-5(a)(2). Thus, this provision of the IAA merely requires that the PMAs contain an anti-assignment provision—the IAA is not "applicable law" that prohibits assumption or assignment without consent of the counterparties to the PMAs. Indeed, in the Southern District of New York, the court held:

"Section 205(a)(2) of the [IAA] . . . does not . . . prohibit an investment adviser's assignment of an investment advisory contract without client consent. The section merely provides that the contract must contain the specified provision. Thus, the assignment of a non-investment company advisory contract, without obtaining client consent, could constitute a breach of the advisory contract, but not a violation of Section 205(a)(2)."

CWCapital Cobalt VR Ltd. v. CWCapital Invs. LLC, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90174, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. May 23, 2018). Assignment of the PMAs without consent of the counterparties simply constitutes breach of the PMAs, but the IAA is not "applicable law" that excuses the counterparties to the PMAs from accepting or rendering performance without such consent. Accordingly, the assignment of the PMAs to Oaktree does not violate the IAA or section 365(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Preliminary Injunction

The preliminary injunction in place preventing HCLOF from pursuing optional redemptions will remain in place for now. The court believes there are automatic stay implications (section 362(a)(3)) with regard to HCLOF pursuing optional redemptions. The effect of an optional redemption is to exercise control over the Acis PMAs and revenue stream (property of the estate—see, e.g., Hometown Valley View v. Prime, 847 F.3d 302 (5th Cir. 2017)). While HCLOF is not itself a creditor (and while "the Highlands" entity separateness is not being challenged, and is not being disregarded by either the Acis Trustee, the court, or anyone else at this juncture), the court notes that HCLOF, Highland, and other Highland-related parties seem to work in tandem. Highland asserts a claim against Acis. Actions taken by HCLOF could be construed to be actions of Highland, an actual creditor. There is also a basis for keeping the preliminary injunction in place pending determination of the Acis Trustee's fraudulent transfer lawsuits. The evidence thus far has been compelling that numerous transfers after the Josh Terry judgment denuded Acis of value—perhaps even the ability to control its own destiny when the ALF PMA was essentially terminated without cause and Acis was made to sell its shares in ALF/HCLOF back to ALF/HCLOF. In the face of these facts, the court will be reluctant to terminate the preliminary injunction until this litigation is fully resolved.

1 DALLAS, TEXAS - AUGUST 3, 2022 - 2:37 P.M.

2 THE COURT: 22-3052. This is a motion to dismiss
3 adversary proceeding. For the Movant Highland, who do we have 4 appearing?

5 MR. DEMO: Your Honor, Greg Demo; Pachulski Stang
6 Ziehl & Jones; on behalf of Highland. Zachery Annable from 7 the Hayward firm is here as well. And we have Jim Seery.

8 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

9 All right. For Plaintiff/Respondent Charitable DAF, who 10 do we have appearing?

11 MR. BRIDGES: Jonathan Bridges here, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: All right. Well, I've got the pleadings
13 here in front of me, and I saw an exhibit list of Movant/
14 Debtor, but I think the exhibits were just all of the 15 attachments to the amended motion to dismiss. Is that
16 correct?

17 MR. DEMO: That's --

18 THE COURT: Or the appendix, I should say?

19 MR. DEMO: That is absolutely correct.

20 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Well, I'll hear
21 Highland's argument.

22 MR. DEMO: And for the exhibits, we did have a
23 discussion with opposing counsel, counsel for the DAF.
24 Exhibit 17 is Mr. Seery's declaration. We filed the motion to 25 dismiss under both 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6), and so Mr. Seery's

1 declaration we would like to formally enter into evidence
2 because that goes to what we believe is Plaintiff's lack of 3 standing and thus this Court's lack of jurisdiction. And we 4 do believe that extrinsic evidence is appropriate for that.

5 With respect to Exhibits 1 through 13 and then Exhibits 21
6 and 22, those are all documents that were filed on this
7 Court's docket and they consist of really three buckets:
8 either complaints or orders, the plan, and then transcripts.
9 All of those are on this Court's docket. And we would ask
10 your Court to take judicial notice of those. And I know that 11 Mr. Bridges may have some issues with that, but we do believe 12 that's appropriate for a 12(b)(6) motion.

13 THE COURT: All right. So you mentioned 17, the 14 Seery Declaration. 1 through 13, --

15 MR. DEMO: Yes, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: 1 through 13, and 21 and 22. Or did I
17 mishear?

18 MR. DEMO: Yes. No, that's exactly right, Your
19 Honor.

20 THE COURT: So that's the universe of what you're 21 asking the Court to consider? You're not asking the Court to 22 consider 14, 15, and 18 through 20? I don't have them in 23 front of me to --

24 MR. DEMO: 14 -- we are not asking Your Honor to 25 consider 14, 15, 16, 18, 19, and 20.

1 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Mr. Bridges, what say
2 you about this?

3 MR. BRIDGES: Thank you, Your Honor. Counsel is 4 correct. We have no objection to Exhibit 17.

5 We do object to the remainder. And the remainder, our 6 objection is because they're not referenced in the pleading
7 and because they aren't actually evidence. What was filed,
8 especially what was filed in a different adversarial matter,
9 isn't evidence in this case. And that's the basis for our 10 objection.

11 MR. DEMO: Your Honor, if I may?

12 THE COURT: You may.

13 MR. DEMO: I guess the first thing is that they were 14 all referenced in the pleadings, Your Honor.

15 The second thing is that Your Honor can take judicial 16 notice of things on her docket, and all of these things are on 17 Your Honor's docket for purposes of the 12(b)(6) motion.

18 And I'm honestly a little surprised by Mr. Bridges'
19 arguments and by Plaintiff's arguments because they ask you to 20 do the exact same thing in their pleading. They ask you to 21 take judicial notice of two time entries that were filed in 22 the main docket here as evidence that we, Highland, had 23 knowledge of Plaintiff filing the complaint in the District
24 Court. And, you know, we're not going to quibble with that 25 because they are on your Court's dockets and we do believe

1 that you can take judicial notice of those.

2 And I can cite you Fifth Circuit case law, if you'd like,
3 but I think it's a fairly standard issue.

4 THE COURT: All right. I'll over --

5 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, one more thing?

6 THE COURT: Go ahead. Uh-huh.

7 MR. BRIDGES: I might be confused, Your Honor. My 8 objection was the failure to reference these documents in the 9 original complaint, the pending complaint in this adversary
10 proceeding, not to -- failure to have referenced them in the 11 briefing of this motion.

12 MR. DEMO: Your Honor, I don't think that changes it.
13 I mean, Your Honor is entitled to take judicial notice of 14 exhibits -- I mean, I'm sorry, of matters on her docket -- for 15 the purposes of our motion to dismiss. And all of these 16 pleadings and all of these exhibits and appendices -- the 17 witness and exhibit list were referenced in our motion to 18 dismiss. I don't think that changes anything.

19 THE COURT: All right. I overrule the objection. I
20 can take judicial notice of these items, and I will.

21 MR. DEMO: Thank you, Your Honor.

22 THE COURT: All right. You may proceed.

23 MR. DEMO: Thank you. Again, Your Honor, for 24 purposes of the record, Greg Demo; Pachulski Stang Ziehl &
25 Jones; on behalf of Highland Capital Management.

1 We were here today on -- originally on two motions to
2 dismiss. And our two motions to dismiss were generally
3 identical. The first motion to dismiss, which is going
4 forward today, is the motion -- I'm sorry, the motion to 5 dismiss the complaint filed by the Charitable DAF Fund, which 6 alleges that Highland breached its fiduciary obligations to 7 the DAF as an investor in Multi-Strat during the course of the 8 bankruptcy.

9 The second thing we were supposed to be here today on,
10 Your Honor, was a complaint -- a motion to dismiss the 11 complaint filed by PCMG Trading Partners XXIII. PCMG is 12 majority-owned by Jim Dondero and wholly controlled by Jim 13 Dondero. We did have PCMG contact us last week and offer to 14 withdraw that motion. We were happy to accept that offer
15 because we do think that it should have been dismissed.

16 That said, Your Honor, we were equally frustrated with 17 that offer, because the complaint was filed over a year ago.
18 Highland had to expend substantial resources briefing and 19 responding to motions. And then, on the eve of trial, when we 20 have a dispositive motion on file, they withdrew it. And that 21 is frustrating, Your Honor.

22 And it's doubly frustrating because Mr. Dondero has come
23 to this Court and tried to make an issue of the burn rate for 24 legal fees in this Court. And we think that -- that the 25 filing of the complaint and then the last-minute withdrawal of

1 the complaint is emblematic of what Mr. Dondero is doing here,
2 Your Honor.

3 That said, we are here only on one motion to dismiss. And 4 as I mentioned, it's our motion to dismiss Plaintiff's
5 complaint which alleges that Highland Capital Management
6 breached its fiduciary obligations to Plaintiff and those
7 fiduciary obligations arose under the Investment Advisors Act,
8 common law, and contract. And those breaches allegedly 9 occurred in mid-2020. And that was after the petition date,
10 after Your Honor appointed independent directors to manage the 11 bankruptcy, but before confirmation of the plan and before the 12 plan's effective date. And each of those causes of action
13 primarily revolve around the Plaintiff's contention that 14 Highland sold assets that it wasn't supposed to sell. In 15 other words, Highland sold assets that Mr. Dondero did not 16 want it to sell.

17 And I realize I mentioned the complaint was originally 18 filed in the District Court for the Northern District of 19 Texas. The District Court referred the complaint to Your 20 Honor in May of this year, and Highland filed its amended
21 motion to dismiss on May 22nd -- I'm sorry, May 27th, 2022.

22 And our motion to dismiss is simple, Your Honor, and it
23 amounts to one simple question: Are the causes -- should the 24 Court dismiss the complaint because the causes of action in 25 the complaint are administrative expense claims that should

1 have been filed in this Court and served on the Debtor prior
2 to the administrative expense claim bar date, which occurred
3 in September of 2021?

4 We believe the answer to that question is yes, Your Honor.
5 We believe it's unequivocally yes under black letter
6 bankruptcy law.

7 But as a separate and alternative basis for dismissal, we 8 believe that Plaintiff lacks both constitutional and 9 prudential standing, because (1) Plaintiff, the Charitable DAF
10 Fund, is not an investor in Multi-Strat, and that's what Mr.
11 Seery's declaration says; and (2) the Plaintiff did not allege 12 in the complaint how it was harmed by Highland's actions with 13 respect to Multi-Strat when it was not an investor in Multi-14 Strat.

15 That's it, Your Honor. And we believe it is and should be 16 a simple matter.

17 Plaintiff, however, has made a belated and what we believe
18 is a procedurally-improper request to have the complaint
19 treated as a late-filed administrative claim by this Court.
20 We believe Your Honor should deny that request.

21 But before addressing the law, I think it's important,
22 Your Honor, to go through the facts and to go through the 23 timeline of this complaint, because what the facts and what 24 the timeline will show is that there was no inadvertent error,
25 Your Honor. There was a tactical and strategic decision to

1 file the complaint outside of this Court in the hopes that
2 this Court would not know about it and that it could be
3 adjudicated around Your Honor.

4 And Ms. Canty, can you please put up Slide 1?

5 And as you'll see, Your Honor, this is the timeline that
6 we would like to discuss. So, first, February 22nd, 2021.
7 Your Honor confirmed Highland's plan of reorganization.
8 Highland's plan, like all plans, included clear procedures for 9 dealing with administrative expense claims and stated --
10 again, we believe clearly -- that all administrative expense
11 claims are required to be filed within 45 days of the plan
12 effective date.

13 The next date we would bring Your Honor's attention to is 14 June 23rd, 2021. On June 23rd, the Dugaboy Investment Trust
15 filed a complaint in the Northern District of Texas, alleging 16 that Highland breached its fiduciary duties with respect to 17 Multi-Strat. We did not receive notice of that hearing -- of 18 that motion, of that complaint. But on June 25th, which is 19 the next day here, we had a hearing in front of Your Honor on 20 the Plaintiff the Charitable DAF's motion to reconsider the 21 order appointing Mr. Seery as Highland's chief restructuring
22 officer. During that hearing, we discovered that the Dugaboy
23 Investment Trust, Mr. Dondero's family trust, had filed its 24 complaint, and we brought that to Your Honor's attention.
25 Plaintiff's counsel at that June 25th hearing is the same

1 counsel in front of Your Honor today.

2 During that hearing, Your Honor rightly asked Plaintiff,
3 Plaintiff's counsel, about why it believed it could file
4 claims rightly before Your Honor in different courts. And 5 Your Honor rightly told Plaintiff to, and I'm quoting here,
6 "Go back and hit the books and be prepared to defend" filing
7 claims outside of this Court. After that hearing, Dugaboy
8 withdrew the Dugaboy complaint.

9 The next date I would call Your Honor's attention to is 10 July 22nd, 2021, approximately one month after that June 11 hearing. That's the date the complaint at issue today was 12 filed, Your Honor. The complaint -- and the complaint at 13 issue today was never served. Plaintiff filed a motion to 14 stay that complaint in the Northern District of Texas and 15 never served that motion to stay.

16 Moving forward, Your Honor, November 23rd, 2021. We are 17 here again in front of Your Honor on Plaintiff's complaint
18 with respect to the HarbourVest settlement. And Highland had 19 moved to dismiss that complaint. And again Plaintiff's
20 counsel at that hearing in front of Your Honor was the counsel
21 here today.

22 During that hearing, we also heard Plaintiff's motion to 23 stay the HarbourVest complaint pending resolution and pending
24 the appeal of Highland's plan of reorganization to the Fifth
25 Circuit.

1 Plaintiff's arguments concerning the plan injunction at 2 that hearing were essentially the exact same as the arguments
3 they make in the response to our motion to dismiss, that the 4 plan injunction prohibited them from doing anything. It
5 prohibited them from prosecuting the causes of action in the 6 complaint outside of this Court, which we agree with, but they 7 also argued it prohibited them from prosecuting the causes of 8 action in the complaint inside of this Court.

9 At that hearing, Your Honor -- and I'll backtrack just a
10 second after that -- at that hearing, Your Honor, Highland's
11 counsel was very clear on the record that they agreed that the 12 plan injunction prohibited litigation filed prior to the 13 effective date from occurring outside of this Court.
14 Highland, however, was also clear that Plaintiff did have a 15 remedy, and that remedy was to file the causes of action in 16 the complaint as a motion for allowance of an administrative 17 expense claim in this Court and prosecute them here.

18 At that hearing in November of 2021, Your Honor also told
19 Plaintiff's counsel that their arguments concerning the plan
20 injunction, and I'm quoting here, Your Honor, "reflect,
21 frankly, a misunderstanding of how the injunction language
22 applies."

23 Now, I'm going to backtrack, Your Honor, because I did
24 forget a very important date, and that's the August 11th, 2021
25 effective date of the plan. It is undisputed, Your Honor,

1 that Plaintiff received notice of that effective date, and
2 Plaintiff's counsel was separately noticed with that effective
3 date of the plan.

4 Those certificates of service are in Bankruptcy Docket No.
5 2747, and are included in our witness and exhibit list as 6 Exhibit 8. Again, it is undisputed that both Plaintiff's
7 counsel and Plaintiff had notice of the effective date of the 8 plan.

9 And it is also undisputed, Your Honor, that that notice
10 disclosed that all administrative expense claims had to be 11 filed with this Court and served on the Debtor within 45 days
12 of the effective date of the plan, which was September 25,
13 2021.

14 It is important to note that at no point in this timeline
15 to date did Plaintiff's counsel -- I'm sorry, did Plaintiff do
16 anything. Plaintiff did not file an administrative expense
17 claim. Plaintiff did not file a motion to have their 18 complaint allowed as timely filed. Plaintiff did nothing.

19 It was not until May of 2022 when the District Court
20 referred this action to Your Honor and after Highland filed
21 its amended motion to dismiss for Plaintiff's failure to 22 comply with the administrative expense claim bar date that 23 Plaintiff came into this Court asking leniency.

24 Plaintiff came into this Court in their response to the 25 motion to dismiss asking Your Honor to treat their claim as a

1 timely-filed administrative expense claim. But what this
2 timeline shows, Your Honor, and what the facts show, Your
3 Honor, is, again, that this was not an inadvertent mistake.
4 Plaintiff chose to file the complaint outside of this Court.
5 Plaintiff, with notice of the effective date and notice of the 6 administrative expense claim bar date, chose not to file an
7 administrative expense claim in this Court.

8 Plaintiff, with Your Honor's -- Your Honor's direct (audio 9 gap) in November of 2021 that they misunderstood the plan
10 injunction, still did nothing, Your Honor. It was not until 11 we moved to dismiss this action that Plaintiff requested, in a 12 procedurally-improper way, to have their claim treated as a 13 late-filed claim.

14 What we believe that shows, Your Honor, is that this was 15 tactical. That what Plaintiff actually wanted was to file
16 their claim in the District Court, which they did, and which 17 they did not give us notice of; to stay that action in the 18 District Court, which they did, and which they did not give us
19 notice of; and to have that complaint sit there in the 20 District Court until the Fifth Circuit overturned the plan,
21 and then and only then would they litigate that action, again,
22 away from Your Honor.

23 We believe that's highly improper, Your Honor.

24 That said, the legal question here is, again, very simple.
25 Does the complaint include administrative expense claims that

1 are now time-barred because they were not filed in this Court
2 by the September 2021 administrative expense claim bar date?
3 Again, we believe the answer to that question is a simple yes.
4 These are administrative expense claims.

5 Again, Plaintiff's complaint alleges that Highland
6 violated its fiduciary obligations to Plaintiff in mid-2020,
7 after the petition date, after appointment of independent
8 directors, before confirmation, and before the effective date,
9 at all times while Highland was the debtor-in-possession.

10 And as Your Honor knows, administrative expense claims,
11 generally speaking, are claims that arise under Section 503(b)
12 of the Code for the actual and necessary costs of preserving 13 the estate and that arise from the debtor-in-possession or 14 trustee's postpetition, pre-effective-date, ordinary-course
15 operation of the estate.

16 And the claims in the complaint are administrative expense
17 claims under 503(b) under the Reading exception which was 18 created by the Supreme Court in 1968 in Reading Co. v. Brown.
19 And as set forth in our brief, Your Honor, Reading is still 20 good law. It's routinely applied in the Fifth Circuit and 21 it's routinely applied in all circuits.

22 And Reading, Your Honor, (garbled) it includes not just 23 torts, but other claims arising from intentional or other
24 wrongful or -- wrongful acts as well. And the claims asserted
25 in the complaint are clearly administrative expense claims

1 under Reading. They are claims for intentional and/or 2 negligent violations of Highland's alleged fiduciary duty to 3 Plaintiff during the course of the bankruptcy.

4 And Ms. Canty, if you could please put up Slide 2.

5 Now, Plaintiff tries to dodge this by saying that the 6 definition of, quote, administrative expense claims and the 7 plan does not include the types of claims that they allege
8 here. But that's not the case, Your Honor. And the defined
9 term "Administrative Expense Claim" is in the middle box of 10 your screen. And as you'll see, it says it's any claim 11 allowed pursuant to Sections 503(b), 507(a)(2), 507(b), or 12 1114(2) of the Bankruptcy Code. Those include administrative 13 expense claims under the Reading exception, and they include
14 the administrative expense claims asserted in the complaint.

15 Those claims were required under the plan -- and the 16 provisions are all right here -- again to be filed in this 17 Court by September 2021. They were not.

18 And as I mentioned above, it is undisputed that Plaintiff
19 had notice of the plan, that Plaintiff had notice of the 20 administrative expense claim bar date. And it's also 21 undisputed that Plaintiff, represented by counsel, did not 22 file with this Court an administrative expense claim by 23 September 25th, 2021. Plaintiff's claims are now time-barred.

24 And we believe Your Honor's Taco Bueno opinion is on all 25 fours. In Taco Bueno, the claimant at least tried to file an

1 administrative expense claim with this Court by filing a proof
2 of claim on the claims register. Your Honor held that wasn't
3 good enough and it did not count as an administrative expense
4 claim, and Your Honor barred claimant's claim in Taco Bueno as 5 time-barred.

6 Here, similarly, Plaintiff, who's been represented at all
7 times by counsel, indisputably had notice and chose to file
8 the complaint in the District Court rather than complying with 9 the provisions of the plan and with the provisions of the 10 Bankruptcy Code. Under Taco Bueno and various cases, Your 11 Honor, this claim is time-barred.

12 And that should end the discussion, Your Honor, but it
13 doesn't, because Plaintiff, in its response to our motion to 14 dismiss, finally asked this Court for leniency and finally 15 asked this Court to treat the claim as, quote, a request for 16 an order permitting a late claim or otherwise to have it
17 treated as a timely administrative expense claim under Federal 18 Rule of Civil Procedure 15.

19 But that's not how it works, Your Honor. Section 502 of 20 the Code allows late-filed administrative expense claims only 21 for cause. But that requires a separate motion, and it
22 requires evidence, Your Honor. None of that happened here.
23 Instead, Plaintiff filed a one-line request to have it treated
24 as a late-filed claim, and it filed that request 16 months
25 after confirmation, 10 months after the bar date, and 8 months

1 after Your Honor rejected their argument on the plan
2 injunction.

3 There is no cause here. Plaintiff has provided no
4 evidence of it. It just asked for leniency based on a series
5 of what we believe are irrelevant arguments.

6 And that's where the facts again become important. As 7 Your Honor has said, facts matter. And the facts here, the 8 undisputed facts (garbled) Plaintiff and bely a finding of 9 cause or excusable neglect under Pioneer. Again, two 10 standards that Plaintiff has not even tried to argue.

11 And, again, Your Honor, what we believe the facts show is 12 that there was no inadvertent technical error here. There was 13 a considered and strategic plan to file these claims outside
14 of this Court in the hopes of avoiding Your Honor.

15 As in Houbigant, which we briefed in our paper, Plaintiff
16 is bound by those tactical decisions. And the complaint, Your 17 Honor, we would ask be dismissed with prejudice for failure to 18 state a -- I'm sorry, for failure to comply with the 19 administrative expense claim bar date.

20 And lastly, Your Honor, standing. In our motion to 21 dismiss, we sought an order dismissing this action under 22 12(b)(1) for lack of constitutional standing and also under 23 12(b)(6) for lack of prudential standing. And as stated in 24 our papers and in Mr. Seery's declaration -- which, again, is 25 Exhibit 17 on our witness and exhibit list -- the DAF, the

1 Plaintiff here, is not an investor in Multi-Strat. And all of 2 the allegations in the complaint, all of the causes of action
3 in the complaint, revolve around the DAF being an investor in 4 Multi-Strat, and Plaintiff did not plead how it could possibly 5 have standing as a non-investor.

6 Consequently, Your Honor, Plaintiff failed to plead
7 constitutional standing, failed to plead an injury, and failed
8 to plead prudential standing because it failed to plead how it
9 was the real party in interest under Section 17.

10 Now, Plaintiff makes various arguments in its response
11 about how it could have direct and/or derivative standing.
12 But, again, Your Honor, one, we believe those arguments are 13 meritless, and we believe that they're irrelevant, because 14 notwithstanding the liberal amendments standard in Federal 15 Rule of Civil Procedure 15 and the language in Federal Rule of 16 Civil Procedure 17, we believe amendment here would be futile.
17 For all the reasons we discussed, the claims are time-barred.
18 And even if Plaintiff were able to amend its complaint to fix
19 the standing issues, Plaintiff in no world can unwind and turn
20 back the clock to be able to file the complaint in this Court
21 as an administrative expense claim by the administrative 22 expense claim bar date, which, again, was on September 25th, 23 2021.

24 For the foregoing reasons, Your Honor, we ask that you
25 dismiss the complaint with prejudice. And I'm happy to answer

1 any questions.

2 THE COURT: Okay. No questions right now.

3 MR. DEMO: Thank you.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Bridges?

5 MR. BRIDGES: Thank you, Your Honor. The last time I
6 appeared in this Court was at the June 25th, 2021 hearing that 7 counsel referenced. It's particularly memorable to me because 8 of being postponed due to symptoms from a cranky gallbladder.
9 The time before that I remember even better. That was the 10 only other time I was before you, Your Honor. The 11 particularly painful order that was the result of that 12 previous time is also very memorable to me.

13 My gallbladder is no longer with us, and that order, that 14 painful order, has been expunged at considerable costs. I was 15 hoping that meant today would be a fresh start. Apparently, I
16 need to go backwards just a little bit, perhaps.

17 At the June 25th hearing that counsel described, I did
18 argue. At the end, you did ask about a recently-filed lawsuit
19 that I didn't know anything about and told you so. You asked 20 if Mr. Sbaiti was available, and I believe we had to go get 21 him, and he answered your questions, and your exchange was 22 with him.

23 I'm afraid that, again, I am unprepared and largely not in 24 the know about the other matters that counsel has referenced.
25 I came to argue the motion that's at issue today in the

1 adversary proceeding that we're here for.

2 The Federal Reporters, Your Honor, I know that you know
3 this, they're full of opinions admonishing courts to favor
4 resolving cases on the merits. Ever since the code pleading
5 system was abolished, federal courts have expressed their bias
6 in favor of addressing the merits of cases, and I would be 7 remiss in failing to mention that here on Highland's motion to 8 dismiss this case on timeliness and standing grounds.

9 Rule 15 and Rule 17 of the Federal Rules of Civil 10 Procedure are among those aimed at getting cases to the 11 merits, and we relied on both of those in our brief.

12 The first issue raised in the briefs is the classification
13 of our allegations as an administrative expense claim. That 14 three-word term is capitalized in the plan, indicating that it
15 is a defined term. I read in the reply brief and heard 16 counsel argue just moments ago that Highland views this as 17 merely a naming convention and not as a limiting provision,
18 the defined term. And I see that as a reasonable view of 19 what's in the plan. But it does quite -- quite plainly appear
20 as a defined term, with a lengthy definition.

21 Although this is not a hill we would choose to die on, and 22 much of our response brief is devoted to alternative 23 arguments, we don't view the allegations in the complaint as 24 administrative in nature, nor as an expense, nor, perhaps most 25 importantly, as the result of an action that benefits the

1 estate, as both the plan definition and Section 503(b)
2 require.

3 Section 503(b) concerns only, quote, the costs and 4 expenses of preserving the estate. What the complaint alleges
5 in this matter is that the acts complained of were against the 6 interests of the estate and depleted the estate's assets.

7 For example, Paragraph 22, which sums up the factual
8 allegations in the complaint, reads as follows. Quote, "In 9 short, HCMLP caused Multi-Strat to sell the viatical pool at a 10 substantially discounted amount to curry favor with the 11 brokers and buyers in the marketplace, for no apparent benefit
12 to Multi-Strat's investors or the Debtor's estate."

13 This allegation does not on its face appear to be based on 14 the result of an action that benefits the estate.

15 The second issue concerns the consequences if we're wrong
16 about the first issue.

17 THE COURT: Let me --

18 MR. BRIDGES: The consequences --

19 THE COURT: Let me back up. Let me back up if you're 20 moving off that point. What about the Supreme Court --

21 MR. BRIDGES: Yes, Your Honor.

22 THE COURT: What about the Supreme Court's Reading
23 case or Reading case? If my memory -- it's been years since 24 I've read it, but I remember it pretty well. I believe that 25 involved a fire, right, a fire in a building that a trustee

1 was operating. Certainly, a fire and great damage caused to a
2 third party wouldn't seem on its face to benefit the estate,
3 as that phrasing is used in 503(b). But the U.S. Supreme
4 Court said something to the effect of, you know, he's doing
5 business and it's a cost of doing business that, you know,
6 you're going to sometimes have things like this happen. And 7 isn't that exactly the same sort of situation we have here if 8 your allegations are true?

9 MR. BRIDGES: I don't think so, Your Honor, although 10 I would -- would like to emphasize again this is not a hill
11 that we would choose to die on. But I think --

12 THE COURT: Am I correct --

13 MR. BRIDGES: -- two reasons distinguish --

14 THE COURT: -- in remembering the facts of that 15 famous U.S. Supreme Court case, that it involved a fire and 16 that the trustee who was operating the business, it was a 17 consequence of him operating the business? Am I correct in 18 remembering those facts?

19 MR. BRIDGES: That sounds correct to me, Your Honor,
20 but I don't pretend to remember it well enough to disagree
21 with you. I would like --

22 THE COURT: Mr. Demo, --

23 MR. BRIDGES: -- to distinguish it.

24 THE COURT: -- can you confirm or tell me if I'm 25 wrong?

1 MR. DEMO: Yeah. You're absolutely correct, Your
2 Honor. The trustee in that case accidentally burned down the 3 neighboring building, and the Supreme Court found that it was 4 still an administrative expense claim under the "Reading" or 5 "Reading" exception. And that exception provides that even 6 though burning down somebody else's house does not benefit the 7 estate, that it still counts as an administrative expense
8 claim under 503(b). And we have other case that comes -- 9 other case law that comes after that that even broadens that,
10 Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Yes. And I know the Fifth Circuit case
12 has cited that case in different opinions.

13 Okay. So, going back to that, Mr. Bridges, I mean, you 14 just argued 503(b) doesn't contemplate this type of claim that 15 -- or claims you're alleging in the action, but hasn't the 16 Supreme Court in fact said that it does apply to this kind of 17 thing?

18 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, no, I don't think so. And 19 the reasons are twofold. One is because the fire in that case
20 is not, I don't believe, the actions being complained of by 21 the plaintiff. Rather, actions that are to the benefit of the 22 estate result in negligently, accidentally, causing a fire.
23 And that is a significant difference from here, where the 24 actions allegedly being -- that we're alleging, that are 25 complained of, are actually actions against the interests of

1 the estate, selling out the estate on the cheap. Your Honor,
2 that is one distinction.

3 The other is that we're relying on the defined term, which 4 has different language from the actual Code, which was not at 5 issue in the other case.

6 Those are the two distinctions that I draw, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Well, if this is not --

8 MR. BRIDGES: The second issue --

9 THE COURT: -- a 503-type claim, then what kind of 10 claim would it be? It has to fit into some sort of category
11 here.

12 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, honestly, our position is 13 that the order itself creates -- the final plan creates a gap
14 by not identifying this as -- as that kind of -- as an 15 administrative priority claim.

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. BRIDGES: The second issue, Your Honor, concerns
18 the consequences if we're wrong about the first issue and that 19 the consequences need not be forfeiture.

20 Counsel raises concerns about the purpose of the 21 administrative claim bar date and the ability to distribute 22 funds. Those concerns certainly seen valid. But importantly,
23 they go to priority, not validity.

24 Not one of their policy arguments supports outright
25 dismissal of the complaint, which would amount to a default

1 and would have the effect of protecting the interests of 2 equity in this matter over the interests of a creditor.

3 Rule 15 allows for relation back of allegations from a
4 previous filing, and we believe it governs here. Highland 5 doesn't deny that it had notice of the complaint, so they 6 don't have prejudice from the timing of it. And there is 7 authority under the Code for allowing timely filing or 8 treating as timely the filing of one type of claim that was 9 submitted as another type of claim.

10 And on this, I'd point the Court to the Delaware
11 Bluestream [sic] Brands case, 2021 Bankr. LEXIS 1980, which 12 cites to the First Circuit and other cases allowing a timely
13 proof of claim to be treated as an administrative expense
14 claim.

15 THE COURT: Doesn't that --

16 MR. BRIDGES: I'm truly --

17 THE COURT: Doesn't that run contrary to my Taco
18 Bueno opinion?

19 MR. BRIDGES: Perhaps, Your Honor. It does cite your 20 opinion in a "But see." And I again would defer to your 21 knowledge of the proceedings in that case. But I saw in the 22 opinion no argument whatsoever concerning the ability of the 23 creditor to seek relief on its proof of claim regarding the 24 same transaction. I read it not to exclude that.

25 Although the Court relied -- also, the Court relied on

1 prejudice to the creditors in that case if the administrative 2 claim had been allowed. Importantly, in this case, where 3 creditors can expect to be paid in full, no such prejudice
4 exists, or at least at this stage of the claim -- of the case
5 there is no evidence that any such prejudice to the creditors
6 exists.

7 I'm truly unsure how to respond to the accusation that the 8 decision to file this action in District Court was a strategic 9 one, a strategic decision. In some regards, certainly, all of 10 our decisions are strategic. But the implication that this
11 was somehow a nefarious decision that should inflame the Court
12 is simply untrue.

13 I think the timeline supports us in this, that at the time
14 of the filing of this lawsuit the plan was not yet effective,
15 so the route to bring an administrative claim, if that's what 16 this is, did not appear to be available to us without the plan
17 having gone effective.

18 Also, it appeared that it might not go effective for a 19 year or more while the appeal to the Fifth Circuit was 20 pending.

21 A few weeks later, I think it was less than three,
22 approximately 20 days later, when Highland elected to make the 23 plan effective, the injunction as we understand it precludes
24 us from serving them from that point forward, as doing so
25 would have been continuing with this case. The plan

1 injunction prevented us from doing so.

2 And so the accusation that we intentionally filed the 3 lawsuit and didn't serve them with process is really about a
4 three-week period that before we got them served we were 5 enjoined, as we understand the injunction, from doing so.

6 I have not heard from them that we're wrong on that 7 interpretation of the injunction. I know from their other 8 pleadings in this matter that they view the injunction as 9 applying to this matter. The only question I have is whether 10 they agree with our take that serving process would have been 11 continuing with the action.

12 THE COURT: Let me -- let me --

13 MR. BRIDGES: The notion that we --

14 THE COURT: -- double-check that I understand
15 something you said. I think what I heard you say was, because 16 the plan had not gone effective yet, therefore triggering
17 the 45-day deadline for filing administrative expense claims,
18 you had no other avenue here to pursue your claims except to 19 file the District Court lawsuit. Is that what I heard you
20 say, or am I misunderstanding?

21 MR. BRIDGES: Well, that's certainly more strongly
22 than I intended to say it. I don't think so, Your Honor. But 23 a similar vein, that the idea of filing a claim as required by 24 the final plan was not -- was not something that had gone into 25 effect yet. So thinking that that --

1 THE COURT: What do you mean? You can file a request
2 for allowance of administrative claim, heck, in the first 30
3 days of a bankruptcy case. You don't have to wait for the 4 Court to set a deadline.

5 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, --

6 THE COURT: You can file one at any time.

7 MR. BRIDGES: -- we did not have an effective
8 deadline. We did not know when that effective deadline would 9 go effective. That process, that procedure, did not appear to 10 be the one that was, what, most available to us.

11 THE COURT: Why not? Why not? Why not? There is 12 nothing that would have precluded you from filing a request
13 for allowance of administrative expense claim. People file
14 them throughout Chapter 11 cases frequently, --

15 MR. BRIDGES: The --

16 THE COURT: -- before there's ever a deadline set.

17 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, the answer to that question
18 is that reading the definition of what it was did not cause us
19 to believe that's what we had here. That is Issue #1 over 20 again.

21 One question -- again, one question is whether we are 22 right or wrong on Issue 1. And I'm hearing you loudly and 23 clearly that you don't agree with us on that.

24 But in connection with that, I don't, Your Honor, I don't 25 think a fair conclusion is that we knew better or should have

1 known better than to read the defined term and think that it
2 does not apply to the case that we brought.

3 Certainly, the final order -- I'm sorry, the plan was not
4 in effect yet, so we weren't governed by it at that time. And
5 I believe and urge the Court to consider that a plain reading
6 of that plan does not sound like on its face that our claim --
7 our complaint is within its four corners.

8 THE COURT: Did you worry about the automatic stay?

9 MR. BRIDGES: Yes, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Okay. What is your analysis there?

11 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, it was well more than a 12 year ago. I don't think I can remember that. It wasn't in 13 the briefing for today, and it's not fresh on my mind.

14 THE COURT: You're right. You're right, it wasn't in 15 the briefing. But, again, I'm just trying to put myself in 16 your brains and, you know, I don't -- I will say it's a gray
17 issue, because these are not prepetition claims, and usually 18 362 stays collection or actions aimed at pursuing prepetition
19 claims.

20 On the other hand, the relief sought in the DAF's
21 complaint asked for, among other things, disgorgement of all 22 ill-gotten gains, and also voiding of certain agreements of 23 Highland. This sounds potentially like exercising or an 24 attempt to exercise control over property of the estate. So,
25 again, it's something that weighs on me a little bit.

1 But, again, it's not the subject of the hearing today, but
2 I kind of am still interested in what your thought process
3 was. You know, it's a very risky thing to file a lawsuit
4 against a Chapter 11 debtor as opposed to filing a proof of 5 claim or a request for allowance of administrative claim. So
6 I just -- it would be helpful to hear what your analysis was 7 on that.

8 MR. BRIDGES: Perhaps this would be helpful as well,
9 Your Honor. At least as -- at least in my view and 10 experience, you do not have to be a bankruptcy lawyer to know
11 what the automatic stay is. An administrative expense claim
12 isn't the same kind of recognized concept, I believe.
13 Certainly, not to me.

14 And so the notion that what we were doing is sitting on 15 our hands rather than serving the complaint because of some 16 ulterior motive is just wrong. That's untrue. And generally
17 speaking, in this day and age, cases aren't dismissed without 18 reaching the merits simply because they weren't filed in the 19 right place or with the right forum.

20 Your Honor, that brings us to the third issue, which is 21 standing. Again, courts in this day and age do not dismiss
22 cases without reaching the merits simply because they were not 23 brought by the real party in interest. That's what Rule 17
24 says quite clearly. An opportunity for the real party in 25 interest to join must be provided. If -- if that's -- let me

1 back up. If -- because Highland admits that Plaintiff's
2 subsidiary, CLO Holdco, is an investor who would have
3 standing, that should end the matter there.

4 Moreover, the Plaintiff, the DAF, has alleged in 5 Paragraphs 7 and 11 of the complaint that it is an investor.
6 And frankly, Your Honor, I don't think that's incorrect when 7 you view that someone can invest indirectly. That is not a
8 peculiar concept, and I don't think it's a stretch to say that 9 that pleading that we are indirectly an investor is an invalid
10 one. And in Paragraph 54, it states quite clearly that, if 11 necessary, we are seeking to plead our claim derivatively.

12 That's all I have today, Your Honor. If there's more I
13 can answer, I will do my best.

14 THE COURT: Okay. So, am I hearing that the DAF
15 acknowledges that CLO Holdco, its one-hundred-percent
16 subsidiary, last I knew, that it is actually the investor in 17 Multi-Strat, not DAF? Am I hearing that?

18 MR. BRIDGES: Mostly yes, Your Honor. I'd like to 19 quibble around the edges. I believe it is not a one-hundred-
20 percent-owned subsidiary.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. BRIDGES: My recollection is that it's --

23 THE COURT: Well, forget that hundred percent. But 24 the point is I'm hearing DAF acknowledge that it's CLO Holdco
25 that it is at least partly an owner of, if not mostly an owner

1 of, CLO Holdco is the one that invested in Multi-Strat.

2 MR. BRIDGES: I believe Highland is correct on that,
3 Your Honor. Yes.

4 THE COURT: Okay. So your argument is that the DAF
5 still would have standing because it should be considered an 6 indirect owner of interest in Multi-Strat?

7 MR. BRIDGES: Slightly different from that, Your 8 Honor. Not only is it an indirect investor, it also is 9 receiving investment device -- advice from Highland for the 10 purposes of directing its subsidiaries or counsel to these 11 subsidiaries or aiding them in making investment decisions.
12 So that investment advice and the contract claims are still 13 relevant, whether the investment by the DAF is direct or 14 indirect. The relationship is, in all important aspects, the 15 same, regardless of whether the investment in the ultimate
16 asset is a direct one or an indirect one.

17 And Your Honor, I don't believe there's anything unusual 18 about that relationship between a subsidiary and its -- and 19 its parent.

20 THE COURT: You don't think there's anything unusual
21 about what?

22 MR. BRIDGES: About the relationship --

23 THE COURT: About only naming the parent as a party,
24 not the subsidiary that actually owns the investment?

25 MR. BRIDGES: No, Your Honor. That's not what I was

1 referring to.

2 The relationship between a parent entity that uses
3 subsidiaries to make its investment is a not-unusual corporate 4 arrangement.

5 THE COURT: Oh, well, certainly. I wouldn't think it
6 would be. But I'm more focused on the parent being the 7 Plaintiff in the lawsuit and not the subsidiary.

8 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, I think that's what 9 derivative case law and the statutes that govern it are all
10 about. This is not a novel thing.

11 THE COURT: I think you've got it flip-flopped, don't 12 you? I mean, usually, derivative -- I mean, I guess I -- I 13 see what you're saying. The entity has a cause of action and 14 it won't bring it for whatever reason, so the shareholders --
15 here, I guess you're saying the DAF -- would ask for standing.
16 It doesn't seem like the same thing we usually -- the same
17 context we usually see derivative litigation brought in.
18 Would you acknowledge that?

19 MR. BRIDGES: I think in the federal courts what 20 you're referring to is shareholder derivative actions that 21 indeed tend to fit the paradigm you're talking about.

22 It is not unusual at all, however, for a majority owner of 23 an LLC to bring an action that is derivative on behalf of the 24 LLC, or a minority but a significant minority member of an LLC
25 or another type of company to bring such action. Shareholder

1 derivatives are not the only kind of derivative action.

2 THE COURT: Okay. I think that's all the questions I
3 have. Anything else?

4 (No response.)

5 THE COURT: Anything else? Okay. I guess -- that
6 was directed to you, Mr. Bridges. Anything else?

7 MR. BRIDGES: I'm sorry. Not from me, Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Demo, you have the last
9 word.

10 MR. DEMO: Thank you, Your Honor. And I'll be fairly 11 brief.

12 Mr. Bridges I think is still -- I'm sorry, not -- 13 Plaintiff I think is still confused about what an 14 administrative claim, expense claim is and how the Reading
15 exception applies. In Reading, there was no benefit to 16 burning down somebody's house. In A.I. [sic] Copeland, which 17 is a Fifth Circuit case, a debtor improperly failed to turn
18 over tax claims -- I'm sorry, tax distributions, tax payments, 19 to the State of Texas, in violation of Texas statutes. That 20 was an administrative expense claim.

21 All of the claims here arise from Highland's alleged 22 intentional or negligent breach of its fiduciary duties to the 23 DAF -- again, not an investor in Multi-Strat, but that's what 24 was pled. All of those fall under the Reading exception.

25 And to Plaintiff's point about, you know, there not being

1 a benefit to the estate here, I would read you the last line
2 of Paragraph 49, which says that one of the breaches includes
3 utilizing the sale proceeds for its own names, namely -- I'm
4 sorry. Utilizing -- let me start over, Your Honor. It says,
5 "utilizing the sale proceeds for its own end, namely, to 6 enrich itself." That's Mr. Bridges, that's Plaintiff's
7 complaint. They are alleging that we took these actions to 8 benefit Highland during the course of the bankruptcy.

9 Either way you slice it, Your Honor, this is an 10 administrative expense claim. We think Reading is directly on 11 point, that they have pled a substantial benefit to the 12 estate. They basically pled that we took these assets and 13 absconded with them.

14 Either way you slice it, under Reading, it applies. Under 15 benefit to the estate, under their complaint, it applies.
16 This is an administrative expense claim and had to be filed by 17 the administrative expense claim bar date.

18 And, again, with respect to the plan injunction, Your 19 Honor, even if Mr. Bridges was right -- I'm sorry. Even if 20 Plaintiff were right, and they're not, and I do think a point
21 needs to be made here, is that Plaintiff is the only party,
22 Plaintiff and PCBM, are the only parties who did not
23 understand the plan. Even Mr. Dondero's other affiliates --
24 NexPoint, NexPoint Advisors, Highland Capital Management Fund
25 Advisors, and CPCM -- all were able to file administrative

1 expense claims in this Court on or substantially before the
2 administrative expense claims bar date. Plaintiff's
3 interpretation and confusion with the plan injunction applies
4 only to Plaintiff. They are on an island here.

5 And yes, it's also wrong. And even if Plaintiff were 6 confused about that when they filed their complaint in the 7 Northern District of Texas, they cannot say they were confused
8 about that after the November 2021 hearing, where Your Honor
9 told them bluntly and blatantly that they misunderstood the 10 plan injunction and where Highland told them that they were 11 not without a remedy, that their remedy was to file an
12 administrative expense claim in this Court.

13 So, even giving Plaintiff the benefit of the doubt that 14 they did innocently misunderstand the plan injunction, that 15 misunderstanding ended in November of 2021, eight months ago.
16 During that eight-month period, Plaintiff again did nothing.
17 Plaintiff only made a request, and a procedurally-improper
18 request, to have the claim treated as late-filed when it
19 responded to our motion to dismiss.

20 With respect to the policy here, Your Honor, I think Your 21 Honor nailed it in Taco Bueno. Bar dates are important.
22 Administrative expense bar dates are extremely important. And 23 so now I understand under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15
24 and all the other Federal Rules you do want to get to the 25 merits, but 503 applies here, Your Honor. There are separate

1 procedures dealing with administrative expense claims, and
2 those procedures are important to protect not just the Debtor
3 but all creditors in this matter.

4 This is not a two-party dispute. Bankruptcy is not a two-
5 party game. There are other creditors here who have been 6 waiting ten, ten years, a decade to be paid. And Plaintiff is 7 coming in and saying, you know what, we should get an 8 administrative expense claim. We should be able to take 9 a-hundred-cent dollars off the top. And they're doing that,
10 Your Honor, without any evidence whatsoever. No evidence of 11 cause under 503(a). No evidence under Pioneer. And not even 12 an attempt to plead them.

13 The policy here does not favor them. It favors the 14 estate. It favors all other creditors in this action who are 15 relying on the confirmed plan that has been confirmed for well
16 over a year now, Your Honor.

17 And the last thing I'll say on standing, I do think
18 Plaintiff's arguments on direct and derivative are just way
19 off. But I don't think they matter, Your Honor, because,
20 again, regardless of the liberal amendment standards in 15,
21 and regardless of the language in 17, amendment here is 22 futile. That is our point. It doesn't matter if they fix the 23 standing issues. Their complaint is still going to be time-
24 barred. And they still, like today, they still will have no
25 evidence of cause or excusable neglect to justify that

1 complaint.

2 Again, happy to answer any questions, Your Honor, but we
3 do think this is a straightforward matter. And with that,
4 I'll cede my time.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

6 The Court is going to grant the motion to dismiss. And 7 I'm obviously going to write this up. But there's no question
8 whatsoever that the purported claims against Highland that 9 have been asserted in this action by the DAF concerning the 10 Multi-Strat sales of assets, they arise from postpetition
11 transactions, and to the extent the claims are valid, they 12 would have given rise to postpetition administrative expense
13 claims. There's just no -- there's no legitimate argument to 14 the contrary on that.

15 And so that means this is a Section 503(b) issue, not a
16 Rule 15 or a Rule 17 issue.

17 Not only did the plan provide a specific procedure for 18 filing administrative expense claims, but 503 of the 19 Bankruptcy Code also contemplates such a procedure.

20 And as this Court held in a lengthy opinion in the Taco
21 Bueno case, these procedures have to be strictly complied
22 with. It's very clear from the language of the Code, and the 23 legislative history, if the language of the Code weren't 24 clear, that proofs of claim are very different things than 25 postpetition claims that arise. You file a proof of claim, a

1 simple form, for a prepetition claim. It's deemed allowed if
2 no one objects. You don't even have to get an order. But,
3 again, as I explained in Taco Bueno, a 503 administrative
4 expense claim is a very different animal. Okay? You have to
5 put the world on notice.

6 As Mr. Demo said, it's not a two-party dispute. It's a
7 type of claim that potentially every unsecured creditor in the
8 case would care about and want to weigh in on. You're held to 9 strict proof.

10 And, again, as I noted from the Supreme Court Reading
11 case, the Supreme Court has said technically there doesn't
12 have to be a benefit to the estate. There are some things
13 that are just a cost of doing business. A fire to a
14 neighbor's building didn't benefit the estate, but still the 15 victim of that fire was entitled to an administrative expense
16 claim. But this is not even the stretch that a fire would be.
17 So there's just zero room for argument, I think, here that the 18 claims asserted in this action are of the nature of
19 administrative expense claims, postpetition claims, and a
20 request had to be filed by September 25th.

21 And to the extent a sentence or two in this response filed
22 July 5th, 2022 is a request to file a late-filed
23 administrative expense claim, I mean, it's procedurally
24 improper in every way. And so I'm not going to grant any 25 relief based on that.

1 Last, the standing issue. While I have the view that CLO
2 Holdco would have been the party aggrieved here if these
3 claims are valid, and there does appear to be a problem with
4 the standing of the Charitable DAF, I think this is a moot
5 point or an irrelevant point. While under 17 I could, in
6 different circumstances, allow the proper party to substitute
7 in, it would be an exercise in futility here because, again,
8 we're ten months past the deadline for a timely filing of an
9 administrative expense claim.

10 So, I will draft up an opinion and order in this regard.

11 Let me just throw this out here so no one is surprised or 12 on a different page. I don't think I have to do a report and 13 recommendation on this. And anyone who wants to weigh in can
14 weigh in, but as you know, --

15 MR. DEMO: Your Honor?

16 THE COURT: Oh.

17 MR. DEMO: I'm sorry. I was just agreeing with Your
18 Honor. This is the claims allowance process. This is a pure
19 core proceeding at this point.

20 THE COURT: Okay. And so certainly I'll also hear
21 from Mr. Bridges if he has a comment.

22 But the way I look at this is, okay, we start with the 23 point of Judge Godbey, I think it was, had this one. He sua
24 sponte referred this to the Bankruptcy Court. There wasn't a
25 report and recommendation where I said, I think you should

1 either not withdraw or withdraw but let the Bankruptcy Court
2 do pretrial matters. He just sua sponte did that. Okay?

3 But then a couple of additional points. Rule 7012(b)
4 says that a responsive pleading to a 12(b)(6) or a 12(b)(1),
5 any -- shall include a statement that the party does or does
6 not consent to the entry of final orders of judgment by the
7 Court. So I guess we could argue, does that apply to the
8 Movant or does it apply to the Respondent? But I think it
9 probably applies to the Respondent here, and so there was
10 just nothing in the response as to whether Respondent did or 11 did not consent to entry of a final order, so I would view
12 that as a waiver.

13 But most importantly of all, I guess, my third point on
14 this is I think this is an arising-in core matter, not merely 15 related to, where consent is necessary. Because certainly
16 the idea of do you need an administrative expense claim or
17 not and were the proper procedures followed, I think that's 18 core arising in.

19 So, for all of these reasons, I'm letting you know I'm 20 not doing this in a report and recommendation. I'm just 21 doing this in an opinion and order.

22 Mr. Bridges, anything you want to say about that?

23 MR. BRIDGES: Yes, Your Honor. If I could back up
24 and correct myself first. I think I was mistaken about CLO
25 Holdco. They are indeed, I am told, the hundred-percent

1 subsidiary of the Plaintiff, the Charitable DAF.

2 Secondly, yes, Your Honor, this is a Rule 12 motion in an
3 adversary proceeding. We would object to a final order and
4 ask you to issue a report and recommendation.

5 THE COURT: Well, you didn't put that in your
6 response. What is your comment about that?

7 MR. BRIDGES: Your Honor, my comment on that is I
8 feel -- I feel like my hands are tied by the injunction. We
9 haven't been able to file any motion for leave on fear of --
10 on pain of getting a ruling from this Court against us as to 11 the injunction, but we don't have clarity as to what we're 12 enjoined from and what we are not. And I guess that would be
13 my basis.

14 THE COURT: Okay. Well, I don't know what that has
15 to do it with putting a sentence in a response that's required
16 by 7012(b) saying whether you consent or don't consent. I
17 don't know what an injunction has to do with that.

18 But anyway, I do view this as an arising-in matter where 19 consent is probably irrelevant, but I'm just dotting all our 20 I's here.

21 All right. I will -- I've got one law clerk working on
22 one under-advisement of Highland that I think is pretty close.
23 I've got another law clerk working on another under-advisement
24 in Highland that is getting there. So I think I'll probably 25 just jot out a pretty fast opinion and order on this one,

44

1 because the facts on it are pretty simple, and I think
2 probably in a few days you'll have it.

3 All right. We're adjourned.

4 THE CLERK: All rise.

5 MR. DEMO: Thank you.

1 matter as well as financing in distressed matters during that
2 time.

3 In 1999, I went to the business side and I began to manage
4 distressed assets at Lehman Brothers as well as a leverage
5 finance business. That grew into my running the risky finance
6 business as well as the loan business at Lehman globally,
7 which included high-grade loans, high-yield loans, trading and 8 sales of those products, a big part of distressed, all of 9 restructuring, all of asset management, and all of the hedging
10 of the portfolio that we had.

11 From there, I left Lehman with a small group and sold it
12 to Barclay's. I moved on and ran a hedge fund with two former 13 partners of mine who are the founding partners called River
14 Birch Capital. It was a long-short credit fund; mostly 15 credit, though we did structured finance as well, and we also 16 handled some equities.

17 Q Okay. Let's spend a few minutes, as a preview, talking 18 about the Debtor and its business. And let's start with the 19 basics. Is there a way you can summarize the business of the 20 Debtor?

21 A I think, from a high level, the best way to think about 22 the Debtor is that it's a registered investment advisor. As a 23 registered investment advisor, which is really any advisor of 24 third-party money over $25 million, it has to register with 25 the SEC, and it manages funds in many different ways.

005853

Seery - Direct

17

1 The Debtor manages approximately $200 million current
2 values -- it was more than that at the start of the case -- of 3 its own assets. It doesn't have to be a registered investment
4 advisor for those assets, but it does manage its own assets,
5 which include directly-owned securities; loans from mostly 6 related entities, but not all; and investments in certain 7 funds which it also manages.

8 In addition, the Debtor manages about roughly $2 billion
9 in -- $2 billion in total managed assets, around $2 billion in 10 CLO assets, and then other entities, which are hedge funds or 11 PE style.

12 In addition, the Debtor provides shared services for 13 approximately $6 billion of assets. Those are assets that are 14 owned by related entities but not owned by Debtor-owned or 15 managed entities. And those are a combination of back office
16 services, which include timely reporting, asset management,
17 legal and compliance support, trading and research support,
18 but not the actual management of the assets.

19 The Debtors run -- and I think the way to think about it
20 is on a functional basis; at least, that's the way I think 21 about it -- and there's really six areas. There's corporate 22 management; finance, accounting and tax; trading and research;
23 private equity and fund investing; compliance and legal; and 24 then structured equity, which really includes all of the CLO
25 businesses.

005854

Seery - Direct

18

1 The goals of the Debtor generally are what you'd expect
2 out of an asset manager. A little bit different than most 3 because the Debtor does own assets, which is a little
4 different than when money asset managers typically hold assets
5 away from the asset manager. But number one, discharge
6 Highland's, which I'll call Highland (inaudible), LP, duties
7 to investors in the funds. Those are fiduciary duties under 8 the Investment Advisors Act. Each day, you've got to make 9 sure that you do that first and foremost.

10 Number two, create positive MPD in each of the funds that 11 we manage, either through sales, purchases, or hedging.

12 Next, make sure that we report timely finances of our own
13 assets, including in the funds, but also, to the third-party
14 investors. Maximize the value of HCMLP's owned assets. And 15 then operate as efficiently as possible for the lowest cost.

16 That's essentially how the Debtor -- how we think about 17 the Debtor from a functional perspective. It's got about 70
18 employees laid out in those areas that I mentioned, and each
19 of those employees every day usually think about those goals
20 and try to discharge their duties by focusing on those goals.

21 Q Thank you, Mr. Seery. And can you describe for the Court
22 how those 70 or so employees are organized? Is there an 23 internal corporate structure that you're working with?

24 A Yeah. The way -- the way -- I apologize. The way we 25 think about it is, as I said, corporate management, which is 005855

Seery - Direct

19

1 really HR and overseeing the function that it's filling every
2 day, that's been really -- because Mr. Dondero was removed
3 from management. It used to all roll up to him. That's been 4 effectively rolling up to me since February.

5 Finance, accounting, and tax. Each of these businesses
6 every day require certain amounts of liquidity. Each of them
7 have requirements that they have to pay out to investors.
8 Each of them have expenses. And all of them have different 9 kinds of tax either obligations or reporting. Those are 10 managed by Frank Waterhouse as the CFO. (inaudible), sorry.

11 Trading and research. With respect to the assets, they're 12 not -- they're not static assets. Many of them do get traded 13 on a regular basis. A gentleman, Joe Sowin, heads up the 14 trading of the liquid assets. John Povish (phonetic) heads up
15 the research and the trading of the more illiquid assets, but 16 not PE. In addition, we have PE assets that require some 17 management every day, including Board seats. That's a 18 gentleman by the name of Cameron Baynard, and also he will 19 fund investments in that area. J.P. Sevilla is responsible 20 for working with Cameron on those investments and leading that 21 team.

22 Importantly, because of the nature of what the Debtor
23 does, the fiduciary obligations, as well as the 24 responsibilities to each investor and the legal overlay, we 25 have a robust compliance and legal department. That's headed

005856

Seery - Direct

20

1 by Thomas Surgent and Scott Ellington. Scott: more focused
2 on transactional issues with respect to legal. He is actually
3 general counsel. Everything that has do with compliance, the 4 interrelatedness of the funds, trading between funds or 5 positions that are shared across funds, which are many, runs
6 through Thomas Surgent and his team.

7 And finally, structured equity. Sitting on top of the 8 structured finance business that we have, understanding those 9 assets, particularly of two billion-ish assets in CLOs, that's 10 headed by Hunter Covitz.

11 Q Can you describe for the Court your interaction with each
12 of the department heads that you just identified?

13 A Well, depending on the nature of the issue each day, I
14 have at least -- I'd say generally at least weekly contact
15 with most, often daily contact with most. So, for example, 16 when there are trading issues, particularly as the market was 17 extremely volatile with respect to unliquid securities, Joe
18 Sowin and I were on the phone several times a day.

19 Relating to the COVID issues, Brian Collins, who heads the 20 HR group, and I were on the phone several times a day.

21 Relating to structured equity, depending on what's 22 happening with a particular fund or what's happening in loan
23 prices, I speak to Hunter Covitz. And it goes down the line.

24 So it really depends on each of the areas and what's going 25 on in the business, but I try to touch base with each of those

005857

Seery - Direct

21

1 department heads on a regular basis.

2 Frank Waterhouse, of course, is at least weekly. We have 3 a standing call every week to make sure that we're focused on 4 liquidity, which is always a concern in a Chapter 11, and 5 Frank and his team are on that call and prepare weekly
6 materials for us.

7 Q Okay.

8 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, before I move to the next
9 area of questions, the work of the Board, I just wanted to see
10 if the Court had any questions on the corporate organizational 11 structure, the internal structure of the business, or any of 12 the matters that Mr. Seery touched on?

13 THE COURT: I do not. And I do have in front of me a 14 demonstrative aid that Mr. Annable sent over ahead of time, so
15 I appreciate that as well.

16 MR. MORRIS: Okay. Your Honor, I think Mr. Seery
17 covered much of what's on that document, but if you'd like him
18 to go through that, we're happy to do it.

19 THE COURT: No, that's fine.

20 MR. MORRIS: Okay.

21 BY MR. MORRIS:

22 Q Then let's shift gears a little bit and start talking 23 about the work of the Independent Board itself. The 24 Independent Board was appointed in mid-January; is that right?

25 A Yeah. It was the first -- January 9th, the first week of 005858

Seery - Direct

22

1 January, and we started working that afternoon.

2 Q Okay. Can you describe for the Court what the -- the 3 Board's initial focus? What were you focused on?

4 A Well, if you think about the areas that I just mentioned
5 previously, the Board initially, for lack of a better term,
6 gang-tackled everything. So we tried to make sure that we had 7 a broad base of understanding among the three of us with 8 respect to the business.

9 I, because of my background, had a lot more familiarity
10 with asset management, these type of asset security 11 businesses. But we wanted to make sure that each of us was at 12 least facile with the main areas that we had to understand.
13 First was operations. How does the company run each day?
14 Particularly, how was it going to run without Mr. Dondero?
15 And I went through some of those functional areas and how we 16 thought about those and who head each of those.

17 Next in the -- I don't mean to say it's second, because 18 it's always first, but liquidity. What did the Debtors'
19 liquidity look like? How are we going to manage that 20 liquidity, not just for the near-term, but also for the 21 medium-term, and then even into the slightly longer-term? We 22 had to think about what assets are there, what money those 23 assets might need that we would have to invest in them, and 24 whether there was liquidity in those assets that we can create
25 liquidity in order to fund the Debtors' business.

005859

23

1 Personnel, we needed a good opportunity to understand who
2 did what, not just in the senior managers that I mentioned,
3 but deeper into the staff, because we're going to rely on 4 those folks. Particularly worked through with DSI.

5 As I mentioned, the Debtor, unlike a lot of other asset
6 managers, owns a lot of assets. It's a disparate group of 7 assets, but getting a feel and understanding for what those 8 assets were, what the critical issues surrounding those assets
9 are, who managed them day-to-day: We wanted to make sure that 10 each of the directors had a good (inaudible) and understanding
11 of those issues that might arise with respect to those assets,
12 and a good sense of how quickly those issues could, you know,
13 further arise.

14 We also had to get a very good understanding of each of 15 the funds that we manage. As I said, the Investment Advisors
16 Act puts a fiduciary duty on Highland Capital to discharge its 17 duty to the investors. So while we have duties to the estate, 18 we also have duties, as I mentioned in my last testimony, to 19 each of the investors in the funds.

20 Now, some of them are related parties, and those are a 21 little bit easier. Some of them are owned by Highland. But 22 there are third-party investors in these funds who have no
23 relation whatsoever to Highland, and we owe them a fiduciary 24 duty both to manage their assets prudently but also to seek to 25 maximize value. And we wanted to make sure we had a good

005860

Seery - Direct

24

1 understanding of that.

2 Finally, with respect to the shared service arrangements,
3 we needed to get an understanding of that $6 billion in assets
4 and how our business, HCMLP, worked with those -- those shared
5 service counterparties and exactly who did what for whom.
6 It's very complicated because it had been run much more on a
7 functional basis than on a line basis from each contract. So
8 it's not as if your employees are allocated to NexBank. It's 9 the whole panoply of businesses that we enter into, and 10 providing those services to NexBank, not through a central 11 point but through whatever requests come in from the counter-
12 parties. So we needed a good understanding of what those 13 contracts looked and what those obligations were.

14 A VOICE: John, you're on mute.

15 MR. MORRIS: Thank you.

16 BY MR. MORRIS:

17 Q All of that work was going on in the first weeks of the 18 appointment of the Board?

19 A Yeah, it would not be fair to say we could do that in a 20 couple weeks. So it took far longer than that. But that 21 didn't mean that issues didn't start to arise immediately in 22 February. And so, while we were learning, we were also 23 starting to get a feel for different things that could happen
24 in the company.

25 As in many companies, immediately, one of the first things

005861

Seery - Direct

25

1 you have to deal with is, particularly at the beginning of the
2 year, what does compensation look like; who are the -- what do
3 promotions look like; are you going to be able to hold this 4 team together to service these assets? And yeah, we had that,
5 with an additional wrinkle that Highland's payment structure
6 defers a significant amount of compensation to its employees,
7 and it vests over time, and it has the very typical provision
8 that if you are not there when it vests -- when it is going to 9 be paid, actually, not when it vests. Even if you're vested,
10 if you're not there when it gets paid, you're not entitled to 11 it. And so understanding who was owed what; how the vesting
12 worked; what the compensation structure looked like compared 13 to third parties, was one of the first things we had to do.
14 And Highland has an extremely robust review process. Brian 15 Collins manages it. It's first-rate. It goes through both 16 360 in terms of what other employees think of each other as 17 well as bottoms up, in terms of performance. And then it has 18 a top-down component, which ultimately ran through Mr.
19 Dondero. Since he was effectively removed from that role, the 20 Board had to jump in and get a full understanding with Brian 21 about what the process looked like; how it was going to work;
22 how it compared to other firms; and whether we could go
23 forward with it. And that was one of the motions that was 24 brought early to the Court.

25 A Let's talk a minute about the transactional work that the 005862

1 yesterday counsel for Mr. Dondero filed a joinder in the 2 Debtors' objection to Acis's claim. So, again, just thinking
3 about this in the context of mediation, I think, with that 4 joinder, they will be a necessary party. So, going back to 5 Mr. Seery's point, this is not just --

6 THE COURT: Oh, absolutely. Mr. Dondero is --

7 MS. PATEL: -- a two-party --

8 THE COURT: -- going to be a required party in 9 mediation. Absolutely. So, --

10 MS. PATEL: Thank you, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: All right. Well, if there's nothing
12 further, we'll see you on the 21st. And, again, my courtroom
13 deputy may be reaching out before then if we've got things
14 nailed down on mediation.

4. ADVISORY BOARD.

- 4.1 Composition of Advisory Board. The Company shall establish an advisory board (the "Advisory Board") composed of two individuals, one of whom shall be a representative of CLO Holdco and one of whom shall be a representative of Dover IX (or, in each case, or any permitted successor to the interest in the Company of such Member). No voting member of the Advisory Board shall be a controlled Affiliate of the Portfolio Manager (including, for the avoidance of doubt, following a permitted transfer of CLO Holdco's interest to an Affiliate of the Portfolio Manager, if applicable), it being understood that for the purposes of this sentence none of CLO Holdco, its wholly-owned subsidiaries nor any of their respective directors or trustees shall be deemed to be a controlled Affiliate of the Portfolio Manager due to their pre-existing non-discretionary advisory relationship with the Portfolio Manager. None of the members of the Advisory Board shall receive any compensation (other than reimbursement for reasonable and documented out-of-pocket expenses) in connection with their position on the Advisory Board. The Company shall bear any fees, costs and expenses related to the Advisory Board.
- 4.2 Meetings of Advisory Board; Written Consents. The Advisory Board shall meet with the Portfolio Manager at such times as requested by the Portfolio Manager from time to time. The quorum for a meeting of the Advisory Board shall be all of its members entitled to vote. All actions taken by the Advisory Board shall be (i) by a unanimous vote of all of the members of the Advisory Board in attendance in a meeting at which a quorum is present and entitled to vote and not abstaining from voting or (ii) by a written consent in lieu of a meeting signed by all of the members of the Advisory Board entitled to consent and not abstaining from consenting. Meetings of the Advisory Board may be held in person, by telephone or by other electronic device.
- 4.3 Functions of Advisory Board. The Advisory Board shall provide (or determine not to provide) any consents or approvals expressly contemplated by this Agreement and the Offering Memorandum to be provided by the Advisory Board and, at the request of the Portfolio Manager in its sole discretion, provide general advice (which, for the avoidance of doubt, shall be non-binding) to the Portfolio Manager or the Company with regard to Company activities and operations and other matters. For the avoidance of doubt, no consent or approval of the Advisory Board shall be required for any action or determination expressly permitted or contemplated hereunder or in the Offering Memorandum and not conditioned on such a consent or approval. The Portfolio Manager shall not act contrary to the advice of the Advisory Board with respect to any action or determination expressly conditioned herein or in the Offering Memorandum on the consent or approval of the Advisory Board. Without limiting the foregoing, the Advisory Board shall be authorized to give any approval or consent required or deemed necessary or advisable under the Advisers Act on behalf of the Company and the Members, including under Section 206(3) of the Advisers Act. The Portfolio Manager may from time to time in its discretion request the Advisory Board to review and ratify certain Company matters. The consent of the Advisory Board shall be required to approve the following actions: (i) any extension of the Investment Period; (ii) any extension of the Term (other than an automatic extension following an extension of the Investment Period that has been approved by the Advisory Board); (iii) any allotment of additional equity securities by the Company; and (iv) any investment in a Related Obligation or any other transaction between the Company or any entity in which the Company holds a direct or indirect interest, on the one hand, and Highland or any of its Affiliates, on the other hand and (v) other matters as set forth in the Offering

Memorandum. Notwithstanding the foregoing or anything to the contrary set forth herein, no transaction that is specifically authorized in the governing documents of the Company shall require approval of the Advisory Board, including, without limitation, sales or securitizations of all or a portion of the Company's loan portfolio into new Qualifying CLOs (i.e. the transfer of warehoused assets into new Qualifying CLOs), investments in CLO Notes issued by CLOs managed by Highland Affiliates, and the NexBank Credit Facility and any Permitted NexBank Credit Facility Amendments, in each case as described in the Offering Memorandum. Any such approval, consent or ratification given by the Advisory Board shall be binding on the Company and the Members. Neither the Advisory Board nor any member thereof shall have the power to bind or act for or on behalf of the Company in any manner, and no shareholder who appoints a member of the Advisory Board shall be deemed to be an Affiliate of the Company or Highland solely by reason of such appointment.

- 4.4 Term of Members of Advisory Board. A member of the Advisory Board shall be deemed removed from the Advisory Board (i) if such member is no longer an officer, director, manager, trustee, employee, consultant or other representative of CLO Holdco or Dover IX, as applicable, or their respective Affiliates and shall be replaced as soon as practicable with a representative of CLO Holdco or Dover IX, or their respective Affiliates, as applicable, or (ii) if the Member represented by such member either becomes a Defaulting Member or such member ceases to be eligible to represent such Member pursuant to Clause 4.1.
- 4.5 No Duties to Other Members. No Advisory Board member who is the representative of any Member shall, to the extent permitted by law, owe a fiduciary duty to the Company or any other Member (other than the duty to act in good faith), and may, to the fullest extent permitted by law, in all instances act in such member's own interest and in the interest of the Member that appointed such member.

5. DEFAULTING MEMBERS

- 5.1 In the event any Member defaults in its obligation to pay the full amount of the purchase price of Shares called for settlement under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement on the applicable Settlement Date (such unpaid amount, an "Outstanding Settlement Amount"), the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, shall provide written or telephonic notice of such default to such Member. If such default is not cured within 5 business days after written (or if applicable telephonic or email) notice thereof given by the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, has been received by such Member, such Outstanding Settlement Amount shall automatically accrue interest on a retroactive basis from the date such Outstanding Settlement Amount was due at 12% (the "Default Interest Rate") (which interest, once paid, shall not be applied to the purchase of the unsettled Shares of such Member, but which will upon receipt be distributed pro rata to those Members who have funded any such Outstanding Settlement Amounts pursuant to this Clause 5). No such Shares which have failed to be settled will be issued to any Member until settlement of the full amount of the purchase price has been made. In addition, if such default is not cured within 10 business days after written or telephonic notice thereof given by the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, has been received by such Member (a "Defaulting Member"), the following provisions shall apply:
 - 5.2 Whenever the vote or consent of the Defaulting Member would otherwise be required or permitted hereunder or under the Articles, the Defaulting Member shall not be entitled to participate in such vote or consent in respect of his existing shareholding and with respect to any representative of such Defaulting Member on the Advisory Board, and such vote or consent shall be calculated as if such Defaulting Member were not a Member and, as applicable, any representative of such Defaulting Member on the Advisory Board were not a member of the Advisory Board.
 - 5.3 The Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may pursue and enforce all rights and remedies available, including the commencement of legal proceedings against the Defaulting Member to collect the Outstanding Settlement Amounts, together with interest thereon for the account of the Company from the date due at the Default Interest Rate, plus the costs and expenses of collection (including attorneys' fees and expenses).

- 5.4 The Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may (at the sole cost of the Defaulting Member) borrow funds from any person (other than the Defaulting Member or its Affiliates) to cover such shortfall and/or advance all or a portion of the Defaulting Member's Outstanding Settlement Amount to the Company on behalf of the Defaulting Member, and such advance shall be repaid by the Defaulting Member to the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, with interest for the account of the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, on the amount outstanding from time to time commencing on the date of the advance at the Default Interest Rate. To the extent the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, advances funds to the Company on behalf of a Defaulting Member, all distributions from the Company that would otherwise be made to the Defaulting Member shall be paid to the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, (with any such amounts being applied first against accrued but unpaid interest and then against principal), until all amounts payable by the Defaulting Member to the Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, under this Clause 5.4 (including interest) have been paid in full.
- 5.5 The Portfolio Manager, on behalf of the Company, may elect, upon notice to the Defaulting Member, to redeem the Defaulting Member's shares in an amount equal to 50% of the outstanding amount existing as of the date of the default at a price of $0.0001 per Share. Thereupon, the commitment of the Defaulting Member under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement shall be zero, the Defaulting Member shall not be obligated to make any further settlements, the voting capital of such Defaulting Member and of each other Member shall be re-determined as of the date of such default to reflect the new commitment of the Defaulting Member, and the Portfolio Manager shall revise the books and records of the Company to reflect the reduction of the commitment of the Defaulting Member. The Members agree (x) that the damages suffered by the Company as the result of a failure by a Member to settle a commitment to purchase Shares that is required by this Agreement cannot be estimated with reasonable accuracy and (y) that the foregoing provisions of this Clause 5.5 shall act as liquidated damages for the default by the Defaulting Member (which each Member hereby agrees are reasonable).
- 5.6 The Board may offer to the non-Defaulting Members (pro rata in accordance with their respective Commitments) the option of purchasing the Defaulting Member's unsettled Shares on the terms set forth in the applicable Settlement Notice (as defined in the Subscription and Transfer Agreement).
- 5.7 At the election of the Board, distributions of dividends otherwise payable to the Defaulting Member under the Articles shall not be paid to the Defaulting Member, but instead shall be applied against the amount of the Outstanding Settlement Amount (plus interest at the Default Interest Rate and related costs); provided that any amounts so applied shall be deemed to have been distributed to the Defaulting Member under the Articles.
- 5.8 The Portfolio Manager may send an amended or new Settlement Notice to the Members other than the Defaulting Member in an amount equal to the Defaulting Member's Outstanding Settlement Amount and otherwise in accordance with the Subscription and Transfer Agreement.
- 5.9 Each Defaulting Member further appoints the Portfolio Manager as agent and attorney-in-fact for the Defaulting Member and hereby grants to the Portfolio Manager an irrevocable power of attorney to take all actions necessary on its behalf to sell, assign, or transfer the commitment to purchase unsettled Shares of such Defaulting Member pursuant to Clause 5.6 or as necessary on its behalf to effect the other remedies or rights set forth in this Clause 5; provided that the Portfolio Manager shall not bind any Defaulting Member to an indemnification or other similar obligation which guarantees the financial performance of the Company or which exceeds the ability of the Defaulting Member to provide indemnification under applicable law.

6. TRANSFERS OR DISPOSALS OF SHARES

- 6.1 No Member shall sell, pledge, charge, mortgage, assign, assign by way of security, transfer, convey, exchange or otherwise dispose of its Shares or its commitment to settle purchases of Shares under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement (each a "Transfer"), other than to an Affiliate of an initial Member party hereto, without the prior written consent of the Portfolio

- Manager, which consent shall be in the sole discretion of the Portfolio Manager; provided that no such Transfer shall be made unless in the opinion of counsel reasonably satisfactory to the Portfolio Manager (who may be counsel for the Company, and which requirement for an opinion may be waived, in whole or in part, in the sole discretion of the Portfolio Manager) that:
- 6.1.1 such Transfer would not require registration under the Securities Act or any state securities or "Blue Sky" laws or other laws applicable to the Shares to be assigned or transferred and is conducted in conformance with the restrictions set forth in the Offering Memorandum;
 - 6.1.2 such Transfer would not be reasonably likely to cause the Company to be subject to tax in any jurisdiction other than of its incorporation on a net income basis, not be reasonably likely to cause the Company to become subject to registration as an investment company under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended;
 - 6.1.3 such Transfer would not cause the Company to be considered to be an entity whose underlying assets are considered to include "plan assets" by reason of investment by an "employee benefit plan" or "plan" in such entity pursuant to the U.S. Plan Assets Regulations; and
 - 6.1.4 such sale, assignment, disposition or transfer would not cause all or any portion of the assets of the Company to constitute "plan assets" under ERISA or the Code.
- 6.2 Prior to making any Transfer of Shares (other than Transfers to Affiliates of an initial Member or, in the case of CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal, to Highland, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal) a Member must first offer to the other Members a right to purchase the Shares, on a pro rata basis with respect to their current Shares, at the same price (which must be cash) as such Shares are proposed to be purchased by the prospective third party purchaser pursuant to an irrevocable offer letter. The other Members will have 30 days following receipt of the letter to determine whether to purchase their entire pro rata portion of the Shares proposed to be Transferred. If the other Members do not accept the offer, the Member may (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement) Transfer the applicable Shares that such Members have not elected to purchase to a third party at a price equal to or greater than the price described in the offer letter, provided that if the Member has not (a) entered into a definitive agreement to effect such sale within 90 days after the expiration of the period that the other Members have to accept the offer in the offer letter or (b) consummated the sale within 120 day after the entry into the definitive agreement to consummate the sale, it must comply with these right of first refusal procedures again. Any Member (other than the Member proposing to Transfer its Shares) may assign its right to purchase its pro rata portion of the Shares to any other Member (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement), any initial Member (other than the Member proposing to Transfer its Shares) may assign its right to purchase its pro rata portion of the Shares to an Affiliate (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement), and CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals (unless such Member is the Member proposing the Transfer its Shares) may assign its right to purchase its pro rata portion of the Shares to Highland, an Affiliate of Highland or other Highland Principals (subject to complying with the other Transfer restrictions in this Agreement).
- 6.3 No Highland Principal may transfer his or its interests in the Company other than (i) to a trust or other tax or estate planning vehicle or (ii) to the Portfolio Manager, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal upon the termination of such Highland Principal's (or the beneficial owner of such Highland Principal, if applicable) employment by Highland Capital Management, L.P.
- 6.4 Any transferor of any Share shall remain bound by the terms of this Agreement applicable to it prior to such transfer and that nothing in this Agreement shall constitute a waiver of any rights a Party to this Agreement may have by reason of a breach of this Agreement by a transferor prior to transfer. The transferor and/or the transferee shall bear all costs of any Transfer.
- 6.5 The Parties agree not to Transfer their Shares to any person unless such transferee agrees to be bound by the terms of this Agreement.
- 6.6 All Adherence Agreements executed pursuant to this Clause shall be executed by the transferee or allottee and each Party.

7. CONFIDENTIALITY

- 7.1 Each Party agrees to keep any information received by it pursuant to this Agreement or relating to the Business as confidential and not (save with the relevant Party's consent or as may be required by Law or the rules of any regulatory authority or any stock exchange) disclose to any person such information.
- 7.2 Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Parties agree that the HarbourVest Entities may disclose to their limited partners and prospective limited partners (including any agents of such limited partners or prospective limited partners), clients and applicable governmental agencies (a) the name and address of the Company, (b) the capital commitment and the remaining capital commitment, (c) the net asset value of such HarbourVest Entity's interest in the Company, (d) the amount of distributions that have been made to such HarbourVest Entity by the Company and the amount of contributions that have been made by such HarbourVest Entity to the Company, (e) such ratios and performance information calculated by such HarbourVest Entity using the information in clauses (a) through (d) above, including the ratio of net asset value plus distributions to contributions (i.e., the "multiple") and such HarbourVest Entity's internal rate of return with respect to its investment in the Company, and (f) tax information with respect to the Company.

8. DIVIDENDS

- 8.1 The Company agrees that it shall not, and the Portfolio Manager agrees it shall not cause the Company to, make any dividends except pursuant to the section titled "Summary—Dividend Policy" of the Offering Memorandum.

9. TERM OF THE COMPANY

- 9.1 Each Party agrees to cause the winding up and dissolution of the Company after the ten year anniversary of the date hereof (the "Term"); provided that the Portfolio Manager, in its reasonable discretion, may postpone dissolution of the Company for up to 180 days in order to facilitate orderly liquidation of the investments; provided, further, that the Term shall be automatically extended for any amount of time for which the Investment Period may be extended.
- 9.2 Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Term may be extended with the consent of the Portfolio Manager and the Advisory Board for up to two successive periods of one year each.

10. ERISA MATTERS

- 10.1 The Portfolio Manager, the Company and each Member shall use their reasonable best efforts to conduct the affairs and operations of the Company so as to limit investment in the Company by "benefit plan investors" (within the meaning of the DOL Regulations as modified by section 3(42) of ERISA) to less than the U.S. Plan Threshold. Investors should rely only on the information contained in this Offering Memorandum. No person has been authorised to give any information or to make any representations in connection with the Placing other than those contained in this Offering Memorandum and, if given or made, such information or representations must not be relied upon as having been authorised by or on behalf of the Company. An investment in the Placing Shares should constitute part of a diversified investment portfolio. Accordingly, typical investors in the Company are expected to be institutional, professional and high net worth investors, private client fund managers and brokers and other investors who understand the risks involved in investing in the Company and/or who have received advice from their fund manager or broker regarding investment in the Company.

In making an investment decision, each investor must rely on their own examination, analysis and enquiry of the Company and the terms of the Placing including the merits and risks involved. All times and dates referred to in this Offering Memorandum are, unless otherwise stated, references to Guernsey times and dates and are subject to change without further notice.

Capitalised terms contained in this Offering Memorandum shall have the meanings set out in the Offering memorandum and/or in the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Definitions”, save where the context indicates otherwise.

Restrictions on distribution and sale

The distribution of this Offering Memorandum and the offering and sale of securities offered hereby in certain jurisdictions may be restricted by law. Persons in possession of this Offering Memorandum are required to inform themselves about and observe any such restrictions. This Offering Memorandum may not be used for, or in connection with, and does not constitute, any offer to sell, or solicitation to purchase, any such securities in any jurisdiction in which solicitation would be unlawful.

For a description of restrictions on offers, sales and transfers of Shares, please refer to the sections of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Selling restrictions” below and “Purchase and Transfer Restrictions” in “Placing Arrangements”. Save as set out in these sections, there are no restrictions on the transfer of Shares under the Articles.

Forward-looking statements

This Offering Memorandum includes statements that are, or may be deemed to be, “forward-looking statements”. These forward-looking statements can be identified by the use of forward-looking terminology, including the terms “believes”, “estimates”, “anticipates”, “expects”, “intends”, “plans”, “projects”, “targets”, “aims”, “may”, “will” or “should” or, in each case, their negative or other variations or comparable terminology. These forward-looking statements include all matters that are not historical facts. They appear in a number of places throughout this Offering Memorandum and include statements regarding the intentions, beliefs or current expectations of the Company concerning, amongst other things, the investment objective and investment policy, investment strategy, financing strategies, investment performance, results of operations, financial condition, prospects, and dividend/distribution policy of the Company, and the markets in which the Company, and their respective portfolios of investments, invest and/or operate. By their nature, forward-looking statements involve risks (including those set out in the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Risk Factors”) and uncertainties because they relate to events and depend on circumstances that may or may not occur in the future. Forward-looking statements are not guarantees of future performance. The Company’s actual investment performance, results of operations, financial condition, dividend policy and the development of its investment strategy financing strategies may differ materially from the impression created by the forward-looking statements contained in this Offering Memorandum. In addition, even if the investment performance, results of operations, financial condition of the Company, and the development of its financing strategies, are consistent with the forward-looking statements contained in this Offering Memorandum, those results or developments may not be indicative of results or developments in subsequent periods. Important factors that could cause these differences include, but are not limited to:

- changes in economic conditions generally and the Company’s ability to achieve its investment objective and target returns and target dividends for investors;
- the ability of the Company to invest the cash on its balance sheet and the proceeds of the Placing on a timely basis within the investment objective and investment policy;
- foreign exchange mismatches with respect to exposed assets;
- changes in the interest rates and/or credit spreads, as well as the success of the Company’s investment strategy in relation to such changes and the management of the un-invested proceeds of the Placing;
- impairments in the value of the investments;
- the availability and cost of capital for future investments;
- the departure of key personnel employed by the Portfolio Manager;

- changes in laws or regulations, including tax laws, or new interpretations or applications of laws and regulations, that are applicable to the Company; and
- general economic trends and other external factors, including those resulting from war, incidents of terrorism or responses to such events.

Given these uncertainties, prospective investors are cautioned not to place any undue reliance on such forward-looking statements. Prospective investors should carefully review the “Risk Factors” section of this Offering Memorandum before making an investment decision. Forward-looking statements speak only as at the date of this Offering Memorandum. Although the Company undertakes no obligation to revise or update any forward-looking statements contained herein (save where required by the Offering Memorandum Rules), whether as a result of new information, future events, conditions or circumstances, any change in the Company’s expectations with regard thereto or otherwise, prospective investors are advised to consult any communications made directly to them by the Company and/or any additional disclosures through announcements that the Company may make through a website to be created or through the Administrator.

Selling Restrictions

This Offering Memorandum does not constitute, and may not be used for the purposes of, an offer or an invitation to apply for any Placing Shares by any person: (i) in any jurisdiction in which such offer or invitation is not authorised; or (ii) in any jurisdiction in which the person making such offer or invitation is not qualified to do so; or (iii) to any person to whom it is unlawful to make such offer or invitation. The distribution of this Offering Memorandum and the offering of Placing Shares in certain jurisdictions may be restricted. Accordingly, persons into whose possession this Offering Memorandum comes are required to inform themselves about and observe any restrictions as to the offer or sale of Placing Shares and the distribution of this Offering Memorandum under the laws and regulations of any jurisdiction in connection with any applications for Placing Shares, including obtaining any requisite governmental or other consent and observing any other formality prescribed in such jurisdiction.

European Economic Area

In relation to each member state of the European Economic Area which has implemented the Prospectus Directive (each, a “Relevant Member State”), no Placing Shares have been offered or will be offered pursuant to the Placing to the public in that Relevant Member State prior to the publication of a prospectus in relation to the Placing Shares which has been approved by the competent authority in that Relevant Member State, or, where appropriate, approved in another Relevant Member State and notified to the competent authority in that Relevant Member State, all in accordance with the Prospectus Directive, except that offers of Placing Shares to the public may be made at any time under the following exemptions under the Prospectus Directive, if they are implemented in that Relevant Member State:

- (a) to any legal entity which is a qualified investor as defined in the Prospectus Directive;
- (b) to fewer than 150 natural or legal persons (other than qualified investors as defined in the Prospectus Directive) in such Relevant Member State; or
- (c) in any other circumstances falling within Article 3(2) of the Prospectus Directive, provided that no such offer of Placing Shares shall result in a requirement for the publication of a prospectus pursuant to Article 3 of the Prospectus Directive or a supplemental prospectus pursuant to Article 16 of the Prospectus Directive or any measure implementing the Prospectus Directive in a Relevant Member State and each person who initially acquires any Placing Shares or to whom any offer is made under the Placing will be deemed to have represented, acknowledged and agreed that it is a “qualified investor” within the meaning of Article 2(1)(e) of the Prospectus Directive.

For the purposes of this provision, the expression an “offer to the public” in relation to any offer of Placing Shares in any Relevant Member State means a communication in any form and by any means presenting sufficient information on the terms of the offer and any Placing Shares to be offered so as to enable an investor to decide to purchase or subscribe for the Placing Shares, as the same may be varied in that Relevant Member State by any measure implementing the Prospectus Directive in that Relevant Member State and the expression “Prospectus Directive” means Directive 2003/71/EC (and the amendments thereto, including 2010 PD Amending Directive, to the extent implemented in the Relevant Member State) and includes any relevant implementing measure in each Relevant Member State and the expression “2010 PD Amending Directive” means Directive 2010/73/EU.

The distribution of this Offering Memorandum in other jurisdictions may be restricted by law and therefore persons into whose possession this Offering Memorandum comes should inform themselves about and observe any such restrictions.

The Company is an alternative investment fund for the purpose of the AIFMD. The Placing Shares may only be marketed to prospective investors which are domiciled or have a registered office in a member state of the European Economic Area (“EEA Persons”) in which marketing has been registered or authorised (as applicable) under the relevant national implementation of Article 42 of AIFMD and in such cases only to EEA Persons which are Professional Investors or any other category of person to which such marketing is permitted under the national laws of such member state.

This Offering Memorandum is not intended for, should not be relied on by and should not be construed as an offer (or any other form of marketing) to any other EEA Person.

The distribution of this Offering Memorandum in other jurisdictions may be restricted by law and therefore persons into whose possession this Offering Memorandum comes should inform themselves about and observe any such restrictions

Switzerland

This Offering Memorandum may only be freely circulated and Shares in the Company may only be freely offered, distributed or sold to regulated financial intermediaries such as banks, securities dealers, fund management companies, asset managers of collective investment schemes and central banks as well as to regulated insurance companies. Circulating this Offering Memorandum and offering, distributing or selling Shares in the Company to other persons or entities including qualified investors as defined in the Federal Act on Collective Investment Schemes (“CISA”) and its implementing Ordinance (“CISO”) may trigger, in particular, (i) licensing/prudential supervision requirements for the distributor, (ii) a requirement to appoint a representative and paying agent in Switzerland and (iii) the necessity of a written distribution agreement between the representative in Switzerland and the distributor. Accordingly, legal advice should be sought before providing this Offering Memorandum to and offering, distributing, selling or on-selling Shares of the Company to any other persons or entities. This Offering Memorandum does not constitute an issuance prospectus pursuant to Articles 652a or 1156 of the Swiss Code of Obligations and may not comply with the information standards required thereunder. The Shares will not be listed on the SIX Swiss Exchange, and consequently, the information presented in this document does not necessarily comply with the information standards set out in the relevant listing rules. The documentation of the Company has not been and will not be approved, and may not be able to be approved, by the Swiss Financial Market Supervisory Authority (“FINMA”) under the CISA. Therefore, investors do not benefit from protection under the CISA or supervision by the FINMA. This Offering Memorandum does not constitute investment advice. It may only be used by those persons to whom it has been handed out in connection with the Shares and may neither be copied or directly/indirectly distributed or made available to other persons.

United States

The Placing Shares have not been and will not be registered under the U.S. Securities Act or with any securities regulatory authority of any state or other jurisdiction of the United States and the Placing Shares may not be offered, sold, exercised, resold, transferred or delivered, directly or indirectly, within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. Persons, except pursuant to an exemption from, or in a transaction not subject to, the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act and in compliance with any applicable securities laws of any state or other jurisdiction in the United States. There will be no public offer of the Placing Shares in the United States.

Subject to certain exceptions as described herein, the Placing is only being made outside the United States to non-U.S. Persons in reliance on Regulation S under the U.S. Securities Act.

In addition, prospective investors should note that, except with the express written consent of the Company given in respect of an investment in the Company, the Placing Shares may not be acquired by: (i) investors using assets of: (A) an “employee benefit plan” as defined in Section 3(3) of ERISA that is subject to Title I of ERISA; (B) a “plan” as defined in Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code, including an individual retirement account or other arrangement that is subject to Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code; or (C) an entity whose underlying assets are considered to include “plan assets” by reason of investment by an “employee benefit plan” or “plan” described in preceding clause (A) or (B) in such entity pursuant to the U.S. Plan Assets Regulations; or (ii) a governmental, church, non-U.S. or other employee benefit plan that is subject to any federal, state, local or non-U.S. law that is substantially similar to the provisions of Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code, unless its purchase, holding, and disposition of the Placing Shares will not constitute or result in a non-exempt violation of any such substantially similar law.

If 25 per cent or more of any class of equity in the Company is owned, directly or indirectly, by U.S. Plan Investors that are subject to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code, the assets of the Company will be deemed to be “plan assets”, subject to the constraints of ERISA and Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code. This would result, among other things, in: (i) the application of the prudence and fiduciary responsibilities standards of ERISA to investments made by the Company, and (ii) the possibility that certain transactions that the Company and its subsidiaries might enter into, or may have entered into in the ordinary course of business, might constitute or result in non-exempt prohibited transactions under Section 406 of ERISA and/or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code and might have to be rescinded. A non-exempt prohibited transaction may also result in the imposition of an excise tax under the U.S. Tax Code upon a “party in interest” (as defined in ERISA) or “disqualified person” (as defined in the U.S. Tax Code), with whom a plan engages in the transaction. The Company will use commercially reasonable efforts to restrict ownership by U.S. Plan Investors of equity in the Company. However, no assurance can be given that investment by U.S. Plan Investors will not exceed 25 per cent or more of any class of equity in the Company.

For a description of restrictions on offers, sales and transfers of Placing Shares, please refer to the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Purchase and Transfer Restrictions” in “Placing Arrangements”.

(the “Company”) is a closed-ended investment company limited by shares incorporated on 30 March 2015 under the laws of Guernsey with registered number 60120. The Company changed its name from Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. to Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. on October 27, 2017.

The Company holds a partial, indirect ownership in Highland CLO Management, LLC (“Highland CLO Management”), a Delaware series limited liability company established to manage Highland CLOs, act as a “majority-owned affiliate” for purposes of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and as an “originator” for purposes of EU Retention Requirements and to hold with respect to Highland CLOs the required risk retention interests required under, and in accordance with, the U.S. Retention Rules and/or the EU Retention Requirements, as applicable (such interests with respect to any CLO, the applicable “Retention Interest”). Highland CLO Management is also partly held (on an indirect basis through Highland HCF Advisor) by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“Highland”), a Delaware limited partnership, which controls the major economic decisions of Highland CLO Management.

The Company holds a partial, indirect ownership in ACIS CLO Management, LLC (“Acis CLO Management” and together with Highland CLO Management, the “Management Companies” and each, a “Management Company”), a Delaware series limited liability company established to manage Acis CLO 2017-7, Ltd. (“Acis CLO 7”), act as a “majority-owned affiliate” for purposes of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and to hold the Retention Interests with respect to Acis CLO 7 required under, and in accordance with, the U.S. Retention Rules. Acis CLO Management is also partly held (on an indirect basis) by Acis Capital Management, L.P. (“Acis”), a Delaware limited partnership, which controls the major economic decisions of Acis CLO Management.

Each of Highland or Acis, as applicable, may hold their respective indirect ownership interests in the applicable Management Companies through, or transfer such interests to, affiliates that are intended to be, directly or indirectly, majority controlled, are majority controlled by or are under common majority control with, Highland or Acis, as applicable, with the intention that the Management Companies will remain their respective “majority-owned affiliates” for purposes of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules.

Investment Objective:

The Company’s investment objective is to provide Shareholders with stable and growing income returns, and to grow the capital value of the investment portfolio through opportunistic exposure to CLO Notes, investments in new issue CLOs sponsored by Highland and Acis CLO 7 through its interests in the Management Companies and CLO Income Notes, respectively, and senior secured loans primarily for the purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements, on both a direct basis and indirect basis, through the use of the investments described in its investment policy and through use of leverage, including, any Revolving Credit Facility, Warehouse Loan Facilities, total return swaps or repurchase agreements, in addition to secured loan facilities. With respect to the Company's investments, except with respect to Designated CLO Resets or Designated CLO Refinancings, if applicable, it is expected that the Portfolio Manager intends to seek monetization of such investments in the ordinary course in its discretion; provided that at the end of the Term, the Portfolio Manager, in its reasonable discretion may postpone dissolution of the Company for up to 180 days to facilitate the orderly liquidation of the investments.

Investment policy:

The Company's investment policy is to focus on synergistic investments in the following areas.

Loan Investments

The Company will invest on an indirect basis in a diverse portfolio of predominantly floating rate senior secured loans (or on a direct basis for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an "originator" for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements), all of which will have at least one rating, which may be public or private, from Moody's Investor Services, Inc. ("Moody's"), Standard & Poor's Financial Services LLC ("S&P") or Fitch Group, Inc. ("Fitch"). Initially, the Company's loan investments will be focused in the U.S., but depending on market conditions the Company may also invest in similar types of loans in Europe. Accordingly, there is no limit on the maximum U.S. or European exposure. Investments in U.S. or European loans may be made through a U.S. or European originator subsidiary of the Company. The Company intends to invest directly only in those senior secured loans to obligors with total potential indebtedness under all applicable loan agreements, indentures and other underlying instruments at least $250,000,000 that would generally satisfy the eligibility criteria for Highland CLOs and (without limiting the foregoing):

- Such loan is not currently deferring the payment of any accrued and unpaid interest that otherwise would have been due and continues to remain unpaid;
- Such loan provides for a fixed amount of principal payable in cash on scheduled payment dates and/or at maturity and does not by its terms provide for earlier amortization or prepayment at a price less than par;
- Such loan is not an obligation issued by Highland, any of its controlled affiliates that are investment funds or any other investment fund whose investments are primarily managed by Highland or any affiliate or company that is controlled by Highland, an affiliate thereof, or an account, fund, client or portfolio established and controlled by Highland or an affiliate thereof (a "Related Obligation");
- Such loan is neither an equity security nor by its terms is convertible into or exchangeable for an equity security and does not include an attached warrant to purchase equity securities;
- Such loan is not a bridge loan; and

- Such loan is not a zero coupon loan.

Financing of Loan Portfolios / Securitization

It is intended that the Company will periodically seek to sell or securitise all or a portion of its loan portfolio, held directly or indirectly, into new Highland CLOs where Highland CLO Management acts as CLO Manager. In doing so, Highland CLO Management may seek to adopt the “originator” model to address the Origination Requirements (as defined below) applicable to such Highland CLOs to the extent such Highland CLOs sought to comply with EU Retention Requirements. As a result, Highland CLO Management will be required to commit to: (a) establishing the relevant CLO and (b) selling certain loan investments to the relevant CLO which it has purchased for its own account initially. In addition, under current guidance, prior to closing date of the relevant CLO, Highland CLO Management expects to sell investments to the relevant CLO such that the required percentage of the total securitised exposures held by the CLO issuer will have come from Highland CLO Management (collectively, the “Origination Requirements”).

CLO Notes

The Company will from time to time invest directly or indirectly (through affiliates and subsidiaries, including the Management Companies, as more fully described below) in CLO Notes issued by Acis CLO 7, Highland CLOs, CLOs where Acis is the CLO Manager, (“Acis Legacy CLOs”), CLOs where Highland is the CLO Manager, (“Highland Legacy CLOs” and together with the Highland CLOs, Acis CLO 7 and the Acis Legacy CLOs, the “Managed CLOs”) or CLOs managed by other asset managers.

With respect to each such investment, Highland CLO Management, and Acis CLO Management with respect to Acis CLO 7, will acquire the percentages and tranches of CLO Notes necessary to enable the related CLO to meet the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and, if applicable, the EU Retention Requirements.

With respect to any such investments in Highland CLOs where Highland CLO Management acts as CLO Manager, it is expected that Highland CLO Management will be a “relying adviser” of Highland. With respect to Acis CLO 7, Acis CLO Management is a “relying adviser” of Acis. It is further expected that Highland or Acis, as applicable, will act as a “sponsor” of such Managed CLOs for purposes of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and will treat the applicable Management Company as its “majority-owned affiliate” under the U.S. Risk Retention Rules. All management and incentive fees received from such Managed CLO will be paid to the applicable Management Company pursuant to the relevant portfolio management agreement, which will then pay the majority of such fees to Highland or Acis, as applicable, in its roles as Staff and Services Provider and as Sub-Advisor. The applicable Management Company may also seek to act as “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements with respect to such Managed CLOs as described above.

Each CLO in which the Company directly or indirectly holds CLO Notes will have its own eligibility criteria and portfolio limits. These limits are designed to ensure the portfolio of loans within the CLO meets a prescribed level of diversity and quality as set by the relevant rating agencies rating securities issued by such CLO. The applicable CLO Manager, including Highland CLO Management with respect to new Highland CLOs or Acis CLO Management with respect to Acis CLO 7, intends to identify and actively manage loans which meet those criteria and limits within each CLO. The eligibility criteria and portfolio limits within a CLO will typically include the following required criteria and may include some or all of the following expected criteria:

- a limit on the weighted average life of the portfolio;
- a limit on the weighted average rating of the portfolio;
- a limit on the maximum amount of portfolio assets with a rating lower than B-/B3/B-; and
- a limit on the minimum diversity of the portfolio.
- a limit on the minimum weighted average of the prescribed rating agency recovery rate;
- a limit on the minimum amount of senior secured assets;
- a limit on the maximum aggregate exposure to second lien loans, high yield bonds, mezzanine loans and unsecured loans;
- a limit on the maximum portfolio exposure to covenant-lite loans;
- an exclusion of project finance loans;
- an exclusion of structured finance securities;
- an exclusion on investing in the debt of companies domiciled in countries with a local currency sub investment grade rating; and
- an exclusion of leases.

The above are not intended to be an exhaustive list of the eligibility criteria and portfolio limits within a typical CLO and the inclusion or exclusion of such limits and their absolute levels are subject to change depending on market conditions.

Act as Risk Retention Provider

The Company may also invest in, provide loans to, or purchase performance-linked notes from, asset management subsidiaries, affiliated with the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies and which may act as the asset manager of certain U.S. or European CLOs in order to satisfy the U.S. Risk Retention Rules or EU Retention Requirements.

Allocation of Investment Opportunities

Highland CLO Management will serve as CLO Manager to each newly-issued Highland CLO during the Investment Period.

During the Investment Period, the Company shall receive priority allocations with respect to all CLO Income Note investment opportunities with respect to new issue Highland CLOs, over the account of the Portfolio Manager, its affiliates and other clients, including other investment funds and client accounts, including those which follow an investment program substantially similar to that of the Business (such other clients, funds and accounts, collectively, the “Other Accounts”). For the avoidance of doubt, the Portfolio

Manager shall otherwise allocate investment opportunities among the Company and Highland and its affiliates and Other Accounts in accordance with its allocation policy which requires allocations among clients to be fair and equitable over time. See “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to Conflicts of Interest—The Company will be subject to various conflicts of interest involving the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates”.

Investment Restrictions:

During the Investment Period, the Company may invest up to $250,000,000 in CLO Income Notes for new Highland CLOs as follows: (a) up to $150,000,000 in the aggregate from new capital contributions; and (b) up to $100,000,000 in the aggregate from proceeds received from existing seed portfolio investments and investments in new Highland CLOs, net of dividends paid, and amortization and interest payments on Company borrowings from committed credit facilities.

The Company may not, without the consent of the Advisory Board, invest in any CLO Notes or CLO Income Notes of new Highland CLOs that are not Qualifying CLOs. A “Qualifying CLO” is a Highland CLO (a) pursuant to which Highland, the Portfolio Manager, Highland CLO Management or any of its affiliates does not charge subordinate management fees in excess of 0.00%, senior management fees in excess of 0.15% or incentive management fees in excess of 0.00% and (b) which does not have a reinvestment period longer than 5 years; provided that, if the Portfolio Manager has provided reasonable evidence to the Advisory Board that a substantial portion of new issue CLOs have reinvestment periods longer than 5 years (the “RP Condition”), the consent of the Advisory Board to invest in any Highland CLO that meets clause (a) of the definition of Qualifying CLOs only shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed.

During the Investment Period, the Company shall be permitted to invest in a refinancing or “reset” with respect to the following CLOs (which may extend the re-investment period and/or term of such CLOs, subject to the proviso below) managed by Highland affiliates (the “Designated CLO Resets”):

Acis CLO 2013-1, Ltd.
Acis CLO 2014-3, Ltd.
Acis CLO 2014-4, Ltd.
Acis CLO 2014-5, Ltd.
Acis CLO 2015-6, Ltd.

provided that, with respect to Acis CLO 2014-3, Ltd., Acis CLO 2014-4, Ltd. and Acis CLO 2014-5, Ltd., any such Designated CLO Reset may not extend the re-investment period beyond 2.25 years of the date of such Designated CLO Reset.

During the Investment Period, the Company shall be permitted to invest in a refinancing with respect to Acis CLO 7 (which may not extend the re-investment period or term of such CLO) (the “Designated CLO Refinancing”).

For the avoidance of doubt, following the expiration of the Investment Period, the Company shall not consummate an investment in any “reset” with respect to CLO Income Notes held by the Company. In addition, the Company shall not permit a reset with respect to any CLO Income Notes of Managed CLOs that it holds, unless such CLO Income Notes of Managed CLOs are fully redeemed.

The Company shall not invest in the CLO Income Notes of a new issue Highland CLO unless it is the 100% owner of the CLO Income Notes not forming part of the Retention Interest acquired by Highland CLO Management.

Indirect Actions

Neither the Portfolio Manager nor the Company may take any action indirectly through controlled subsidiaries that either the Portfolio Manager or the Company is not permitted to undertake directly as set forth herein.

Borrowing:

It is expected that the Company will have access to one or more committed credit facilities and will use advances under such facilities, together with the proceeds of the Shares, to purchase future senior secured loans (for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements) or other assets. Such facilities may take the form of any Revolving Credit Facility, Warehouse Loan Facilities, total return swaps or repurchase agreements, in addition to secured loan facilities. In addition to such facilities, the Company will be permitted to borrow money for day to day administration and cash management purposes.

Borrowing Limits

Notwithstanding the foregoing or anything to the contrary set forth herein, as of the time any such debt is incurred, the Company’s maximum gross leverage exposure (excluding the Warehouse Loan Facilities) pursuant to (a) committed secured loan facilities and any other borrowing (other than described in clause (b)) shall not exceed (i) during the Investment Period, the greater of (x) 15% of the Company’s gross asset value and (y) $50,000,000 and (ii) after the Investment Period, 15% of the Company’s gross asset value, and (b) repurchase agreements shall not exceed 75% of the Company’s gross asset value.

For purposes of the limits regarding repurchase agreements set forth in clause (b) above, the “gross asset value” of the Company shall exclude financing for CLO Notes held by a Management Company as part of a “vertical” Retention Interest (including for the Designated CLO Resets), the NexBank Credit Facility, any Warehouse Loan Facilities and cash equivalents.

Warehouse Loan Facilities

One or more multi-currency warehouse lending facilities may be entered into from time to time between (i) the Company and (ii) a warehouse provider (the “Warehouse Loan Facilities”), pursuant to which the Company is able to draw multi-currency loans from time to time in order to purchase assets for its portfolio. The Warehouse Loan Facilities will be entered into on market standard terms, as negotiated between the Company and the relevant warehouse provider in each case and will include a senior security package in favour of the warehouse provider.

Hedging and Derivatives

Without the consent of the Advisory Board, the Company may only use hedging or derivatives to hedge investments consistent with the Company's investment objectives, and not for speculative purposes.

Repurchase Agreements

The Company may not use repurchase agreements to finance the purchase of CLO Income Notes, however, the Company may pledge any already owned CLO Income Notes as additional collateral under repurchase agreements.

Revolving Credit Facility

The Company may enter into a secured revolving credit facility with a committed amount of $50,000,000 for working capital purposes (a "Revolving Credit Facility")

NexBank Credit Facility

The Company currently has a secured term credit facility provided by NexBank SSB, a Texas savings bank, with a principal amount of $22,158,337, as of September 30, 2017 (the "NexBank Credit Facility"). The Company may, from time to time, increase its borrowing under the NexBank Credit Facility up to a maximum principal amount of $30,000,000 at any time without the consent of the Advisory Board, but subject to the limitations set forth above in "Borrowing Limits". The terms of the NexBank Credit Facility, and of any increase in the principal amount thereto, shall be at or better than market standard terms and shall be promptly disclosed to the Advisory Board (any such amended terms, the "Permitted NexBank Credit Facility Amendments").

Advisory Board:

The Company shall form and assemble an advisory board (the "Advisory Board") composed of individuals who shall be representatives of certain Shareholders selected by the Portfolio Manager in its sole discretion in order to (a) provide advice to the Portfolio Manager with respect to certain issues involving conflicts of interest in any transaction or relationship between the Company and the Portfolio Manager or any of its employees or affiliates that are presented to the Advisory Board by the Portfolio Manager, and (b) be required to approve the following actions:

- Any extension of the Investment Period;
- Any extension of the Term (other than an automatic extension following an extension of the Investment Period that has been approved by the Advisory Board);
- Any allotment of additional equity securities by the Company; and
- Any investment in a Related Obligation or any other transaction between the Company or any entity in which the Company holds a direct or indirect interest, on the one hand, and Highland or any of its affiliates, on the other hand.

Notwithstanding the foregoing or anything to the contrary set forth herein, no transaction that is specifically authorized in the governing documents of the Company shall require approval of the Advisory Board, including, without limitation, sales or securitizations of all or a portion of the Company's loan portfolio into new Qualifying CLOs (i.e. the transfer of warehoused assets into new Qualifying CLOs), investments in CLO Notes issued by CLOs managed by Highland affiliates, and the NexBank Credit Facility and any Permitted NexBank Credit Facility Amendments.

No voting member of the Advisory Board shall be a controlled affiliate of Highland, it being understood that none of CLO Holdco, Ltd., its wholly-owned subsidiaries or any of their respective directors or trustees shall be deemed to be a controlled affiliate of Highland due to their pre-existing non-discretionary advisory relationship with Highland.

Each member of the Advisory Board shall owe no fiduciary or other duties to the Company or the shareholders and may act solely in the interest of the shareholder that it represents.

Neither the Advisory Board nor any member thereof shall have the power to bind or act for or on behalf of the Company in any manner, and no shareholder who appoints a member of the Advisory Board shall be deemed to be an affiliate of the Company, the Portfolio Manager or Highland solely by reason of such appointment.

Investment Period:

The Company's assets may be invested and, subject to the terms and conditions set forth in the "Dividend Policy" section below, reinvested for a period commencing on the Closing Date of the Placing and ending on April 30, 2020 (the "Investment Period"), subject to two additional one-year extensions with the consent of the Advisory Board (as hereinafter defined) and the Portfolio Manager; provided that the Term will automatically be extended by an identical length of time in the event of an extension of the Investment Period.

Termination of Investment Period following Key Person Event

The Portfolio Manager will promptly provide each Shareholder with written notice in the event that any two of James Dondero, Mark Okada, Trey Parker or Hunter Covitz (collectively, the "Key Persons") cease to devote such time to the affairs of the Company as is sufficient to effectively manage the operations of the Company (a "Key Person Event"), as determined by the Portfolio Manager in its reasonable discretion, taking into account such factors as it shall deem relevant in its reasonable discretion. The Portfolio Manager will promptly provide each Shareholder with written notice in the event of the termination of employment of any Key Person.

The Investment Period will be terminated immediately upon a Key Person Event. The Investment Period shall resume in the event that (i) the Portfolio Manager obtains or receives notice of the written election or vote of the Advisory Board to reinstate the Investment Period, or (ii) one or more Qualified Replacements (as defined below) are appointed in place of (or in addition to) the then existing Key Persons to cure the Key Person Event, in which event the Investment Period will continue until its termination as otherwise described herein without further regard to such Key Person Event.

For purposes of this Offering Memorandum, a "Qualified Replacement" means a person nominated by the Portfolio Manager and approved by the Advisory Board, such approval not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed, as a replacement for any existing Key Person or as an additional Key Person; provided that the Advisory Board will provide notice of its approval or disapproval of any person nominated to be a Qualified Replacement within 10 business days of such nomination.

For the avoidance of doubt, during any cessation of the Investment Period following a Key Person Event, (i) the Portfolio Manager may continue to require Placees to purchase Shares pursuant to the subscription and transfer agreement to fund (a) any indebtedness of the Company permitted hereunder incurred prior to the end of the Investment Period (including to repay outstanding indebtedness under any Warehouse Loan Facilities) or (b) the completion, no later than 180 days after the expiration of the Investment Period, new issue Highland CLOs that were in process at the time of such Key Person Event and (ii) the Company shall not receive priority allocations with respect to all CLO Income Note investment opportunities with respect to new issue Highland CLOs until the Investment Period resumes.

Term:

The term of the Company will end (and the Company thereafter will be wound up and dissolved) on the ten-year anniversary of the date of the Placing (the “Term”), subject to (a) automatic extension in the event of an extension of the Investment Period and (b) two additional one-year extension with the consent of the Portfolio Manager and the Advisory Board, or such earlier date after the end of the Investment Period on which the Portfolio Manager determines to terminate and wind up the Company following the receipt by the Company of all amounts reasonably expected by the Portfolio Manager to be received with respect to the Company’s assets or the sale thereof during the term and in a manner that will not cause the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies or any subsidiary thereof to violate any applicable law or contract.

The Company has been established as a closed-ended vehicle. Accordingly, there is no right or entitlement attaching to Shares that allows them to be redeemed or repurchased by the Company at the option of the Shareholder.

Placing Arrangements –

Upon the expiration of the Investment Period, all Placees will be released from any further obligation with respect to purchase Shares under their subscriptions, except to the extent necessary to:

The Board may deduct from any dividend payable to any Shareholder on or in respect of a Share all sums of money (if any) presently payable by him to the Company on account of calls with respect to existing Shares, or calls of commitments to purchase Shares pursuant to the subscription and transfer agreement or otherwise.

A Shareholder that defaults in respect of its obligation to purchase Shares pursuant to the terms of the subscription and transfer agreement will be subject to customary default provisions.

Each member of the Advisory Board and each member of any subcommittee thereof and, solely in connection with matters relating to the Advisory Board or such subcommittee, the Shareholder and/or other person or entity on whose behalf such Advisory Board member or subcommittee member serves, will have the benefit of similar exculpation and indemnification rights unless it has not acted in good faith.

Notwithstanding the foregoing or anything to the contrary set forth herein, the Company will not provide for the exculpation or indemnification of any Indemnified Person for any liability (including liability under U.S. federal securities laws which, under certain circumstances, impose liability even on persons that act in good faith), to the extent that such liability may not be waived, modified or limited under applicable law.

Under the Companies Law, any indemnity provided (directly or indirectly) by the Company to a Director, or an associated company, or a body corporate which is an overseas company and a subsidiary of the company, against any liability attaching to him in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the Company is void, except in certain circumstances.

Type and class of securities: The Shares being offered under the Placing are ordinary shares of no par value in the capital of the Company.

Description of the rights attaching to the securities: The holders of the Shares shall be entitled to receive, and to participate in, any dividends declared in relation to the Shares that they hold.

On a winding-up or a return of capital by the Company, the net assets of the Company attributable to the Shares shall be divided pro rata among the holders of the Shares.

The Shares shall carry the right to receive notice of, attend and vote at general meetings of the Company.

Unless otherwise authorised by a special resolution, the Company shall not allot equity securities on any terms unless the Company has first made an offer to each person who holds Shares to allot to him, on the same or more favourable terms, such proportion of those equity securities that is as nearly as practicable (fractions being disregarded) equal to the proportion held by the relevant person of the Shares.

Restrictions on the free transferability of the securities:

The Company has elected to impose certain restrictions (pursuant to its Articles) on the Placing and on the future trading of the Shares so that the Company will not be required to register the offer and sale of the Shares under the U.S. Securities Act, so that the Company will not have an obligation to register as an investment company under the U.S. Investment Company Act and related rules and to address certain ERISA, U.S. Tax Code and other considerations. These transfer restrictions, which will remain in effect until the Company determines in its sole discretion to remove them, may adversely affect the ability of Shareholders to trade the Shares. Due to the restrictions described below, potential investors in the United States and U.S. Persons (including persons acting for the account or benefit of any U.S. Person) are advised to consult legal counsel prior to making any offer, resale, exercise, pledge or other transfer of the Shares.

Subject to certain exceptions, the Placing is only being made outside the United States to non-U.S. Persons in reliance on Regulation S under the U.S. Securities Act.

Dividend policy:

Whilst not forming part of the investment objective or policy of the Company, dividends will be payable in respect of each calendar quarter, payable in the month following the end of such quarter. During the Investment Period, any interest, proceeds from the realization of portfolio investments or other cash generated by the portfolio in excess of the dividends paid to Shareholders as provided below will be reinvested by the Company with the objective of growing the NAV.

During the Investment Period, on the 15th of February, May, August and November of each calendar year, beginning May 15, 2018 (each a “Quarterly Dividend Date”), after satisfaction of all expenses, debts, liabilities and obligations of the Company, the Company will pay a dividend to each Shareholder at a rate of at least 8% per annum, based on such Shareholder’s aggregate capital contributions as of the prior Quarterly Dividend Date (the “Target Dividend”).

Following the Investment Period, after satisfaction of all expenses, debts, liabilities and obligations of the Company, any interest, proceeds from the realization of portfolio investments or other cash generated by the portfolio will be distributed by the Company to the Shareholders as a dividend on each Quarterly Dividend Date in accordance with the distribution priority as follows (the “Distribution Priority”):

First, 100% to the Shareholders pro rata based on the number of Shares held until each Shareholder has received (i) pursuant to this clause (i), aggregate distributions from the Company equal to all capital contributions made by such Shareholder plus (ii) an amount necessary for such Shareholder to receive a cumulative rate of return of 8.0% per annum, compounded annually, on such Shareholder's aggregate capital contributions;

Second, 100% to the Portfolio Manager until the Portfolio Manager has received aggregate distributions from the Company equal to 20% of the sum of all distributions made in excess of aggregate capital contributions made by Shareholders;

Third, 80% to the Shareholders pro rata based on the number of Shares held and 20% to the Portfolio Manager until each Shareholder has received aggregate distributions from the Company equal to all capital contributions made by such Shareholder plus an amount necessary for such Shareholder to receive a cumulative rate of return of 16% per annum, compounded annually, on such Shareholder's aggregate capital contributions; and Thereafter, 70% to the Shareholders pro rata based on the number of Shares held and 30% to the Portfolio Manager.

For purposes of this section, references herein to a "Shareholder" shall include Highland HCF Advisor in its capacity as a shareholder of the Company, if applicable, and references to "aggregate distributions" received by the "Portfolio Manager" shall not include any distributions received by Highland HCF Advisor in its capacity as a Shareholder.

The total net proceeds and an estimate of the total expenses of the issue/offer, including estimated expenses charged to the investor by the issuer or the offeror:

These expenses will be paid on or around the Placing and will include, without limitation: the cost of settlement and escrow arrangements; printing, advertising and distribution costs; legal fees; and any other applicable expenses.

Reasons for the offer and use of proceeds:

Expenses related to the Placing:

All costs associated with the Placing will be borne by the Company after the Placing and therefore the Net Placing Proceeds will be lower than the Gross Placing Proceeds immediately following the Placing.

of a Shareholder without the prior written consent of the applicable Shareholder.

RISK FACTORS

Investment in the Company should be regarded as long term in nature and involving a high degree of risk. Accordingly, prospective investors should consider carefully all of the information set out in this Offering Memorandum and the risks relating to the Company and the Shares including, in particular, the risks described below which are not presented in any order of priority and may not be an exhaustive list or explanation of all the risks which investors may face when making an investment in the Shares and should be used as guidance only.

Only those risks which are believed to be material and currently known to the Company in relation to itself and its industry as at the date of this Offering Memorandum have been disclosed. Additional risks and uncertainties not currently known, or deemed immaterial at the date of this Offering Memorandum, may also have an adverse effect on the business, results of operations, financial conditions and prospects of the Company and its net asset value. Potential investors should review this Offering Memorandum carefully and in its entirety and consult with their professional advisers before making an application to invest in the Shares.

Prospective investors should note that the risks relating to the Company and the Shares summarised in the section of this document headed “Summary” are the risks that the Directors believe to be the most essential to an assessment by a prospective investor of whether to consider an investment in the Shares. However, as the risks which the Company faces relate to events and depend on circumstances that may or may not occur in the future, prospective investors should consider not only the information on the key risks summarised in the section of this document headed “Summary” but also, among other things, the risks and uncertainties described below.

RISKS RELATING TO THE COMPANY

The Company is a recently incorporated company incorporated under the laws of Guernsey with limited history

The Company was incorporated under the laws of Guernsey on 30 March 2015. It commenced operations after the initial Placing in August 2015. As the Company has a limited operating history, investors have limited information on which to evaluate the Company’s ability to achieve its investment objective or implement its investment strategy and provide a satisfactory investment return. An investment in the Company is therefore subject to all the risks and uncertainties associated with a recently formed business, including the risk that the Company will not achieve its investment objective and that the value of an investment in the Company could decline substantially as a consequence. Any failure by the Company to do so may adversely affect its business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The Company’s returns and operating cash flows depend on many factors, including the price and performance of the investments, the availability and liquidity of investment opportunities falling within the Company’s investment objective and policy, the level and volatility of interest rates, readily accessible short-term borrowings, the conditions in the financial markets and economy, the financial performance of obligors under the investments and the Company’s ability successfully to operate its business and execute its investment strategy. There can be no assurance that the Company’s investment strategy will be successful.

The Company’s target return and target dividend yield are based on estimates and assumptions that are inherently subject to significant business and economic uncertainties and contingencies, and the actual return and dividend yield may be materially lower than the target return and target dividend yield and could be negative

The Company’s target return and target dividend yield set forth in this Offering Memorandum are targets only and are based on estimates and assumptions concerning the performance of its investment portfolio which will be subject to a variety of factors including, without limitation, the availability of investment opportunities, asset mix, value, volatility, holding periods, performance of underlying portfolio debt issuers, investment liquidity, borrower default, changes in current market conditions, interest rates, government regulations or other policies, the worldwide economic environment, changes in law and taxation, natural disasters, terrorism, social unrest and civil disturbances or the occurrence of risks described elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum, which are inherently subject to significant business, economic and market uncertainties and contingencies, all of which are beyond the control of the Company and which may adversely affect the Company’s ability to achieve its target return and target dividend yield. Such targets are based on market conditions and the economic environment at the time of assessing the proposed targets and the assumption that the Company will be able to implement its investment policy and strategy successfully, and are therefore subject to change. There is no guarantee or assurance that the target return and/or target dividend yield can be achieved at or near the levels set forth in this Offering Memorandum. Accordingly, the Company's actual rate of return and actual dividend yield achieved may be materially lower than the targets, or may result in a loss. A failure to achieve the target return and/or target dividend yield set forth in this Offering Memorandum may adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

An investment in the Company will be a speculative investment of a long-term nature and involving a high degree of risk. Shareholders could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment in the Company. Shareholders must have the financial ability, sophistication, experience and willingness to bear the risks of an investment in the Company.

Material changes affecting global debt and equity capital markets may have a negative effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations, and/or its NAV

The global financial markets have experienced extreme volatility and disruption in recent years, as evidenced by a lack of liquidity in the equity and debt capital markets, significant write-offs in the financial services sector, the repricing of credit risk in the credit market and the failure of major financial institutions. Despite actions of governmental authorities, these events contributed to general economic conditions that have materially and adversely affected the broader financial and credit markets and reduced, and in certain circumstances, significantly reduced, the availability of debt and equity capital.

Further, within the banking sector, the default of any institution could lead to defaults by other institutions. Concerns about, or default by, one institution could lead to significant liquidity problems, losses or defaults by other institutions, because the commercial soundness of many financial institutions may be closely related as a result of their credit, trading, clearing or other relationships. This risk is sometimes referred to as "systemic risk" and may adversely affect other third parties with whom the Company deals. The Company may therefore be exposed to systemic risk when the Company deals with various third parties whose creditworthiness may be exposed to such systemic risk.

Recurring market deterioration may materially adversely affect the ability of an issuer whose debt obligations form part of the Company's portfolio, or an issuer whose debt obligations form part of a CLO in which the Company holds CLO Notes, to service its debts or refinance its outstanding debt. Further, such financial market disruptions may have a negative effect on the valuations of the investments (and, by extension, on the Company's NAV), and on the potential for liquidity events involving such investments. In the future, non-performing assets in the Company's portfolio may cause the value of that portfolio to decrease (and, by extension and/or its the NAV to decrease). Adverse economic conditions may also decrease the value of any security obtained in relation to any of the investments.

Conversely, in the event of sustained market improvement, the Company may have access to a reduced number of attractive potential investment opportunities, which also may result in limited returns to Shareholders.

The Company's NAV is subject to valuation risk and the Company can provide no assurance that the NAVs it records from time to time will ultimately be realised

The Company's NAV will be calculated by third parties and will be subject to valuation risk (see the risk factor entitled "The investments may be difficult to value accurately and, as a result, the Company may be subject to valuation risk"). If a valuation estimate provided to the Company by a third party subsequently proves to be incorrect, no adjustment to any previously calculated NAV will be made. Any acquisitions or disposals of Shares based on previous erroneous NAVs may result in losses for shareholders.

The investments held by the Company will be valued quarterly and the Company's Net Asset Value will be calculated based on these values. Therefore, the actual value of the investments at any given time may be different from the value based on which the Company's latest Net Asset Value has been calculated.

Investors should note that where a loan becomes subject to a Forward Purchase Agreement (described further in the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled "Additional Information on the Company") the Company will (subject to certain conditions as set out in the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled "Additional Information on the Company”) neither receive the gain nor bear the loss that occurs between the date when the loan is added to the Forward Purchase Agreement and the date when the transfer occurs.

Each of the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Acis and the Management Companies is reliant on Highland (acting in its different capacities), asset management subsidiaries and other third party service providers to carry on their businesses and a failure by one or more service providers may materially disrupt the business of the Company and or the Management Companies

The Company has no employees and its directors have all been appointed on a non-executive basis. Highland HCF Advisor will, as part of the services to be provided under the terms of the Portfolio Management Agreement, be responsible for selecting the portfolio of investments and the acquisition, disposition or sale of investments and providing the Company with the necessary personnel, credit research and other resources to perform the functions necessary to the business of the Company. In addition, Highland or its affiliates, including the Portfolio Manager, Acis or the Management Companies, may also act as CLO Manager in respect of the Managed CLOs from time to time. The Company may also invest in, provide debt financing to, or purchase performance-linked notes from, asset management subsidiaries, affiliated with the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland or Acis, including the Management Companies, and which may act as the asset manager of certain U.S. or European CLOs in order to satisfy certain U.S. or European risk retention requirements. Therefore, the Company is reliant upon the performance of Highland and/or its affiliates, asset management subsidiaries of the Company and other third party service providers for the performance of certain functions.

Highland CLO Management relies on Highland for access to its employees (which are shared with Highland). Acis CLO Management relies on Acis for access to its employees (which are shared with Acis). Highland and Acis, as applicable, will, as part of the services to be provided under the terms of the Staff and Services Agreements, be responsible for providing the Company with the necessary credit research, back office and other resources to perform the functions necessary to the business of each of the Management Companies, including its management of CLOs. Therefore, each of the Management Companies is reliant upon the performance of Highland and Acis, as applicable, for the performance of essential functions, and may be unable to properly manage CLOs without the support of Highland or Acis, as applicable.

Failure by any service provider to carry out its obligations to the Company or the applicable Management Company in accordance with the applicable duty of care and skill, or at all, or termination of any such appointment may adversely affect the Company’s or the applicable Management Company’s, as applicable, business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

In the event that it is necessary for the Company or the applicable Management Company to replace any third party service provider, it may be that the transition process takes time, increases costs and may adversely affect the Company’s or the applicable Management Company’s, as applicable, business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The Shares will be subordinated to the rights of any secured Warehouse Loan Facility Provider or holder of any other future indebtedness or preference shares of the Company.

The Company is permitted to issue preference shares and incur indebtedness, including secured debt in the form of one or more Warehouse Loan Facilities or other lending facilities. Such preference shares and indebtedness will rank ahead of the Shares in respect of any distributions or payments by the Company to Shareholders. In an enforcement scenario under any Warehouse Loan Facility, the provider(s) of such facilities will have the ability to enforce their security over the assets of the Company and to dispose of or liquidate (on their own behalf or through a security trustee or receiver) the assets of the Company in a manner which is beyond the control of the Company. In such an enforcement scenario, there is no guarantee that there will be sufficient proceeds from the disposal or liquidation of the Company assets to repay any amounts due and payable on the Shares and this may adversely affect the performance of the Company’s business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Exculpation and Indemnification

The Articles contain provisions that, subject to applicable law, reduce or modify the duties that the Indemnified Persons would otherwise owe to the Company and the Shareholders. The Portfolio Manager will assume no responsibility under the Portfolio Management Agreement other than to render the services called for thereunder and affecting the duties and functions that have been delegated to it thereunder in good faith and, subject to the standard of conduct described in the next succeeding sentence. The Portfolio Manager will not be responsible for any action or inaction of the Company in declining to follow any advice, recommendation or direction of the Portfolio Manager. Further, Indemnified Persons will incur no liability to the Company or any Shareholder in the absence of a Triggering Event, except as otherwise required by applicable law (including the Companies Law). Any claims arising from a Triggering Event shall be limited to actual out-of-pocket damages incurred as a direct consequence of the Triggering Event, and shall not include punitive, consequential or other damages or lost profits.

Under the Articles, the Company, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law (including the Companies Law), will indemnify each Indemnified Person against all Indemnified Losses to which an Indemnified Person may become subject by reason of any acts or omissions or any alleged acts or omissions arising out of such Indemnified Person's or any other person's activities in connection with the conduct of the business or affairs of the Company and/or an investment, unless such Indemnified Losses result from any action or omission which constitutes, with respect to such person, a Triggering Event; provided, that notwithstanding the foregoing, the members of the Advisory Board or members of any subcommittee thereof shall be subject only to a duty of good faith (it being understood that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, any such member, in determining to take or refrain from taking any action, shall be permitted to take into consideration only the interests of the Shareholder and/or other person represented by such member and, in so doing, shall, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, be considered to have acted in good faith). Any claims arising from a Triggering Event shall be limited to actual out-of-pocket damages incurred as a direct consequence of the Triggering Event, and shall not include punitive, consequential or other damages or lost profits.

The fees, costs and expenses (whether or not advanced) and other liabilities resulting from the Company's indemnification obligations are generally operating expenses and will be paid by or otherwise satisfied out of the assets of the Company. The application of the foregoing standards may result in Shareholders having a more limited right of action in certain cases than they would in the absence of such standards. In particular, a "gross negligence" standard of care has been held in some jurisdictions to involve conduct that is closer to wilful misconduct. Even though such provisions in the Articles will not act as a waiver on the part of any Shareholder of any of its rights under applicable U.S. securities laws or other laws, the applicability of which is not permitted to be waived, the Company may bear significant financial losses even where such losses were caused by the negligence (even if heightened) of such Indemnified Persons.

RISKS RELATING TO THE INVESTMENT STRATEGY

General Background relating to the United States and European Risk Retention Requirements

Effective for CLOs on December 24, 2016, the so-called "risk retention" rules promulgated by U.S. federal regulators under the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (the "Dodd-Frank Act") require a "securitizer" or "sponsor" (which in the case of a CLO is considered the collateral manager) to retain directly or through a "majority-owned affiliate" at least 5% of the credit risk of the securitized assets. Highland CLO Management is being formed with intention of acting as a "majority-owned affiliate" of Highland as a "sponsor" for purposes of holding the applicable Retention Interest under U.S. Risk Retention Rules with respect to Managed CLOs and to provide a vehicle whereby the Company can invest in Managed CLOs. Acis CLO Management is intended to act as a "majority-owned affiliate" of Acis as a "sponsor" for purposes of holding the applicable Retention Interest under U.S. Risk Retention Rules with respect to Acis CLO 7 and to provide a vehicle whereby the Company can invest in Acis CLO 7.

The CLOs in which the Company invests may be structured with the intent to be compliant with the European risk retention requirements for securitisation transactions, meaning, collectively, (i) Articles 404-410 of Regulation (EU) No 575/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 (the "CRR") as supplemented by Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 625/2014 (the "CRR Retention Requirements") (ii) Articles 51-54 of the Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No 231/2013 (the "AIFMD Level 2 Regulation") implementing Article 17 of Directive 2011/61/EU on Alternative Investment Fund Managers (the "AIFMD"), and (iii) Article 254-257 of the Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2015/35 implementing Article 135(2) of Directive 2009/138/EC on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance, as amended by Directive 201/51/EU (and as supplemented by Articles 254-257 of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2015/35) (the “Solvency II Level 2 Regulation”), each together with any applicable guidance, technical standards and related documents published by any European regulator in relation thereto and any implementing laws or regulations in force in any Member State of the European Union (together with the CRR Retention Requirements and the AIFMD Level 2 Regulation, the “EU Retention Requirements” and, together with the risk retention requirements under the U.S. Risk Retention Rules, the “Retention Requirements”). Any such Company investments in CLOs intended to be compliant with the EU Retention Requirements will continue to be subject to the EU Retention Requirements. However, it is expected that, going forward, the Company’s investments in CLOs will be done primarily on an indirect basis through its indirect interest in the Management Companies. As used herein, any reference to the Company’s investments in CLOs or CLO Retention Notes shall be deemed to refer primarily to (i) prior to the formation of the Management Companies, the CLO securities the Company acquired directly and (ii) following the formation of the Management Companies, the indirect interests in CLOs it intends to hold through the applicable Management Company. Furthermore, any reference to Managed CLOs or CLOs managed by Highland, Acis, the Portfolio Manager and the Management Companies shall be deemed to refer primarily to (i) for CLOs formed prior to the formation of Acis, CLOs managed by Highland (ii) for CLOs formed after the formation of Acis and prior to the formation of Acis CLO Management, CLOs managed by Acis, (iii) for CLOs formed following the formation of Acis CLO Management and prior to the formation of Highland CLO Management, CLOs managed by Acis CLO Management and (iv) for CLOs formed following the formation of Highland CLO Management, CLOs managed by Highland CLO Management.

Although the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and the Management Companies intend to comply with the Retention Requirements, there has been no explicit guidance regarding how entities may be structured for this purpose and therefore the regulatory environment in which the CLOs intend to operate is highly uncertain. There can be no assurance that applicable governmental authorities will agree that any of the transactions, structures or arrangements entered into by the Company, Highland, Acis or the applicable Management Company, and the manner in which it expects to hold retention interests, will satisfy the Retention Requirements, including any transactions pursuant to which Highland or Acis, as applicable, may hold their respective indirect ownership interests in the applicable Management Companies through, or transfer such interests to, affiliates that are intended to be, directly or indirectly, majority controlled, are majority controlled by or are under common majority control with, Highland or Acis, as applicable, with the intention that the Management Companies will remain their respective “majority-owned affiliates” for purposes of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules. If such transactions, structures or arrangements are determined not to comply with the Retention Requirements, Highland, Acis, the applicable Management Company or the Company (as applicable) could become subject to regulatory action which could in turn materially and adversely affect the Company and/or the potential return to shareholders. The impact of the Retention Requirements on the securitization market is also unclear and such rules may negatively impact the value of the CLOs and their underlying assets.

The investments may be difficult to value accurately and, as a result, the Company may be subject to valuation risk

The Company’s portfolio may at any given time include, directly and indirectly, securities or other financial instruments or obligations which are very thinly traded, for which no market exists or which are restricted as to their transferability under applicable securities laws. These investments may be extremely difficult to value accurately. Further, because of overall size or concentration in particular markets of positions held by the Company, the value of its investments which can be liquidated may differ, sometimes significantly, from their valuations. Third party pricing information may not be available for certain positions held by the Company. Investments to be held by the Company may trade with significant bid-ask spreads. The Company is entitled to rely, without independent investigation, upon pricing information and valuations furnished by third parties, including pricing services and valuation sources. In the absence of fraud, gross negligence (under New York law), bad faith or manifest error, valuation determinations in accordance with the Company’s valuation policy will be conclusive and binding.

Market factors may result in the failure of the investment strategy

Strategy risk is associated with the failure or deterioration of an investment strategy such that most or all investment managers employing that strategy suffer losses. Strategy-specific losses may result from excessive concentration by multiple market participants in the same investment or general economic or other events that adversely affect particular strategies (for example the disruption of historical pricing relationships). Furthermore, an imbalance of supply and demand favouring borrowers could result in yield compression, higher leverage and less favourable terms to the detriment of all investors in the relevant asset class. The investment strategy employed by the Company is speculative and involves substantial risk of loss in the event of a failure or deterioration in the financial markets, although the Company has certain investment limits which define to a degree how it invests. As a result, the Company's investment strategy may fail, and it may be difficult for the Company to amend its investment strategy quickly or at all should certain market factors appear, which may adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The investment strategy of the Company includes investing predominantly in CLO Notes, and, under certain circumstances, asset management subsidiaries, all of which are subject to a risk of loss of principal

The investment strategy of the Company consists of investing predominantly in CLO Notes, directly and indirectly through its investment in the Management Companies, and, under certain circumstances, asset management subsidiaries. The company may also invest in senior secured loans (for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an "originator" for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements). Such investments may be considered to be subject to a level of risk in the case of deterioration of general economic conditions, which might increase the risk of loss of principal or investment. This could result in losses to the Company which could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

In the event of a default in relation to an investment, the Company or the CLO in which the Company holds CLO Notes will bear a risk of loss of principal, and accrued interest

Performance and investor yield on the Company's investments (including both direct investments by the Company in senior secured loans (for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an "originator" for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements) and investments in senior secured loans held by CLOs in which the Company holds CLO Notes) may be affected by the default or perceived credit impairment of such investments and by general or sector specific credit spread widening. Credit risks associated with the investments include (among others): (i) the possibility that earnings of an obligor may be insufficient to meet its debt service obligations; (ii) an obligor's assets declining in value; and (iii) the declining creditworthiness, default and potential for insolvency of an obligor during periods of rising interest rates and economic downturn. An economic downturn and/or rising interest rates could severely disrupt the market for the investments and adversely affect the value of the investments and the ability of the obligors thereof or the CLO to repay principal and interest. In turn, this may adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

In the event of a default in relation to an investment held by the Company or a CLO in which the Company holds CLO Notes, the Company will bear a risk of loss of principal and accrued interest on that investment. Any such investment may become defaulted for a variety of reasons, including non-payment of principal or interest, as well as breaches of contractual covenants. A defaulted investment may become subject to workout negotiations or may be restructured by, for example, reducing the interest rate, a write-down of the principal, and/or changes to its terms and conditions. Any such process may be extensive and protracted over time, and therefore may result in substantial uncertainty with respect to the ultimate recovery on the defaulted investment. In addition, significant costs might be imposed on the lender, further affecting the value of the investment. The liquidity in such defaulted investments may also be limited and, where a defaulted investment is sold, it is unlikely that the proceeds from such sale will be equal to the amount of unpaid principal and interest owed on that investment. This would adversely affect the value of the Company's investment portfolio and, by extension, its business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

In the case of secured loans, restructuring can be an expensive and lengthy process which could have a material negative effect on the Company's anticipated return on the restructured loan. By way of example, it would not be unusual for any costs of enforcement to be paid out in full before the repayment of interest and principal. This would substantially reduce the Company's anticipated return on the restructured loan.

The illiquidity of investments may have an adverse impact on their price and the Company's ability to trade in them or require significant time for capital gains to materialise

Credit markets may from time to time become less liquid, leading to valuation losses on the investments making it difficult to acquire or dispose of them at prices the Company considers their fair value. Accordingly, this may impair the Company's ability to respond to market movements and the Company may experience adverse price movements upon liquidation of such investments. Liquidation of portions of the portfolio under these circumstances could produce realised losses. The size of the Company's positions may magnify the effect of a decrease in market liquidity for such instruments. Settlement of transactions may be subject to delay and uncertainty. Such illiquidity may result from various factors, such as the nature of the instrument being traded, or the nature and/or maturity of the market in which it is being traded, the size of the position being traded, or lack of an established market for the relevant securities. Even where there is an established market, the price and/or liquidity of instruments in that market may be materially affected by certain factors.

The investment objective of the Company is to provide investors with stable income returns and capital appreciation from exposure on an indirect basis to a portfolio of predominantly floating rate senior secured loans, CLO Notes and, under certain circumstances, asset management subsidiaries. Investments which are in the form of loans are not as easily purchased or sold as publicly traded securities due to the unique and more customised nature of the debt agreement and the private syndication process. As a result, there may be a significant period between the date that the Company makes an investment and the date that any capital gain or loss on such investment is realised. Moreover, the sale of restricted and illiquid securities may result in higher brokerage charges or dealer discounts and other selling expenses than the sale of securities eligible for trading on national securities exchanges or in the over-the-counter markets. Further, the Company may not be able readily to dispose of such illiquid investments and, in some cases, may be contractually prohibited from disposing of such investments for a specified period of time, which could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV. See further the risk factor titled "The Company will be unable to liquidate, sell, hedge or otherwise mitigate its credit risk under or associated with the CLO Retention Notes until such time as the securities of the relevant CLO have been redeemed in full (whether at final maturity or early redemption)" below.

The Company may hold a relatively concentrated portfolio

The Company may hold a relatively concentrated portfolio. There is a risk that the Company could be subject to significant losses if any obligor, especially one with whom the Company had a concentration of investments, were to default or suffer some other material adverse change. The level of defaults in the portfolio and the losses suffered on such defaults may increase in the event of adverse financial or credit market conditions. Any of these factors could adversely affect the value of the Company's investment portfolio and, by extension, its business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

A significant portion of the Company's investment portfolio is expected to comprise directly or indirectly of Managed CLOs advised by Highland, Acis, the Portfolio Manager or a Management Company, as the CLO Manager. The performance of the Company's portfolio depends heavily on the skills of Highland, Acis, the Portfolio Manager and the Management Companies, as applicable, in analyzing, selecting and managing the relevant CLOs. See further the sections titled "Risks Relating to Highland and Acis" and "Conflicts of Interest" below.

The Company may be exposed to foreign exchange risk, which may have an adverse impact on the value of its assets and on its results of operations

The base currency of the Company is the U.S. Dollar. Certain of the Company's assets may be invested in securities and other investments which are denominated in other currencies. Accordingly, the Company will necessarily be subject to foreign exchange risks and the value of its assets may be affected unfavourably by fluctuations in currency rates. Although the Company may utilise financial instruments to hedge against declines in the value of such assets as a result of changes in currency exchange rates, it is not obliged to do so and may terminate any hedge contract at any time. Moreover, it may not be possible for the Company to hedge against a particular change or event at an acceptable price or at all. In addition, there can be no assurance that any attempt to hedge against a particular change or event would be successful, and any such hedging failure could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The hedging arrangements of the Company may not be successful

The Company's economic risks cannot be effectively hedged. However, in connection with the financing of certain investments, the Company may employ hedging techniques designed to reduce the risks of adverse movements in interest rates, securities' prices and/or currency exchange rates. However, some residual risk may remain as a result of imperfections and inconsistencies in the market and/or in the hedging contract. While such hedging transactions may reduce certain risks, they create others. The Company directly or indirectly (through affiliates and subsidiaries) will not be permitted to enter into hedging with respect to the CLO Retention Notes.

The Company may utilise certain derivative instruments (including, without limitation, single-name credit default swaps, credit default swap and loan credit default swap indexes, equity futures and equity indexes) for hedging purposes. However, even if used primarily for hedging purposes, the prices of derivative instruments are highly volatile, and acquiring or selling such instruments involves certain leveraged risks. There may be an imperfect correlation between the instrument acquired for hedging purposes and the investments or market sectors being hedged, in which case, a speculative element is added to the highly leveraged position acquired through a derivative instrument primarily for hedging purposes. In particular, the investments which are in the form of loans may, in certain circumstances, be repaid at any time on short notice at no cost, and accordingly the hedging of interest rate or currency risk in such circumstances may be less precise than is the case with investments in the public securities market.

Furthermore, default by any hedging counterparty in the performance of its obligations could subject the investments to unwanted credit and market risks. Accordingly, although the Company may benefit from the use of hedging strategies, failure to properly hedge the market risk in the investments and/or default of a counterparty in the performance of its obligations under a hedging contract may have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV, and such material adverse effects may exceed those which may have resulted had no hedging strategy been employed.

Under certain hedging contracts that the Company may enter into, the Company may be required to grant security interests over some of its assets to the relevant counterparty as collateral

In connection with certain hedging contracts, the Company may be required to grant security interests over some of its assets to the relevant counterparty to such hedging contract as collateral. Such hedging contracts typically will give the counterparty the right to terminate the agreement upon the occurrence of certain events. Such termination events may include, among others, a failure by the Company to pay amounts owed when due, a failure to provide required reports or financial statements, a decline in the value of the investments secured as collateral, a failure to maintain sufficient collateral coverage, a failure by the Company to comply with its investment policy and any investment restrictions, key changes in the Company's management, a significant reduction in the Company's Net Asset Value, and material violations of the terms, representations, warranties or covenants contained in the hedging contract, as well as other events determined by the counterparty. If a termination event were to occur, there may be a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The use of leverage by the Company may increase the volatility of returns and providers of leverage would rank ahead of investors in the Company in the event of insolvency

The Company may employ leverage in order to increase investment exposure with a view to achieving its target return, in the form of one or more committed credit facilities. Leverage may come in the form of CLO securitizations.

While leverage presents opportunities for increasing total returns, it can also have the effect of increasing the volatility of the Shares, including the risk of total loss of the amount invested. If income and capital appreciation on investments made with borrowed funds are less than the costs of the leverage, the Net Asset Value will decrease. The effect of the use of leverage is to increase the investment exposure, the result of which is that, in a market that moves adversely, the possible resulting loss to investors' capital would be greater than if leverage were not used. As a result of leverage, small changes in the value of the underlying assets may cause a relatively large change in the value of the Company. Many financial instruments used to employ leverage are subject to variation or other interim margin requirements, which may force premature liquidation of investments. Investors should be aware that the use of leverage by the Company can be considered to multiply the leverage effect on their investment returns in the Company. As described above, while this effect may be beneficial when markets' movements are favourable, it may result in a substantial loss of capital when markets' movements are unfavourable.

In addition, such leverage may involve granting of security or the outright transfer of specific investments in the portfolio. Since there is no security created in respect of the Shares, any insolvency of the Shareholders could rank behind the Company's financing and hedging counterparties, whose claims will be considered as indebtedness of the Company and may be secured. Leverage does create opportunities for greater total returns on the investments but simultaneously may create special risk considerations by magnifying changes in the total value of the Net Asset Value and in the yield on the investments held by the Company.

In addition, to the extent leverage is employed, the Company may be required to refinance transactions from time to time. On each refinancing, the applicable counterparty may choose to re-negotiate the terms of each transaction or indeed not to refinance the transaction at all. To the extent refinancing facilities are not available in the market at economic rates or at all, the Company may be required to sell assets at disadvantageous prices. Any such deleveraging may result in losses on investments which could be severe and accordingly could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Interest rate fluctuations could expose the Company to additional costs and losses

The prices of the investments that may be held by the Company tend to be sensitive to interest rate fluctuations and unexpected fluctuations in interest rates could cause the corresponding prices of a position to move in directions which were not initially anticipated. In addition, interest rate increases generally will increase the interest carrying costs of borrowed securities and leveraged investments. Further, the Company may invest in both floating and fixed rate securities and interest rate movements will affect those respective securities differently. In particular, when interest rates rise significantly the value of fixed interest rate securities often fall. Furthermore, to the extent that interest rate assumptions underlie the hedging of a particular position, fluctuations in interest rates could invalidate those underlying assumptions and expose the Company to additional costs and losses. Any of the above factors could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Additional Information about LIBOR

In a speech on 27 July 2017, Andrew Bailey, the Chief Executive of the Financial Conduct Authority ("FCA"), announced the FCA's intention to cease sustaining LIBOR from the end of 2021.

The FCA has statutory powers to compel panel banks to contribute to LIBOR where necessary. The FCA has decided not to ask, or to require, that panel banks continue to submit contributions to LIBOR beyond the end of 2021. The FCA has indicated that the current panel banks will voluntarily sustain LIBOR until the end of 2021. The FCA does not intend to sustain LIBOR through using its influence or legal powers beyond that date. The FCA's intention is that after 2021, it will no longer be necessary for the FCA to persuade, or to compel, banks to submit to LIBOR due to the development of alternative benchmark rates, which the FCA suggested should be based on transactions and not on reference rates that do not have active underlying markets to support them. As of the date of this Offering Memorandum, no specific alternative rates have been generally agreed in the CLO market.

It is possible that the LIBOR administrator, ICE Benchmark Administration, and the panel banks could continue to produce LIBOR on the current basis after 2021, if they are willing and able to do so. However, the survival of LIBOR in its current form, or at all, is not guaranteed after 2021 and, if LIBOR in its current form does not survive, it could cause a disruption in the credit markets generally, which could negatively impact the market value and/or transferability of the Notes.

It is currently unclear how LIBOR would be determined pursuant to existing underlying CLO indentures if LIBOR ceased to exist. If an alternative or a successor benchmark rate were determined, it may increase the risk of a mismatch between the interest rate applicable to the underlying loan assets and the interest rate applicable to the underlying collateral obligations of the CLOs held by the Company. Such mismatch could have a material adverse effect on the value and liquidity of the CLO Notes held by the Company.

Investors should be aware that: (a) any of these changes or any other changes to LIBOR could affect the level of the published rate, including to cause it to be lower and/or more volatile than it would otherwise be; (b) if the applicable rate of interest on any collateral obligation held by the Company is calculated with reference to a currency or tenor which is discontinued, such rate of interest will then be determined by the provisions of the affected collateral obligation, which may include determination by the relevant calculation agent in its discretion; (c) the administrator of LIBOR will not have any involvement in the collateral obligations or notes linked to those obligations and may take any actions in respect of LIBOR without regard to the effect of such actions on the collateral obligations or the notes; and (d) any uncertainty in the value of LIBOR or the admissions made by financial institutions that LIBOR has been manipulated or any uncertainty in the prominence of LIBOR as a benchmark interest rate due to the recent regulatory reforms may adversely affect liquidity of the collateral obligations or the notes in the secondary market and their market value. Any of the above or any other significant change to the setting of LIBOR could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

In the event of the insolvency of an obligor in respect of an investment, or of an underlying obligor in respect of an investment, the return on such investment to the Company may be adversely impacted by the insolvency regime or insolvency regimes which may apply to that obligor or underlying obligor and any of their respective assets

In the event of the insolvency of an obligor in respect of an investment (and in the case of the CLO Notes, the obligors of the assets within the relevant CLO's portfolio), the Company's (or the CLO issuer's, in the case of CLO Notes) recovery of amounts outstanding in insolvency proceedings may be impacted by the insolvency regimes in force in the jurisdiction of incorporation of such obligor or in the jurisdiction in which such obligor mainly conducts its business (if different from the jurisdiction of incorporation), and/or in the jurisdiction in which the assets of such obligor are located. Such insolvency regimes impose rules for the protection of creditors and may adversely affect the ability to recover such amounts as are outstanding from the insolvent obligor under the investment, which may adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Similarly, the ability of obligors to recover amounts owing to them from insolvent underlying obligors may be adversely impacted by any such insolvency regimes applicable to those underlying obligors, which in turn may adversely affect the abilities of those obligors to make payments due under the investment to the Company on a full or timely basis.

In particular, it should be noted that the United States and a number of European jurisdictions operate unpredictable insolvency regimes which may cause delays to the recovery of amounts owed by insolvent obligors or underlying obligors subject to those regimes. The different insolvency regimes applicable in the different jurisdictions result in a corresponding variability of recovery rates for senior secured loans, entered into or issued in such jurisdictions, any of which may have a material adverse effect on the performance of a CLO and, by extension, the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

A CLO issuer may be subject to losses on investments as a result of insolvency or clawback legislation and/or fraudulent conveyance findings by courts

Various laws enacted for the protection of creditors and stakeholders may apply to certain investments that are debt obligations, although the existence and applicability of such laws will vary between jurisdictions. For example, if a court were to find that an obligor did not receive fair consideration or reasonably equivalent value for incurring indebtedness evidenced by an investment and the grant of any security interest securing such investment, and, after giving effect to such indebtedness, the obligor: (i) was insolvent; (ii) was engaged in a business for which the assets remaining in such obligor constituted unreasonably small capital; or (iii) intended to incur, or believed that it would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay such debts as they mature, such court may: (a) invalidate such indebtedness and such security interest as a fraudulent conveyance; (b) subordinate such indebtedness to existing or future creditors of the obligor; or (c) recover amounts previously paid by the obligor (including to a CLO issuer) in satisfaction of such indebtedness or proceeds of such security interest previously applied in satisfaction of such indebtedness. In addition, if an obligor in whose debt a CLO issuer has an investment becomes insolvent, any payment made on such investment may be subject to avoidance, cancellation and/or clawback as a "preference" if made within a certain period of time (which for example under some current laws may be as long as two years) before insolvency.

In general, if payments on an investment are voidable, whether as fraudulent conveyances, extortionate transactions or preferences, such payments may be recaptured either from the initial recipient or from subsequent transferees of such payments. To the extent that any such payments are recaptured from a CLO issuer, there will be an adverse effect on the performance of the CLO issuer and, by extension, on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The due diligence process that the Company plans to undertake in evaluating specific investment opportunities may not reveal all facts that may be relevant in connection with such investment opportunities and any corporate mismanagement, fraud or accounting irregularities may materially affect the integrity of the Company's due diligence on investment opportunities

When conducting due diligence and making an assessment regarding an investment, the Company will be required to rely on resources available to it, including internal sources of information as well as information provided by existing and potential obligors, any equity sponsor(s), lenders and other independent sources. The due diligence process may at times be required to rely on limited or incomplete information.

The Portfolio Manager will select investments on the Company's behalf in part on the basis of information and data relating to potential investments filed with various government regulators and publicly available or made directly available to the Portfolio Manager by the entities filing such information or third parties. Although the Portfolio Manager will evaluate all such information and data and seek independent corroboration when it considers it appropriate and reasonably available, the Portfolio Manager will not be in a position to confirm the completeness, genuineness or accuracy of such information and data. The Portfolio Manager is dependent upon the integrity of the management of the entities filing such information and of such third parties as well as the financial reporting process in general.

The value of an investment made by the Portfolio Manager on the Company's behalf may be affected by fraud, misrepresentation or omission on the part of an obligor, underlying obligor, any related parties to such obligor or underlying obligor, or by other parties to the investment (or any related collateral and security arrangements). Such fraud, misrepresentation or omission may adversely affect the value of the investment and/or the value of the collateral underlying the investment in question and may adversely affect the ability of the Portfolio Manager's on the Company's behalf to enforce its contractual rights relating to that investment or the relevant obligor's ability to repay the principal or interest on the investment.

Investment analysis and decisions by the Portfolio Manager may be undertaken on an expedited basis in order to make it possible for the Portfolio Manager to take advantage of short-lived investment opportunities. In such cases, the available information at the time of an investment decision may be limited, inaccurate and/or incomplete. Furthermore, the Portfolio Manager may not have sufficient time to evaluate fully such information even if it is available.

Accordingly, the Portfolio Manager cannot guarantee that the due diligence investigation it carries out with respect to any investment opportunity will reveal or highlight all relevant facts that may be necessary or helpful in evaluating such investment opportunity. Any failure by the Portfolio Manager to identify relevant facts through the due diligence process may cause it to make inappropriate investment decisions, which may have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The collateral and security arrangements attached to an investment may not have been properly created or perfected, or may be subject to other legal or regulatory restrictions

The collateral and security arrangements in relation to secured obligations in which the Company may invest (and the security arrangements relating to the underlying assets of CLOs) will be subject to such security or collateral having been correctly created and perfected and any applicable legal or regulatory requirements which may restrict the giving of collateral or security by an obligor, such as, for example, thin capitalisation, over-indebtedness, financial assistance and corporate benefit requirements. If the investments do not benefit from the expected collateral or security arrangements, this may adversely affect the value of, or in the event of a default, the recovery of principal or interest from, such investments. Accordingly, any such failure properly to create or perfect collateral and security interests attaching to the investments may adversely affect the performance of the CLO issuer and/or the Company and, by extension, the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The investments will be based in part on valuations of collateral which are subject to assumptions and factors that may be incomplete, inherently uncertain or subject to change

A component of the Company's analysis of the desirability of making a given investment relates to the estimated residual or recovery value of such investments in the event of the insolvency of the obligor (and in the case of the CLO Notes, the obligors of the assets within the relevant CLO's portfolio). This residual or recovery value will be driven primarily by the value of the anticipated future cash flows of the obligor's business and by the value of any underlying assets constituting the collateral for such investment. The anticipated future cash flows of the obligor's business and the value of collateral can, however, be extremely difficult to predict as in certain circumstances market quotations and third party pricing information may not be available. If the recovery value of the collateral associated with the investments in which the Company or a CLO issuer invests decreases or is materially worse than expected by the Company or a CLO issuer (as applicable), such a decrease or deficiency may affect the value of the investments made by the Company or a CLO issuer. Accordingly, there will be an adverse effect on the performance of the CLO issuer and/or the Company and, by extension, on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

CLO Income Notes are volatile and interest and principal payments payable on the CLO Income Notes are not fixed

CLO Income Notes are the most subordinated tranche of a CLO and all payments of principal and interest on such CLO Income Notes are fully subordinated. Interest and principal payments are not fixed but are based on residual amounts available to make such payments. As a result, payments on such CLO Income Notes will be made by the CLO issuer to the extent of available funds, and no payments thereon will be made until amongst other things (a) the payment of certain costs, fees and expenses have been made and (b) interest and principal (respectively) has been paid on the more senior notes of the CLO. Non-payment of interest or principal on such CLO Income Notes will be unlikely to cause an event of default in relation to the CLO issuer.

CLO Income Notes represent a highly leveraged investment in the underlying assets of the CLO issuer. Accordingly, it is expected that changes in the market value of such CLO Income Notes will be greater than changes in the market value of the underlying assets of the CLO issuer, which themselves are subject to credit, liquidity, interest rate and other risks. Utilisation of leverage is a speculative investment technique and involves certain risks to investors and will generally magnify the CLO Income Notes investors' opportunities for gain and risk of loss. In certain scenarios, the CLO Income Notes may be subject to a partial or a 100 per cent loss of invested capital. CLO Income Notes represent the most junior securities in a leveraged capital structure. As a result, any deterioration in performance of the asset portfolio of a CLO issuer, including defaults and losses, a reduction of realised yield or other factors, will be borne first by holders of such CLO Income Notes prior to the rest of the capital structure.

CLO Income Notes are a limited recourse obligation of the CLO issuer

CLO Income Notes are a limited recourse obligation of a CLO issuer and amounts payable on CLO Income Notes are payable solely from amounts received in respect of the collateral of the CLO issuer. Payments on CLO Income Notes prior to and following enforcement of the security over the collateral of a CLO issuer are subordinated to the prior payment of certain costs, fees and expenses of, or payable by, the CLO issuer and to payment of principal and interest on more senior notes of the CLO issuer. The holders of CLO Income Notes must rely solely on distributions on the collateral of the CLO for payment of principal and interest, if any, on the CLO Income Notes. There can be no assurance that the distributions on the collateral of a CLO will be sufficient to make payments on the CLO Income Notes. If distributions are insufficient to make payments on the CLO Income Notes, no other assets of the CLO issuer will be available for payment of the deficiency and following realisation of the collateral and the application of the proceeds thereof, the obligations of the CLO issuer to pay such deficiency shall be extinguished. Such shortfall will be borne in the first instance by the CLO Income Notes.

In addition, at any time whilst the CLO Income Notes are outstanding in a CLO, no CLO Income Notes holder shall be entitled to institute against the related CLO issuer, or join in any institution against such CLO issuer of, any bankruptcy, reorganization, arrangement, insolvency, examinership, winding up or liquidation proceedings under any applicable bankruptcy or similar law in connection with any obligations of the CLO issuer relating to the CLO Income Notes or otherwise owed to the CLO Income Notes holder, save for lodging a claim in the liquidation of the CLO issuer which is initiated by another party or taking proceedings to obtain a declaration as to the obligations of the CLO issuer, nor shall it have a claim arising in respect of the share capital of the CLO issuer.

Furthermore, following the establishment of the Management Companies, CLO Income Notes may not be held directly by the Company. As such the Company's interest in the CLO Income Notes may be indirect, and the Management Company, not the Company, will be entitled to exercise voting rights associated with the CLO Income Notes.

CLO Notes have limited liquidity

In addition to the restrictions mentioned in the section titled "The Company will be unable to liquidate, sell, hedge or otherwise mitigate its credit risk under or associated with the CLO Retention Notes until such time as the securities of the relevant CLO have been redeemed in full (whether at final maturity or early redemption)", there will usually be a limited market for notes representing collateralised loan obligations (including the CLO Notes). There is no guarantee that any party to a CLO transaction will make a secondary market in relation to the CLO Notes. There can be no assurance that a secondary market for any CLO Notes will develop or, if a secondary market does develop, that it will provide the holders of CLO Notes with liquidity of investment or that it will continue for the life of such notes. As a result, the Company may have to hold the CLO Notes for an indefinite period of time or until their early redemption date or maturity date. Where a market does exist, to the extent that an investor wants to sell the CLO Notes, the price may, or may not, be at a discount from the outstanding principal amount. There may be additional restrictions on divestment in the terms and conditions of CLO Notes.

Investments in asset management subsidiaries may subject the Company to increased regulatory scrutiny or disputes related to CLOs or other investments managed by such asset management subsidiaries

As part of its business, the Portfolio Manager may advise the Company to invest in asset management subsidiaries, affiliated with the Company, Highland, Acis, the Portfolio Manager or the Management Companies and which may act as the asset manager of certain U.S. or European CLOs in order to satisfy certain U.S. or European risk retention requirements. Asset managers of U.S. or European CLOs operate in a highly regulated environment, and are subject to a comprehensive statutory and regulatory regime as well as oversight by governmental agencies. In light of the current conditions in the global financial markets and economy, regulators have increased their focus on the regulation of asset managers in the U.S. and Europe. New or modified regulations and related regulatory guidance, including under Basel III and the Dodd-Frank Act, may have unforeseen or unintended adverse effects on asset managers of CLOs. These international regulations could limit an asset management subsidiary from pursuing certain business opportunities and/or impose additional costs, and otherwise indirectly materially adversely affect the Company's business operations and have other negative consequences.

Investors will not have control over the CLO management activities of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies in CLOs

The Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies, in the capacity of CLO Manager of a CLO, will have the discretion to make collateral management decisions for such CLO, including with respect to asset selection, disposition and amendments of the underlying loans. In exercising such discretion, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company will be responsible to act solely in the best interests of the applicable CLO issuer, not the Company or any Investor. Any amendment, waiver or modification of an investment could postpone the receipt of payments in respect of such investment and/or reduce distributions to Investors. The shareholders will have no right to compel the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies, in their roles as CLO Manager to take or refrain from taking any actions or decisions, and the actions or decisions taken by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies as CLO Manager may expose the Investors to losses on their investment.

United States retention requirements may affect future actions of the Company and negatively impact the leveraged loan market

As part of its business, the Company may invest in asset management subsidiaries, affiliated with the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies and which may act as the asset manager of certain CLOs in order to satisfy the U.S. Risk Retention Rules.

On October 21, 2014, the U.S. Risk Retention Rules were issued and became effective on December 24, 2016 with respect to asset-backed securities collateralized by assets other than residential mortgages. The statements contained herein regarding how compliance with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules may be achieved by a CLO are solely based on publicly available information as of the date hereof. Except with respect to asset-backed securities transactions that satisfy certain exemptions, the U.S. Risk Retention Rules generally require one of the sponsors of asset-backed securities or a "majority-owned affiliate" thereof to retain not less than 5% of the credit risk of the assets collateralizing asset-backed securities. The preamble to the rule text in the U.S. Risk Retention Rules indicates that a party that organizes and initiates a securitization would be the "sponsor." In the case of many collateralized loan obligation transactions, the entity acting as collateral manager typically organizes and initiates a transaction and, therefore, would be considered the "sponsor" for U.S. Risk Retention Rules purposes, as further discussed in the preamble. The U.S. Risk Retention Rules provide that if there is more than one "sponsor" of a securitization transaction, each "sponsor" is to ensure that at least one "sponsor" (or its "majority-owned affiliate") retains the requisite U.S. Retention Interest.

It is expected that Highland or Acis, as applicable, will agree to act as "sponsor" for purposes of Managed CLOs in which the Company invests, but there can be no assurance, and no representation, made that any Governmental Authority will agree that such is the case. Each of Highland and Acis intends to treat the applicable Management Company as its "majority-owned affiliate" due to holding by it (or by affiliates that are intended to be, directly or indirectly, majority controlled, are majority controlled by or are under common majority control with Highland or Acis, as applicable) of a controlling financial interest in such Management Company as determined under GAAP, although there can be no assurance that such Management Companies will maintain treatment as a “majority-owned affiliates” of Highland or Acis as “sponsors” given the lack of guidance in the U.S. Risk Retention Rules with respect to such affiliated situations. Moreover, there can be no guarantee that Highland or Acis will be able to maintain the treatment of such Management Company as a “majority-owned affiliate,” particularly if GAAP regulations or interpretations change over time.

Each of Highland or Acis, as applicable, may also hold their respective indirect ownership interests in the applicable Management Companies through, or transfer such interests to, affiliates that are intended to be, directly or indirectly, majority controlled, are majority controlled by or are under common majority control with, Highland or Acis, as applicable, with the intention that the Management Companies will remain their respective “majority-owned affiliates” for purposes of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules. There can be no assurance that following any such transfer any Governmental entity will agree that the applicable Management Company will remain a “majority-owned affiliate” of Highland or Acis, as applicable.

At this time, each potential investor should understand that there is uncertainty with respect to what is required to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules in certain circumstances, and therefore there can be no assurance that, with respect to any Managed CLO or other CLO in which the Company invests, the applicable credit risk retention and disclosures with respect to such CLO will enable the applicable CLO Manager or U.S. retention holder to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules.

In addition, there are a number of future uncertainties surrounding, U.S. Risk Retention Rules for CLO Managers, including: (i) the ultimate results of litigation currently in process brought by the Loan Syndications and Trading Association (LSTA), a major industry trade association, challenging, among other things, the regulators’ application of U.S. Risk Retention Rules to collateral managers of typical so-called open market CLOs, (ii) proposed legislation designed to exclude from U.S. Risk Retention Rules, collateral managers of certain defined “QCLOs” (qualified CLOs) and (iii) future directives and interpretations by Governmental Authorities with respect to the U.S. Risk Retention Rules. If such publicly available information is altered as a result of the foregoing (or anything else), there can be no assurance that, with respect to any Managed CLO or other CLO in which the Company invests, the applicable credit risk retention and disclosures would be viewed by any Governmental Authority as sufficient to meet the requirements under the U.S. Risk Retention Rules. The failure to satisfy the requirements of the U.S. Risk Retention Rules may have a material and adverse effect on the market value and/or liquidity of the applicable CLO Notes and on Highland, Acis and the Management Companies and the Company’s investments therein.

The failure by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules may have a material and adverse effect on the Company and/or the Portfolio Manager

The failure by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules with respect to any Managed CLO may result in regulatory actions and other proceedings being brought against the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company, which could result in such person being required, among other things, to pay damages, transfer interests and/or acquire additional CLO Notes (which may or may not be available at such time for acquisition) or be subject to cease and desist orders or other regulatory action. In addition, a failure to remedy non-compliance with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules may also trigger a “cause” event under the applicable CLO Management Agreement and/or subject the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company to adverse publicity and reputational risk resulting from such non-compliance. In addition, given the lack of clarity under the U.S. Risk Retention Rules with respect to the identity of the party responsible for holding U.S. risk retention interests upon a resignation or removal of a CLO Manager or an if the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company resigns or the applicable holders of CLO Notes desire to remove the Portfolio Manager in connection with any such “cause” event, there may be no successor CLO Manager willing to accept appointment as such, in which case the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company will be required to continue to act as CLO Manager under the applicable CLO Management Agreement. Further, given such lack of clarity under the U.S. Risk Retention Rules with respect to the identity of the party responsible for holding U.S. risk retention interests, there can be no assurance that Highland or Acis, as applicable, will be able to maintain compliance with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules following any transfer of ownership interests in an entity holding Retention Interests by Highland or Acis to their respective affiliates that are, directly or indirectly, majority controlled, are majority controlled by or are under common majority control with, Highland or Acis, as applicable, particularly in situations involving CLOs which have already been issued when the related transfer occurs. As a result of any of the foregoing, the failure of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules may have a material and adverse effect on the market value and/or liquidity of the Company's investment in the applicable CLO Notes as well as on the business, condition (financial or otherwise), assets, operations or prospects of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company and the Company.

The Company will be unable to liquidate, sell, hedge or otherwise mitigate its credit risk under or associated with the CLO Retention Notes until such time as the securities of the relevant CLO have been redeemed in full (whether at final maturity or early redemption)

In connection with the intention to comply with the Retention Requirements, each Management Company will need to, amongst other things, (a) on the closing date of a Managed CLO, commit to purchase and retain CLO Notes held in the form and at least the minimum required under the applicable Retention Requirements, as applicable, for the relevant CLO (the "CLO Retention Notes") and (b) undertake that, for so long as any securities of the CLO remain outstanding (including the CLO Retention Notes), it will retain its interest in the CLO Retention Notes and will not (except to the extent permitted by the EU Retention Requirements, the accompanying regulatory technical standards or any other related guidance published by the European Securities and Markets Authority) sell, hedge or otherwise mitigate its credit risk under or associated with such CLO Retention Notes. The Company or the applicable Management Company, as applicable, may make certain representations and/or give certain undertakings in favour of Managed CLOs (and/or certain other transaction parties) in respect of its ongoing retention of the CLO Retention Notes and regarding its agreement to sell certain assets to such Managed CLOs from time to time. There are currently transactions in the market which are similar to the Managed CLOs, however if an applicable regulatory authority supervising investors in a Managed CLO were to conclude that the applicable Management Company was not holding the CLO Retention Notes in accordance with the CRR, it is possible, but far from certain, that this may negatively impact the investors in such Managed CLO. If such investors decided to take action against the Company or the applicable Management Company as a result of any negative impact, this may have an adverse effect on the Company's financial performance and prospects.

In addition, with the intention of achieving classification as an "originator" (as defined in the CRR) and complying with the CRR Retention Requirements if applicable to the relevant CLO, the applicable Management Company would be required to meet the Origination Requirements.

As a result of the above commitments, the applicable Management Company will be unable to liquidate, sell, hedge or otherwise mitigate its credit risk under or associated with the CLO Retention Notes until such time as the securities of the relevant CLO have been redeemed in full (whether at final maturity or early redemption). Consequently, if any shares were to become due and repayable in connection with any resolution for their redemption, the Company, the applicable Management Company will not be obliged to immediately sell, transfer or liquidate the CLO Retention Notes and the proceeds of such CLO Retention Notes (if any) will not be available until the final maturity or early redemption in full of the securities of the relevant CLO. In addition, cash held by the Company will not be able to be used to repay any shares to the extent that such repayment could leave the Company unable to continue to originate and sell assets to the CLO issuers in order to ensure that during the relevant CLO's reinvestment period the Company, the applicable Management Company has met the Origination Requirements.

The Company or the applicable Management Company directly or indirectly, may hold a controlling equity stake in the Managed CLOs; accordingly, upon exercise by the Company or the applicable Management Company an early redemption option will result in a full redemption of the applicable CLO securities. Neither the Company nor the applicable Management Company will generally be able to exercise any early redemption options during a "non-call period" (generally lasting two years) after the closing date of the CLO. As a result of this feature and the EU Retention Requirements, the relevant CLO Retention Notes will not be permitted to be sold, transferred or liquidated during this time. In addition, even after an early redemption option is permitted to be exercised, such an option usually contains a number of conditions to its exercise including, but not limited to, a threshold that the liquidation value of the CLO collateral exceed an amount which would pay (a) all expenses of the CLO and (b) principal and accrued interest on the CLO Notes senior to the CLO Income Notes. If the liquidation value of the portfolio will not achieve this threshold at the time the Company intends to exercise its early redemption option, the CLO will not be able to be optionally redeemed by the Company at such time. In such circumstances, the Company or the applicable Management Company may not redeem the CLO Retention Notes until their final stated maturity (which may be in excess of 12 years), therefore producing no proceeds to pay to Shareholders until this point.

Potential non-compliance with or changes to the United States and European risk retention requirements

The purchase and retention of the CLO Retention Notes in a CLO will be undertaken by the Company or the applicable Management Company with the intention of achieving compliance with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and/or the EU Retention Requirements by the relevant CLO.

The U.S. Risk Retention Rules and/or EU Retention Requirements may be amended, supplemented or revoked from time to time. There is no guarantee that existing CLOs or future CLOs will be grandfathered into the regime which results from such amendments, supplements or revocations and, as such, the CLOs in which the applicable Management Company is retaining the CLO Retention Notes, may become non-compliant with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and/or EU Retention Requirements.

Liability for breach of a risk retention letter

The arranger of a CLO and certain other parties of a CLO in which a Management Company agrees to hold the CLO Retention Notes (in such capacity, the “Retention Holder”) will require the applicable Management Company to execute a risk retention letter. Under a risk retention letter the applicable Retention Holder will typically be required to, amongst other things, make certain representations, warranties and undertakings: (a) in relation to its acquisition and retention of the CLO Retention Notes for the life of the CLO; and (b) regarding its agreement to sell assets to the relevant CLO from time to time. If the applicable Retention Holder sells or is forced to sell the CLO Retention Notes prior to the maturity of the relevant CLO, or the applicable Retention Holder holds insufficient cash or investments to continually sell the assets to the CLO as described above or for any other reason the applicable Retention Holder is not considered to be an “originator” (as such term is defined in the CRR), the Company may be in breach of the terms of the related risk retention letter. In such circumstances the arranger of the relevant CLO and the other parties to the related risk retention letter would have recourse to the applicable Retention Holder for losses incurred as a result of such breach. Such claims may reduce, or entirely diminish any cash or assets of the Company which may have been available to make payments on the Shares.

RISKS RELATING TO HIGHLAND AND ACIS

Past Performance Not Indicative of Future Results

The past performance of Highland and Acis and their principals and affiliates in other portfolios or investment vehicles, including, without limitation their outstanding CLO transactions, may not be indicative of the results that the Company may be able to achieve. Similarly, the past performance of Highland, Acis and their principals and affiliates over a particular period may not necessarily be indicative of the results that may be expected in future periods. Furthermore, the nature of, and risks associated with, the Company’s investments may differ substantially from those investments and strategies undertaken historically by Highland, Acis and their principals and affiliates. There can be no assurance that Highland’s or Acis’ investment recommendations will perform as well as past investments of Highland or Acis or their principals and affiliates, that the Company will be able to avoid losses or that the Company will be able to make investments similar to the past investments of Highland, Acis and their principals and affiliates. In addition, such past investments may have been made utilizing a leveraged capital structure, an asset mix and fee arrangements that are different from the anticipated capital structure, asset mix and fee arrangements of the Company. Moreover, because the investment criteria that govern investments in the Company’s portfolio do not govern the investments and investment strategies of Highland, Acis and their principals and affiliates generally, such investments conducted in accordance with such criteria, and the results they yield, are not directly comparable with, and may differ substantially from other investments undertaken by Highland, Acis and their principals and affiliates.

Acis, as CLO Manager, Relies on Highland to Perform Certain Services

Acis currently relies on Highland, a U.S. SEC-registered investment adviser under common control with Acis, pursuant to the ACM Services Agreements, to provide investment research and recommendations and operational support to Acis, including services in connection with credit research, due diligence of actual or potential investments, the execution of investment transactions, and certain loan services and administrative services. If Highland does not continue to provide such services to Acis, or there is a departure or inability of certain Highland personnel to provide such services to Acis, there can be no assurances that Acis would be able to find a substitute service provider with the same experience as, or on the same terms as its ACM Services Agreements with, Highland. The inability of Acis to perform its duties under the applicable CLO Management Agreements or the ACLOM Services Agreements in accordance with the standard of care specified therein due to the termination of the Services Agreements could result in removal of Acis or Acis CLO Management, as applicable, under the applicable CLO Management Agreements for the Acis CLOs and Acis CLO 7.

Litigation Involving Highland and Acis

Highland and Acis currently are and have been previously subject to various legal proceedings, many of which have been due to the nature of operating in the distressed loan business in the U.S. The legal process is often the route of last resort to recover amounts due from delinquent borrowers. Shareholders have had an opportunity to discuss with Highland to their satisfaction all litigation matters against Highland and its affiliates unrelated to its distressed business. We currently do not anticipate these proceedings will have a material negative impact to the Company.

Failure to Comply with Investment Advisers Act May Have an Adverse Effect on the Portfolio Manager's Performance

Highland HCF Advisor and Highland CLO Management are relying advisers of Highland, and Highland is a registered investment adviser registered under the Investment Advisers Act and, as such, is subject to the provisions of the Investment Advisers Act. Acis CLO Management is a relying adviser of Acis, and Acis is a registered investment adviser registered under the Investment Advisers Act and, as such, is subject to the provisions of the Investment Advisers Act. Failure to comply with the requirements imposed on the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies under the Investment Advisers Act may have a significant adverse effect on the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company. The Portfolio Manager, Highland's, Acis' and/or the applicable Management Company's ability to act as CLO Manager for Managed CLOs in which the Company holds CLO Notes may also be adversely affected by negative publicity arising from any regulatory compliance failures or other inappropriate behavior attributed to or any other negative publicity related to the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company, any affiliate thereof or any of their respective investment professionals.

SEC enforcement actions

There can be no assurance that the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies or their affiliates will avoid regulatory examination and possibly enforcement actions. Recent SEC enforcement actions and settlements involving U.S.-based private fund advisers have involved a number of issues, including the undisclosed allocation of the fees, costs and expenses related to unconsummated co-investment transactions (i.e., the allocation of broken deal expenses), undisclosed legal fee arrangements affording the applicable adviser with greater discounts than those afforded to funds advised by such adviser. Although each of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and the Management Companies believe the foregoing practices to have been common historically amongst private fund advisers within the U.S. private funds industry, if the SEC or any other governmental authority, regulatory agency or similar body may take issue with, or in the case of insufficient disclosure regarding acceleration of certain special fees as described below, may continue to take issue with, past or future practices of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies or any of their affiliates as they pertain to any of the foregoing. In such instances, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies and/or such affiliates may be at risk for regulatory sanction. Even if an investigation or proceeding did not result in a sanction or the sanction imposed against the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis or the Management Companies was small in monetary amount, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the applicable Management Company or their respective affiliates may be subject to adverse publicity relating to the investigation, proceeding or imposition of any such sanction.

Potential litigation and regulatory actions may materially and adversely affect the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies

There can be no assurance that the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies or their affiliates will avoid potential third party or other litigation or regulatory actions under existing laws (including the U.S. Risk Retention Requirements) or laws enacted in the future. Recent SEC enforcement actions and settlements involving U.S.-based private fund advisers have involved a number of issues, including undisclosed legal fee arrangements affording the applicable adviser with greater discounts than those afforded to funds advised by such adviser and the undisclosed acceleration of certain special fees. In addition, the failure by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules may result in regulatory actions and other proceedings being brought against the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies. If the SEC or any other Governmental Authority takes issue with the practices of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies or any of their affiliates as they pertain to any of the foregoing, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies and/or any such affiliates will be at risk for regulatory sanction. Even if an investigation or proceeding did not result in a sanction or the sanction imposed against the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies and/or such affiliates was small in monetary amount, the adverse publicity relating to the investigation, proceeding or imposition of these sanctions could harm the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies and/or their respective affiliates' reputations which may adversely affect the market value and/or liquidity of the Debt. There is also a material risk that Governmental Authorities in the United States and beyond will continue to adopt new laws or regulations (including tax laws or regulations), or change existing laws or regulations, or enhance the interpretation or enforcement of existing laws and regulations including the U.S. Risk Retention Rules. Any such events or changes could occur during the term of the Debt and may materially and adversely affect the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or the Management Companies and its ability to operate and/or pursue its management strategies on behalf of the Issuer. Such risks are often difficult or impossible to predict, avoid or mitigate in advance.

Dependence on Highland, Acis and other collateral managers of CLOs

A significant portion of the Company's investment portfolio will comprise of its investment in the Management Companies and in Managed CLOs. The Company's investment portfolio may also include CLOs managed by other asset managers. The performance of the Company's portfolio depends heavily on the skills of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies or such other asset managers in analyzing, selecting and managing the relevant CLOs. As a result, the Company and the CLOs will be highly dependent on the financial and managerial experience of certain investment professionals associated with the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and the other asset managers, none of whom is under any contractual obligation to the Company or such CLOs to continue to be associated with the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the applicable Management Company or such other collateral manager for the term of the Company or any particular CLO. The loss of one or more of these individuals could have a material adverse effect on the performance of the Company and the relevant CLO.

Furthermore, the Portfolio Manager has informed the Company that these investment professionals are also actively involved in other investment activities and will not be able to devote all of their time to the Company's business and affairs. In addition, individuals not currently associated with the Portfolio Manager may become associated with the Portfolio Manager and the performance of the Company and the Managed CLOs may also depend on the financial and managerial experience of such individuals. Moreover, the Portfolio Management Agreement may be terminated under certain circumstances.

The Company generally may not terminate the Portfolio Management Agreement, even in the event of the Portfolio Manager's poor performance

The Portfolio Management Agreement was negotiated between related parties and its terms may not be as favorable as if it had been negotiated with unaffiliated third parties. The Company may choose not to enforce, or to enforce less vigorously, certain of its rights under the Portfolio Management Agreement in an effort to maintain its ongoing relationship with the Portfolio Manager or Highland Capital Management, L.P., as the case may be.

Termination of the Portfolio Management Agreement is difficult and costly. In order to terminate the Portfolio Management Agreement without cause, the Company must (i) be required to register as an investment company under the provisions of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and it must notify the Portfolio Manager of such requirement, (ii) the portfolio must be liquidated in full and its financing arrangements must have been terminated or redeemed in full, or (iii) it must reach a mutual agreement with the Portfolio Manager to terminate the agreement. The initial term of the Portfolio Management Agreement is three years, with automatic renewals of three years thereafter. The Company may not choose to not renew the Portfolio Management Agreement.

The Company's ability to terminate the Portfolio Management Agreement for "cause" is limited, including grounds of wilful violation of the Portfolio Management Agreement by the Portfolio Manager and fraud or criminal activity. However, poor performance by the Portfolio Manager is not grounds for termination for cause under the Portfolio Management Agreement. See "Material Contracts"

RISKS RELATING TO CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Various Potential and Actual Conflicts of Interest

Various potential and actual conflicts of interest may arise from the overall investment activity of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, its clients and its affiliates. The following briefly summarizes some of these conflicts, but is not intended to be an exhaustive list of all such conflicts.

The Company will be subject to various conflicts of interest involving the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates

The following briefly summarizes certain potential and actual conflicts of interest which may arise from the overall investment activity of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, its clients and its affiliates, but is not intended to be an exhaustive list of all such conflicts. The scope of the activities of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, its affiliates, and the funds and clients managed or advised by Highland or any of its affiliates may give rise to conflicts of interest or other restrictions and/or limitations imposed on the Company in the future that cannot be foreseen or mitigated at this time.

As part of their regular business, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, its affiliates and their respective officers, directors, trustees, shareholders, members, partners, personnel and employees and their respective funds and investment accounts (collectively, the "Related Parties") hold, purchase, sell, trade or take other related actions both for their respective accounts and for the accounts of their respective clients, on a principal or agency basis, with respect to loans, securities and other investments and financial instruments of all types. The Portfolio Manager, its affiliates and their respective officers, directors, shareholders, members, partners, personnel and employees also provide investment advisory services, among other services, and engage in private equity, real estate and capital markets-oriented investment activities. The Related Parties will not be restricted in their performance of any such services or in the types of debt or equity investments which they may make. The Related Parties may have economic interests in or other relationships with obligors or issuers in whose obligations or securities or credit exposures the Company and/or the Managed CLOs may invest. In particular, the Related Parties may make and/or hold an investment in an obligor's or issuer's securities that may be pari passu, senior or junior in ranking to an investment in such obligor's or issuer's securities made and/or held by the Company and/or the Managed CLOs, or in which partners, security holders, members, officers, directors, agents, personnel or employees of such Related Parties serve on boards of directors or otherwise have ongoing relationships. Each of such ownership and other relationships may result in securities laws restrictions on transactions in such securities by the Company and/or the Managed CLOs and otherwise create conflicts of interest for the Company and/or the Managed CLOs. In such instances, the Related Parties may in their discretion make investment recommendations and decisions that may be the same as or different from those made with respect to the Company's and/or the Managed CLOs' investments. In connection with any such activities described above, the Related Parties may hold, purchase, sell, trade or take other related actions in securities or investments of a type that may be suitable to be included as investments by the Company and/or Managed CLOs. Other than with respect to new issue Highland CLOs as described below, the Related Parties will not be required to offer such securities or investments to the Company or Managed CLOs or provide notice of such activities to the Company or Managed CLOs. In addition, in providing services under the Portfolio Management Agreement and the CLO Management Agreements, the Portfolio Manager may take into account its relationship or the relationships of its affiliates with obligors and their respective affiliates, which may create conflicts of interest. Furthermore, in connection with actions taken in the ordinary course of business of the Portfolio Manager in accordance with its fiduciary duties to its other clients, the Portfolio Manager may take, or be required to take, actions which adversely affect the interests of the Company and/or Managed CLOs. Except as otherwise set forth herein, including with respect to Qualifying CLOs, Designated CLO Resets, Designated CLO

Refinancings and the NexBank Facility and any Permitted NexBank Credit Facility Amendments, the consent of the Advisory Board will be required with respect to transactions with any Related Party.

The Related Parties invested and may continue to make investments that would also be appropriate for the Company, the Portfolio Manager, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs. Such investments may be different from those recommended to the Company or made on behalf of the Managed CLOs or the Management Companies. Neither the Portfolio Manager nor any Related Entity has any duty, in making or maintaining such investments, to act in a way that is favorable to the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs or to offer any such opportunity to the Company, other than with respect to new issue Highland CLOs as described below, or the Managed CLOs. The investment policies, fee arrangements and other circumstances applicable to such other parties may vary from those applicable to the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and the Managed CLOs. The Portfolio Manager and/or any Related Entity may also provide advisory or other services for a customary fee to issuers or obligors whose debt obligations or other securities are held by the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs, and neither the Shareholders nor the Company shall have any right to such fees. The Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and/or any Related Entity may also have ongoing relationships with, render services to or engage in transactions with other clients, including other issuers of collateralized loan obligations and collateralized debt obligations, who invest in assets of a similar nature to those of the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs, and with companies whose securities or loans are acquired by the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs, and may own equity or debt securities issued by obligors of debt held by the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs. In connection with the foregoing activities, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the Management Companies and/or any Related Entity may from time to time come into possession of material nonpublic information that limits the ability of the Portfolio Manager to advise the Company or the Management Companies or effect a transaction for Managed CLOs, and the Company's, the Management Companies' and/or the Managed CLOs' investments may be constrained as a consequence of Highland's or Acis' inability to use such information for advisory purposes or otherwise to effect transactions that otherwise may have been initiated on behalf of its clients, including the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs. In addition, officers or affiliates of the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and/or Related Parties may possess information relating to obligors of debt held by the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs that is not known to the individuals at the Portfolio Manager responsible for monitoring such investments and performing the other obligations under the Portfolio Management Agreement or CLO Management Agreements.

During the Investment Period, the Company shall receive priority allocations with respect to all CLO Income Note investment opportunities with respect to new issue Highland CLOs, over the account of the Portfolio Manager, its affiliates and Other Accounts. For the avoidance of doubt, the Portfolio Manager shall otherwise allocate investment opportunities among the Company and Highland and its affiliates and Other Accounts in accordance with its allocation policy which requires allocations among clients to be fair and equitable over time as described below. The Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and their affiliates may, from time to time, be presented with investment opportunities, other than with respect to new issue Highland CLOs during the Investment Period, that fall within the investment objectives of the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs and other clients, funds or other investment accounts managed by Highland, Acis or their affiliates, and in such circumstances, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and their affiliates expect to allocate such opportunities among the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts on a basis that the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and their affiliates determine in good faith is appropriate taking into consideration such factors as the fiduciary duties owed to the Company, the Management Companies, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, the primary mandates of the Company, the Management Companies, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, the capital available to the Company, the Management Companies, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, any restrictions on investment, the sourcing of the transaction, the size of the transaction, the amount of potential follow-on investing that may be required for such investment and the other investments of the Company, the Management Companies, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, the relation of such opportunity to the investment strategy of the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, reasons of portfolio balance and any other consideration deemed relevant by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and their affiliates in good faith. Subject to the Company's priority allocation with respect to new issue Highland CLOs, the Portfolio Manager, will allocate investment opportunities across the entities for which such opportunities are appropriate, consistent with (1) its internal conflict of interest and allocation policies and (2) the requirements of the Investment Advisers Act. The Portfolio Manager, will seek to allocate investment opportunities among such entities in a manner that is fair and equitable over time and consistent with its allocation policy. However, there is no assurance that such investment opportunities will be allocated to the Company, the Management Companies and/or the Managed CLOs fairly or equitably in the short term or over time and there can be no assurance that the Company, the Management Companies and/or any of the Managed CLOs will be able to participate in all such investment opportunities that are suitable for it.

Although the professional staff of the Portfolio Manager will devote as much time to the Company as the Portfolio Manager deems appropriate to perform its duties in accordance with the Portfolio Management Agreement and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards, the staff may have conflicts in allocating its time and services among the Company and the Portfolio Manager's other accounts.

The directors, officers, personnel, employees and agents of the Portfolio Manager and its Related Parties may, subject to applicable law, serve as directors (whether supervisory or managing), officers, personnel, employees, partners, agents, nominees or signatories, and receive arm's length fees in connection with such service, for the Company or entities that operate in the same or a related line of business as the Company or the Management Companies, or of other clients managed by the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates, or for any obligor or issuer in respect of the debt, equity securities or other investments held by the Company, the Management Companies and/or Managed CLOs, or any affiliate thereof, to the extent permitted by their governing instruments, or by any resolutions duly adopted by the Company, such other entities, or any obligor or issuer (or any affiliate thereof) in respect of any of the debt, equity securities or other investments held by the Company, the Management Companies and/or Managed CLOs pursuant to their respective governing instruments, and neither the Company, The applicable Management Company nor the Managed CLOs shall have the right to any such fees.

As further described below, the Portfolio Manager and its Related Parties may effect client cross-transactions where the Portfolio Manager advises the Company or a Management Company, or causes a Managed CLO, to effect a transaction between the Company, the applicable Management Company or such Managed CLO, as applicable, and another client advised by the Portfolio Manager or any of its affiliates. The Portfolio Manager, may engage in a client cross-transaction involving the Company, the Management Companies and/or Managed CLOs any time that the Portfolio Manager believes such transaction to be fair to the Company, the applicable Management Company and/or the Managed CLOs, as applicable, and such other client. By purchasing Shares of the Company, a Shareholder is deemed to have consented to such client cross-transactions between the Company, the applicable Management Company and another client of the Portfolio Manager or one of its Related Parties.

As further described below, the Portfolio Manager may effect principal transactions where Highland advises the Company, or causes a Managed CLO, to make and/or hold an investment, including an investment in securities, in which the Portfolio Manager and/or its affiliates have a debt, equity or participation interest, in each case in accordance with applicable law, which may include the Portfolio Manager obtaining the consent and approval of the Advisory Board of the Company prior to engaging in any such principal transaction between the Company and the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates. By purchasing Shares of the Company, a Shareholder is deemed to have consented to such procedures relating to principal transactions between the Company and the Portfolio Manager or its Related Entities, subject to consent of the Advisory Board. In addition, in the event a Managed CLO engages in a principal trade, consent of the client may consist of consent of the board of directors of such Managed CLO (or certain professionals contracted by the board of directors, to the extent relevant), and none of the Company or its Shareholders will have any additional consent rights with respect to such transaction.

The Portfolio Manager may advise the Company, or direct the Managed CLOs, to acquire or dispose of investments in cross trades between the Company or the Managed CLOs, as applicable, and other clients of the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates in accordance with applicable legal and regulatory requirements. In addition, the Company and/or the Managed CLOs may invest in securities of obligors or issuers in which the Portfolio Manager and/or its affiliates have a debt, equity or participation interest, and the holding and sale of such investments by the Company and/or Managed CLOs may enhance the profitability of the Portfolio Manager's own investments in such companies. Moreover, the Company and Managed CLOs may invest in assets originated by the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates. In each such case, the Portfolio Manager and such affiliates may have a potentially conflicting division of loyalties and responsibilities regarding the Company or the Managed CLOs, as applicable, and the other parties to such trade. Under certain circumstances, the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates may determine that it is appropriate to mitigate such conflicts by selling an investment at a fair value that has been calculated pursuant to the Portfolio Manager's valuation procedures to another client managed or advised by the Portfolio Manager or such affiliates. In addition, the Portfolio Manager may enter into agency cross-transactions where it or any of its affiliates acts as broker for the Company or a Managed CLO, as applicable, and for the other party to the transaction, to the extent permitted under applicable law. The Portfolio Manager may obtain the Company's written consent as provided herein if any such transaction requires the consent of the Company under Section 206(3) of the Investment Advisers Act.

The Portfolio Manager and/or its Related Parties may participate in creditor committees or other committees with respect to the bankruptcy, restructuring or workout of obligors or issuers of debt obligations or securities held by the Company and/or the Managed CLOs. In such circumstances, the Portfolio Manager may take positions on behalf of itself or Related Parties that are adverse to the interests of the Company or the Managed CLOs in the relevant investment.

The Portfolio Manager and/or its Related Parties may act as an underwriter, arranger or placement or administrative agent, or otherwise participate in the origination, structuring, negotiation, syndication, administration or offering of CLOs or any senior secured loans purchased by the Company. Such transactions are on an arm's-length basis and may be subject to arm's-length fees. There is no expectation for preferential access to transactions involving CLOs or senior secured loans that are underwritten, originated, arranged or placed by the Portfolio Manager and/or its affiliates and the Company shall not have any right to any such fees.

There is no limitation or restriction on the Portfolio Manager or any of its Related Parties with regard to acting as investment adviser or collateral manager (or in a similar role) to other parties or persons. This and other future activities of the Portfolio Manager and/or its Related Parties may give rise to additional conflicts of interest. Such conflicts may relate to obligations that the Portfolio Manager's investment committee, the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates have to other clients.

The members of the Portfolio Manager's investment committee serve or may serve as personnel, officers, directors or principals of entities that operate in the same or a related line of business as the Company, or of other clients managed by the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates. In serving in these multiple capacities, they may have obligations to such other clients or investors in those entities, the fulfillment of which may not be in the best interests of the Company. The Company may compete with other entities managed by the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates for capital and investment opportunities.

There are generally no ethical screens or information barriers among the Portfolio Manager and certain of its affiliates of the type that many firms implement to separate persons who make investment decisions from others who might possess material, non-public information that could influence such decisions. If the Portfolio Manager, any of its personnel or its affiliates were to receive material non-public information about a particular obligor, issuer or CLO, or have an interest in causing the Company or a Managed CLO to acquire a particular CLO security, the Portfolio Manager may be prevented from causing the Company or Managed CLO to purchase or sell such asset due to internal restrictions imposed on the Portfolio Manager. Notwithstanding the maintenance of certain internal controls relating to the management of material non-public information, it is possible that such controls could fail and result in the Portfolio Manager, or one of its investment professionals, buying or selling an asset while, at least constructively, in possession of material non-public information. Inadvertent trading on material non-public information could have adverse effects on the Portfolio Manager's reputation, result in the imposition of regulatory or financial sanctions, and as a consequence, negatively impact the Portfolio Manager's ability to perform its portfolio management services to the Company and the Managed CLOs. In addition, while the Portfolio Manager and certain of its affiliates currently operate without information barriers on an integrated basis, such entities could be required by certain regulations, or decide that it is advisable, to establish information barriers. In such event, the Portfolio Manager's ability to operate as an integrated platform could also be impaired, which would limit the Portfolio Manager's access to personnel of its affiliates and potentially impair its ability to advise the Company and manage the Managed CLOs' investments.

RISKS RELATING TO AN INVESTMENT IN THE SHARES

Shareholders have no right to have their Shares redeemed or repurchased by the Company

The Company has been established as a closed-ended vehicle. Accordingly, there is no right or entitlement attaching to the Shares that allows them to be redeemed or repurchased by the Company at the option of the Shareholder.

There is no public market for the Shares, and a market for the Shares may never develop, which could result in Shareholders being unable to monetize their investment.

The Shares have not been registered under any securities exchange, and, unless so registered, may not be offered or sold except pursuant to an exemption from the applicable securities exchange regulator. It is not expected that the Shares will be listed on any securities exchange in the future. The Shares are newly issued securities for which there is no established trading market. In the absence of an active trading market, Shareholders may be unable to resell the Shares at the time and for the price desired or at all. The Company can provide no assurances that the Shares will not subsequently trade below the price at which they are purchased pursuant to this Offering Memorandum.

In connection with the Company filing any registration for any securities exchange, the Company will agree to use commercially reasonable efforts to satisfy the criteria for listing and list and thereafter maintain the listing on such exchange or market so long as it is in the best interests of the Company. Each market or exchange has initial listing criteria, including criteria related to minimum bid price, public float, market makers, minimum number of round lot holders and board independence requirements that the Company can give no assurance that it will meet. The Company's inability to list or include the Shares on a securities exchange could affect the ability of Shareholders to sell their Shares subsequent to the declaration of the effectiveness of any registration statement, and consequently adversely affect the value of such Shares. In such case, Shareholders would find it more difficult to dispose of, or to obtain accurate quotations as to the market value of, the Shares. In addition, the Company would have more difficulty attracting the attention of market analysts to cover it in their research. If the Shares are approved for listing or inclusion on a securities exchange, the Company will have no prior reporting history, and thus there is no way to determine the prices or volumes at which the Shares will trade. The Company can give no assurances as to the development or liquidity of any trading market for the Shares. Shareholders may not be able to resell their Shares at or near their original acquisition price, or at any price.

In the event a market for the Shares does develop, the Shares may trade at a discount to the Net Asset Value per Share and Shareholders may be unable to realise their Shares at the Net Asset Value per Share or at any other price

The Shares may trade at a discount to the Net Asset Value per Share for a variety of reasons, including due to market or economic conditions or to the extent investors undervalue the Company.

Subject to the Companies Law, under its Articles, the Company may issue additional securities, including Shares, for any purpose. Any additional issuances by the Company, or the possibility of such issue, may cause the price of the Shares to decline.

The existence of a liquid market in the Shares cannot be guaranteed

The Shares may be admitted to a securities exchange at some point in the future, however there can be no guarantee that a liquid market in the Shares will develop or be sustained or that the Shares will trade at prices close to the Net Asset Value per Share. The number of Shares to be issued pursuant to the Placing is not yet known, and there may be a limited number of holders of Shares. Limited numbers and/or holders of Shares may mean that there is limited liquidity in such Shares which may affect: (i) a Shareholder's ability to realise some or all of their investment; (ii) the price at which such Shareholder can effect such realisation; and/or (iii) the price at which Shares trade in the secondary market. Accordingly, Shareholders may be unable to realise their investment at Net Asset Value per Share or at all.

The Shares will be subject to purchase and transfer restrictions in the Placing and in secondary transactions in the future

The Company intends to restrict the ownership and holding of its Shares so that none of its assets will constitute “plan assets” under the U.S. Plan Assets Regulations. The Company intends to impose such restrictions based on deemed representations in the case of a subscription of Shares. If the Company’s assets were deemed to be “plan assets” of any plan subject to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code (“U.S. Plan”), pursuant to Section 3(42) of ERISA and U.S. Department of Labor regulations promulgated under ERISA by the U.S. Department of Labor and codified at 29 C.F.R. Section 2510.3-101 as amended by Section 3(42) of ERISA (collectively, the “U.S. Plan Asset Regulations”) then: (i) the prudence and other fiduciary responsibility standards of ERISA would apply to investments made by the Company; and (ii) certain transactions that the Company or a subsidiary of the Company may enter into, or may have entered into, in the ordinary course of business might constitute or result in non-exempt prohibited transactions under Section 406 of ERISA or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code and might have to be rescinded. Governmental plans and certain church plans, while not subject to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code, may nevertheless be subject to other State, local or other laws or regulations that would have the same effect as the U.S. Plan Asset Regulations so as to cause the underlying assets of the Company to be treated as assets of an investing entity by virtue of its investment (or any beneficial interest) in the Company and thereby subject the Company (or other persons responsible for the investment and operation of the Company assets) to laws or regulations that are similar to the fiduciary responsibility or prohibited transaction provisions contained in Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the U.S. Tax Code.

Each purchaser and subsequent transferee of the Shares will be deemed to represent and warrant that no portion of the assets used to acquire or hold its interest in the Shares constitutes or will constitute the assets of any U.S. Plan. The Articles of the Company provide that the Board of Directors may refuse to register a transfer of Shares to any person they believe to be a Non-Qualified Holder or a U.S. Plan investor. If any Shares are owned directly or beneficially by a person believed by the Board of Directors to be a Non-Qualified Holder or a U.S. Plan investor, the Board of Directors may give notice to such person requiring him either (i) to provide the Board of Directors within 30 days of receipt of such notice with sufficient satisfactory documentary evidence to satisfy the Board of Directors that such person is not a Non-Qualified Holder or a U.S. Plan investor, or (ii) to sell or transfer their Shares to a person qualified to own the same within 30 days and within such 30 days to provide the Board of Directors with satisfactory evidence of such sale or transfer. Where condition (i) or (ii) is not satisfied within 30 days after the serving of the notice, the person will be deemed, upon the expiration of such 30 days, to have forfeited their Shares.

In addition, the Placing Shares may not be offered, sold, exercised, resold, transferred or delivered, directly or indirectly, within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. Persons, except pursuant to an exemption from, or in a transaction not subject to, the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act and in compliance with any applicable securities laws of any state or other jurisdiction in the United States. For more information, refer to “Risks relating to regulation and taxation - The Company is not, and does not intend to become, registered in the United States as an investment company under the U.S. Investment Company Act and related rules” in this section of this Offering Memorandum.

For more information on purchase and transfer restrictions, prospective investors should refer to the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Purchase and Transfer Restrictions” in “Placing Arrangements”.

RISKS RELATING TO REGULATION AND TAXATION

Changes in law or regulations, or a failure to comply with any laws or regulations, may adversely affect the respective businesses, investments and performance of the Company

The Company is subject to laws and regulations enacted by national and local governments.

On June 23, 2016, in a public referendum, the United Kingdom voted to leave the European Union. On March 29, 2017, the United Kingdom triggered Article 50 of the Treaty on European Union (“Article 50”) by formally notifying the European Council of the United Kingdom’s intention to withdraw from the European Union. In accordance with Article 50, the European Union shall negotiate and conclude a withdrawal agreement with the United Kingdom within 2 years of the United Kingdom triggering Article 50, although the European Council in agreement with the United Kingdom may decide to extend this period. The United Kingdom’s decision to leave the European Union has caused, and is anticipated to continue to cause, significant new uncertainties and instability in both domestic and global financial markets. These uncertainties could have a material adverse effect on the various obligors' ability to make payments due under the assets within the CLO portfolios, which in turn could have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

The Company is subject to, and is required to comply with, certain regulatory requirements that are applicable to registered investment schemes which are domiciled in Guernsey.

The laws and regulations affecting the Company are evolving and any changes in such laws and regulations may have an adverse effect on the ability of the Company to carry on its business. Any such changes may also have an adverse effect on the ability of the Company to pursue the investment policies, and may adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Certain income of the Company may be subject to U.S. withholding tax, and changes in tax law may adversely affect the Company

The Company intends to make loan investments in the United States that will qualify for the "portfolio interest exemption" from U.S. withholding on interest. However, if the Company is not eligible for the portfolio interest exemption with respect to a loan paying U.S.-source interest, interest payments to the Company could be subject to a 30% withholding tax. In addition, there can be no assurance that, as a result of any change in any applicable law, rule or regulation or interpretation thereof, U.S.-source interest or other payments on the loans that were not subject to withholding tax when purchased will not in the future become subject to U.S. or other withholding tax or that the amount or rate of withholding tax to which a payment on a loan is subject might not increase.

In addition, if the Company acquires equity interests in U.S. entities, either as a result of a direct purchase or as a result of loans previously purchased by the Company being converted into equity interests, the Company could be subject to 30% U.S. withholding tax on any U.S.-source dividends. If the Company is deemed to be engaged in a trade or business in the United States as a result of its ownership of an equity interest in an entity treated as fiscally transparent in the United States or certain other investments, the Company could be subject to a tax on net income with respect to income from such equity interest or other investments, as well as a "branch profits" tax, with a combined U.S. tax rate with respect to such equity interest or other investments of approximately 54%.

If the Company is subject to U.S. withholding tax on payments from investments or is subject to U.S. net income tax, such tax would reduce the amounts available to make payments on the Placing Shares. The extent to which other source country withholding taxes may apply to the Issuer's income will depend on the actual composition of its assets.

The European Directive on Alternative Investment Fund Managers may impair marketing of the Shares to EU investors

The AIFMD was transposed into the national legislation of a number of EEA member states on 22 July 2013. The Company will be considered an Alternative Investment Fund ("AIF") for the purposes of AIFMD. AIFMD will allow the continued marketing of AIFs, such as the Company, under national private placement regimes where EEA member states choose to implement AIFMD national private placement regimes. In relation to the Company, such marketing will be subject to registration under the AIFMD in those EU member states where there will be marketing of the Shares to investors. To permit marketing, appropriate cooperation agreements must be in place between the supervisory authorities of the relevant EEA member states in which the Shares are being marketed and the jurisdiction of both the Company and the Portfolio Manager, as the AIFM of the Company.

Accordingly, the ability of the Portfolio Manager to market the Shares in the EEA will depend on the relevant EEA state permitting the marketing of non-EEA managed funds, the continuing status of Guernsey and the USA in relation to AIFMD and the Portfolio Manager's willingness to comply with the relevant provisions of AIFMD and the other requirements of the national private placement regimes of individual EEA states, the requirements of which may restrict the Company's ability to raise additional capital from the issue of new Shares in one or more EEA state.

Additionally, it should be noted that what is and what is not "marketing" under AIFMD can vary between EEA member states, in some cases covering most promotional activity in respect of a fund and in some cases covering only material that is sufficiently specific or precise in respect of information relating to the terms of the fund that it could alone form the basis of a decision to invest in the fund. This in turn means that the type of promotional activity that will require registration under AIFMD can also vary between EEA member states.

However, what is and what is not “marketing” under AIFMD remains a developing area and regulatory guidance in many EEA member states is limited. It is possible that European Securities and Markets Authority (“ESMA”) or an EEA national regulator may change its policy approach in the future or that ESMA, the European Commission or another European entity, regulatory or legislative body may have a different interpretation at a later date of what constitutes marketing under AIFMD.

If it was held that certain promotional material in respect of the fund constitutes marketing under AIFMD and was provided to investors in an EEA member state without the Company having been registered in that EEA member state for marketing under AIFMD by the Portfolio Manager, the Portfolio Manager may face regulatory sanctions as a result of non-compliance with AIFMD, and the enforceability of agreements with Shareholders may be affected.

ESMA has also consulted on the possible extension of the passport for marketing and managing under AIFMD to non-EEA based managers (the marketing and managing passports are currently only available to EEA based AIFMs) and delivered advice to the European Commission on 18 July 2016 on whether, amongst other things, the passporting regime should be extended to the management and/or marketing of AIFs by non-EEA based managers.

This advice regarding extending the passport to US domiciled AIFMs was qualified, meaning it is currently not clear if the passporting regime will be extended to the Portfolio Manager as an AIFM, nor is it clear that the European Commission consider that this advice contains a positive assessment of a sufficient number of non-EEA countries to extend the passport to these countries. If the European Commission were to consider there were sufficient grounds to extend the passport and adopted the requisite delegated act extending the passport, the national private placement regimes which are currently applicable to non-EEA AIFMs and non-EEA AIFs in EEA member states will temporarily continue to co-exist with this new non-EEA passport (the “Third Country Passport”).

However, three years after the adoption of this delegated act, ESMA is required to issue an opinion on the functioning of the Third Country Passport and advise on the potential termination of the current national private placement regimes. If the national private placement regimes were then abolished, an AIF could not be marketed into Europe by a non-EEA AIFM except by way of the Third Country Passport, meaning in this scenario the Portfolio Manager would not be able to market the Shares in the Company in the EEA.

Any regulatory changes arising from implementation of the AIFMD (or otherwise) that limit the Company’s ability to carry on its business or to market future issues of its Shares may materially adversely affect the Company’s ability to carry out its investment policy successfully and to achieve its investment objective, which in turn may adversely affect the Company’s business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Final regulations implementing the “Volcker Rule” in the United States of America were issued in December 2013 and became effective by operation of law on 1 April 2014, subject to a conformance period. The final Volcker Rule regulations revised the November 2011 proposed regulations and include certain changes to the treatment of foreign funds and non-U.S. bank investors. If the Volcker Rule applies to an investor’s ownership of Shares, the investor may be forced to sell its shares, or the continued ownership of such shares may be subject to certain restrictions.

On 21 July 2010, U.S. President Barack Obama signed into law the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act and certain provisions therein known as the “Volcker Rule.” On 10 December 2013, the final Volcker Rule regulations (the “Final Regulations”) were issued by U.S. regulators. The Final Regulations are effective from 1 April 2014, subject to a conformance period ending on 21 July 2015 (which may be extended). The Volcker Rule generally restricts certain non-U.S. banks and affiliated financial firms, collectively identified as “banking entities,” from investing in and sponsoring “covered funds.” In the event that a non-U.S. bank is deemed to be a “banking entity” and the Company is deemed to be a “covered fund” for purposes of the Volcker Rule, the non-U.S. bank’s ownership of the Shares may be subject to investment restrictions. If so, the non-U.S. bank may be required to divest the Shares by the end of the conformance period. Depending on market conditions and other factors, if an investor is required to liquidate its investment in the Shares during the conformance period, it may suffer a loss from the price at which it purchased the Shares.

If the Company becomes subject to tax on a net income basis in any tax jurisdiction, including Guernsey or the United Kingdom, the Company's financial condition and prospects could be materially and adversely affected

The Company intends to conduct its affairs so that it will not be treated as UK resident for taxation purposes, or as having a permanent establishment or otherwise being engaged in a trade or business, in the UK. The Company intends that it will not be subject to tax on a net income basis in any country. There can be no assurance, however, that the net income of the Company will not become subject to income tax in one or more countries, including Guernsey and the United Kingdom, as a result of unanticipated activities performed by the Company, adverse developments or changes in law, contrary conclusions by the relevant tax authorities, changes in the Directors' personal circumstances or management errors, or other causes. The imposition of any such unanticipated net income taxes could materially reduce the post-tax returns available for distributions on the Shares, and consequently may adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and/or its NAV.

Changes in taxation legislation, or the rate of taxation, may adversely affect the Company

Any change in the tax status of the Company, or in taxation legislation or practice in Guernsey, the United Kingdom or elsewhere could affect the value of the investments held by the Company or the Company's ability to achieve its investment objectives or alter the post-tax returns to Shareholders. Statements in this Offering Memorandum concerning the taxation of Shareholders and/or the Company are based upon current Guernsey and United Kingdom law and published practice as at the date of this Offering Memorandum, which law and practice is, in principle, subject to change (potentially with retrospective effect) that could adversely affect the ability of the Company to meet its investment objective and which could adversely affect the taxation of Shareholders and/or the Company.

Potential investors are urged to consult their tax advisers with respect to their particular tax situations and the tax effect of an investment in the Company.

Possible Financial Transaction Tax

On 14 February 2013, the European Commission issued proposals, including a draft Directive (the "Commission's Proposal") for a financial transaction tax ("FTT") to be adopted in certain participating EU member states (including Belgium, Germany, Estonia, Greece, Spain, France, Italy, Austria, Portugal, Slovenia and Slovakia (the "Participating Member States"), although Estonia has since stated that it will not participate). If the Commission's Proposal was adopted in its current form, the FTT would be a tax primarily on "financial institutions" in relation to "financial transactions" (which would include the conclusion or modification of derivative contracts and the purchase and sale of financial instruments).

Under the Commission's Proposal, the FTT could apply in certain circumstances to persons both within and outside of the Participating Member States. Generally, it would apply where at least one party is a financial institution, and at least one party is established in a Participating Member State. A financial institution may be, or be deemed to be, "established" in a Participating Member State in a broad range of circumstances, including (a) by transacting with a person established in a Participating Member State or (b) where the financial instrument which is subject to the financial transaction is issued in a Participating Member State.

The FTT proposal remains subject to negotiation between the Participating Member States. It may therefore be altered prior to implementation, the timing of which remains unclear. Additional EU member states may decide to participate.

In addition to the FTT, certain countries (such as France and Italy) have unilaterally introduced or announced their own financial transaction tax, and other countries may follow suit. There is therefore a risk that a financial transaction tax may be incurred on certain transactions entered into by the Company. Any such financial transaction tax may adversely affect the cost of investment or hedging strategies pursued by the Company as well as the value and liquidity of certain assets within the Company, such as securities, derivatives and structured finance securities.

Different regulatory, tax or other treatment of the Company or the Shares in different jurisdictions, or changes to such treatment in different jurisdictions, may adversely impact shareholders in certain jurisdictions

For regulatory, tax and other purposes, the Company and the Shares may be treated in different ways in different jurisdictions. For instance, in certain jurisdictions and for certain purposes, the Shares may be treated as more akin to holding units in a collective investment scheme. Furthermore, in certain jurisdictions, the treatment of the Company and/or the Shares may be uncertain or subject to change, or it may differ depending on the availability of certain information or disclosure by the Company of that information. The Company may be subject, therefore, to financially and logistically onerous requirements to disclose any or all of such information or to prepare or disclose such information in a form or manner which satisfies the regulatory, tax or other authorities in certain jurisdictions. The Company may elect not to disclose such information or prepare such information in a form which satisfies such authorities. Therefore Shareholders in such jurisdictions may be unable to satisfy the regulatory requirements to which they are subject.

The Company is not, and does not intend to become, registered in the United States as an investment company under the U.S. Investment Company Act and related rules

The Company has not, does not intend to, and may be unable to, become registered in the United States as an investment company under the U.S. Investment Company Act. The U.S. Investment Company Act provides certain protections to U.S. investors and imposes certain restrictions on companies that are registered as investment companies. As the Company is not so registered, and does not intend to so register, none of these protections or restrictions is or will be applicable to the Company. In addition, to avoid being required to register as an investment company under the U.S. Investment Company Act and to avoid violating the U.S. Investment Company Act, the Company has implemented restrictions on the purchase of the Shares by persons who are located in the United States or are U.S. Persons (or are acting for the account or benefit of any U.S. Person). For more information, prospective investors should refer to the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Purchase and Transfer Restrictions” in in “Placing Arrangements”.

Certain payments to the Company will in the future be subject to 30 per cent withholding tax unless the Company agrees to certain reporting and withholding requirements and certain Shareholders will be required to provide the Company with required information so that the Company may comply with its obligations under FATCA

Under Sections 1471 through 1474 of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code (commonly referred to as “FATCA”), Financial Institutions are required to use enhanced due diligence procedures to identify U.S. persons who have invested in either non-U.S. financial accounts or non-U.S. entities. Pursuant to FATCA, certain payments of (or attributable to) U.S.-source income, and the proceeds of sales of property that give rise to U.S.-source payments, will be subject to 30 per cent withholding tax with effect from 1 July 2014 unless the Company agrees to certain reporting and withholding requirements.

The United States and Guernsey have entered into an Intergovernmental Agreement (“US IGA”) to implement FATCA. Under the terms of the US IGA, the Company may be obliged to comply with the provisions of FATCA as enacted by the Guernsey legislation implementing the US IGA (the “Guernsey IGA Legislation”), rather than directly complying with the U.S. Treasury Regulations implementing FATCA. Under the terms of the US IGA, Guernsey resident entities that comply with the requirements of the Guernsey IGA Legislation will be treated as compliant with FATCA and, as a result, will not be subject to withholding tax under FATCA (“FATCA Withholding”) on payments they receive and will not be required to withhold under FATCA on payments they make.

The Company expects that it will be considered to be a Guernsey resident financial institution and therefore will be required to comply with the requirements of the Guernsey IGA Legislation.

Under the Guernsey IGA Legislation, the Company will be required to register with the United States Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) and report to the Guernsey President of the Policy & Resources Committee certain holdings by and payments made to certain U.S. investors in the Company, as well as to non-U.S. financial institutions that do not comply with the terms of the Guernsey IGA Legislation. Under the terms of the US IGA, such information will be onward reported by the Guernsey President of the Policy & Resources Committee to the United States under the general information exchange provisions of the United States-Guernsey Agreement for the Exchange of Information Relating to Taxes.

Further, even if the Company is not characterised under FATCA as a Financial Institution, it nevertheless may become subject to such 30 per cent withholding tax on certain U.S.-source payments to it unless it either provides information to withholding agents with respect to its U.S. Controlling Persons or certifies that it has no such U.S. Controlling Persons.

As a result, Shareholders may be required to provide any information that the Company determines necessary in order to allow the Company to satisfy its obligations under FATCA.

Additional intergovernmental agreements similar to the US IGA have been entered into or are under discussion by other jurisdictions with the United States. Different rules than those described above may apply depending on whether a payee is resident in a jurisdiction that has entered into an intergovernmental agreement to implement FATCA.

In addition to the US IGA, Guernsey and the United Kingdom have entered into an inter-governmental agreement (“UK IGA”) for the implementation of information exchange arrangements, based on FATCA, whereby relevant financial information held in Guernsey in respect of a person or entity who is resident in the UK for tax purposes will be reported to the Guernsey President of the Policy & Resources Committee for onward reporting to the UK’s HM Revenue and Customs. Under the UK IGA, the Company may be required to provide information to the Guernsey authorities about investors and their interests in the Company in order to fully discharge its reporting obligations and, in the event of any failure or inability to comply with the proposed arrangements, may suffer a financial penalty or other sanction under Guernsey law.

The scope and application of FATCA Withholding and information reporting pursuant to the terms of FATCA and the IGAs are subject to review by the United States, the United Kingdom, Guernsey and other IGA governments, and the rules may change. Although the UK IGA and US IGA have been ratified by Guernsey’s parliament, guidance published to date has been in draft format only and therefore, while the Company intends to comply with applicable law, it cannot be predicted at this time what the full impact on the Company and the Company’s reporting responsibilities pursuant to the UK IGA and US IGA will be. Shareholders should consult with their own tax advisors regarding the application of FATCA to their particular circumstances.

OECD’s Base Erosion Profit Shifting (“BEPS”) Action Points

In 2013, the OECD published its report on Addressing Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (“BEPS”) and its Action Plan on BEPS. The aim of the report and Action Plan was to address and reduce aggressive international tax planning. BEPS remains an ongoing project. On 5 October 2015, the OECD published its final reports, analyses and sets of recommendations (deliverables) with a view to implementing internationally agreed and binding rules which could result in material changes to relevant tax legislation of participating OECD countries. The final package of deliverables was subsequently approved by the G20 Finance Ministers on 8 October 2015. On 24 November 2016, the OECD announced that more than 100 jurisdictions concluded negotiations on a multilateral instrument that will amend their respective tax treaties (more than 2,000 tax treaties worldwide) in order to implement the tax treaty-related BEPS recommendations, although the effective date of such multilateral instrument remains uncertain. A first high level signing ceremony took place on 7 June 2017 where 68 countries signed the multilateral instrument. It is currently anticipated that the multilateral instrument will enter into force after five countries have ratified it. The multilateral instrument will then enter into effect for a specific tax treaty after all parties to that treaty have ratified the multilateral instrument. The final actions to be implemented in the tax legislation of the countries in which the Company will have investments, in the countries where the Company is domiciled or resident, or changes in tax treaties negotiated by these countries, could adversely affect the returns from the Company to its investors.

COMPANY, ITS INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE, POLICY AND STRATEGY

Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (formerly known as Acis Loan Funding, Ltd.) (the “Company”) was incorporated on 30 March 2015 and registered under the laws of Guernsey (registration number 60120) pursuant to the Companies Law. The Company changed its name on October 27, 2017. The Company is an investment company established to provide its investors with exposure to CLO Notes on both a direct basis and indirect basis and senior secured loans on an indirect basis, through the use of the investments described in its investment policy, including through the Management Companies.

The Company is seeking to raise U.S. $153 million through the Placing to invest in accordance with its investment objective and policy. Applications to an appropriate securities exchange may be made when deemed appropriate by the Company.

Investment in the Company is only suitable for institutional, professional and high net worth investors, private client fund managers and brokers and other investors who understand the risks involved in investing in the Company and/or who have received advice from their fund manager or broker regarding investment in the Company.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE

The Company’s investment objective is to provide Shareholders with stable and growing income returns, and to grow the capital value of the investment portfolio through opportunistic exposure to CLO Notes, investments in new issue CLOs sponsored by Highland and Acis CLO 7 through its interests in the Management Companies and CLO Income Notes, respectively, and senior secured loans primarily for the purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements, on both a direct basis and indirect basis, through the use of the investments described in its investment policy and through use of leverage, any Revolving Credit Facility, Warehouse Loan Facilities, total return swaps or repurchase agreements, in addition to secured loan facilities. With respect to the Company’s investments, except with respect to Designated CLO Resets or Designated CLO Refinancings, if applicable, it is expected that the Portfolio Manager intends to seek monetization of such investments in the ordinary course in its discretion; provided that at the end of the Term, the Portfolio Manager, in its reasonable discretion may postpone dissolution of the Company for up to 180 days to facilitate the orderly liquidation of the investments.

Highland HCF Advisor, in its capacity as the Portfolio Manager under the Portfolio Management Agreement, will manage the Company’s investments. In addition, the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Highland CLO Management, or another affiliate of Highland, in the capacity of the CLO Manager, may also manage Highland CLOs and the Portfolio Manager Highland, Acis, Acis CLO Management, or another affiliate of Acis, in the capacity of the CLO Manager, may also manage Managed CLOs, in each case, pursuant to CLO Management Agreements to be entered into from time to time.

INVESTMENT POLICY

Overview

The Company’s investment policy is to focus on synergistic investments in the following areas.

Loan Investments

The Company will invest on an indirect basis in a diverse portfolio of predominantly floating rate senior secured loans (or on a direct basis for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements), all of which will have at least one rating, which may be public or private, from Moody’s, S&P or Fitch. Initially, the Company’s loan investments will be focused in the U.S., but depending on market conditions the Company may also invest in similar types of loans in Europe. Accordingly, there is no limit on the maximum U.S. or European exposure. Investments in U.S. or European loans may be made through a U.S. or European originator subsidiary of the Company. The Company intends to invest directly only in those senior secured loans to obligors with total potential indebtedness under all applicable loan agreements, indentures and other underlying instruments at least $250,000,000 that would generally satisfy the eligibility criteria for Highland CLOs and set forth in “Summary—Investment Policy—Loan Investments”.

Financing of Loan Portfolios / Securitization

It is intended that the Company will periodically seek to sell or securitise all or a portion of its loan portfolio, held directly or indirectly, into new Highland CLOs where Highland CLO Management acts as CLO Manager. In doing so, Highland CLO Management may seek to adopt the “originator” model to address the Origination Requirements (as defined below) applicable to such Highland CLOs to the extent such Highland CLOs sought to comply with EU Retention Requirements. As a result, Highland CLO Management, will be required to commit to: (a) establishing the relevant CLO and (b) selling certain loan investments to the relevant CLO which it has purchased for its own account initially. In addition, under current guidance, prior to closing date of the relevant CLO, Highland CLO Management expects to sell investments to the relevant CLO to satisfy the Origination Requirements.

CLO Notes

The Company will from time to time invest directly or indirectly (through affiliates and subsidiaries, including the Management Companies, as more fully described below) in CLO Notes issued by Managed CLOs or CLOs managed by other asset managers as set forth in “Summary—Investment Policy—CLO Notes”.

The Company is currently invested in CLO Income Notes issued by Managed CLOs managed by Highland, Acis and Acis CLO Management. Following the Placing, the Company will invest indirectly through the Management Companies in CLO Notes.

Act as Risk Retention Provider

The Company may also invest in, provide loans to, or purchase performance-linked notes from asset management subsidiaries, affiliated with the Company, the Portfolio Manager, Highland or Acis and which may act as the asset manager of certain U.S. or European CLOs in order to satisfy certain U.S. Risk Retention Rules or EU Retention Requirements.

Allocation of Investment Opportunities

Highland CLO Management will serve as CLO Manager to each newly-issued Highland CLO during the Investment Period.

During the Investment Period, the Company shall receive priority allocations with respect to all CLO Income Note investment opportunities with respect to new issue Highland CLOs, over the account of the Portfolio Manager, its affiliates and Other Accounts as set forth in “Summary—Investment Policy—Allocation of Investment Opportunities”.

INVESTMENT RESTRICTIONS

The Company will, at all times, invest and manage its assets in a way which is consistent with its object of spreading investment risk and in accordance with the investment policy set out in “—Investment Policy”.

In the event of any breach of the Company’s investment policy or of the investment restrictions applicable to the Company, Shareholders will be informed of the actions to be taken by the Company (at the time of such a breach) by an announcement issued by the Administrator.

During the Investment Period, the Company may invest up to $250,000,000 in CLO Income Notes for new Highland CLOs as follows: (a) up to $150,000,000 in the aggregate from new capital contributions; and (b) up to $100,000,000 in the aggregate from proceeds received from existing seed portfolio investments and investments in new Highland CLOs, net of dividends paid, and amortization and interest payments on Company borrowings from committed credit facilities.

The Company may not, without the consent of the Advisory Board, invest in any CLO Notes or CLO Income Notes of new Highland CLOs that are not Qualifying CLOs as set forth in “Summary—Investment Restrictions”; provided that, if the Portfolio Manager has satisfied the RP Condition, the consent of the Advisory Board to invest in any

Highland CLO that meets clause (a) of the definition of Qualifying CLOs only shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed.

During the Investment Period, the Company shall be permitted to invest in “resets” with respect to the Designated CLO Resets and refinancings with respect to the Designated CLO Refinancings, each as set forth in “Summary—Investment Restrictions”.

The Company shall not invest in the CLO Income Notes of a new-issue Highland CLO unless it is the 100% owner of the CLO Income Notes not forming part of the Retention Interest acquired by Highland CLO Management.

BORROWING

Subject to the limitations set forth in “Summary-Borrowing”, it is expected that the Company will have access to one or more committed credit facilities. Such facilities may take the form of any Revolving Credit Facility, Warehouse Loan Facilities, total return swaps or repurchase agreements, in addition to secured loan facilities. It is expected that the Company will use advances under such facilities, together with the proceeds of the Shares, to purchase future senior secured loans (acquired for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements) and other assets. In addition to such facilities, the Company will be permitted to borrow money for day to day administration and cash management purposes.

CHANGES TO INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND POLICY

Any material change to the investment objective and policy of the Company would be made only with the approval of Shareholders.

INVESTMENT STRATEGY

Whether the senior secured loans or other assets are held directly by the Company (with respect to senior secured loans for the purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements) or indirectly via CLO Notes or its investment in the applicable Management Company it is the Company’s intention that, in any case, the portfolios will be actively managed (by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the applicable Management Company, an asset manager subsidiary or the applicable CLO Manager, as the case may be) to minimise default risk and potential loss through comprehensive credit analysis performed by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis, the applicable Management Company or the applicable CLO Manager (as applicable).

Whilst the intention is to pursue an active, non-benchmark total return strategy, Highland HCF Advisor as the Company’s Portfolio Manager will be cognisant of the positioning of the loan portfolios against relevant indices. Accordingly, Highland HCF Advisor will track the returns and volatility of such indices, while seeking to outperform them on a consistent basis. In-depth, fundamental credit research dictates name selection and sector over-weights/under-weights relative to the benchmark, backstopped by constant portfolio monitoring and risk oversight. The Portfolio Manager will typically look to diversify the Company’s portfolios to avoid the risk that any one obligor or industry will adversely impact overall returns. The investment strategy also places an emphasis on loan portfolio liquidity to ensure that if the Company’s credit outlook changes, it is free to respond quickly and effectively to reduce or mitigate risk in its portfolio. The Portfolio Manager believes this investment strategy will be successful in the future as a result of its emphasis on risk management, capital preservation and fundamental credit research. The Portfolio Manager believes the best way to control and mitigate risk is by remaining disciplined in market cycles, by making careful credit decisions and maintaining adequate diversification.

Leverage and Expected Returns

It is anticipated that any borrowing for the purpose of investing directly in senior secured loans (acquired for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements) will be in the form of a term Warehouse Loan Facility, however the Company has entered into the NexBank Credit Facility and may enter into any Revolving Credit Facility, Warehouse Loan Facilities, total return swaps, repurchase agreements or other facilities to facilitate the acquisition or financing of loans. Loans purchased using such borrowings will typically be held for no more than 12 months before being sold to a Highland

CLO. Except in relation to the CLO Retention Notes it holds, the Company may enter into hedging and derivatives transactions pursuant to its investment activities, for the purposes of efficient portfolio management.

The Company does not currently grant any guarantee under any leveraging arrangement. The grant of any such guarantee would be disclosed to investors in accordance with the AIFMD Rules.

Any proposed changes to the Company's investment objective and policy will be subject to the process described in the section titled "Changes to Investment Objective and Policy" above in this section of the Offering Memorandum.

Collateral and Asset Re-use Arrangements

Any collateral and asset re-use arrangements of the Company will vary according to the brokers and/or trading counterparties which it may use (each a "Trading Counterparty").

The Company may be required to deliver collateral from time to time to its Trading Counterparties, under the terms of the relevant trading agreements, by posting initial margin and/or variation margin and on a mark-to-market basis. The Company may also deposit collateral as security with a Trading Counterparty. The treatment of such collateral varies according to the type of transaction and where it is traded. Under such arrangements, the cash, securities and other assets deposited as collateral will generally become the absolute property of the Trading Counterparty, the Trading Counterparty will have the right to use such collateral.

Where collateral is reused by a Trading Counterparty, the Company will have an unsecured right to the return of equivalent assets and such collateral will be at risk in the event of the insolvency of a Trading Counterparty.

Any changes to the right of re-use of collateral will be disclosed to investors in accordance with the AIFMD Rules.

Current Investments of the Company

In order to facilitate a timely investment of the proceeds of the Placing and to take advantage of existing opportunities, the Company is currently invested in CLO Income Notes issued by Managed CLOs managed by the Portfolio Manager, Highland, Acis and Acis CLO Management. The details of such CLOs are set out in "The Current CLO Portfolio".

Following the Placing, the Company will acquire further assets and fund origination by Highland CLO Management of new Highland CLOs and it is expected that the Net Placing Proceeds will be substantially invested in CLO Notes upon closing. The Company may also, from time to time: (i) hold assets within its portfolio to maturity; (ii) sell assets within its portfolio to the market; or (iii) sell assets within its portfolio to another CLO which is not Managed CLO.

TARGET RETURN AND DIVIDEND POLICY

Target Total Return

Whilst not forming part of the investment objective or policy of the Company, on the basis of current market conditions as at the date of this Offering Memorandum, the Company is targeting an annualised mid-teen total return over the medium-term, once the Net Placing Proceeds are substantially invested (through the Company) in CLO Notes (the "Target Total Return"). The Company intends to seek to deliver this return through a combination of dividend payments and capital appreciation.

Target Dividend Yield and Policy

Whilst not forming part of the investment objective or policy of the Company, dividends will be payable in respect of each calendar quarter, payable in the month following the end of such quarter.

During the Investment Period, on each Quarterly Dividend Date, beginning May 15, 2018, the Company will target the Target Dividend. During the Investment Period, excess cash or interest from the portfolio will be reinvested by the Company with the objective of growing the NAV.

Following the Investment Period, excess cash, interest and proceeds from the realization of portfolio investments after satisfaction of all expenses, debts, liabilities and obligations of the Company will be distributed by the Company to the Shareholders as a dividend on the Quarterly Dividend Date in accordance with the Distribution Priority as set forth in “Summary-Dividend Policy”.

To the extent the Company does not have available funds on hand to meet the Target Dividend with respect to any Quarterly Payment Date, the Board of Directors may suspend dividends if, in consultation with the Portfolio Manager, it determines that a sale of assets to produce proceeds to meet the Target Dividend would not be in the best interests of the Company and/or would not produce a sale price reflective of the value of the assets.

The Board may deduct from any dividend payable to any Shareholder on or in respect of a Share all sums of money (if any) presently payable by him to the Company on account of calls with respect to existing Shares, or calls of commitments to purchase Shares pursuant to the subscription and transfer agreement or otherwise.

The actual dividend generated by the Company in pursuing its investment objective will, however, depend on a wide range of factors including, but not limited to, general economic and market conditions, fluctuations in currency exchange rates, prevailing interest rates and credit spreads, the terms of the investments made by the Company and the risks highlighted in the “Risk Factors” section of this Offering Memorandum. Dividend payments may be suspended by Board of Directors in its absolute discretion, including, without limitation, in the event of adverse, or perceived adverse, market conditions.

The Target Total Return and the Target Dividend should not be taken as an indication of the Company’s expected future performance or results. The Target Total Return and the Target Dividend are targets only and there is no guarantee that they can or will be achieved and should not be seen as an indication of the Company’s expected or actual return. Target returns are hypothetical and are neither guarantees nor predictions or projections of future performance. Actual events and conditions may differ materially from the assumptions used to establish the Target Total Return and Target Dividend. Accordingly, investors should not place any reliance on the Target Total Return or the Target Dividend in deciding whether to invest in Shares.

Furthermore, the future performance of the Company may be materially adversely affected by the risks discussed in the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Risk Factors”.

FURTHER ISSUES OF SHARES

The Directors will have authority to allot further Shares in the share capital of the Company following the Placing subject to the subscription and transfer agreement. Further issues of Shares beyond the issuances contemplated in the subscription and transfer agreement would only be made subject to consent of the Advisory Board, as described in “Summary—Advisory Board” if the Directors determine such issues to be necessary to protect the Company, consistent with the Board’s duties to the Company, and in the best interests of Shareholders and the Company as a whole. Relevant factors in making such determination include net asset performance, share price rating and perceived investor demand. In the case of further issues of Shares (or sales of Shares from treasury), except as permitted by the Shareholders, such Shares will only be issued at prices which are not less than the then prevailing Net Asset Value per Share (as estimated by the Directors).

There are no provisions of Guernsey law which confer rights of pre-emption in respect of the allotment of Shares. The Articles, however, contain pre-emption rights in relation to allotments of Shares for cash.

Valuation of the portfolio

It is intended that, in accordance with its investment objective and policy set out above, the Company will invest in: (a) senior secured loans and other debt securities on both a direct basis (for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an "originator" for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements) and indirect basis, including through the use of leverage via repurchase facilities and Warehouse Loan Facilities, and for the purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an "originator" for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements; (b) CLO Notes, and any other assets held by management subsidiaries; and (c) interests in the Management Companies, and will value such instruments in accordance with the valuation policy established by the Portfolio Manager from time to time.

In addition, the Company must compute the value of the instruments that are being distributed in-kind as of their date of distribution in accordance with the Company's Memorandum and Articles of Association. In determining the value of the assets of the Company, no value is placed on the goodwill or name of the Company, or the office records, files, statistical data or any similar intangible assets of the Company not normally reflected in the Company's accounting records, but there must be taken into consideration any related items of income earned but not received, expenses incurred but not yet paid, liabilities fixed or contingent, prepaid expenses to the extent not otherwise reflected in the books of account, and the value of options or commitments to purchase or sell instruments pursuant to agreements entered into on or prior to such valuation date.

Suspension of the calculation of Net Asset Value

The Directors may at any time, but are not obliged to, temporarily suspend the calculation of the NAV and NAV per Share during any period if it determines that such a suspension is warranted by extraordinary circumstances, including: (i) during any period when any market on which the Company's investments are quoted, traded or dealt in is closed, other than for ordinary holidays and weekends, or during periods in which dealings are restricted or suspended; (ii) during the existence of any state of affairs, including as a result of political, economic, military or monetary events or any circumstances outside the control, as a result of which, in the reasonable opinion of the Portfolio Manager, the determination of the value of the assets of the Company, would not be reasonably practicable or would be seriously prejudicial to the shareholders; (iii) during any breakdown in the means of communication normally employed in determining the price or value of the Company's assets or liabilities, or of current prices in any market as aforesaid, or when for any other reason the prices or values of any assets or liabilities of the Company cannot reasonably be accurately ascertained within a reasonable time frame; (iv) during any period when the transfer of funds involved in the realization or acquisition of any investments cannot, in the reasonable opinion of the Portfolio Manager, be effected at normal rates of exchange; or (v) automatically upon liquidation of the Company.

Shareholders will be informed by e-mail from the Administrator in the event that the calculation of the NAV per Share is suspended as described above.

MARKET OPPORTUNITY

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY

The Company intends to invest in CLO Notes of CLOs which are compliant with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules and which may be compliant with the EU Retention Requirements (as defined above) and in senior secured loans (for the primary purpose of enabling Highland CLO Management to qualify as an “originator” for purposes of the EU Retention Requirements). In pursuance of this intention, the Company will invest in each of the Management Companies which will, pursuant to the EU Retention Requirements, need to, amongst other things: (a) on the closing date of a CLO it establishes, commit to purchase “material net economic interest” equal to at least five per cent of the maximum portfolio principal amount of the assets in the CLO and (b) undertake that, for so long as any securities of the CLO remain outstanding (including any CLO Retention Notes), it will retain its interest in the CLO and will not (except to the extent permitted by the EU Retention Requirements) sell, hedge or otherwise mitigate its credit risk under or associated with such CLO. This five per cent material net economic interest in the CLO can, amongst other methods, be retained through the holding of a vertical strip of all issued tranches (AAA-rated notes to equity) or a retention holding in the first loss tranche or a combination thereof. The EU Retention Requirements prohibit many significant European investors from investing in any securitisation which does not comply with them.

In addition, with the intention of achieving classification as an “originator” (as defined in the CRR) and complying with the CRR Retention Requirements with respect to Highland CLOs, Highland CLO Management will be required to meet the Origination Requirements.

Highland CLO Management may seek to adopt the “originator” model to address the EU Retention Requirements for its CLOs and intends to be treated as a “majority-owned affiliated” of Highland in order to comply with the U.S. Risk Retention Rules.

In addition to its current holdings, the Company may buy floating rate senior secured loans from the primary and secondary market before selling the assets to one or more CLOs which it establishes and for which Highland CLO Management will act as a retention provider, thereby offering investors wholesale access to senior secured loans acquired by the Company and retained CLO Income Notes.

The Portfolio Manager will be responsible for selecting and monitoring the performance of the investments. The Company’s purchase and sale decisions (with certain exceptions) will be taken by Highland HCF Advisors as Portfolio Manager pursuant to the Portfolio Management Agreement. Further details on the investment process are set out in the section of this Offering Memorandum entitled “Investment Process”.

Investment Philosophy

Highland's investment philosophy centers on being investors first. The firm has 25 years of experience investing in alternative strategies through multiple cycles. Highland is a recognized pioneer in bank loan asset management and CLO issuance. The firm invests a meaningful amount of capital in the portfolios they manage, with market value in excess of $250 million invested alongside our clients, as of September 30, 2017.

Highland's investment philosophy is rooted in a value-driven approach that combines rigorous bottom-up credit underwriting with top-down risk analysis to optimize risk-adjusted performance of portfolios. The firm integrates risk management throughout its investment process and maintains a culture of a high level of compliance. Highland focuses on attractive risk/return arbitrage opportunities where the firm can add value. Highland seeks to generate alpha by implementing checks and balances that allow the firm to identify risks, mitigate volatility, and quickly ascertain and sell losers.

While participating in the larger, liquid bank loan asset class, Highland continues to capture market inefficiencies in this over the counter (OTC) market through mispricings that it identifies via robust fundamental analysis, proactive diligence and monitoring, and nimble trading capabilities. Given the scale of the firm's investment resources, Highland is able to follow and manage investment portfolio names more closely. Highland credit research analysts manage 20-30 credits per analyst versus most peers, who manage 40-50 credits per analyst. In addition, the firm's dedicated trading desk and active dialogue with the Street enable Highland to identify technical dislocations and opportunities. The firm's high conviction investment philosophy and active portfolio management style versus peers have been key drivers of creating alpha for clients over time.

Investment Monitoring and Risk Management

Risk management is integrated into all levels of the investment process, from research, to portfolio construction and management, to ongoing monitoring. Highland conducts extensive position and portfolio monitoring activities on a daily basis. Portfolio risk is reviewed using internally generated daily, weekly, and monthly reports which measure transaction compliance including investor-mandated metrics such as portfolio concentrations or required test scores, as well as compliance with evolving internal positioning targets. Individual position risk is monitored in a number of ways, including Highland's extensive proprietary intranet system (Highland Online Management Engine or "HOME"), which pulls together data from their various data providers (Wall Street Office, LPC, Moody's, S&P, MarkIt, S&P LCD, CSFB Index) to provide a comprehensive portfolio/risk management system. The system allows the CLO team to monitor metrics at any level of aggregation (instrument, issuer, portfolio, fund and across the platform). Additionally, the system is designed to be scalable and with flexibility to enable future data inputs and reporting requirements.

For both Managed CLOs and for the underlying loans, the HOME intranet system allows Highland to monitor portfolios on a real-time, ongoing basis by receiving alerts showing positions with the largest daily/weekly/monthly mark change, as well as alerts on downgrades/upgrades, and when their credit analyst has changed his opinion on a broadly syndicated loan.

Allocation Policy

Highland and its affiliates may, from time to time, be presented with investment opportunities that fall within the investment objectives of the Company and the Managed CLOs and other clients, funds or other investment accounts managed by Highland or its affiliates, and in such circumstances, subject to the Company's priority allocation with respect to CLO Income Notes of new issue Highland CLOs Highland and its affiliates expect to allocate such opportunities among the Company, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts on a basis that Highland and its affiliates determine in good faith is appropriate taking into consideration such factors as the fiduciary duties owed to the Company, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, the primary mandates of the Company, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, the capital available to the Company, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, any restrictions on investment, the sourcing of the transaction, the size of the transaction, the amount of potential follow-on investing that may be required for such investment and the other collateral obligations of the Company, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, the relation of such opportunity to the investment strategy of the Company, the Managed CLOs and such other clients, funds or other investment accounts, reasons of portfolio balance and any other consideration deemed relevant by Highland and its affiliates in good faith. Subject to the Company's priority allocation with respect to CLO Income Notes of new issue Highland CLOs, Highland will allocate investment opportunities across the entities for which such opportunities are appropriate, consistent with (1) its internal conflict of interest and allocation policies and (2) the requirements of the Investment Advisers Act. Highland will seek to allocate investment opportunities among such entities in a manner that is fair and equitable over time and consistent with its allocation policy. However, there is no assurance that such investment opportunities will be allocated to the Company and the Managed CLOs fairly or equitably in the short term or over time and there can be no assurance that the Company and the Managed CLOs will be able to participate in all such investment opportunities that are suitable for it.

Biographies of the Highland Key Personnel

The Portfolio Manager will use the services of the key personnel set forth below, although it may not necessarily continue to use their services during the entire term of the Portfolio Management Agreement. Of these, Trey Parker and Hunter Covitz (and such other personnel as may be determined from time to time) will be made available by the Portfolio Manager to the Company pursuant to the Portfolio Management Agreement.

Although the persons described above are currently employed by Highland and are engaged in the activities of the Portfolio Manager, such persons may not necessarily continue to be employed by the Portfolio Manager during the entire term of the Portfolio Management Agreement and, if so employed, may not remain engaged in the activities of the Portfolio Manager.
