Title: Second Omnibus Claim Objection

Ref: Case No. 23-90611 (MI)
From: Thermal Paint Services, Inc.

Dear Sir/Madam:

Please note that we at Thermal Paint Services, Inc. located at 8245 Cichlid Way, San Diego, CA 92129, had received your initial letter that told us about the company which purchased our product for $19,845.00 and a week or so after receiving the goods, declared bankruptcy.

This came as a shock to us and we followed the process and filed our claim #973 on 09/24/2023 for $19,845.00 by using the computer/internet electronic process.

However, we were not sure if our claim had reached you, and therefore, we mailed you a hardcopy copy of our same claim by using the US postal mail facility.

From your another notice that we received from your office, we found that our hard copy of the electronic mail version is recorded in your paperwork as another claim from us and it has been given a Claim #1142 dated 09/28/2024. This came to us as a surprise since we only have 1 claim for $19,845.00 and did not request a duplicated claim for the same amount.

Now we have received another notice from your office which suggests that the company Wesco Aircraft Holdings, Inc. is using their legal people to try to dismiss our claim altogether by suggesting that we are claiming 2 payments of $19,845.00. We only want the money they owe us once and do not want it twice.

Please note that we are a Disadvantage Minority Small Business that is Woman owned, and we, very humbly, request that we get paid for the product which this company has purchased from us.

Your truly,
